TO THE MOST NOBLE, MOST MYGHTYE, AND MOST redoubted prynce, kynge HENRY the. VIII. kynge of Englande and of Fraunce, defensour of the fayth, lorde of Irelande, and in erth supreme hed immediatly under Chryst of the churche of Englande, his humble seruaunt RYCHARD TAVERNER desireth all Ioye, felycitie, and longe lyfe.

HOw highly all Englande is bounde to your incomparable maiestie for the infinite and manifolde benefites receyued at your most gracious handes, from tyme to time without ceasing, euē from the begynning of your most noble raigne: truly no mortal tonge is hable with wordes sufficientlye to expresse, or with secret thoughtes of hert worthely to cōcepue: Certes, it far passeth bothe the shlender capacitie of my wyt, and also ꝑ rude infancy of my tong to do either thone or thother: yea an other Cicero or Demosthenes wer not ynough here-vnto. Wherfore omittinge or rather leauinge to some other the full Encrompe and commendacion of your graces most ample dedes, worthy of eternall memorie, yet this one thinge I dare full well affirme, that amongest all your maiesties deseruinges, vpon the christen religion (then which surely nothing can be greater) your highnes neuer did thing more acceptable vnto god, more pro fitable to ꝑ auaūcemēt of true christianitie, more displeasaūt to the enemies of the same, & also to your graces enemies, then when your maiestie lycenced and willed the moost sacred Bible conteynyng the vnspotted and lyuely worde of God to be in the Englyth tong set forth to your highnes subiectes.

To the setting forth wherof (most gracious & moost redoubted soueraigne lorde) lyke as certeyn men haue neither vndiligētly nor vnlernedly trauel-led: So agayn it can not be denied, but ꝑ some faultes haue escaped their hādes. Neither speke I this to depraue or maligne their industrie & paynes take in this behalf: no, rather I think them worthy of no litle praise & thankes for the same, considering what great vtilitie & profit hath redounded to your gra ces hole realme by the publyshing and setting forth therof, although it were not finished to the ful absolucion and perfection of the same. For assuredly it is a worke of so great difficultie, I meane so absolutely to translate the hole bible that it be faultieſſe, that I feare it can scarce be doone of one or two persons, but rather requyreth bothe a deper conferrynge of many lerned wittes togyther, and also a luster tyme and longer leysure.

Wherfore the premisses wel cōsidered, forasmoch as ꝑ printers herof were very desirous to haue this most sacred volume of the bible com forth as fault lesse & emendatly, as the shortnes of tyme for the recognising of ꝑ same wold require, they desired me your most hūble seruāt for default of a better lerned, diligētly to ouerlooke & peruse the hole copy: and in case I shold fynd any notable default ꝑ needed correctiō, to amēd the same, accordyng to ꝑ true exēplars.
Whiche thynge according my talent I haue gladly done.

These therfore, my simple lucubracions & labours, to whō might I better de dicate, thē vnto your most excellēt & noble maiestie, ꝑ only author & grounde nexte God of this so highe a benefite vnto youre graces people, I meane that the holy scripture is communicate vnto the same.

But now though many faultes peraūce be yet left behind vncastigat, either for lacke of lernig sufficiēt to so great an enterprise, or for default of leasure, I trust your maiestie & all other ꝑ shal rede the same, wyll pardon me, consyde-rynge (as I haue alredy declared) how harde & difficile a thinge it is, so to set forth this worke, as shal be in al pointes faultles & without reprehension.
And thus I cōmit your most gracious & excellēt maiestie to ꝑ tuitiō of ꝑ highest, to whō be al honour, glory, & prayse, worlde without ende. AMEN.

Serche the scriptures: for they are they that testifye of me.

Paul to Timothy. ii. Tim. iii.

All scripture gyuen by inspiracion of God is profitable to teache, to improue, to amende and to instruct in ryghteousnesse, that the man of God maye be perfecte and prepared to all good workes.

The same to the Rom. xv.

What thynges so euer are writtẽ, are written for our learnynge: that we thorowe patience and comforte of ꝑ scriptures, might haue hope.

Salomon Prou. xxx.

All the worde of God, is pure and cleane, it is a shyld vnto them that put their trust in it. Put nothinge vnto his wordes, lest he reproue the, and thou be found a lyar.

Moses to the people. Deu. xii.

Ye shall not doo euery man what semeth hym good in his owne eyes: But what so euer I commaunde you, that take hede ye doo, and put nought therevnto, neither take ought therefrom.

The Lord vnto Josua. Jos. i.

Let not the boke of this lawe departe oute of thy mouth: But recorde therin daye and nyghte, that thou mayste be circumspecte to doo accordynge to all that is wrytten therin. For then shalte thou make thy waye prosperous, and then shalte thou haue vnderstandynge. Turne therefrom neyther to the ryght hande, ne to the lefte: that thou mayst haue vnderstandynge in all that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people. Exo. xiii.

And thou shalte shewe thy sonne at that tyme, saying: This is done bycause of that whiche the Lorde dyd vnto me when I came oute of Egypte. Therfore it shall be a signe vnto the vpon thyne hande, and a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouthe. For with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the oute of Egypte.

Moses Deut. xxxi.

Se that thou rede this lawe before all Israell in theyr eares. Gather the people together: bothe men, women and chyldren, and the straungers that are in thy cities: that they maye heare, lerne, and feare the Lorde your God, to kepe all the wordes of this lawe.

Ryst the holy Writinges of the Bible teach vs that there is one God, almyghtye, that hath neither begynnynge ne endynge: which of his owne goodnes dyd create all thynges: of whome all thinges procede, & without whom is nothyng: which is ryghtous and mercyfull, and which worketh al thynges in all after his wyl: of whom it may not be demaunded wherfore he doth this or that. God.

Then that this very God did create Adam the first man after his owne Image and lykenes, and dyd ordeyne and appoynte hym Lorde of all creatures in erth. Which Adam by the enuy of the deuill, disobeyinge the commaundement of his maker, did first sinne, and brought sin into this worlde, such and so greate, that we which be sprynge of him after the flesshe, are subdued vnto sinne, deathe, and damnacion, broughte vnder the yoke and tyrannye of the deuyll. Creacion of man.

Gene.iii.xvii. xxii.viii. Hebr.ii. And further, y Christ Jesus his son was promised of God the father to be a sauoure to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Dauid, and the other fathers: whiche shulde delyuer them frome their synnes and tyrannye of the deuyll, wherunto they were all subiect by Adam. Christ promysed.

And that in the meane seasō Whyle the fathers loked for saluacion and delyueraunce promysed, because mans nature is such, that he not onely can not, but also wyl not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and specially such a synner as hath nede of the sauinge health promysed, the lawe was giuen throughe whiche men myghte knowe synne, and that they are synners when they se they do none of the thinges that the law commaundeth, with so glad and wyllynge a minde as God requireth: but rather agaynste their wyles, without affection, and as though they were constrayned with the feare of that hell which the lawe threatneth sayinge: Cursed be he that maynteyneth not all the wordes of this lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was gyuen to thintente that synne and the malyce of mens hert beinge therby the better knowen, men shuld the more feruently thyrste the commynge of Christe, whiche shulde redeme them frome their synnes. Rom.iii. Gala.iii. Act.xiii. Last of all We are taughte that that Christe Whiche was promysed and shadowed in the olde testament, is sent of the father, at suche tyme as he had determyned with hym self, at suche tyme (I saye) as all wyckednesse flowyshed. And that he was sent not for any mans good workes (for they all were synners) but to thintente he wolde make good his promise and shewe the aboundant riches of his grace, whiche he had promysed. Christe the sauoure promysed.

Luke.ii. Galath.iii. Ioan.i. Rom.v. Esa.liii. Iohn.i. Hebr.ix. In the newe testament therfore it is moste euidently declared that Jesus Christ the true lambe and hoste, is come to reconcyle vs to the father, payinge on the crosse the punyshmente due to oure synnes: and to delyuer vs from the bondage of the deuyll vnto whom we serued throughe sinne, and to make vs the sonnes of God. CAPITVLO. I.

In the begynnynge + created God heuen & erth. The erth was voyde and emptye/ and darkenes was vpon the depe, and the spirite of God was borne vpo the waters. And God sayd: let there be lyght: and there was lyght. And God sawe the lyght that it was good: & diuyded the lyght from the darknesse/ & called the lyght the day/ and the darknesse the nyght: and + euenyng & morning was made one daye.

God also sayd: let there be a fyrmament betwene the waters/ & let it diuyde the waters a sonder. Then God made the fyrmament/ and parted the waters whiche were vnder the fyrmament, from the waters above the fyrmament: And so it was done. And god called the fyrmament heauen: And the euenynge and morninge was made the seconde daye.

And God sayd: + the waters vnder heauen be gathered togyther in one place, that the dry lande maye appere: And so it was done. And God called the drye lande the erthe/ and the gatherynges togyther of waters called he the see. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let the erth bring forth grene grasse and that bereth seed/ and fruytfull trees beryng fruyte euery one in his kynde/ whose seed is in them selues vpon the erth: And it was done. And the erth brought forth herbe & grasse that bare seed euery one in his kynde/ and trees beryng fruyte/ and hauyng seed in them selues/ euery one in his kynde: And God sawe that it was good: and the euenynge and morninge was made the thyrde daye.

Then sayd God: + be there lyghtes in the fyrmamente of heauen/ to diuyde daye from nyght that they maye be for tymes/ & dayes/ and yeares. And + let them be lyghtes in the fyrmament of heauen, to shyne vpon the erthe: And so it was done. And God made + two greate lyghtes: A greater lyght to rule the daye/ & a lesse lyght to rule the nyght: and made sterres also: And God set them in the fyrmament of heauen to shine vpon the erth/ and rule the daye and the nyght: and to diuyde the lyghte from darknesse: And God sawe that it was good: and the euenynge and morninge was made the fourth daye.

And God sayd: + let & waters bringe forth creatures that moue and haue life, and fowles for to flee ouer the erthe vnder the fyrmament of heauen. And God created great whales and all maner of creatures that lyue and moue which & waters brought forth in their kindes/ & all maner of feathered fowles in their kyndes: And God sawe that it was good: and blessed them sayenge: Encrease and multyplye & fyll the waters of the see: and let the fowles multyplye vpon the erthe. And the euenynge and morninge was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayd: let the erthe bringe forthe diuersite of creatures in their kyndes: catell and wormes & beastes of the erth in their kyndes/ and so it was done. And God made the beastes of the erthe in their kyndes/ and catell in their kyndes/ and all maner wormes of the erthe in their kyndes/ and god sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let vs make man to our symylytude and ouer our lykenesse: and let them haue rule ouer the fyshe of the see, and ouer the fowles of the ayre/ and ouer catell/ and ouer all the erthe/ and ouer all wormes that crepe on the erthe. And God created man after his lykenesse/ euen the lykenesse of God created he hym: male and female created he them.

And God blessed them, and sayd: Growe and multyplye, and fyll the erthe/ and subdue it/ and haue dominyon ouer the fyshes of the see/ and fowles of the ayre/ and ouer al the beastes that moue on the erth.

And God sayd: Se, I haue geuen you all herbes that beare seed vpon the erthe/ and all maner trees that haue fruyte in them & beare seed: to be meate for you and for all beastes of the erth/ and vnto all fowles of the ayre/ & vnto all that moue on the erthe, and wherin is lyfe/ that they maye haue all maner herbes & grasse for to eate/ and so it was done. And + God beholde all that he had made/ and lo, they were exceadynge good: and the euenynge and morninge was made the sixt daye.

CAPI. II.

Thus was heuen and erth fynished with all theyr + furnyture/ and in the seuenth daye God ended his worke whiche he had made/ and rested in the seuenth daye from all his workes that he made. And blessed the seuenth day/ and + sanctified it: for in it he rested from all his workes whiche he had created and made.

These are the generacions of heuen and erth when they were created, in the tyme when the Lorde God created heuen and erth and all the thinges of the felde before they grewe in the erth. And all the herbes of the felde before they sprange/ for the Lorde God had yet sent no rayne vpon the erth, neither was there yet any man to tylle the erth. But there arose a myste out of the ground/ and watered all the lande. Then the Lorde God + shope man/ of the moulde of the erthe/ and breathed in to his face the breth of lyfe. So + man was made a lyuynge soule.

The Lorde God also planted a garden of pleasure from the beginning/ and there he set man whom he had formed. And the Lorde god made to growe fruyte of the erth, all maner trees beautyfull to the syght, and pleasaunt to eate/ and the + tree of lyfe in the myddes of the garden: and also the tre of knowinge of good and euyll.

And the Lorde God toke Adam, and put hym in the garden of pleasure, to dresse it and to kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Adam sayinge: Of all the trees of the garden eate: But of the tree of knowlege of good and bad eate thou not: For the same day thou eatest of it, thou shalte dye the deathe.

And the Lorde God sayd: It is not good that man be a lone. I wyll make hym an helpe to beare hym company. And after the Lorde God hadde made of the erth all maner beestes of the felde and all maner foules of the ayre, he brought them vnto Adam to se what he would

And Adam hyd hym selfe and his wyfe also from the ‡ face of the Lorde God/ among ‡ That is, his presence. the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam/ and sayd vnto hym: where arte thou? And he sayd: who tolde the that thou were naked? hast thou taten of the tree, of whiche I bad the that thou shouldest not eate? And Adam answered: The woman whiche thou gauest me C a companyon, gaue me of the tree, and I ate. And the Lorde God sayd vnto the woman: wherfore dyddest thou so? The woman answered: The serpent deceyued me and I ate.

And the Lorde God sayd vnto the serpent: because thou hast doone this, cursed be thou aboue all catteil and beastes of the erthe: vpon thy belye shalte thou go: and erthe shalte thou eate all dayes of thy lyfe. And Adam called his wyfe Eue/ because she was the mother of all that liueth. And the Lorde God made Adam and his wyfe garmentes of skynnes/ which he put on them. Then the Lorde God cast hym out of the garden of pleasure/ to tylle the erth where he was taken. Cayn despayreth.

And Cayn sayd vnto the Lorde: My synne is greater then that it may be forgyuen. Beholde thou castest me out this daye from the erth, and from thy syght must I hyde my selfe, and I muste be wandrynge and a vacabunde vpon the erthe: Wherefore who soeuer fyndeth me, wyll hyll me. And the Lorde sayd vnto hym: Not so, but who so euer sleeyeth Cayn C shall be punysshed seuen folde. And the Lorde put a marke vpon Cayn that no man yͤ founde hym, shold kyll hym. And Cayn went out from the face of the Lorde, and dwelte in the lande Nod, on the east syde of Eden.

And Cayn laye with his wyfe, which conceyued and bare Henoch. And buylded a cite, and called the name of it after the name of his sonne, Henoch. And Henoch begate Irad. And Irad begate Mathusael. And Mathusael begate Mathusael. And Mathusael begate Lamech. And Lamech toke hym two wyues: the one called Ada, and the other Zilla. And Ada bare Jabal, of whome came they that dwelte in tentes, and had cattell. And his brothers name was Jubal, of hym came all that exercyse them selues on the harpe and on the organs. And Zilla also bare Tubalcayn a D worcher in metall, and father of all that grane in brasse and yron. And Tubalcayns sister was called Noema.

Then sayd Lamech vnto his wyues Ada and Zilla: heare my voyce ye wyues of Lamech, & herke vnto my wordes, for I haue slayn a man and wounded my selfe, and haue slayne a yong man, and got my selfe stripes: for Cayn shall be auenged seuen folde, but Lamech seuenty tymes seuen folde. Adam also laye with his wyfe yet agayne, and she bare a sonne, & called his name Seth. For God (sayd she) hath gruen me an other sonne for Abel whom Cayn slewe. And Seth begate a son, and called his name Enos. And in that tyme began men to * call on the name of the Lorde.

¶ The cause of the flood. The maner of mans lyfe, & the propertyes of the arke.

CAPI. VI.

A The sonnes of god are the sonnes of Seth which had inherit and no regarded them in the stocke of God. The sonnes of men are the sonnes of Cayn: ennuid of hym to all wickednesse.

And it came to passe when men began to multeply vpon the erth, and had begot them doughters / the ✠ sonnes of God sawe the doughters of men that they were fayre and toke vnto them wyues, whiche they best lyked among them all. And the Lorde sayd: My spirite shall not alwaye stryue with man, for he is flesh. Neuertheles I will graue them yet ✠ space an hundred and.xx. yeres.

There were graunts in the worlde in those dayes. For after that the children of God had layn with the doughters of men, and had begotten them children / the same children were the myghtyest of the worlde / and men of renowme. And when the Lorde sawe that the malyce of man was encreased vpon the erth / and that all the ymagynacyon and thoughtes of his ✠ herte was onely cupll continually / he ✝ repented that he had made man vpon the erthe, and sorowed in his herte. And sayd: I will destroye mankynde whiche I haue made out of the erthe: bothe man, beest, wormc and foule of the ayre / for it repenteth me that I made them. But Noe found grace in the syght of the Lorde.

✠ These are the generacions of Noe. Noe was a ryghtous man and perfyte in his tyme / and walked with God. And Noe begate thre sonnes: Sem, Cham, & Japheth. And the erth was corrupt in the syght of God, and was full of myschefe. And god loked vpon the erth / and lo it was corrupte: for all ✠ flesshe had corrupt his waye vpon the erth.

All flesshe, that is all the ✠ lyfe flesshy as in the.vii. of the Hebrue.

Then sayd God to Noe: ✠ the ende of all flesshe is come before me, for the erth is full of their myschefe. And lo, I will destroye them with the erth. Make the an arche of pyne tree, and make chambres in the arche / and pytche it within and without with pytche. And of this facyon shalte thou make it.

The ende of all flesh, that is, the ende of all men is come before me.

The length of the arche shall be thre hundred cubytes / and the breede of it. l. cubytes / and the heyth of it. xxx. cubytes. A wyndowe shalt thou make about in the arche / and within a cubyte compasse shalte thou fynysshe it. And the doore of the arche shalt thou set in the syde of it: and thou shalt make it with thre lofte, one aboue an other. For beholde, I will bryng in a floode of water vpon the erth to destroy all flesshe vnder heuen, wherin breth of lyfe is: and all that is in the erth shall perysshe. But I will make my leagge with the, that both thou shalte come in to the arche and thy sonnes / thy wyfe and thy sonnes wyues with the.

And of all that lyueth & hat so euer flesshe it be / shalte thou bryng in to the arche of euery thynge a payre, to kepe them alyue with the. And male and female it shall they be / of byrdes in their kynde, & of beestes in their kynde / and of all maner of wormes of ✠ erth in their kynde: a payre of euery thynge shall come vnto the to kepe them alyue. And take vnto the of all maner of meate that may be eaten, and laye it vp in store by the, that it may be meate both for the and for them: And Noe dyd accordynge to all that god commaunded hym.

¶ The entryng of Noe and suche as were with hym in to the arche. The cryenge of the floode wherwith all thynges dyd perysshe.

CAPI. VII.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Noe: Go in to the arche both thou and all thy household. For the haue I sene righteous before me in this generacion. Of all clene beestes take vnto the. vii. of euery kynde / the male and female / and of vnclene beest / a payre / the male and his female: lykewyse of the byrdes of the ayre. vii. of euery kynde / male & female to saue seed vpon all the erth. For seuen dayes hence will I sende rayne vpon the erth. xl. dayes & xl. nyghtes / and will destroy all maner of thinges that I haue made from the erth.

And Noe dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded hym: and Noe was syxe hundred yere olde when the ✠ floode of water came vpon the erth: and Noe wente and his sonnes, and his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues with hym in to the arke for the waters of the floode. And of clene beestes / and of the beestes that were vnclene / and of byrdes and of all that moueth vpon the erthe came in by couples of euery kynde vnto Noe in to the arche, a male and a female as God commaunded Noe. And the seuenth daye the waters of the floode came vpon the erth.

And the selfe same daye wente Noe, Sem, Cham and Japheth Noes sonnes, and Noes wyfe and the thre wyues of his sonnes with them in to the arche: bothe they and all maner of beestes in their kynde / and all maner of catell in their kynde / and all maner of wormes that moue vpon the erth in their kynde / and all maner of byrdes in their kynde / and all maner of soules what so euer had feders. And they came vnto Noe in to the arche by couples / of all flesh that had breth of life in it. And they that came male and female of euery flesh accordyng as God commaunded hym: and the Lorde shut the doze vpon hym. And the ✠ floode came. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes vpon the erth, & the water increased & bare vp the arke / & it was lyfte vp ouer the erth. And the water preuayled and increased exceedingly vpon the erth: & the arche was borne vpon the toppe of the waters. ¶ After the sending forth of the rauen and the doue. Noe went forthe of the arche. he offereth sacrifyce. The malyce of mans herte.

CAPI. VIII.

AND God remembred Noe and all the beestes, & all the cattell that were with hym in the arche. Then God brought * a wynde vpon the erth/and the waters ceased: and the † fountaynes of the depe and the wyndowes of heuen were stopt, and the rayne of heauen was forbydden, and the waters returne dfrome the earth, and abated after the ende of an hundred and. l. dayes.

And the arche rested vpon the mountaynes of Ararat, the. xvij. daye of the. vij. moneth. And the waters wente awaye, and decreased tyll the. x. moneth. And the first daye of the. x. moneth, the toppes of † mountaynes appered.

And after the ende of. xl. dayes Noe opened the wyndowe of the arche which he had made/ and sent forth a rauen, which went out, neuer goynge and comynge agayne, tyll the waters were dryed vp vpon the earthe.

He sent forth also a doue from hym, to wyt whether the waters were fallen from the erth. And whan the doue couldе fynde no restynge place for her fote, she returned to hym agayne vnto the arche, for the waters were vpon all the earth. And he put out his hande, and toke her, and pulled her to hym into the arche.

And he abode yet. vij. dayes more, and sent out the doue agayne out of the arche, and the doue came to hym agayn about euentyde, and beholde/ there was in her mouth a lefe of an olyue tree, whyche she had pinched: wherby Noe perceaued that the waters were abated vpon the earthe. And he taryed yet. vij. other dayes, and sente forth the doue, whiche from thence forth came no more agayne to hym.

And it came to passe, the sixte hundred and a one yere, and the first daye of the first moneth, that the waters were dryed vp vpon the erth. And Noe tooke of, the hatches of the arche, and loked: and beholde, the face of the earth was drye. So by the. xxvij. daye of the second moneth the earth was drye.

And God spake vnto Noe, sayenge: Come out of the arche, bothe thou and thy wyfe and thy sonnes & thy sonnes wyues with the. And all the beastes that are with the, whatsoeuer flesh it be, both foule and cattell, and all maner wormes that crepe on † erth, bryngе out with the, & let them moue, * growe & multiply vpō the erth. And noe came out, & his sonnes, & his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues with hym. And all the beastes, & all the wormes, & all the fowles, and all that moued vppon the earth, came also out of the arche, al of one kynde together.

And Noe made an aulter vnto the lorde, & toke of all maner of clene beastes, and all maner of cleane fowles, and offred sacrifice vppon the aulter. And the Lorde † smelled a swete sauour, and sayde in his hert: I will henceforth no more curse the erth for mannes sake, for the ymagination of mannes hert is euyll, euen frō the very youth of hym. Moreouer I will not destroye hence forth all that lyueth as I haue done. Neyther shall sowynge tyme and harueste, colde and hete, somer and wynter, daye and nyght hre cease, as longe as the earthe endureth.

¶ God blesseth Noe and his sonnes, and forbiddeth the shedynge of mannes bloude. The lawe of the swerde. he maketh a couenaunt with he will destroy the worlde no more by water/ and geueth the rayne bowe as a token and confirmation of the same. Noe is dronken/ and Cham getteth his fathers curse.

CAPI. IX.

AND God * blessed Noe and his sonnes and sayde vnto them: Increase & multiplye and fyll the earthe. The feare also and drede of you be vppon all beastes of the earth, and vpon all foules of the ayer, and vpon all that crepeth on the earth, and vpon al fyshes of the see, whiche are gyuen vnto your handes. And all that moueth vpon the earthe shall be your meate: Euen as the grene herbes so gyue I you al thinge. Only the * flesh with his lyfe, which is his bloud, se that ye eate not.

* For verely the † bloud of you, wherin your lyues are, will I require: Euen of the hande of all beastes will I require it, and of the hand of man, and of the hande of euery mans brother, will I require the lyfe of man: so that he which sheddeth mannes bloude, shall haue his bloude shed by man agayne: for God * made man after his owne lykenesse. Be that ye encrease, and ware, and be occupyed vppon the earthe, and multiplye therin.

Furthermore God spake vnto Noe and his sonnes with hym, sayenge: Se, I make * my bonde with you and your seed after you, and with all lyuynge thinge that is with you: both foule and cattell, and all maner beastes of the earthe that is with you, of all that cometh out of the arke, what so euer beaste of the earth it be. I make my bonde with you, that henceforth all flesshe shall not be destroyed with the waters of any floude, & that henceforth there shall not be a floude to destroye the earthe.

And God sayde: * This is the token of my bonde which I make betweme me and you, & betweme all lyuynge thinge that is with you for euer: I will set my bowe in the clowdes, & it shall be a tyme of the appoyntement made betweme me and the earthe: so that whan I bringe in clowdes vppon the earthe, the bowe shall appere in the cloudes. And than will I thinke vpon my testament which I haue made betweme me and you, and al that lyueth what soeuer flesshe it be. * So that henceforth there shall be no more waters to make a floude, to destroye all flesshe.

The bowe shalbe in the cloudes, and I will loke vpon it, to remembre the euerlastinge testament betweme God and all that lyueth vpon the earthe, what so euer flesshe it be. And God sayd vnto Noe: This is the tyme of the testament which I haue made betweme me and all flesshe that is on the earthe.

Cham is the father of Canaan. These are the. iii. sonnes of Noe, and of these was all the worlde overflowed.

And Noe begynge an husbande man, went forth and planted a vyneyarde, and dranke of the wyne and was droncke, and laye vncouered in the myddest of his tent. And Cham the father of Canaan sawe his fathers pryuytees, and tolde his two brethre that were without. And Sem and Japheth toke a mantell, & put it vpon both their shulders and went backwarde, and couered their fathers secrets, and their faces were backewarde, so that they sawe not their fathers nakednes.

As soone as Noe was awaked frome his wyne, and wist what his yongest sonne hadde done vnto hym, he sayde: & Cursed be Canaan, and a seruaunt of al seruantes be he to his brethren. And he sayde: Blessed be the Lorde God of Sem, & Canaan be his seruaut. God increase Japheth that he maye dwell in the tentes of Sem. And Canaan be their seruant.

And Noe lyued after the flood thre hundred and fyftye yere: so that all the dayes of Noe were. ix. hundred & fyfty yere, & than he dyed.

¶ The genealogye or Japheth, Sem and Cham.

CAPI. X.

*Paralip.

These be the generations of the sonnes of Noe: of Sem, Cham, and Japheth, vnto whome begate them children after the flood.

The sonnes of Japheth were: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Iauan, Tubal, Mesech and Thyras. And the sonnes of Gomer were: Ascenas Riphat and Togarma. And the sonnes of Iauan were: Elysa, Tharsis, Cethim and Dodanim. Of these came the Iles of the gentyls in their countreys, euery man in his speche, kynred and nacyon.

The sonnes of Cham were: Chus, Misraim, Phut and Canaan. The sonnes of Chus were Seba, Heuyla, Sabta, Raema & Sabtecha. And the sonnes of Raema were Saba and Dedan. B *Chus also begat Nemrod whiche began to be myghty in the earth. He was a myghtye hunter in the syghte of the Lorde. *Paralip.

Wherof came the prouerde: he is as Nemrod that myghty hunter in the syght of the Lorde. And the begynnynge of his kyngdome was * Babel, Ereth, Achad and Chalne in the lande of Synear: Out of that lande came Assur, and buylded Ninyue, and the stretes of the cyte, & Calah, and Resen betwene * Ninyue & Calah. That is a great cyte. And Misrim begate Ludim, Enamim, Leabim, Naphtuhim, Pathrusim and Casluhim: from whence came the Philystins, and the Capthorytes. *Genesis. *Jonas.

Canaan also begat Sidon his eldest sonne & Heth, Jebusi, Emori, Gergesi, Hum, Arki, Sini, Aruadi, Zemari and Hamathi. And afterwarde spronge the kynredes of the Cananytes. And the coastes of the Cananytes were frō Sydon tyll thou come to Gerara and to Asa, and tyll thou come to Sodoma, Gomorra, Adama, Zeboim, euē vnto Lasa. These were the children of Cham in their kynredes, tonges, landes and nacions.

And Sem the father of al the children of Heber, and the eldest brother of Japheth begate children also. And his sonnes were Elam, Assur, Arphachsad, Lud and Aram. And the children of Aram were: Vs, Hul, Gether & Mas. And * Arphachsad begat Sala, and Sala begat Eber. And Eber begat two sonnes. The name of the one was Peleg, for in his tyme the earthe was deuyded. And the name of his brother was Jaketan. D *Paralip.

Jaketan begate Almodad, Saleph, Hyasmoneth, Jarah, Hadoram, Usal, Dicla, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Ophir, Heuila and Jobab. All these are the sonnes of Jaketan. And the dwellynge of them was from Mesa vntyl thou come vnto Sephara a mountayne of the east lande. These are the sonnes of Sem in their kynredes, languages, countreyes and nacyons. These are the kynredes of the sonnes of Noe, in their generacions and nacyons. And of these came & people that were in the worlde after the floude.

¶ The buyldynge of the tower of Babell. The confusyon of tongues. The generacion of Sem the sonne of Noe vntyl Abraham whiche goeth with Lot vnto Haran.

CAPI. XI.

And al the worlde was of one tongue, and one language. And as they came frome the east, they founde a playne in the lande of Synear, and there they dwelled. And they sayde one to another: come on, let vs make bryche and burne it with fyre. So bryche was their stone, and slyme was their morter. And they sayd: Come on, let vs buylde vs a cyte and a towre, that the toppe maye reache vnto heuē. And let vs make vs a name afore we be scattered abrode ouer all the earth. And the Lorde came & downe to se the cyte & the towre which the children of Adam hadde buylded. And the Lorde sayde: See, the people is one, and haue one tongue amonge the all. And this haue they begon to do, and wil not leaue frome all that they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs descende, and myngle their tonge euen there, that one vnderstonde not what an other sayeth. Thus the Lorde scattered them from thence vpon all the earth. And they lefte of to buylde the cyte. Wherfore the name of it is called Babel, because that the Lorde there confounded the tongue of all the Worlde. And because that the Lorde frome thence scattered theym abrode vppon all the earthe.

God sheweth hym selfe sometyme sent amongmen by his wonderful worke: as is playn. xviii. and xix. capi.

These are the generacions of Sem: Sem was an hundred yere olde and begat Arphachsad. ii. yere after the floude. And Sem lyued after he hadde begote Arphachsad. v. hundred yere and begat sonnes and daughters.

And & Arphachsad lyued. xxxv. yere and begate Sala, and lyued after he had begat Sala. iiij. hundred yere and. iij. and begate sonnes and daughters. And Sala was. xxx. yere olde and begat Eber, and lyued after he hadde begot Eber. iiij. hundred and thre yere, & begat sonnes and daughters. When Eber was xxxiiij. yere olde, he begat Peleg, and lyued after he had begot Peleg foure hundred and. xxx yere, and begat sonnes and daughters. C

& there the whole yere was deuyded. Japheth inherited the northe parties beyonde the sea. Cham the south. Sem the myddle of & earth.

And

And Peleg when he was. xxx. yere olde begat Regu, and lyued after he had begot Regu. ii. hundred and. ix. yere, and begate sonnes & daughters. And Regu whe he had lyued. xxxii yere begat Serug, and lyued after he had begot Serug. ii. hundred and. vii. yere, and begat sonnes and daughters.

And when Serug was. xxx. yere olde he begat Nahor, and lyued after he had begot Nahor. ii. hundred yere, and begate sonnes and daughters. And Nahor whe he was. xxix. yere olde, begat Terah, and lyued after he had begot Terah, an hundred and. xix. yere, and begat sonnes and daughters.

And when Terah was. lxx. yere olde, he begat Abram, Nahor and Haran.

And these are the generacions of ✣ Terah. Terah begat Abram, Nahor and Haran. And Haran begat Lot. And Haran dyed before Terah his father in the lande where he was borne, at Ur in Chaldea. And Abram and Nahor tooke them wyues. Abrams wyfe was called Sarai. And Nahors wyfe Melca the doughter of Haran, whyche was father to Melca and to Iesca. But ✣ Sarai was baren, and had no chylde.

Than toke Terah Abram ✣ his sonne and Lot his sonne Harans sonne, and Sarai his daughter in lawe, his sonne Abrams wyfe. And they wente with hym frome Ur in Chaldea, to go into the lande of Chanaa. And they came to Haran and dwelled there. And when Terah was two hundred yere olde and fyue, he dyed in Haran.

¶ Abram is blessed of God, and goeth with Lot into Canaan. And God promyseth to gene the same lande to his sede. And afterwarde goeth Abram into Egypte and coueteth Sarai his wyfe to saye that she is his sister. And he was taken aware of Pharao for which the Lorde plageth hym.

CAPI. XII

Then the Lorde sayde vnto Abram, Get ✣ the out of thy countreye and frome thy kynred, and oute of thy fathers house, into a londe whyche I will shewe the. And I wyll make of the a myghtye people, and wyll bielle the, & make thy name greate, that thou mayst be a bielsynge. And I wyll bielle them that bielle the, and curse them that curse the. And in the shall be bielled all the generacions of the earthe.

And Abram went as the Lorde bad hym, & Lot wente with hym. Abram was. lxxv. yere olde, when he went out of Haran. And Abram toke Sarai his wyfe, & Lot his brothers sonne, with all ✣ their goodes which they hadde goten, and ♁ soules whyche they had begoten in Haran. And they departed to go into the lande of Chanaan. And when they were come thyther, Abram went forth into the lande tyll he came vnto a place called Sichem, and vnto the oke of More. And the Cananytes dwelled then in the lande.

Then the Lorde apeared vnto Abram, and sayd: vnto ✣ thy seed will I gyue this lande. And he buylded an auiter there vnto the lorde whyche apeared to hym. Then departed he thence vnto a mountayne that lyeth on the eastly syde of Bethe..... pytched his tente: Bethel beynge on the west syde, and Ay on the east: and he buylded there an auiter vnto the Lorde, and called on the name of the Lorde. And than Abram departed, and toke his iourney southwarde.

After this there came a derth in the lande. And Abram went downe into Egypte, to sojourne there, for the derth was sore in the lād. And when he was come nye vnto to entre into Egypte, he sayd vnto Sarai his wyfe. I know that thou arte a fayre woman to loke vppon. As soone as he came into Egypte, the Egyptians sawe the woman that she was very fayre. And Pharaos lordes sawe her also, and praysed her vnto Pharao: So that she was taken into Pharaos house, whyche entreated Abram well for her sake, so that he had shepe oxen and he asses, men seruaunts, mayde seruaunts, she asses and camels. ♁

But God plaged Pharao, & his house with great plages, because of Sarai Abrams wyfe. Then Pharao called Abram and sayde: Why hast thou thus dealt with me? Wherfore toldest thou me not that she was thy wyfe? Why saydest thou that she was thy syster, and causedest me to take her to my wyfe? But now lo, there is thy wyfe, take her and get the hence. Pharao also gaue a charge vnto his men ouer Abram, to lede him oute, with his wyfe and all that he had.

¶ Abram and Lot departeth out of Egypt. And Abram deuyded his lande and tarrii with his brother Lot. Yet again is promysed to Abram the lande of Canaan.

AFter theſe deades, the * worde of God

out of the wics, & said: lohe by vnto heuen and tell the ✠ sterres if thou be able to nobre them. And sayd vnto hym: euen so shall thy seed be.

And Abram ꝺ beleued the Lorde, and it was counted to hym for ryghteousnes. And he sayd vnto hym: I am the Lorde that brought the out of Ur in Caldea to gyue the this lande to possesse it.

And he sayd: Lorde God / whereby shall I knowe that I shall possesse it? And he sayd vnto hym: Take a cowe of thre yere olde / and a she gote of thre yere olde / and a thre yere olde ram / a turtyll doue and a yong pigeon. And he tohe all these and diuyded them in the myddes, and layde euery pece one against an other. But the foules diuyded he not. And the byrdes fell on the carcases, and Abram droue them away. And when the sonne was downe, there fell a slomber vpon Abram. And lo, feare and greate darknesse came vpon hym.

And he sayd vnto Abram: knowe this of a surety, that thy ✠ seed shall be a straunger in a lande not theyrs. And they shal make bondmen of them and entreate them euyll ꝺ iiij. hundred yeres. But the nacion whome they shall serue will I ꝺ iudge. And afterward shall they come out with great substaunce. Nenertheles thou shalte go vnto thy fathers in peace, and shalte be buryed when thou art of a good age: and in the fourth ○ generacion they shall come hyther agayne / for the wyckednesse of the Amorytes is not yet full.

When the sonne was downe and it was dared darke: beholde, there was a smokynge furnesse / and a fyre brande that ꝺ went betwene the sayd peces.

And that same daye the Lorde made a couenaunt with Abram saying: vnto thy ✠ seed will I gyue this lande, from the ryuer of Egypte, euen vnto the greate ryuer Euphrates: the Kenites, the Kenyzites, the Cadmonytes / the Hethytes, the Pherezytes, the Raphaims, the Amorytes, the Canaanytes, the Gergesytes and the Iebusytes.

¶ Sarai giueth Abram leue to take Agar her mayde to wyfe. Agar despyseth her maystres: for whiche she was eyll intreated of Sarai, and therfore runneth away. The aungell meteyngh her, commaundeth her to turne agayne and bothe promyseth her seed. And nameth her fyrst childe Ismael.

CAPI. XVI.

SArai Abrams wyfe bare hym no chyldren. But she had an handmayde an Egyptian, whose name was Agar. Wherfore she sayd vnto Abram: Behold, the Lorde hath shut me vp that I can not beare. I praye the ꝺ go in vnto my mayde / peraduenture I shall be multyplyed by meanes of her. And Abram herde the voyce of Sarai. Then Sarai Abrams wyfe tohe Agar her mayde the Egyptian (after Abram had dwelled .x. yere in the lande of Canaan) and gaue her to her husbande Abram to be his wyfe.

And he went in vnto Agar, & she conceyued. And when she sawe that she had conceyued: her maystres was despysed in her syght. Then sayd Sarai vnto Abram: Thou doest me vnryght, for I haue gyuen my mayde in to thy ꝺ bosome: and now bycause she seeth that she hath conceyued I am despised in her syght: the Lorde iudge betwene the and me. Then sayd Abram to Sarai: beholde, thy mayde is in thy hande, do with her as it pleaseth the.

And bycause Sarai sared toule with her, she fled from her. And the aungell of the Lorde founde her beside a fountayne of water in the wyldernes: euen by a well in the way to Sur. And he sayd: Agar Sarais mayde, whence comest thou, and whyther wylte thou go? And she answered: I flee from my maystres Sarai. And the aungell of the Lorde sayd vnto her: returne to thy maystres agayne, and submytte thy selfe vnder her handes.

I will so encrease thy seed, that it shall not be nombred for multitude. And the Lordes aungell sayd further vnto her: Se, thou art with chylde, and shalte bere a son, and shalte call his ✠ name Ismael, because the Lorde hath herde thy tribulacion. He will be a wyld man, & his hand wyl be against euery man, and euery mans hand against him, and yet shal he dwell fast by all his brethren. And she called the name of the Lorde that spake vnto her: thou art the God that seest on me / for she sayd: I haue of a surety seene here the ꝺ backe parties of hym that seeth me. Wherfore she called the well, the well of the lyuing that seeth me, which well is betwene Cades ꝺ Bared. And Agar bare Abram a son, and Abram called his sons name which Agar bare Ismael. And Abram was .lxxvi. yere old when Agar bare hym Ismael.

¶ Abram is called Abraham, and Sarai is named Sara. The lande of Canaan is here the fourth time promysed. Circumcision is here instituted. Ismael is promysed. Abraham prayeth for Ismael.

Sarai thy wyfe shall no more be called Sarai, but Sara shall her name be. For I wyl blesse her, & geue the a sonne of her. I wyl blesse her, so that people, yea kynges of people shall spryng of her. And Abraham fell vpon his face and laughed, and sayd in his herte: shall a chylde be borne vnto hym that is an hundred yere olde? and shall Sara that is .lxxxx. yere old beare? And Abraham sayd vnto God. O that Ismael myght lyue in thy syght.

Then sayd God: Sara thy wyfe shal * bere the a sonne in deede, and thou shalt cal his name Isaac. And I wyll make my bonde with hym, that it shall be an euerlastynge bonde vnto his seed after hym. But my bond wyl I make with Isaac, whom Sara shall bere vnto the euen this tyme twelue moneth.

And god lefte of talking with hym, & departed vp from Abraham. And Abraham toke Ismael his son, & all the seruauntes borne in his house and al that was bought with money, as many as were men children among the men of Abrahams house, and circumcised the foreskynne of their flesshe, euen that selfe same daye, as God had sayd vnto hym. The selfe same day was Abraham circumcised and Ismael his sonne. And all the men in his house, whether they were borne in his house or bought with money (though they were straungers) were circumcised with hym.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND the Lorde appered vnto hym in the thycke groue of Mamre as he sate in his tent dore in the heate of the day. And he lyfte vp his eyes and loked: and lo, three men stode not farre from hym. And when he sawe them, he ran to mete them from the tent dore, and fell to the ground & sayd: Lorde yf I haue found fauour in thy sight: passe not by thy seruaute. And then go your wayes / for euen therfore are ye come to your seruaunt. And they answered: do as thou hast sayd. And Abraham went apace in to his tent vnto Sara and sayd: Make redy apace three peckes of fyne mele, knede it & make cakes. And Abraham ran vnto his beestes & fet a calfe that was tender & good, and gaue it vnto a yong man which made it redy apace. And he toke butter and mylke and the calfe which he had prepared / and set it before them, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree: and * they ate.

And they sayd vnto hym: Where is Sara thy wyfe? He sayd: In the tent. And he sayd: I wyl come agayne vnto the as soone as the frute can lyue. And lo, Sara thy wyfe shall haue a sonne. That herde Sara out of the tent dore whiche was behynd his backe. Abraham & Sara were both olde and well stryken in age / and it ceased to be with Sara after the maner as it is with wyues. And Sara laughed in her selfe sayeng. Now when I am waxed old, shall I gyue my selfe to * lust / and my lord olde also? Then sayd the Lord vnto Abraham: Wherfore doth Sara laugh sayeng: shall I of a surety bere a chylde now when I am olde? is the thyng to hard for the Lord to do? In the tyme * appointed wyl I returne vnto the, as soone as the frute can lyue / and Sara shall haue a sonne. Then Sara denyed it, sayenge: I laughed not / for she was afrayde. But he sayd: yes thou dyddest laugh. Then the men stode vp from thence and loked towarde Sodome. And Abraham went with them to bryng them on the way. And the Lorde sayd: Can I hyde from Abraham that thyng which I am about to do, seyng that Abraham shal be a * great and a mighty people / and all the nacions of the erth shall be blessed in hym? For I knowe hym that he wyll commaunde his children and his household after hym, that they kepe the waye of the Lorde / to do after ryght and conscyence / that the Lorde may bryng vpon Abraham that he hath promysed hym.

And the Lorde sayd: The crye of Sodome and Gomorre is great / and their synne is exceadynge greuous. I wyll go downe and se whether they haue done all together accordyng to that crye which is come vnto me or not, that I may know. And the men departed thence and went towardes Sodome. But Abraham stode yet before the Lorde, and drewe nere and sayd. wylt thou destroy the ryghtous with the wicked? Where be .l. ryghtous within the cite, wylt thou destroy it, and not spare the place for the sake of .l. ryghtous that are therin? And Lot went out & spake vnto his sonnes in lawe, which shulde haue maryed his doughters / and sayd: aryse vp & get you out of this place / for the Lorde wyll destroye the cyty. But he semed as thoughe he had mocked vnto his sonnes in lawe. And as the morning aboue the angels caused Lot to spede him saying. Aryse vp / take thy wyfe and thy two doughters, and that that is at hande, lest thou perysshe in the synne of the cyty. And as he prolonged the tyme the men caught bothe hym, his wyfe, and his two doughters by the handes, because the lorde was mercyfull vnto hym / and they brought hym forth and set hym without the cyty. When they had brought them out / they sayd: Saue thy lyfe, and loke not behynde the, neyther tarye thou in any place of the countrey, but saue thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perysshe.

Then sayd Lot vnto them: Oo nay my Lorde beholde, forasmoch as thy seruaunt hath founde grace in thy sight / now make thy mercy greate / whiche thou hast shewed vnto me, in sauynge my lyfe. For I can not saue my selfe in the mountaynes, lest some myshappe fall vpon me and I dye. Beholde, here is a cyte by, to fle vnto / and it is a lytle one: let me saue my selfe therin: is it not a lytle one, that my soule may lyue? And he sayd to hym: sr, I haue receyued thy request concernyng this thyng / I wyll not ouerthrowe this cyte for whiche thou hast spoken. Haste the / and saue thy selfe there / for I can do nothynge tyll thou become in thyther. And therfore the name of the cyty is called Zoar. And the sonne was vpon the erthe when Lot was entred in to Zoar.

Then the Lorde rayned vpon + Sodome and Gomorra / brymstone and fyre from the Lorde out of heuen / and ouerthrewe those cityes & all the regyon, & all that dwelled in the cityes / and that that grewe vpon the erth. And Lots wyfe loked behynde her, & was turned in to a pyller of salte. Abraham rose vp early, and got hym to the place where he stode before the Lorde / & loked towarde Sodome and Gomorra and towarde all the lande of that countrey. And as he loked: beholde the smoke of the countrey arose as it had ben the smoke of a furnace. But yet when god destroyed the cities of the regyon, he thought vpon Abraham: & sent Lot + out fro the daunger of the ouerthrowing, when he ouerthrewe the cityes where Lot dwelled.

+ Gen.xiii.b. Sap.x.a. Ecclus.xliv.d. Ioseph.i.a.

And Lot departed out of Zoar and dwelled in the mountayns, & his.ii. doughters with hym, for he feared to tary in Zoar: he dwelled therfore in a caue, bothe he and his.ii. doughters with. Then sayd the elder vnto the yonger: our father is olde / and there are no mo men in the erth to come in vnto vs after the maner of all + people. Come therfore, let vs gyue our father wyne to drynke, and let vs lye with hym that we maye saue seed of our father. And they gaue their father wyne to drynke that same nyght. And the elder doughter went and laye with her father. And he perceyued it not / neyther when she laye downe / nayther when she rose vp.

+ Deut.ii.a. Iud.i.a. Luc.xvii.f. Iude.i.b.

And on the morowe the elder sayd vnto the yonger: Beholde, yesterynyght laye I with my father. Let vs gyue hym wyne to drynke thys nyght also/ and go thou & lye with him, & let vs saue seed of our father. And they gaue their father wyne to drynke that nyght also. And the yonger arose and laye with him. And he perceyued it not: neyther when she laye downe/ neyther when she rose vp. Thus were both the doughters of Lot with chylde by their father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called hym Moab/ which is the father of the Moabyte vnto this daye. And the yonger bare a sonne/ and called hym Ben Ammi, which is the father of the children of Ammon vnto this daye.

¶ Abraham went as a straunger in to the lande of Gerar. The kynge of Gerar taketh away his wyfe.

CAPI. XX.

1 AND Abraham departed thence towarde the south country and dwelled betwene Cades and Sur and sojourned in Gerar. And Abraham sayd of Sara his wyfe that she was his * syster. Than Abimelech kyng of Gerar sent and fet Sara awaye.

* Gene. xii.c. and xxvi.d.

Abimelech is chastened for Sarahs sake.

And God came to Abimelech by nyghte in a dreame and sayd to hym: Se, thou arte but a dead man for the womans sake whiche thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mannes wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her/ and therfore sayd: Lorde, wylte thou slepe eyghteous people? sayd not he vnto me, that she was his syster? yea, and sayde not she her selfe that he was her brother? with a pure herte 5 and innocent handes haue I doone this. And God sayde vnto hym in a dreame. I wote it well that thou dydest it in the puretenesse of thy herte. And therfore I kepte the that thou sholdest not synne agaynste me/ neyther suffred I the to come nyghe her. Now therfore delyuer to the man his wyfe agayne/ for he is a prophete. And lette hym praye for the that thou mayste lyue. But yf thou delyuer her not a- 7 gayne/ be sure that thou shalte * dye the death/ with all that thou hast.

* Gene. ii.d.

Then Abimelech rose vp be tymes in the mornynge, and called all his seruauntes/ and tolde all these thynges in their eares/ and the 8 men were sore afrayde. And Abimelech called Abraham and sayd vnto hym: what hast thou done vnto vs, & what haue I offended the, that thou sholdest bynge on me and on my kyngdome so greate a synne? thou hast doone deades vnto me that ought not to be done. And Abimelech sayd moreouer vnto Abraham: what sawest thou that moued the to do this thyng?

* The feare of god amog * Hebrues is principally taken for the honor & feyth that we owe vnto god/ & that with D such a loue as the chylde hath to the father.

And Abraham answered. I thought that per aduenture the * feare of God was not in this place/ & that they sholde slee me for my wyfes sake: yet in very dede she is my sister, the doughter of my father/ but not of my mother: and became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wandre out of my fathers house/ I sayd vnto her: This kyndnes shalt thou shewe vnto me in all places where we come, that thou saye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen/ men seruauntes/ and women seruauntes & gaue them vnto Abraham/ and delyuered hym Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayd: beholde the lande lyeth before the/ dwell where it pleaseth the best. And vnto Sara he sayd: Se, I haue geuen thy brother a thousande peces of syluer/ beholde this thyng shall be a couerynge to thyne eyes, and vnto all that are with the/ and vnto all men an excuse.

And so Abraham prayed vnto God/ & God healed Abimelech and his wyfe & his maydens so that they bare chyldren. For the Lorde had closed to all the mattyces of the house of Abimelech, because of Sara Abrahams wyfe.

¶ Isaac is borne. Agar is cast out with her yonge sonne Ismael. The aungell comforteth Agar. The couenaunt betwene Abimelech and Abraham.

CAPI. XXI.

THe Lorde vysited Sara as he had sayd, 1 and dyd vnto her * accordyng as he had promysed. And Sara was with chylde and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euē the same season which the Lorde had appoynted. And Abraham called his sones name that was borne vnto him, which Sara * bare him 2 Isaac/ and Abraham * circumcised Isaac his sonne when he was viii. dayes olde, as God commaunded hym. And Abraham was an hundred yere olde/ when his sonne Isaac was borne vnto hym. And Sara sayd: God hath made me a laughyng stocke: for all that heare will laugh at me. She sayd also: who wolde haue sayd vnto Abraham, that Sara sholde haue geuen chyldren sucke/ or that I sholde haue borne hym a sonne in his olde age: The chylde grewe, and was weaned/ and Abraham made a greate feast the same daye that Isaac was weaned. Sara sawe the sonne of Hagar the Egyptian which she had borne vnto Abraham a mockynge. Then she sayd vnto Abraham: 10 put awaye this * bondmayde & her sonne: for the sonne of this bondwoman shal not be heyre with my sonne Isaac: But the wordes semed very grieuous vnto Abrahams eyghe, because of his sonne. Then the Lorde sayd vnto Abraham: let it not be grieuous vnto the because of the chylde and of thy bondmayde: But in all that Sara hath sayd vnto the, heare her voyce/ for in * Isaac shall thy seed be called. Moreouer of the sonne of the bondwoman will I make a nacion/ because he is thy * seed.

And Abraham rose vp early in the mornyng and toke bread & a bottell with water, and gaue it vnto Hagar, puttynge it on her shulders with the chylde also, and sent her away. And she departed & wandred vp & downe in the wildernes of Berseba. When the water was spente that was in the bottell, she caste the chylde vnder a bushe & went & sat her out of eyght a gret way as it were a bowshote of: for she sayd: I will not se the chylde dye. And she sat downe out of eyght, and lyfte vp her voyce and wepte.

And god herde the voyce of the chylde. And the aungel of God called Hagar from aboue, and sayd vnto her: what ayleth the Hagar? Feare not, for God hath herde the voyce of the chylde where he lyeth. Aryse and lyfte vp the chylde/ and take hym in thy hande/ for I will make of hym a great people. And god opened her eyes and she sawe * a well of water. And 19 * Gene. she went and fylled the bottell with water/ and gaue the boye drynke. And God was with the lad, and he grewe and dwelt in the wyldernesse, and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wyldernesse of Pharan. And his mother got him a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

And it chaunced the same season, that Abimelech and Phicoll his cheefe captayne spake vnto Abraham, sayenge: * God is with the in al that thou doest. Swere therfore vnto me euen here by God, that thou wilte not hurte me nor my children, nor my childres children. But that thou shalt deale with me and the countreye where thou art a straunger, accordynge vnto the kyndnesse that I haue shewed the. Then sayd Abraham: I wyll swere.

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, whiche Abimelechs seruauntes had taken awaye. And Abimelech answered, I wist not who dyd it: also thou tolldest me not, neither herde I of it, afore this daye. And Abraham toke sheepe and oxen and gaue them vnto Abimelech. And they made both of them a bonde together. And Abraham set vij. lambes by them selues. And Abimelech sayde vnto Abraham: what meane these vij. lambes whiche thou hast set by them selues. And he answered vij. lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that it maye be a wytnesse vnto me, that I haue dygged this well: Wherfore the place is called Berseba, because they sware both of the. Thus made they a bonde together at Berseba. Then Abimelech & Phicol his cheefe captayne rose vp and turned againe vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wod in Berseba, and called there on the name of the Lorde, the euerlastynge God: and dwelt in the Philistin lande a longe season.

¶ The fayth of Abraham is proued in offrynge his sonne Isaac. Christ our sauiour is promysed. The generacion of Nachor Abrahams brother.

CAPI. XXII.

After these dedes, God dyd * proue Abraham and sayde vnto hym: Abraham. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: take thy only sonne Isaac whom thou louest, and get the vnto the lande Moria, & sacrifice him there for a sacrifice vppon one of the mountaynes which I will shewe the. Then Abraham rose vp early in the mornynge & sadled his asse, and toke two of his meyny with hym, and Isaac his sonne: and cloue wod for the sacrifice, and rose vp and got him to the place whiche God had appoynted him.

The thirde daye Abraham lyft vp his eyes and sawe the place a farre of, and sayde vnto his ponge men: byde here with the asse. I and the lad will go yonder and worshippe & come againe vnto you. And Abraham toke the wood of the sacrifice, & layd it vpon Isaac his sonne, and toke fyre in his hande and a knyfe. And they went both of them together.

Then spake Isaac vnto Abraham his father and sayde: My father? And he answered here am I my sonne. And he sayde: se here is fyre and wod, but where is the sheepe for sacrifice? And Abraham sayde: my sonne, God will prouyde him a sheepe for sacrifice. So went they bothe together.

And when they came vnto the place which God shewed hym, Abraham made an auiter there, and dressed the wod, and bounde Isaac his sonne, and * layde hym on the auiter, aboue vpon the wod. And Abraham stretched forth his hande, & toke the knyfe to haue killed his sonne. Then the aungell of the Lorde called vnto hym frome heauen sayenge: Abraham Abraham! And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: laye not thy handes vppon the childe, neyther do any thynge at all vnto him, for now I knowe that thou feareste God, in y thou hast not spared thyne only sonne vnto me. And Abraham lyfted vp his eyes and loked about: and beholde, there was a ramme caught by the hornes in y bushes. And he went and toke the ram and offred hym vp for a sacrifice in the steade of his sonne. And Abraham called the name of the place, the Lorde wyll se: Wherfore it is a comen sayenge this daye: in the mount will the Lorde be sene.

And the aungell of the Lorde cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the seconde tyme sayenge: by my selfe haue I * sworne (sayth the Lord) because thou hast done this thinge and hast not spared thy only sonne, that I will bielle & multiply thy seed as the sterres of heauen, & as the * sonde vpon the see syde. And thy seed shall possesse the gates of his enemyes. And in thy seed shall all the * nations of the earth be bielled, because thou hast obeyed my voyce. So turned Abraham againe vnto his ponge men, and they rose vp and went together to Berseba. And Abraham dwelte at Berseba.

And it chaunced after these thinges, that one tolde Abraham sayenge: Beholde, Milca she hath also borne children vnto thy brother Nachor: Hus her eldest sonne, and Buz his brother, and Emuel the father of the Syrians, and Chesed and Hazo, and Pildas, and Jedlaph, and Bethuel. And Bethuel begate Rebecca. These viij. dyd Milca bere to Nachor Abrahams brother. And his concubyne called Rhema she bare also Tebah, Gaham, Thaas and Maacha.

CAPI. XXIII.

Sara was an hundred and .xxvij. yere olde (so long lyued she) and she dyed in a towne cyte called Hebron in the lande of Canaan. Then Abraham came to mourne and bewayle Sara. And when Abraham rose vp from the funeralles, he talked with the sonnes of Heth, sayenge: I am a straunger and a soiorner amongest you, geue me a possession to burye in with you, that I maye bury my dead out of my syght. And the children of Heth answered Abraham sayeng vnto hym: Heare vs Lorde, thou art a prince of God amonge vs. In the cheefe of our sepulchres bury thy dead: None of vs shall forbyd the his sepulchre, that thou shuldest not bury thy dead therin. Then Abraham rose vp, and reuerently thanked the people of the lande the children of Heth. And sayde vnto them: If it be your myndes that I shall

I shall bury my deade out of my syght, heare me and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar: and let hym gyue me the double caue whiche he hathe in the ende of his fylde, for so moche money as it is worth, let hym geue it me in the presence of you, for a possessio to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the children of Heth.

Then Ephron the Hethyte answered Abraham in the audience of the children of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of his cyte, sayenge: Not so my Lorde, but heare me: The fylde geue I the, and the caue that therin is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it the, to bury thy deed in. Then Abraham bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande, and spake vnto Ephron in the audience of the people of the countrey, sayeng: I praye the heare me, I will geue syluer for the fylde, take it of me, and so will I bury my deed there. Ephron answered Abraham, sayeng: My Lorde, herken vnto me. The lande is worth. iiij. C. sycles of syluer: but what is that betwene the and me? burye thy deed. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron, and payde hym the syluer whiche he had sayde in the audience of the sonnes of Heth, that is to wyt. iiij. C. syluer sycles of current money amonge marchaunters. Thus was Ephrons fylde wherin the double caue is before Mamre: a well the fylde as the caue that is therin, and all the trees of the fylde whiche growe in all the borders rounde about, made sure vnto Abraham for a possession, in the syght of the children of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of the cyte. And then Abraham buryed Sara his wyfe in the double caue of the fylde that lyeth before Mamre, otherwyse called Ebron in the lande of Canaan. And so vnto the fylde & the caue that is therin, was made Abrahams sure possession to bury in, of the sonnes of Heth.

¶ Abraham maketh his seruaunte to sweare, & ordereth him to fetche a wyfe for Isaac his sonne. The seruaunt was faythfull and brought Rebecca vnto the Isaac tooke to his wyfe.

CAPI. XXIIII.

ABraham was olde and stepten in age, & the Lorde had blessed hym in all thinges. And he sayde vnto his eldest seruaunte of his house whiche had the rule ouer all that he had: Put thy hande vnder my thye that I maye make the sweare by the Lorde that is God of heauen and God of the earth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of the Cananites, amonge which I dwell. But thou shalte go vnto my countrey and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac.

To put the hande vnder the thyghe was an oth which the Hebrues vsed in suche thinges as pertayned to the testament & promise of god as in Genesi. xlvij.

Then sayde the seruaunte vnto hym: what if the woma will not agree to come with me vnto this lande, shall I bringe thy sonne agayne vnto the lande whiche thou camest out of? And Abraham sayde vnto hym: beware of that, that thou bringe not my sonne thyther. The Lorde God of heauen which toke me fro my fathers house and from the lande where I was borne, & which spake vnto me and sware vnto me sayenge: vnto thy seed will I geue this lande, he shall sende his angell before the that thou mayste take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuertheles if the woma will not agree to come with the then shalt thou be without daunger of this oothe. But aboue all thinge bringe not my sonne thyther agayne. And the seruaunt put his hande vnder the thye of Abraham and sware to hym concernynge the matter. And the seruaunte toke. x. camels of his masters and departed, and had all maner goodes of his master with him, and rode vp & went to Mesopotamia, vnto the cyte of Nahor. And made his camels to lye downe without the cyte by a well syde at euen: about the tyme that women come to drawe water, and he sayde, Lorde God of my master Abraham, sende me good spede this daye / and shewe mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stonde here by the well and the doughters of the men of this cyte will come out to drawe water: Now the damsell to whome I saye, bowe downe thy pytcher, & let me drynke. If she saye: Drynke, and I will geue thy camels drynke also, that same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruaut Isaac: yea and therby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe or euer he had lefte speakynge, that Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and her pytcher vpon her shoulder: The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, a mayde and vnknowen of man. And she went downe to the well, & fylled her pytcher and came vp agayne. Then the seruaut ran vnto her and sayd: let me sup a lytle water of thy pytcher. And she sayd: drynke sir. And she hasted and layd downe her pytcher vpon her arme and gaue him drynke. And when she had geuen hym drynke, she sayde: I will drawe water for thy camels also, vntyll they haue dronke ynoughe. And she poured out her pytcher into the troughe hastely, and ranne agayne vnto the well, to fet water: and drewe for all his camels. And the whole wondred at her. But beside his peace to wete whether the Lorde hadde made his iourney prosperous or not. And as the camels had left drinkynge, he take a golden eare tyng of halfe a sycle weyght and two bracelettes for his handes, of. x. sycles weyght of golde, & sayd vnto her: Whose doughter arte thou? tell me: is there rowme in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? And she sayde vnto hym: I am the doughter of Bethuel the sonne of Milca, whiche she bare vnto Nahor: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: We haue litter and prouender ynoughe, and also rowme to lodge in.

And the man bowed hym selfe and worshipped the Lorde, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham, whiche ceaseth not to deale mercifully & truely with my master, and hathe brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ran and tolde vnto them of her mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And

And Laban ran out vnto the man, to the well: for as soone as he had sene the earerynges and the bracelettes vpon his systers handes, and herde the wordes of Rebecca his syster, sayenge: thus sayd the man vnto me, the he went oute vnto the man. And lo, he stode yet with the camels by the well syde. And Laban sayde come in thou blessed of the Lorde. Wherfore standest thou without? I have dressed the house, and made rowme for the camels. And the the men came into the house and he vnharnessed the camels: & brought lyttre and prouander for the camels, & water to wasshe his fete & thar fete that were with him, and there was meate set before him to eate. But he sayde: I will not eate, tyll I have sayd my message. And he sayd: say on. And he sayde: I am Abrahams seruaunt, and the Lorde hath blessed my master ouer all measure, so that he is become great, and hathe geuen him shepe, oxen, syluer & golde, menservauntes, maydeservauntes, camels and asses. And Sara my mastres wyfe bare him a sonne lately the was vnto whom hath he geuen all that he hath. And my master made me sweare sayenge: thou shalt not take a wyfe to my sonne amonge the daughters of the Cananytes in whose lande I dwell. But shalt go to my fathers house and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: what yf the wyfe will not folowe me? And he sayd vnto me: The Lorde before whome I walke, wyll sende his angel with the, & prospere thy iourney that thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. But if (when thou comest vnto my kynred) they will not geue the one, then shalt thou bere no perell of myne othe.

And I came this daye vnto the well & sayde: O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so that thou makest my iourney whych I go, prosperous: beholde I stonde by this well of water, and when a virgyn cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me a lytle water of thy pytcher to drynke, & she saye agayne to me: drynke thou, and I will also drawe water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whome the Lorde hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And afore I had made an ende of speakynge to myne harte: beholde Rebecca came forth, & her pytcher on her shulder, & she went downe to the well and drewe. And I sayde vnto her: geue me drynke. And she made haste, and tooke downe her pytcher from her shulders, & sayde: drynke, and I wil geue thy camels drynke also. And I dranke, & she gaue my camels drynke also. And I asked her sayenge: whose doughter arte thou? she answered: the doughter of Bethuel Nahors sonne, whome Milca bare vnto him. And I put the eare ynges vpo her face and the bracelettes vpon her handes. And I bowed my selfe and worshypped the Lorde, and blessed the Lorde God of my master Abraham whiche had brought me the ryght waye, to take my masters brothers daughter vnto his sonne. Now therfore yf ye wyl deale mercyfully and truly with my master, tell me: yf not tell me also: that I maye turne me to thy ryght hande or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bethuel, sayenge: The thinge is procedd of the Lorde, we can not therfore saye vnto the, eyther good or bad: beholde Rebecca before thy face, take her and go, and let her be thy masters sonnes wyfe, as the Lorde hath appointed. And whe Abrahams seruaunt herde their wordes, he bowed hym to the Lorde, flat vpon the earthe. And the seruaunt toke forth iewels of syluer & iewels of golde and rayment, and gaue them to Rebecca: but vnto her brother and to her mother he gaue spyces. And then they ate and dranke, both he & the men that were w him, & tarved all nyght and rose vp in the morninge.

And he sayde: let me departe vnto my master. But her brother and her mother sayd: let the damsell abyde with vs a whyle, at the lest x. dayes, and then go thy wayes. And he sayd vnto them: hynder me not, for the Lorde hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awaye that I maye go to my master. And they sayde: let vs call the damsell, and wytte what she saith to the matter. So they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wilte thou go with this man? And she sayde: yea.

So they let Rebecca their syster goo with her nurse and Abrahams seruaunt, & the men that were with him. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou arte oure syster growe into thousande thousandes, & thy seed possesse the gates of their enemyes. And Rebecca arose and her damsels, and sat them vp vpon the camels, and wente their waye after the man. And the seruaunt toke Rebecca, and went his waye.

And Isaac was comynge home the well of the + lyvynge and seynge, for he dwelt in the + Gen. xvi. b south countrey, and was gone out to walke in his meditations about the euen tyde: And he lyft vp his eyes and loked, and beholde the camels were comynge. And Rebecca lyfte vp her eyes, and when she sawe Isaac, she lyghted downe of the camel, and sayd vnto the seruaunt: what man is this that cometh agaynste vs in the fylde? And the seruaunt sayd: it is my master. Then she toke her mantell, and put it about her and the seruaunt tolde Isaac all that he had done. Then Isaac brought her into his mothers tente, and toke Rebecca, & she became his wyfe, and he loued her: and so was Isaac comforted ouer his mother.

Abraham tooke hym another wyfe called Ketura, whiche bare hym Zimran, Jeckan, Medan, Midian, Jesbak & Suah. And Jeckan begat Sheba and Dedan. And the sonnes of Dedan were Assurim, Letusim and Leumim. And the sonnes of Midyam were Epha, Epher, Hanoch, Abida, and Elda. All these were the children of Ketura. But Abraham gaue all that he hadde,

And Jsaac made intercession vnto the Lorde for his wyfe: because she was baren: and the Lorde was intreated of hym, and Rebecca his wyfe conceyued: and the children stroue together within her. Then she sayde: yf it shulde go so to passe, what helpeth it that I am with childe? And she went and asked the Lord. And the Lorde sayd vnto her: there are two maner of people in thy wombe, and two nacions shall spynge out of thy bowels, and the one nacyon shalbe myghtyer than the other, And the eldeſt shalbe seruaunt vnto the younger.

A And there fell a derth in the lande, passynge the fyrſte derth that fell in the dayes of Abraham. Wherfore Jsaac went to Abimelech kynge of the Philistians vnto Gerar. Then the Lorde appered vnto hym, and sayde: Go not downe into Egypte but abyde in the lande whiche I byd the: sowrne in that lande, and I will be with the, and wyll bleſſe the: for to the and to thy seed I will geue all these * countreyes. B And Jsaac dwelled in Gerar. And the men of the place asked hym of his wyfe, & he sayde that she was his * syster: for he feared to call her his wyfe, lest the men of the place shulde haue kylled hym for her sake, because she was bewtyfull to the eye. And it happened after he had bene there longe tyme, that Abimelech kynge of the Philistians loked oute at a wyndowe, & sawe Jsaac sportynge with Rebecca his wyfe. And Abimelech sende for Jsaac and sayde: se, she is of a suertye thy wyfe, and why sayedeſt thou that she was thy syster? And Jsaac sayd vnto hym: I thought that I might peraduenture haue dyed for her sake. Then sayde Abimelech: Why haſte thou done this vnto vs? one of the people might lyghtly haue lyen by thy wyfe, and so shouldeſte thou haue brought synne vpō vs. Then Abimelech charged all his people, sayynge: he that toucheth this mans wyfe, shall vndoubtedly dye for it.

* Genes. xii. and xx.

C And Jsaac sowed in that lande, and founde in that same yere an. C. folde as moche: for † Lorde bleſſed hym, & the man waxed myghty, & went forth & grewe tyll he was exceadynge great, † he had possession of shepe, of oxen & a myghty housholde: so that † Philistians had spyte at hym: in so moche that they stopped & fylled vp the earth all the welles which his fathers seruauntes dygged in his fathers Abrahās tyme. Then sayde Abimelech vnto Jsaac: get the from me, for thou art myghtyer then we a great deale. Then Jsaac departed thence, and pitched his tentes in the valey Gerar, & dwelt there. And Jsaac digged agayne the welles of water whiche they dygged in the dayes of Abraham his father, whiche the Philistians had had stopped after the deathe of Abraham / and gaue them the same names, whiche his father gaue them. As Isaacs seruauntes digged in the valey, they founde a well of liuyng water. And the herdemen of Gerar did stryue with Isaacs herdemen, sayenge: the water is ours. Then called he the well Esech, because they stroue with hym.

22 Then digged they another well, and they stryue for that also. Therfore called he it Sytna. And then he departed thence, and digged an other well for whiche they stroue not: therfore called he it Rehoboth, sayenge: the Lorde hath nowe made vs rowme, and we are encreased vpon the earthe. Afterwarde departed he thence, and came to Berseba. And the Lorde appered vnto hym the same nyght, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham thy father, feare not for I am with the, & will blesse the, and multyplye thy seed for my seruaunt Abrahams sake. And then he buylded an auter there, and called vpon the name of the Lorde, and there pitched his tente. And there Isaacs seruauntes digged a well.

26 Then came Abimelech to hym from Gerar and Ahuzath his frende & Phicoll his chefe captayne. And Isaac sayde vnto them: wherefore come ye to me, seynge ye hate me, & haue put me awaye from you? Then sayde they: We sawe that the * Lorde was with the, & therfore we sayde that there shulde be an othe betwene vs and the, and that we shulde make a bonde with the, that thou shouldest do vs no hurte, as we haue not touched the, and haue vsed vnto the nothinge but good, and sent the awaye in peace: for thou arte nowe the blessed of the Lorde. And he made them a feast, and they ate and dronke. And they roose vp earlye in the mornynge, and sware one to an other. And Isaac sent them awaye. And they departed from hym in peace. And that same daye came Isaacs seruauntes, and tolde hym of a well whiche they had digged: and sayde vnto hym, that they had founde water. And he called it Sheba, wherefore the name of the cytie is called Berseba vnto this daye. And Esau was thirty. yere olde and toke to his wyues Judith the wyfe of Beer an Hethyte, and Basemath wyfe of Elon an Hethyte also, and these two wyues were a grefe vnto the mynde of Isaac and Rebecca.

¶ Jacob stelth the blessynge from Esau by his mayster counsell. Isaac is fed. Esau is comforted. The hatred of Esau towarde Jacob.

CAP. I. XXVII.

1 And it came to passe that Isaac waxed olde and his eyes were dymme, so that he coulde not see. Then called he Esau his eldest sonne and sayde vnto hym: my sonne. And he answered hym, here am I. And he sayde: beholde, I am olde, and knowe not the daye of my deathe: now therfore take thy armour, thy quyuer and thy bowe, and get the to the felde, and hyll me some venyson, and make me meate suche as I loue, and bringe it me, & let me eate that my soule maye blesse the afore I dye. And Rebecca herde when Isaac spake to Esau his sonne. And as soone as Esau was gone to the felde to hunt venyson, & to bringe it, the spake vnto Jacob her sonne, sayenge: Beholde I haue herde thy father talkenge vnto Esau thy brother and sayenge: bringe me venyson and dresse me meate, that I maye eate & blesse the before the Lorde, or I dye. Nowe therfore my sonne heare my voyce in y whiche I commaunde the: get the to the flocke, and bringe me thence two good kydden, & I will make meate of them for thy father, such as he loueth. And thou shalt bringe it to thy father and he shall eate, & blesse the before his death.

Then sayde Jacob to Rebecca his mother: beholde Esau my brother is rough, and I am smoothe, My father shall perauenture fele me, and I shall seme vnto hym as though I went about to begyle hym, & so shall he bring a curse vpon me, for a blessynge: and his mother sayde vnto hym: Upon me be thy curse my sonne, onely heare my voyce, and go and fetche me them. And Jacob went and fet thē / and broughte them to his mother. Ann his mother made meate of them, accordyng as his father loued. And she toke and set goodly rayment that was her eldest sonne Esaus, which she had in the house with her, & put them vpō Jacob her yongest sonne, and she put the skynnes vpon his handes & vpō the smoothe of his necke. And she put the meate & bred which she had made, in the handes of her sonne Jacob.

And he went in to his father, sayenge: my father? And he answered: here am I: who art thou my sonne? And Jacob sayd vnto his father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done as thou badest me: aryse, sit vp, and eate of my venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. But Isaac sayde vnto his sonne: how comest it that thou haste founde it so quyckely, my sonne? He answered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hande. Then sayd Isaac vnto Jacob: come nere, and let me fele the, my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Isaac his father, and he felt hym and sayd: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knewe hym not, because his handes were rought as his brother Esaus handes: and so he blessed hym.

And he asked hym: arte thou my sonne Esau? And he sayd: I am. Then sayd he: bringe hyther and let me eate of my sonnes venyson, that my soule maye blesse the. And he brought hym, and he ate. He brought hym wyne also, and he dranke. And his father Isaac sayd vnto hym: come nere and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto hym & kyssed hym. And he smelled the sauoure of his rayment, and so blessed hym, and sayde: See, the smell of my sonne is as the smell of a fylde whome the Lorde hath blessed. God gene the of the dewe of heauen, and of the fatnesse of the earthe, and plenteo of corne and wyne. People be thy seruauntes, and nacyons bowe vnto the. Be lorde ouer thy brethren, and thy mothers sonnes bowe vnto the. Cursed be he that curseth the, & blessed be he that blesseth the.

As sone as Isaac had made an ende of blessynge, Jacob was scarce gone out fro the presence of Isaac his father: but Esau his brother was come from huntynge, and had made also meate, and brought it vnto his father, & sayde vnto hym: Aryse my father and eate of thy sonnes venyson, that thy soule may blesse me. Then his father Isaac sayde vnto hym: who arte thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Isaac was astonyed out of measure, and sayde: Where is he then that hath hunted venyson and brought it me, and I haue eaten of all before thou camest, & haue blessed hym, and he shall be blessed styll. Whē Esau herde the wordes of his father, he cryed out greatly and bytterly aboue measure, and sayde to his father: blesse me also my father. And he sayde: thy brother came with subtyltie, and hath taken awaye thy blessynge. The sayde he: He maye well be called Jacob, for he hathe supplanted me nowe two tymes; fyrste he toke awaye my birthright: and se nowe hath he taken awaye my blessynge also. And he sayde: hast thou kept neuer a blessynge for me?

Isaac answered and sayde vnto Esau: beholde I haue made hym thy lorde, and all his brethren children haue I made his seruantes. Moreouer, with corne and wyne haue I stablished hym, what can I do vnto the nowe my sonne? And Esau sayde vnto his father: hast thou but that one blessynge my father? bleesse me also my father: & lyfted vp Esau his voyce and † wepte. Then Isaac his father answered and sayd vnto hym: beholde thy dwelling place shall haue of the fatnesse of the earthe, & of the dewe of heauen from aboue. And with thy sworde shalt thou lyue, and shalte be thy brothers seruaunt. But the tyme wyll come, when thou shalt get the maystrye, and lowse his yocke fromme thy necke.

† Wept.

And Esau † hated Jacob, because of the blessynge with whiche his father blessed hym, and sayde in his harte: The dayes of my fathers mowe are at hande, for I wyll slee my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau her eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sent and called Jacob her yongest sonne, and sayde vnto hym: beholde thy brother Esau chatteneth to kyll the: nowe therfore my sonne heare my voyce, make the redy, and flee to Laban my brother at Haran: and tarye with hym a whyle tyll thy brothers fearfulnesse be assuaged, and tyll thy brothers wrathe turne awaye fromme the, and he forget that whiche thou haste done to hym. Then wyll I sende and fet the awaye fromme thence. Why shulde I lose you bothe in one daye? And Rebecca sayde to Isaac: I am werye of my lyfe, for feare of the doughters of Heth. If Jacob take a wyfe of the doughters of Heth, suche one as these are, of the doughters of the lande, what helpe shuld I haue to lyue.

† Hated.

¶ Jacob is sent into Mesopotamia / to Laban for a wyfe. Esau marieth an Ismaelytes. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Gods promyses. Jacob maketh a vowe.

CAPI. XXVIII.

Then Isaac called Jacob his sonne, and blessed hym / and charged hym, sayeng: se thou take not a wyfe of the doughters of Canaan, but aryse and get the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of the doughters of Laban thy vncle. And God almyghty blesse the, increase the, and multiplye the that thou mayste be a nombre of people, & gene the the blessynge of Abraham: bothe to the and to thy seed with the, that thou mayst possesse the lande (wherin thou arte a straunger) whiche God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Isaac sent forth Jacob / to goto Mesopotamia vnto Laban / sonne of Bethuel the Syrien / and brother to Rebecca Jacobs and Esaus mother.

Jacob blessed.

When Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob / and sent hym to † Mesopotamia / to fet hym a wyfe thence / and that as he blessed hym / he gaue hym a charge / sayenge: se thou take not a wyfe of the doughters of Canaam and that Jacob had obeyed his father & mother, and was gone to Mesopotamia: and seynge also that the doughters of Canaan pleased not Isaac his father: then went he vnto Ismael, and tobe vnto the wyues whiche he had, Mahala the doughter of Ismael Abrahams sonne, the sister of Nabaioth to be his wyfe. Jacob departed from Berseba, and went toward Haran, and came vnto a place, and taryed there all nyght, because the sonne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, and put it vnder his head / and layde hym downe in the same place to slepe. And he dreamed: and beholde there stode a ladder vpon the earth, & the top of it reached vp to heauen. And se, the angels of God went vp and downe vpon it / yea and the Lorde stode vpon it, and sayde:

Esau marieth an Ismaelytes.

Jacob dreameth a dreame.

† Mesopotamia.

I am the Lorde God of Abraham / thy father, and the God of Isaac: The † lande on whiche thou slepest will I gyue the and thy seed. And se I am with the, and will be thy keper in all places whether thou goest, & will bringe the againe vnto this lande: neyther will I leaue the tyll I haue performed all that I haue promysed the.

† Promyse.

When Jacob was awaked out of his slepe he sayde: surely the Lorde is in this place / & I wist not. And he was afrayd and sayd: how fearfull is this place? it is none other but euen the † house of God, and the gate of heuen. And Jacob rose vp early in the morning and toke the stone that he had layd vnder his head, and pitched it vp an ende, & powred oyle on the top of it. And he called the name of the place Bethell, for the name of the citie was called Luz, before tyme. And Jacob vowed a vowe / sayenge: If God wyll be with me, and wyll kepe me in this iourney whiche I go, and wyll gene me breed to eate, and clothes to put on, so that I come againe vnto my fathers house in safetie: then shall the Lorde be my God / and this stone, whiche I haue set set vp an ende, shall be Gods house: and of all that thou shalt geue me, wyll I geue the a tenthe vnto the.

¶ Iacob commeth to Laban and serueth seuen yeres for Rachel. Lea vseth vyolence to his bed in stede of Rachel. He marryeth them both and serueth yet.vii. yeres more for Rachel. Lea conceyueth.

CAPI. XXIX.

THen Iacob lyfte vp his feete, and went forth to the East countrey. And as he loked about, beholde there was a well in the fielde, and thre flockes of shepe laye therby (for at that well were the flockes watered) and there laye a greate stone at the well mouthe. And the maner was to bringe the flockes thyther, and to roull the stone from the welles mouth, and to water the shepe, and to put the stone agayne vpon the welles mouthe into his place. And Iacob sayde vnto them: Brethren whence be ye? And they sayde, of Haran are we. And he sayde vnto them: knowe ye Laban the sonne of Nahor? And they sayde: we knowe hym. And he sayde vnto them: is he in good welth? And they sayde: he is in good welth, and beholde, his doughter Rachel commeth with the shepe. And he sayde, lo, it is yet a good whyle to night, neyther is it time that the catell shuld be gathered together, water the shepe, and go and feede them. And they sayde: we maye not, tyll all the flockes be brought together, and the stone be rouled from the welles mouthe, and so we water our shepe.

Whyle he yet talked with them, Rachel came with her fathers shepe, for she kepte them. As sone as Iacob sawe Rachel the doughter of Laban his vncle, and his vncles shepe, he went and rouled the stone from the welles mouthe, and watered the shepe of Laban his mothers brother. And Iacob kyssed Rachel, and lyfte vp his voyce and wepte: and tolde her also that he was her fathers brother, and Rebeccas sonne. Then Rachel ran and tolde her father.

When Laban herde tell of Iacob his systers sonne, he ranne to mete hym, and imbraced hym, and kissed hym, and brought hym to his house. And then Iacob tolde Laban all the matter. And then Laban sayde: well, thou art my bone and my flesshe. Dyde with me the space of a moneth. And afterwarde Laban sayde vnto Iacob: Thoughe thou be my kynsman, shouldest thou therfore serue me for nought? tell me what shall thy wages be? And Laban had.ij. doughters, the eldest called Lea, and the yongest Rachel. Lea was sore eyed, but Rachel was beautifull and well fauoured. And Iacob loued her well, and sayde: I wyll serue the seuen yeres for Rachel thy yongest doughter. And Laban answered: it is better that I geue her to the than to an other man: abyde there with me.

And Iacob serued .vij. seuen yeres for Rachel, and they semed vnto hym but a fewe dayes, for the loue he had to her. And Iacob sayd vnto Laban: geue me my wyfe that I maye lye with her, for the tyme appointed is come.

Then Laban bade all men of that countrey, and made a feest. And when euen was come, he tolde Lea his doughter and brought her to hym: and he lay with her. And Laban gaue to his doughter Lea Zilpha his mayde, to be her seruaunt. And when the mo yonge was come beholde it was Lea. Then sayd he to Laban: wherfore hast thou played thus with me? Dyd not I serue the for Rachel, wherfore then hast thou begyled me? Laban answered: it is not the maner of this countrey, to mary the yongest before the eldest. Abide out these wekes, and then shall this also be geuen the for the seruyce which thou shalt serue me yet .vij. yeres more. And Iacob dyd euen so, and fulfilled out these wekes, & then he gaue hym Rachel his doughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rachel his doughter, Bilha his handmayde to be her seruaunt. So laye he by Rachel also, and loued Rachell more then Lea, and serued hym yet .vij. yeres more.

When the Lorde sawe that Lea was despised, he made her frutefull: but Rachel was barren. And Lea conceyued and bare a sonne, and called his name Ruben for she sayd: the Lorde hath loked vpon my affliction. And nowe my husbande wyll loue me. And she conceyued agayne and bare a sonne, and sayd: the Lorde hath herde that I am despised, and hath therfore geuen me this sonne also: and she called hym Symeon. And she conceyued yet and bare a sonne, and sayd: now this once wyll my husbande kepe me company, because I haue borne hym thre sonnes: and therfore she called his name Leui. And she conceyued yet agayne and bare a sonne sayenge: now wyll I prayse the Lorde, therfore she called his name Iuda, and lefte bearyng.

¶ Rachell and Lea beyng both barren geue their maydens vnto their husbande, & they bare hym children. Iacob departeth Laban in the conueyaunce of the shepe and bydeth. Iacobs seruaunce for his seruice.

CAPI. XXX.

WHen Rachel sawe that she bare Iacob no children, she enuyed her sister, and sayd vnto Iacob: Geue me children, or els I am but dead. Then was Iacob wroth with Rachel sayenge: Am I in Gods stede, which hath kepte vp the the fruit of thy wombe? Then sayd she: haue to my mayde Bilha: lye with her, that she maye bere vpon my knees, that I may be comforted by her. And she gaue hym Bilha her handmayde to wyfe. And Iacob laye with her: and Bilha conceyued and bare Iacob a sonne. Then sayd Rachel. God hath geuen sentence on my syde, and herde also my voyce, and haue geuen me a sonne. Therfore called she hym Dan. And Bilha Rachels mayde conceyued agayne, and bare Iacob an other sonne. And Rachel sayd: God is turned, and I haue made a chaunge with my sister, and haue gotten the vpper hande. And she called his name Nephthali.

When Lea sawe that she had left bearyng, she tolde Zilpha her mayde, and gaue her Iacob to wyfe. And Zilpha Leas mayde bare Iacob a sonne. Then sayd Lea: good lucke: and called his name Gad. And Zilpha Leas mayde bare bare Jacob an other sonne. Then sayd Lea: happy am I, for the doughters will call me blessed, and called his name Aser.

And Ruben went out in the wheet harvest tyme, and found ꝑ mandragoras in the felde, ꝙ brought them vnto his mother Lea. Then sayde Rachel to Lea, gyue me of thy sonnes mandragoras. And Lea answered: Is it not ynoughe that thou hast taken awaye my husbande, but wolest take away my sonnes mandragoras also? Then sayd Rachel, wel let him slepe with the this nyght, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And when Jacob came frome the felde at euen, Lea wente out to mete hym, and sayd: yet with me, for I haue bought the with my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slept with her that nyght. And God herde Lea, that she conceyued and bare vnto Jacob the fyfth sonne. Then sayde Lea. God hath gyuen me my rewarde, becaule I gaue my mayden to my husbande, ꝙ she called hym Jachar. And Lea conceyued yet agayne, ꝙ bare Jacob the sixth sonne. Then sayde she: God hath endewed me with a good dowry. Now wyll my husbande dwell with me, becaule I haue borne hym. vi. sonnes, ꝙ called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a doughter, and called her ✠ Dina.

And God remembred Rachel, herd her, and made her frutefull: so that she conceyued and bare a son, and sayd: God hath taken awaye my rebuke. And she called his name Joseph, saying: The Lorde gyue me yet an other son. No sooner as Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayd to his father in law. Sende me alway that I may go vnto my owne place ꝙ countrey, gyue me my wyues and my children for whome I haue serued the, ꝙ let me go, for thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the. Then sayd Laban vnto hym. If I haue founde fauour in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blessed me for thy sake) appointe what thy rewarde shall be, and I wyll gyue it the. Then he sayd vnto hym, thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the, and in what case thy cattell haue ben vnder me: for it was but lytle that thou haddest before I came, and now it is increased in to a multitude, and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But now when shall I make prouysyon for myne owne house also. And he sayd, what shall I then gyue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt gyue me nothing at all so thou wylt do this one thynge for me, and then wyll I turne agayne ꝙ fede thy flocke and kepe them.

So thou about all thy flocke this day, and seperate from them al the shepe that are spotted and of diuers colours, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambes. And then lohe, all that shall be party coloured, blacke and spotted, as wel among the shepe as the kydes, the same shall be my rewarde. So shall my ꝙ rygtwysnes answere for me, when the tyme commeth that I shall receyue my rewarde of the, so that what so euer is not speckled and party among the goten and blacke amonge the lambes, let that be theft with me. Then sayd Laban: Lo I am content, that it be accordynge as thou hast sayd. And he sayed out that same daye the goten that were party and of diuers colours, and all the kydes that were spotted and partye coloured, and all that had whyte in them, and all the blacke among the lambes, and put them in the keppynge of his sonnes / and sette thre dayes iourney betwene hym ſrom and Jacob. And so Jacob kepte the reste of Labans shepe.

Jacob toke to hym of grene popull hasell, and of chesnottrees, and pylled whyte strakes in them, and made the whyte appere i the stakes: And he layde the stakes which he had pylled before the shepe in the gutters and watrynge stonghes / when the shepe came to drynke that they shulde conceyue when they came to drynke. And the shepe conceyued before the stakes, ꝙ brought forthe speckled, spotted, and party coloured. Then Jacob deuided the flocke and put the roddes in the stonghes before the eyes of the wethers and all whyte ꝙ all blacke were Labans, but the reste were Jacobs, and he seuered the flockes one from an other. And alwaye in the fyrst buckynge tyme of the shepe, Jacob put the stakes before the shepe in the gutters, that they myght conceyue before the stakes: But in the latter buckynge tyme he put them not there: so the lest shoote was Labans, and the fyrst Jacobs. And the man became exceadynge ryche, and hadde many shepe, maydes seruauntes, men seruauntes, camelles and asses.

¶ At the commaundement of God, Jacob departeth from Laban, and takes his goodes with hym. Rachel stealeth her fathers ymages. Laban foloweth Jacob. The couenaunt betwene Laban and Jacob.

CAPI. XXXI.

And Jacob herd the wordes of Labans sonnes how they sayd: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was our fathers, and of our fathers goodes hath he goten all this honour. And Jacob beheld the countenaunce of Laban, that it was not towarde hym as it was in tymes past. And the Lorde sayde vnto Jacob: turne agayne in to the lande of of thy fathers, and to thy kynred, and I wyll be with the. Then Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to the felde vnto his shepe, and sayd vnto them: I se your fathers countenaunce that it is not towarde me as in tymes paste. Howbeyt the God of my father hathe ben with me. And ye knowe how that I haue serued your father with all my myght. And your father hathe deceyued me, and chaunged my wages. x. tymes: but God suffred hym not to hurte me. When he sayd, the spotted shall be thy wages, then all the shepe bare spotted. If he sayd, the speckled shall be thy rewarde, then bare all the shepe speckled: thus hath God taken awaye your fathers cattell, and gyuen the me. For in buckynge tyme I lyfted vp myne eyes and sawe in a dreame / and beholde, the rammes that ducked the shepe were stroked, spotted, and partye. And the aungell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayenge: Jacob? And I answered: here am I. And he sayd, lyft vp thyne eyes and se, how al the rammes that leape vpon the shepe are stroked, spotted, and partye:

partye: for I haue sene all that Laban wythe vnto the. I am the God of * Bethell where thou anoyntedest the stone, and where thou vowedest a vowe vnto me. Now aryse and get the * out of this countreye, and returne vnto the lande where thou were borne.

Than answered Rachel and Lea, and sayd vnto hym: We haue no parte nor enheritance in oure fathers house, he counteth vs as straungers: for he hath solde vs, and hathe eaten vp the price of vs. Moreouer all the ryches wherthe God hath taken frome our father, that is ours and our chyldrens. Now therfore what so euer God hath sayd vnto the, that do. Thē Jacob rose vp, and set his sonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, and caryed awaye all his catell and all his substaunce whiche he had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Jsaac his father vnto the lande of Canaan. Laban was gone to * shere his shepe, and Rachel had stolen her fathers ymages. And Jacob stale awaye priuely frome Laban the Syrien, and tolde him not that he wolde departe. So fled he and all that he had, and made him redy redy, & passed ouer the ryuers, & wente streyght towarde the mount Gilead.

Upon the thirde daye after, was it tolde Laban that Jacob fled. Then he toke his brethre with hym, and pursued hym. vij. dayes iourney, and ouertoke hym at the mount Gilead. D And God came to Labā ✠ Syrian in a dreame by nyghte, and sayde vnto hym: take hede to thy selfe, that thou speake not to Jacob ouer sharpely. And Labā ouertoke Jacob: and Jacob had pitched his tente in the mounte. And Laban with his brethren, pitched their tente also vpon the mount Gilead. Then sayde Labā to Jacob: why hast thou this done to steale awaye frome me, and carye away my doughters as thoughe they had bene taken captyue with the swerde? Wherfore wentest thou awaye secretly vnknowen to me, and bydde me not tell me, that I myghte haue brought the on the waye with myrth, syngynge, tymbrels, and harpes, and hast not suffered me to kisse my children and my daughters? Thou wert a * fole to do it, for I am able to do you euyll. But the God of youre father spake vnto me yesterday, saying: take hede that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And nowe thoughe thou wentest thy waye, because thou longest after thy fathers house, yet wherfore hast thou stolen my goodes?

Jacob answered and sayde to Laban: I departed priuely / because I was afraed, and E thought that thou wouldest haue taken awaye thy doughters frome me. But where as thou dooest calenge me for thefte, with whome so euer thou fyndest thy goodes, let hym dye here before oure brethren. Sehe that thyne is with me, and take it to the: for Jacob wist not that Rachel had stolen them. Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tente, and into Leas tente, and into the two maydens tentes: but founde the not. Then wente he out of Leas tente, & entred into Rachels tente. And Rachel toke the ymages and put them in the camels strawe, & sate downe vpon them. And Laban serched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde she to her father: Syr, be not angrye that I can not ryse vp before the, for the disease of women is come vpon me. So searched he, but founde them not.

Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban. Jacob also answered and sayde to hym: what haue I trespaced, or what haue I offended, that thou folowedest after me? Thou hast searched all my stuffe, and what hast thou founde of all thy householde stuffe? put it here before thy brethren and myne, and let them iudge betwene vs both. This. xx. yere haue I bene with the, thy shepe and thy gootes haue not bene barren, and the rammes of thy flocke, haue I not eaten. What so euer was torne of beastes, I brought it not vnto the, but made it good my selfe: of my hande dyddest thou require it, whether it was stolen by daye or nyght. Moreouer, by daye the hete consumed me, and the colde by nyght, and my slepe F departed frome myne eyes.

Thus haue I bene. xx. yere in thy house, & serued the * xiij. yeres for thy. ij. doughters, & vj. yere for thy shepe, and thou hast chaunged my rewarde. x. tymes. And except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the God who Jsaac y feareth had bene with me: surely thou haddest sent me awaye nowe all empty. But God beheld my tribulation, and the labour of my handes: and rebuked the yesterdaye.

Laban answered and sayd vnto Jacob: the doughters are my doughters, and the chyldren are my chyldren, and the shepe, are my shepe, and all that thou seyst is myne. And what can I do this daye, vnto these my doughters, or vnto their children which they haue borne? Nowe therfore come on, let vs make a bonde, I and thou together, and let it be a wytnesse betwene the and me. Then toke Jacob a stone and set it vp for a pyller and marke stone, and sayde vnto his brethren, gather stones. And they toke stones, and made an heape, & they sate there vpon the heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead, eyther of them after the propertie of his language.

Then sayde Laban: this heape be * wytnesse betwene the and me this daye, (therfore G is it called Gilead) The Lorde loke & iuge betwene me & the, when we ar departed one frō another: that thou shalt not vexe my doughters, neyther shalte take other wyues vnto them. Here is no man with vs: beholde, God is witnesse betwene the and me. And Laban sayd moreouer to Jacob: beholde, this heape and this marke whiche I haue set here, betwene me and the: this heape be wytnesse and also this marke, that I wyll not come ouer this heape to the, and thou shalt not come ouer this heape & this marke to do any harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, and the God of their fathers / be iudge betwene vs.

And Jacob swore by hym that his father Jsaac feared. Then Jacob dyd sacrifice vpon the mount, & called his brethren to eate bred.

And

And they ate breed and tarryed all nyght in the hyll. And early in the mornyng Laban rose vp and kyssed his chyldre and his doughters, and blessed them and departed and went vnto his place agayn, but Jacob went forth on his iourney, and the aungels of God came & met hym. And when Jacob sawe them, he sayd: this is Gods hoost, and called the name of that same place, Mahanaim.

¶ The vyctorye of the aungels. Jacob sendeth presentes vnto his brother Esau. How he wrestled with the aungel whiche chaunged his name and called hym Israel.

CAPI. XXXII.

Josua xxiiii. a

Jacob sente messengers before hym to Esau his brother, vnto the lande * of Seir and the feld of Edom. And he cõmaunded them sayinge: He that ye speake after this maner vnto my Lorde Esau: thy seruaunt Jacob sayth thus. I haue sotourned and ben a straunger with Laban vnto this tyme and haue gotten oxen, asses and shepe, men seruauntes and women seruantes, and now I sende vnto the my Lorde, that I maye fynde grace in thy syght. And the messengers came ageyne to Jacob sayinge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cometh ageynst the .iiij. hundred men with hym. Then was Jacob greatly afrayde and wist not which way to turne hym selfe, and deuyded the people that was with hym, & the shepe, oxen, and camels in to two companyes, and sayd: If Esau come to the one parte and smyte it, the other may saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde: O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac: Lorde which sayest vnto me, returne vnto thy countrey and to thy kynred, and I wyll do all well with the. I am not worthy of the leest of all the mercyes and truthe whiche thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunt. For with my staffe came I ouer this Iordane, and now haue I gotten two droues. Deliuer me from the hande of my brother Esau: for I feare hym, lest he wyll come and smyte the mother with the chyldren. Thou sayest that thou wolt surely do me good, and woldest make my seed as the sande of the see, whiche can not be nombred for multitude.

a To go with a staffe is a maner of speakynge of the Patriarches which signifieth nothing els but to go symply / bare ly & with out any eyches or stregth as in Mat. vi. b.

And he tarryed there that same nyght / and toke of that which came to hande, a present / vnto Esau his brother two hundred she gootes and .xx. he gotes / two hundred shepe, and xx. rammes: thyrty mylche camels with their colttes. xl. kyne, and x. bulles. xx. she asses, and x. foles, and deliuered them vnto his seruautes / euery droue by them selues / and sayde vnto them: go forth before me, and put a space betwene euery droue. And he commaunded the formest, sayinge.

When Esau my brother meteth the and asketh the sayinge: whose seruaunt art thou, and whether goest thou, and whose are these that go before the: thou shalt say, they be thy seruaunt Jacobs, and are a present sent vnto my Lorde Esau, and behold, he hym selfe commeth after vs. And so commaunded he the seconde and euen so the thyrde / and ipkewyse all that followed the droues sayinge, of this maner se that ye speake vnto Esau when ye mete hym and sayd moreouer. Behold thy seruaunt Jacob commeth after vs. for he sayd I wyll pease his wrath with the present that goeth before me, and afterwarde I wyll se hym my selfe / so peraduenture he wyll receyue me to grace. So went the present before hym, and he tarryed all that nyght in the tente / and rose vp the same nyght, and toke his two wyues and his .ij. maydens, and his .xj. sonnes, and went ouer the foorde Jacob. And he toke them and sent them all ouer the ryuer, and tarryed behynde hym selfe alone.

* Obtayned Jacob to wrestle with the aungell.

And there * wrastled a man with hym vnto the breakynge of the daye. And when he sawe that he couldē not preuayle agaynst hym he smote hym vnder the thygh, and the senowe of Jacobs thygh shranke as he wrastled with hym. And he sayd: let me go, for the day breaketh. And he sayd: I wyll not let the go / excepte thou bielle me. And he sayde vnto hym: What is thy name? He answered: Jacob. And he sayde: thou shalte be called Jacob no more / but * Israel. For thou hast wrastled with God, and hast preuayled.

* Chaunged Jacob into Israel.

And Jacob asked hym sayinge, tell me thy name. And he sayd, wherfore doest thou aske after my name? and he blessed him there. And Jacob called the name of the place Phanuel / for I haue sene God face to face, and yet is my lyfe reserued. And as he wente ouer Phanuel the sonne rose vpon hym, and he halted vpon his thigh. Wherfore the chyldren of Israel eate not of the senowe of the thygh vnto this daye / because that he smote Jacob vnder the thygh in the senowe that shronke.

* Jud. xx.

¶ Esau and Jacob are agreed. And Jacob came in to Sychem.

CAPI. XXXIII.

Jacob lyft vp his eyes and sawe his brother Esau come, and with hym .iiij. C. men. And he diuided his children vnto Lea, vnto Rachel, and vnto his two women seruantes. And dyd set the women seruantes & their chyldren formest, and Lea & her chyldren after, and Rachel & Joseph hyndermost. And hym selfe went before them and fell on the grounde .vij. tymes tyll he came vnto his brother.

Esau ran to mete hym and embraced hym and fell on his necke & kyssed hym, and they wepte. And he lyft vp his eyes & sawe the wyues and their chyldren, & sayd: what are these which thou here hast? And he sayd: they are the chyldren which God hath gyuen thy seruaunt. Then came the maydens forth / and dyd their obeysaunce. Lea also and her children came and did their obeysaunce. And last of all came Joseph and Rachel, and dyd their obeysaunce.

And he sayde: what meanest thou with all the droues which I met. And he answered: to fynde grace in the syghte of my Lorde. And Esau sayd: I haue ynoughe my brother kepe that thou hast vnto thy selfe. Jacob answered: oh nay / but yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, receyue my present of my hande: for I haue sene thy face * as though I had sene the face of God, wherfore receyue me to grace and take my blessing that I haue brought the for god hath gyuen it me. And I haue ynough of all thynge. And so he compelled hym to take it. And he said: let vs take our iourney and go And I will go in thy compayne. And he sayde vnto hym: my lorde knoweth that I haue ten

C dre chyldren/ewes and kyne with yonge vnder myne hand, which yf men should ouerdryue but euen one daye, the hole flocke wolde dye. Let my Lorde therfore go before his seruaunt, and I will dryue fayre and softly, accordynge as the catell that goth before me and the chyldren be able to endure: till I come to my lorde vnto Seir.

And Esau said: let me yet leaue some of my folke with the. And he sayd: what needeth it? let me fynde grace in the syght of my lorde. So D Esau went his waye agayne that same daye vnto Seir. And Jacob toke his iourney towarde Succoth, and dyd hym an house, & made boothes for his catell: wherfore the name of the place is called Succoth.

And Jacob came peasably in to the cite of Sichem in the lande of Canaan/ after that he was come from Mesopotamia, and pitched before the cite, and bought parcell of grounde where he pitched his tent, of the children of Hemor Sichems father, for an hundred lambes. And he made there an aulter, and there called vpon the mighty God of Israel.

¶ The rauyshing of Dina Jacobs doughter by the men of Sichē. And of the great bloode shedyng done by the sonnes of Jacob.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

DIna the doughter of Lea which she bare vnto Jacob, went out to se the doughters of the land. And Sichem the sonne of Hemor the Heuyte lorde of the countrey sawe her, and toke her and lay with her, and forced her: and his herte lay vnto Dina the doughter of Jacob. And he loued the damsell and spake kyndly vnto her, and spake vnto his father Hemor saying/ get me this mayde vnto my wyfe. And Jacob herd that he had defyled Dina his doughter, but his sonnes were with the catell in the fylde, and therfore he held his peace tyll they were come. Then Hemor the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to commen with hym. And the sonnes of Jacob came out of the fylde as sone as they herde it/ for it grieued them/ and they were not a lytle wroth, because he had wrought foly in Israel, in that he had lyen with Jacobs doughter, which thynge ought not to be done. And Hemor
B moned with them sayinge: The soule of my son Sichem longeth for your doughter: gyue her hym to wife, and make mariages with vs: gyue your doughters vnto vs, and take our V doughters vnto you, and dwell with vs, and the lande shall be at your pleasure/ dwell and do your busynes, and haue your possessions therin. And Sichem sayd vnto her father and and her brethren: let me fynde grace in your eyes, and what so euer ye appoint me, that will I gyue. Aske freely of me dowrie and gyftes, & I will gyue according as ye say vnto me, and gyue me the damsell to wife.

Then the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem and Hemor his father disceytfully, bycause he had defyled Dina their sister. And they said vnto them/ we can not do this thyng that we shuld gyue our sister to one that is vncircumcised/ for y were a shame vnto vs. Onely in this will we consente vnto you. Yf ye will be as we be, that all the men chyldren amonge you be circumcised, than will we gyue our doughters to you, and take yours to vs, & will dwell with you and be one people. But yf ye will not herken vnto vs to be circumcised, then will we take our doughter and go our wayes. And C their wordes pleased Hemor: and Sichem his sonne. And the yonge man deferred not for to do the thynge, bycause he had a lust to Jacobs doughter: he was also moost set by of all that were in his fathers house. Then Hemor and Sichem went vnto the gate of their cite and commoned with the men of their cite, sayinge: these men are peasible with vs/ and will dwell in the lande and do their occupacion therin. And in the land is rowme ynough for them/ let vs take their doughters to vs, and gyue them ours: onely herin will they consent vnto vs for to dwell with vs and to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are among vs be circumcised as they are. Their goodes and their substance and all their catell are ours, onely let vs consent vnto them, that they may dwell with vs.

And vnto Hemor and Sichem his sonne harkened all that went out of the gate of his
D cite. And all the men chyldren were circumcyced what so euer went out at the gates of his cite. And the thyrde daye when it was paynefull to them, two of the sonnes of Jacob Simeon and Leui Dinas brethren, toke eyther of them his † swerde, and went in to the cite boldly, and slewe all that was male and slewe also Hemor and Sichem his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke Dina their sister out of Sichems house, and went their wayes.

Then came the sonnes of Jacob vpon the dede, and spoyled the cite, bycause they had defyled their sister: and toke their sheep, oxen, asses and what so euer was in the cite & also in the felde. And all their goodes, all their chyldre and their wyues toke they captyue & made bouoche of all that was in the houses.

And Jacob said to Simeon & Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me stynke vnto the inhabitaunces of the lande, both to the Cananytes and also to the Pheresytes. And I am few in nombre. Wherfore they shal gather them selues togither agayns me and slay me, and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered, Shulde they deale with our sister as with an horse?

¶ Jacob goeth vp vnto Bethel, and buryeth his nsource vnder an ake. Debora dyeth. Jacob is called Israel. The lande of Canaan is promysed hym. Rachel dyeth in labour. Ruben lay with his fathers concubyne. The deth of Isaac.

CAPI. XXXV.

AND God sayde vnto Jacob/ aryse, and get the vp to Bethel, and dwell there. And make there an aulter vnto God that appeared vnto the, when thou fleddest from from Elau thy brother. Then sayd Jacob vnto his housholde & to all that were with him: put away the straūge goddes that are among you & make your selues clene & chaunge your garmentes and let vs aryse and go vp to Bethell that I maye make an aulter there vnto God whiche herde me in the day of my tribulation, and was with me in the way which I went.

And they gaue vnto Jacob all the straunge goddes whiche were vnder their handes, and all their eare ringes which were in their eares: and Jacob hyd them vnder an oke at Sichem And they departed. And the feare of God fell vpon the cityes that were round about them: that they durst not followe after the sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob to Lus in the lande of Canaan, otherwyse called Bethel, with all the people that was with hym. And he buylded there an aulter, and called the place Bethell, bycause that God appeared vnto hym there, when he fled from his brother.

Then dyed * Debora Rebeccas nourse and was buryed beneth Bethel vnder an oke. And it was called the oke of lamentacion. And god appeared vnto * Jacob agayne after he came out of Mesopotamia and blessed hym and sayd vnto hym: thy name is Jacob. Notwithstandynge thou shalte be no more called * Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name. And so was his name called Israel.

And God sayde vnto hym: I am God almyghty, growe and multiply: for people and a multitude of people shall spynge of the, yea and kynges shall come out of thy loynes. And the lande whiche I gaue Abraham and Isaac byfore I gaue vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the wyl I gyue it also. And god departed from hym in the place where he talked with hym. And Jacob set vp a marke in the place where he talked with hym, euen a pyllour of stone, and poured drynke offring theron and poured also oyle theron, and called the name of the place where God spake with hym, Bethel.

And they departed from Bethell, and when he was but a feldc dyrdely from Ephath Rachel began to trauell. And in trauelynge she was in peryll. And as she was in paynes of her labour, the mydwyf sayde vnto her: Feare not for thou shalte haue this sonne also. Then as her soule was departyng, that she * must dye: she called his name Benoni. But his father called hym Benjamin. And thus dyed Rachel and was buryed in the waye to Ephrath whiche is nowe called Bethlehem. And Jacob set vp a pyller vpon her graue, which is called Rachels graue pyller vnto this daye. And Israel went thence and pytched vp his tent beyonde the * toure of Eder. And it chaunced as Israel dwelte in the lande, that Ruben went and * laye with Bilha his fathers concubyne, and it came to Israels eare. The sonnes of Jacob were .xii. in nombre. The sonnes of Lea. Ruben Jacobs eldest sonne, and Simeon, Leui, Juda, Isachar, and Zabulon. The sonnes of Rachel: Joseph and Ben Jamin. The sonnes of Bilha Rachels mayde: Dan and Nepthali. The sonnes of Zilpha Leas mayde Gad and Aser. These are the sonnes of Jacob whiche were borne hym in Mesopotamia.

Then Jacob went vnto Isaac his father to Mambre a principal city, otherwyse called Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac soiourned as straungers. And the dayes of Isaac were an hundred and .lxxx. yeres: and then fell he sycke and dyed, and was put vnto his people being old and ful of dayes. And his sonnes Esau and and Jacob buryed hym.

CAPI. XXXVII.

A Nd Jacob dwelte in the lande wherin his father was a straunger/ that is to saye in the lande of Canaan. And these are the generations of Jacob: when Joseph was xvi. yere old, he kept shepe with his brethren/ & the lad was with the sonnes of Bilha and of Zilpha his fathers wyues. And he accused his brethren vnto his father of an euyll reporte. And Israel loued Joseph more then all his chyldren, because he begat hym in his olde age/ & he made hym a cote of many colours.

When his brethren sawe that their father loued hym more then all his brethren/ they hated hym, and couldo not speke one kynd worde vnto hym. Moreouer Joseph * dreamed a dreame and tolde it his brethren: wherefore they hated hym yet the more. And he sayd vnto them/ heare I pray you this dreame which I haue dreamed: Beholde we were makynge sheues in the felde: and lo, my sheff arose and stode vpryght, and youre stode rounde about and made obeysaunce to my sheff. Then sayd his brethren vnto hym: What, shalte thou be our kynge, or shalt thou reygne ouer vs? And they hated hym yet the more, because of his dreame and of his wordes. * Genesis. 3 Joseph dreameth.

And he dreamed yet an other dreame & told it his brethren sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: Me thought the sonne and the moone and.xi. sterres made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and his brethren, his father rebuked hym and sayde vnto hym: what meaneth this dreame which thou hast dreamed: shall I and thy mother & thy brethren come and fall on the ground before the? And his brethren hated hym/ but his father noted the sayinge.

His brethren wente to kepe their fathers shepe in Sichem/ and Israel sayd vnto Joseph: Do not thy brethren kepe shepe in Sychem? come, that I may sende the to them. And he answered, * here am I. And he sayd vnto hym: Go & se whether it be well with thy brethren and the shepe, and bryng me worde agayn. And sent hym out of the vale of Hebron, & he came to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym wandringe out of his waye in the felde, and asked hym what he sought. And he answered: I seke my brethren, tell me I pray the where they kepe shepe. And the man sayd, they are departed hence/ for I herd them say, let vs go vnto Dothan. Thus wente Joseph after his brethren, and founde them in Dothan. * 1. Reg. 17.

And when he sawe them a farre of before he came at them/ they toke counsell agaynst hym for to slee hym/ and sayd one to an other: Beholde, this * dreamer commeth/ come now and let vs slee hym, and caste hym in to some pytte/ and let vs saye that some wycked beest hath deuoured hym, and let vs se what his dreames will come to. * Wisd. 2. Matt. 27. Mar. 15. Luc. 23.

When Ruben sawe that, he went about to ryd hym out of their handes and sayd/ let vs not kyll hym. And Ruben sayd moreouer vnto them/ shede not bloude, but caste hym in to this pytte that is in the wyldernes/ and laye no handes vpon hym: for he wolde haue rydde hym out of their handes, and deliuered hym to his father agayne. * Gen. 42.

And as soone as Joseph was come vnto his brethren, they stripte hym out of his gay cote that was vpon hym/ and they toke hym and caste hym in to a pytte: But the pytte was empty and had no water therin. And they sat them downe to eate breed. And as they lyft vp their eyes and loked about, there came a com-panye of Jsmaelites frome Galead, and their camels laden with spyces, baume and myrre, and were goynge downe into Egypte.

F Then sayde Juda to his brethren, what auayleth it that we slay our brother, and kepe his bloude secret? come on, let vs * sell hym to the Jsmaelytes, and let not our handes be defyled vpon hym: for he is our brother, and our flesh. And his brethren were content. Whē as the Madianites marchant men passed by, they drewe Joseph oute of the pyt, and solde hym vnto the Jsmaelytes for. xx. peces of syluer. And they broughte him into Egypte.

B And when Ruben came agayn vnto the pyt and founde not Joseph there, he rent his clothes, and went agayne vnto his brethren sayenge: the lad is not yonder, and where shal I go? And they toke Josephs cote and killed a geote, and dypped the cote in the bloude. And they sent & gaue cote & caused it to be broughte vnto their father, and sayde: This haue we founde: se, whether it be thy sonnes cote, or no. And he knewe it sayenge: it is my sonnes cote, a wicked beast hath * deuoured him, and Joseph is rent in peces. And Jacob rent his clothes, and put sacke cloth about his loynes and lamented for his sonne a longe season. The came all his sonnes, and all his daughters to comforte him. And he wolde not be comforted but sayd: I will go downe into the graue vnto my sonne, mourninge. And thus his father wepte for hym. And the Madianytes * solde hym in Egypt vnto Putiphar a lorde of Pharaos: and his chefe marshall.

¶ The marriage of Juda. The trespace of Er and Onan, and the vengeaunce of god that came therē vpon. Juda laye with his daughter Thamar. The byrthe of Pharez and Zara.

CAPI. XXXVIII.

A Nd it fortuned at that tyme, that Judas went frome his brethren, and gat hym to a man called Hira of Odollam and there he sawe the daughter of a man called * Sua, a Canaanyte: And he toke her, & laye with her. And she conceyued, and bare a sonne, and called his name Er. And she conceyued agayne, and bare a sonne, and called hym Onan. And she conceyued the thirde tyme and bare a sonne, whome she called Sela: and he was at Chelyb when she bare hym.

* 1. Par. ii. a.

B And Judas gaue Er his eldest sonne a wyfe whose name was Thamar. But this Er Judas eldest sonne, was wycked in the syghte of the Lorde, wherfore the Lorde slewe him. The sayde Judas vnto Onā: go in to thy brothers wyfe and marye her, and lyfte vp seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceyued that the seed shulde not be his: therfore when he went in to his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the grounde, because he wolde not gene seed vnto his brother. And the thinge whiche he dyd, displeased the Lorde, wherfore he slewe hym also. Then sayde Judas to Thamar his daughter in lawe: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growen: for he feared lest he shulde haue dyed also, as his brethren dyd. Thus went Thamar, and dwelt in her fathers house.

Onan is slayn because he wolde not gene seed vnto his brother.

And in processe of tyme, the daughter of Sua, Judas wyfe, dyed. Then Judas when he had lefte mournynge, wente vnto his shepe sheerers to Thymnath, with his frende Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar, sayenge: beholde, thy father in law goth vp to Thymnath, to * sheere his shepe. And she put her wydowes garmentes frome her, and couered her with a cloke, and disgysed her selfe: And sat her downe at the entrynge of Enaim, which is by the hye wayes syde to Thimnath, because she saw that Sela was growen, and she was not geuen him to wyfe.

D When Juda sawe her, he thought it hadde bene an hoore, because she hadde couered her face. And turned so her vnto the waye, & sayde: Come I praye the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his daughter in lawe. And she sayde what wilt thou gyue me, to lye with me? Then sayde he, I will sende the a kydde frome the flocke. She answered, Then geue me a pledge tyll thou sende it. Then sayde he, what pledge shal I geue the? And she sayd thy fygnet, thy bracelet, and thy staffe that is in thy hande. And he gaue it her, and laye by her, and she was with childe by him. And she gat her vp, and went, and put her mantell frō her, & put on her wydowes rayment agayne. And Judas sent the kyd by his neyghboure of Odollam, for to fetche out his pledge agayne from the wyues hande. But he found her not. Then asked he the men of the same place, sayenge: Where is the whore that sat at Enaim in the waye? And they sayde: there was no whore here. And he came to Juda agayn, sayenge: I can not fynde her, and also the men of the place sayde: that there was no whore there. And Juda sayd: let her take it to her, lest we be shamed: for I sente the kydde, and thou couldest not fynde her.

E Juda knoweth Thamar with a childe.

And it came to passe that after the monethes, one tolde Juda, sayenge: Thamar thy daughter in lawe hath played the whore, and with playing the whore is become great with childe. And Juda sayde: bynge her forth, and let her be brente. And when they broughte her forth, she sent to her father in lawe, sayenge: by the man vnto whome these thynges pertayne, am I with childe. And sayde also: loke whose are this seale, bracelet, and staffe. And Juda knewe them, sayeng: she is more rygh-twyse than I, because I gaue her not to Sela my sonne. But he laye with her no more.

G When tyme was come that she shulde be delyuered, beholde there was two twynnes in her wombe. And as she trauyled, the one put out his hande, & the mydwyfe toke & bounde a reed threde aboute it sayeng: this will come out fyrste. But he pluckes his hande backe agayne, and his brother came out. And she sayde wherfore hast thou prent a rent vpon the? and called him Phares. And afterwarde came out his brother that hadde the read threde about his hande, which was called Zara.

¶ God prosperyth Joseph. His mayster tempteth him. He is accused and cast in prysō. God hath mercye vppon him.

CAPI. XXXIX.

Joseph

IOseph was brought vnto Egypt, and Putiphar ✠ a lorde of Pharaos: and his chefe marshall an Egyptian bought hym of the Ismaelytes, which brought him thyther. And the Lorde was with Ioseph/and he prospered and continued in the house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that the Lorde was with hym / and that the Lorde made all that he dyd prospere in his hande: Wherfore he founde grace in his masters syght, and serued hym. And his master made hym ruler of his house, and put all that he had in his hand. And as soone as he had made hym ruler ouer his house, and ouer all that he had, the Lorde blessed this Egyptias house for Iosephs sake/ and the blessynge of the Lorde was vpon all that he had: bothe in the house, and also in the fyldes. And therfore he lefte all that he had in Iosephs hande / and loked vpon nothynge that was with hym, saue onely on the breed whiche he ate. And Ioseph was a ✠ goodly person, and a well fauoured. And it fortuned after this, that his masters wyfe cast her eyes vpon Ioseph, and sayde: come lye with me: But he denyed and sayd to her. Beholde, my master wotteth not what he hath in the house with me/but hath committed all that he hath to my hande. He hym selfe is not greater in the house then I / and hathe kepte nothynge from me / but onely the because thou arte his wyfe. How then can I do this great wyckednes, for to synne against God? And after this maner spake he to Ioseph daye by daye: but he harkened not vnto her, to lye by her, or to be in her company.

And it fortuned about the same season, that Ioseph entred in to the house, to do his busynes: and there was none of the houshold by in the house. And she caught hym by the garment, saying: come lye with me. And he left his garment in her hand, and fled and got him out. When she sawe that he had leafte his garment in her hande, and was fled out, she called vnto the men of the house, and told them saynge: See, he hath brought in an Hebrue vnto vs, to vs shame: for he came in to me, for to haue lyen with me. But I cryed with a loude voyce. And when he herde that I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he lefte his garment with me and fled awaye, and got hym out.

And she layde vp his garment by her, vntyll her lorde came home. And she told hym accordynge to these wordes saying. This Hebrues seruaunte whiche thou hast brought vnto vs came in to me to do me shame. But as sone as I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he left his garment with me and fled out. When his master herde the wordes of his wyfe which she told hym saying: after this maner dyd thy seruant to me, he waxed wroth.

And he toke Ioseph and put hym in ✠ prison euen in the place where the kynges prysoners lay bounde. And there continued he in prison/ but the Lorde was with Ioseph, & shewed hym mercy/and got hym fauour in the syght of the keper of the prison, which committed to Iosephs hande all the prysoners that were in the prison house. And what so euer was done there, that dyd he. And the keper of the prison loked vnto nothynge that was vnder his hande, bycause the Lorde was with hym, & bicause that what so euer he dyd, the Lorde made it come luckely to passe.

CAPI. XL.

AND it chaunced after this, that the chefe butler of the kyng of Egypt & his chefe baker had offended their lorde the kyng of Egypt. And Pharao was angry with them and put them in warde in his chefe marshals house: euen in the prison where Ioseph was bounde. And the chefe marshall gaue Ioseph a charge with them/& he serued them. And they continued a season in warde.

The kynges baker & butler to dreame

And they dreamed eyther of them in one nyght: bothe the butler and the baker of the kynge of Egypte whiche were bounde in the prison house, eyther of them his dreame, and eche mannes dreame of a sondrye interpretacion. When Ioseph came in vnto them in the mornynge / and loked vpon them: Beholde, they were sadde. And he asked them sayynge, wherfore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym/ we haue dreamed a dreame/ and haue no man to declare it. And Ioseph sayde vnto them. Interpretynge belongeth to god, but tell me yet. And the chefe butler told his dreame to Ioseph, and sayd vnto hym. In my dreame me thought there stode a vyne before me/and in the vyne were thre braunches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossome spronge forthe: and the grapes therof waxed ripe. And I had Pharaos cup in my hande, and toke of the grapes and wronge them in to Pharaos cuppe, and delyuered Pharaos cuppe in to his hande. And Ioseph sayd vnto hym/ this is the interpretacion of it. The thre braunches are thre dayes: for within thre dayes shall Pharao lyfte vp thyne heed / and restore the vnto thyne office agayne / and thou shalte deliuer Pharaos cuppe in to his hand, after the olde maner, euen as thou dyddest when thou was his butler. But thynke on me when thou art in good case/and shewe mercy vnto me. And make mencion of me to Pharao/and helpe to bringe me out of this house/ for/ I was stollen out of the lande of the Hebrues, and here also haue I done nothynge at all wherfore they shold haue put me in to this dongeon. When the chefe baker sawe that he had well expounded it/ he sayde vnto Ioseph/ me thought also in my dreame, that I had .iii. wyker halpetters on my heed. And in the vppermost basket, of all maner bake meates for Pharao. And the byrdes ate them out of the basket vpon my heed.

Expoundynge of dreames appertayneth to god.

Ioseph answered and sayde: this is the interpretacion therof. The thre basketters are thre dayes/for thre dayes thre dayes shall Pharao take thy heed from the/ and hal hang the on a tree, and the byrdes shall eate thy fleshe from the.

And it came to passe the thyrde daye whiche was Pharaos ✠ byrth daye/ that he made a K.ij. feast

✠ Or fayre

trall vnto all his seruaunte. And he lyfted vp the heed of the chefe butler and of the chefe baker amonge his seruauntes. And restored the chefe butler vnto his butlershyp agayne: and he reached the cup in to Pharaos hande: and hanged the chefe baker: euen as Joseph had interpretated vnto them. Notwithstandynge the chefe butler remembred not Joseph: but forgate hym.

¶ Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two sonnes: Manasses and Ephraim. The derth begynneth in Egypte.

CAPI. XLI.

A Nd it fortuned at two yeres ende that Pharao dreamed, and thought that he stode by a ryuers syde: and that there came out of the ryuer. vij. goodly kyne, & fatte fleshed, and fed in a medowe: & hym thought that. vij. other kyne came vp after them out of the ryuer cupi fauored and leane fleshed, and stode by the other vpon the brynke of the ryuer. And the cupi fauoured and leane fleshed kyne, ate vp the. vij. welfauoured & fat kyne: and he awoke therwith. And he slept agayne and dreamed the seconde tyme, that. vij. eares of corne grewe vpon one stalke ranke & goodly. And that. vij. thynne eares blasted with the wynde, sprange vp after them: and that the. vij. thynne eares deuoured the. vij. rancke and full eares. And then Pharao awaked, and se, here is his dreame. When the morninge came, his spirite was troubled. And he sente and called for the sothsayers of Egypte: and all the wyse men therof, and tolde them his dreame: but there was none of them that coulde interprete it vnto Pharao. Then spake the chefe butler vnto Pharao saynge. I do remembre my faute this daye. Pharao was angrye with his seruauntes, and put me warde in the chefe marshals house, bothe me and the chefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, & eche mans dreame of a sondrye interpretation.

And there was with vs a yong man an Hebrue borne, seruaunt vnto the chefe marshall. And we tolde hym, & he declared our dreames to vs accordynge to either of our dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs so it came to passe. I was restored to myne office agayn, and he was hanged.

Then Pharao sent and called Joseph. And they brought hym forthwith out of prison. And he shaued him self and chaunged his rayment, & went in to Pharao. And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph, I haue dreamed a dreme and no man can interpretate it: but I haue herde tell of the, that as sone as thou hearest a dreame, thou canst declare it. And Joseph answered Pharao saying: God shal geue Pharao a prosperous answere without me. Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: In my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of the ryuer. vij. fatte fleshed and welfauoured kyne, and fed in the medowe. And then. vij. other kyne came vp after them, poore and very cupifauoured & leane fleshed: so that I neuer sawe there lyke in all the lande of Egypte for cupifauourdnes. And the. vij. leane and cupifauoured kyne ate vp the first. vij. fatte kyne. And when they had eaten them vp a mã could not perceyue that they had eaten them: for they were styl as cupifauoured as they were at the begynnyng. And I awoke. And I saw agayne in my dreme. vij. eares spryng out of one stalke full and good, and. vij. other eares wythered, thyn and blasted with wynde, sprynge vp after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the. vij. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the sothsayers, but no man can tell me what it meaneth. Then Joseph sayd vnto Pharao, bothe Pharaos dremes are one. And god doth shew Pharao what he is about to do. The. vij. good kyne are. vij. yeres, and the. vij. good eares are vij. yeres also: and it is but one dreame. And the lene the. vij. thyn and cupifauoured kyne that came out after them, are seuen yeres: and the seuen emptye and blasted eares shall be seuen yeres of hunger. This is that whiche I sayde vnto Pharao, that God doth shewe Pharao what he is about to do.

Beholde there shall come. vij. yeres of great plentifulnes throughout all the lande of Egypt. And there shall aryse after them. vij. yeres of hunger: so that all the plentifulnes shal be forgotten in the land of Egypt. And the hunger shal consume the land, so that the plentifulnes shal not be once perceyued in the lande by reason of that hunger that shal come after, for it shall be exceadynge great. And where as the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the seconde tyme, it betokeneth that the thynge is certaynly prepared of God, & that God wyll shortly bringe it to passe.

Now therfore let Pharao prouyde for a man of vnderstandynge and wysdome, and set him ouer the land of Egypt. And let Pharao make officers ouer the lande, and take vp the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypt in the seuen plentyous yeres, and let them gather all the foode of these good yeres that come, & laye vp corne vnder the power of Pharao, that there may be foode in the cityes, and there let them kepe it, that there may be foode in store in the lande agaynst the seuen yeres of hunger whiche shall come in the lande of Egypt, and that the lande perysshe not thorow hunger.

And the saying pleased Pharao and all his seruantes. Then sayd Pharao vnto his seruantes where shall we fynde suche a man as this is, that hath the spirite of God in hym? wherfore Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: forasmoch as god hath shewed the all this, there is no man of vnderstanding or of wysdom like vnto the. Thou therfore shalt be ouer my house, & according to thy worde shall all my people obey: onely in the kynges seat wyl I be aboue the. And he sayd vnto Joseph, beholde, I haue set the ouer all the land of Egypt. And he toke of his ryng from his hande, & put it vpon Joseps hande: and arayed hym in rayment of lynne, and hong a golden chayne about his necke, and let him vpon the best charet that he had saue one. And proclamation was made, & euery person shulde bowe his knee before hym, as to hym whome Pharao had set ouer all the lande of Egypte.

And

And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph. I am Pharao, without thy will shal no man lyft vp eyther his hand or foote in all the land of Egypt. And he called Joseps name Zaphnath Paenea. And he gaue him to wife Aseneth the daughter of Putiphar preest of On. Then went Joseph ayroad in the land of Egypt. And he was thirty yere olde when he stode before Pharao kynge of Egypte. And then Joseph departed from Pharao, and went throughout all all the lande of Egypte.

And in the seuen plentyfull yeres they made heapes, and gathered vp all the encrease of the seuen plenteous yeres which were in the land of Egypte, and put it in to the cityes. And he put the wode of the feldes that grewe rounde aboute euery city, euen in the same. And Joseph layde vp corne in store, lyke to the sande of the see in multitude aboue measure, vntyll he lefte nombryng: for it was without nombre. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes before the yeres of hunger came, which Aseneth the daughter of Putiphar preest of On, bare vnto hym. And he called the name of the fyrst sonne * Manasse, for God (sayd he) hath made me forget all my laboure, and all my fathers housholde. The second called he Ephraim, for God (sayd he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the seuen plentyfull yeres that were in the lande of Egypt were ended, then came the seuen yeres of * derth, accordyng as Joseph had sayd. And the derth was in all landes, but in the lande of Egypte was there yet lode. When now all the lande of Egypt began to hunger, then cryed the people to Pharao for breed. And Pharao sayd vnto all Egypte: go vnto Joseph, and what he sayeth to you, that do. And when the derth was throughout all the lande, Joseph opened all that was in the cityes and solde vnto the Egyptians. And hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte. And all countreys came to Egypt to Joseph for to bye corne, bycause that the hunger was so sore in all landes.

¶ Josephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne. He knoweth and tryeth them. Symeon is put in prison, the other returne to their father to fetche Benjamin. The father loth to let them go, or hap greuous.

CAPI. XLII.

When Jacob sawe there was corne to be solde in Egypte, he sayde to his sonnes: Why are ye negligent? Behold I haue herde that there is corne to be solde in Egypte. * Get you thither and bye vs some from thence, that we may lyue and not dye. So there Josephs ten brethren boughte to bye corne in Egypte, for Jacob wolde not sende Benjamin with his other brethren: for he sayd, some misfortune myght happen him.

And the sonnes of Israel came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was derth also in the lande of Canaan. And Joseph was gouernor in the lande, and solde corne to all the people of the land. And his brethren came and fell flat on the ground before him. When Joseph sawe his brethren, he knewe them, but made straunge vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them saying: Whence come ye? and they sayde: out of the lande of Canaan, to bye victayle. Joseph knewe his brethren, but they knewe not him.

And Joseph remembred his * dreames which he dreamed of them, and sayde vnto them, ye are spyes, and ye come to se where the lande is weake. And they sayd vnto him: nay my lorde, but to bye victayle thy seruaunces are come. We are all one mans sonnes, and we meane truly, and thy seruaunces are no spyes. He sayd vnto them: nay verily, but euen to se where the lande is weake is your commynge. And they sayd: we thy seruaunces are xii. brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan. The yongest is yet with our father, but one no man woteth where he is. Joseph sayd vnto them, that is it that I sayd vnto you, that ye are surely spyes. Hereby ye shal be proued. For by the lyfe of Pharao ye shall not go hence tyl your yongest brother be brought hither. Send therfore one of you to fetche your brother, and ye shall be in prison in the meane season. And therby shall your wordes be proued, whether ye be true, or els by the lyfe of Pharao, ye are but spyes. And he put them in warde thre dayes.

Then Joseph sayde vnto them, the thyrde day. This do, and ye shal lyue, for I feare god. If ye meane truly, let one of your brethren be bounde in prison, and go ye and beare necessary lode to your housholdes, and bringe with you your yongest brother vnto me: that your wordes may be proued, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so.

Then they sayd one to an other: we haue herely synned against our brother, in that we sawe the anguyshe of his soule, when he besought vs, and wolde not heare him: therfore is this trouble come vpon vs. Ruben answered them sayinge. Spake I not vnto you that ye wolde not * synne against the childe, but ye wolde not heare. And nowe herely is, his bloode is † required. They were not aware that Joseph vnderstode them, for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he turned from them † wepte, and then turned to them agayne, & talked with them, and tooke out Symeon from them and bounde him before their eyes, and commaunded to fyll their sackes with corne, and to put euery mans money in his sacke, & to geue them victayle to spende by the waye. And so it was done to them. And they loded their asses with the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened his sacke, for to geue his asse prouender in the Inne, he spyed his money in his sackes mouthe. And he sayd vnto his brethren: my money is restored me agayne, and is in my sackes mouthe. Then their hertes fayled them, and were afrayed, and sayd one to an other: how chaunce it that God dealeth thus with vs? And they came to Jacob their father vnto the lande of Canaan and told him all that had happened them sayinge. The lorde of the lande spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spies to serche the countrey.

L.iij. And

* Genesis. xxxvii. b

† To require the bloude of the hād of an other is to take vengeaunce of euyll done vnto him, as in Genesis ix. & Ezechiel. xxxiii.

And we sayd vnto hym: we meane truly and are no spyes. We be twelue brethren sonnes of our father / one is awaye, and the yongest is nowe with our father in the lãde of Canaan. Then the lorde of the countrey sayd vnto vs: by this shall I knowe yf ye meane truly: leaue one of your brethren here with me, and take foode necessarye for your households, and get you awaye, and bringe your yongest brother vnto me. And hereby shal I knowe that ye are no spyes, but meane truly: So will I deliuer you your brother agayne / and ye shall occupye in the lande.

And as they emptied their sackes, behold euery mans budell of money was in his sacke. And when both they and their father sawe the bundels of money, they were afrayde.

And Jacob their father sayd vnto them, haue ye robbed me of my children: Joseph is dead, and Symeon is awaye / and ye will take Ben Jamin from me. All these thynges fall vpon me. Ruben answered his father sayinge: Slee my two sonnes, yf I bring him not to the agayn. Deliuer him therfore vnto my hande, and I will bringe him to the agayne: But he sayd: my sonne shal not go downe with you, for his brother is dead, and he is left alone. Moreouer some mysfortune myght happen vpon him by the way which ye go. And so shoulde ye bring my gray heed with sorowe vnto the graue.

a Bringe me to my graue: that is yt I shal bring me to my death / as in Chapt. xxvii.

Cwhen Ben Jamin was brought they returned with gyftes. Symeon is deliuered out of prison. Joseph goth aboue & weepeth. They feast together.

CAP. I. XLIII.

AND the derth waxed sore in the lande. And when they had eaten vp the corne which they brought out of the lande of Egypt, their father sayd vnto them: go agayne and bye vs a litle foode. Then sayd Juda vnto him: the man did testifie vnto vs sayinge, * loke ye se not my face, onelesse your brother come with you. Therfore yf thou wylte sende our brother with vs, we will go and bye the foode. Yf thou wylte not sende hym, we will not go: For the man sayde vnto vs: loke ye se not my face, excepte your brother be with you. And Jsrael sayd: wherfore delte ye so cruelly with me, to tell the man ye had yet an other brother? They sayde: The man asked vs of our kynred, sayinge: Is your father yet alyue? haue ye not an other brother? And we tolde hym accordynge to these wordes: Howe coulde we knowe that he wolde byd vs bringe our brother downe with vs? Then sayd Juda vnto Jsrael his father: Sende the lad with me, and we will ryse and go, that we maye lyue and not dye: both we, thou and also our children. I will be suerye for hym / and of my handes requyre hym. Yf I bringe him not to the, and set hym before thyne eyes, let me bere the blame for euer. For onelesse we hadde made this tarying, by this we had ben there twyse and come agayne.

* Ben sim.d

Then their father Jsrael sayd vnto them. Yf it must nedes be so nowe, then do thus, take of the best fruites of the lande in your vessels, and carry the man a present, a quantitie of balme and a porcion of hony, spyces and myrre, dates and almondes. And take as moch money more with you. And the money that was brought agayn in your sackes, take it agayn with you, peraduenture it was some ouersyght.

Take also your brother with you, and aryse and go agayne to the man. And God almyghtye graue you mercy in the sight of the man and sende you your other brother & also Ben Jamin and I wyl be as a man robbed of his children.

Thus toke they the present & twyse so moche more money with them, and Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypt, and presented them fruites to Joseph. When Joseph sawe Ben Jamin with them, he sayd to the ruler of his house: bringe these men home, and slee & make redy: for they shall dyne with me at none. And the man did as Joseph bad, and brought them in to Josephs house.

When they were brought to Josephs house / they were afrayde and sayd, because of the money þ came in our sackes mouthes at the fyrst tyme, are we brought that they myght pyke a quarell with vs, and laye some thynge to our charge, to bringe vs in bondage and our asses also. So came they to the man that was the ruler ouer Josephs house, and spake with him at the dore and sayd.

Syr, we came hyther at the fyrst tyme to bye foode, and as we came to an Jnne, and opened our sackes: behold euery mans * money was in his sacke with full weyghte: But we haue brought it agayne with vs, and other money haue we brought also in our handes, to bye foode but we can not tell who put our money in our sackes. And he sayde: be of good chere / feare not: your God, and the God of your fathers hathe put that treasure in your sackes / for I had your money. And he brought Symeon out to them, & led them in to Josephs house, & gaue them water to washe their fete, & gaue their asses prouender: And they made redye their present, against Joseph came at none / for they herde say that they shulde dyne there. When Joseph came home, they brought the present in to the house to hym, which they had in their handes, and fell flat on the ground before him. And he welcomed them courteysly, sayinge / is your father that olde man which ye told me of in good helth? and is he yet alyue? They answered: thy seruant our father is in good helth and is yet alyue. And they bowed them selues and fell to the grounde.

And he lyft vp his eyes and beheld his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne and sayd: * Is this your yongest brother of whome ye sayde vnto me? And sayd: God be mercyfull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast / for * his hert did melt vpon his brother & sought where to wepe, and entred in to his chamber, for to wepe there. And he washed his face and came out and refrayned hym selfe, and bad set bred on the table.

And they prepared for hym by hym selfe, & for them by them selues, and for the Egyptians which are bidd dyne by them selues, because the Egyptians maye not eate bred with the Hebrues / for that is an & abhominacion vnto the the Egyptians. And they sat before hym: the eldest according vnto his age, and the yongest according vnto his youth. And the men meruelled amonge themselues. And they brought rewardes vnto them from hym: but Benjamins parte was fyue tymes so moche as anye of theirs. And they ate and dronke, and were merry with hym.

CAPI. XLIIII.

1 AND he commaunded the ruler of his house sayeng: fyll the mens sackes with food, as moche as they can carye, & put euery mans money in his bagge mouthe, and put my syluer cup in the sackes mouthe of the yongest and his corne money also. And he dyd as Joseph had sayde. And in the morninge as soone as it was lyghte, the men were let go with their asses. And when they were out of the cytie and not yet ferre passe, Joseph sayde vnto the ruler of his house: Aryse and pursue after the men, and ouertake them, and saye vnto them: Wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cuppe, of whiche my lorde drynketh, and dothe he not prophecye therin? ye haue euyll done, that ye haue done.

And he ouertoke them and sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: Wherfore sayeth my lorde suche wordes? God forbyd that thy seruauntes shulde do so. Beholde, the money which we founde in our sackes mouthes, we broughte agayne vnto the, out of the lande of Canaan: how then shulde we steale out of my lordes house, either syluer or golde? With whomsoeuer of thy seruauntes it be founde let hym dye, and let vs also be my lordes bondemen. And he sayde. Nowe therfore accordynge vnto youre wordes be with whome it is founde, shalbe my seruaunt: but ye, shalbe harmelesse.

2 And forthwith euerye man toke downe his sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened his sacke. And he serched, fromte the eldest, to the yongest. And the cup was founde in Ben Jamins sacke. Then they † rente their clothes, and laded euery man his asse, and went agayne vnto the cytie. And Juda and his brethren came to Josephs house, for he was yet there, and they fell before hym on the ground. And Joseph sayde vnto them: what dede is this whiche ye haue done? wiste ye not that suche a man as I, can prophecye?

3 Then sayde Juda: What shall we saye vnto my lorde, what shall we speake, or what excuse can we make? God hathe founde out the wickednesse of thy seruauntes. Beholde, bothe we and he, with whome the cuppe is founde, are thy seruauntes. And he answered: God forbyd that I shulde do so, the man with whome the cuppe is founde, he shalbe my seruaunte: but go ye in peace home to your father.

4 Then Juda went vnto him and sayde: oh my lorde, let thy seruaunte speake a worde in my lordes eare, and be not wrothe with thy seruaunt: for thou arte euen as Pharao, thy lorde asked his seruaunte sayenge: haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered my lorde † we haue a father that is olde, and a yonge lodde which he begat in his age: and the brother of the lad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother. And his father loueth hym. Then sayde my lorde vnto his seruauntes, bringe him vnto me, that I may set myne eyes vppon hym. And we answered my lorde, that the lad coulde not go from his father, for yf he shulde leaue his father, his father were but a dede man. Then sayedest thou vnto thy seruauntes † ones youre yongest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no more.

5 And when we came vnto thy seruaunt oure father, we shewed hym, what my lorde hadde sayde. And when oure father sayde vnto vs, go agayne, and bye vs a lytle lode: we sayd, that we coulde not go. Notwithstandyng yf oure yongest brother go with vs, then will we go, for we maye not se the mennes face except oure yongeste brother come with vs. Then sayde thy seruaunt oure father vnto vs. Ye knowe that my wyfe bare me two sonnes. And the one went out fro me, and it is sayd that he is † torne in peces, of wylde beastes, & I sawe him not sence. If ye shall take this also away from me, and some misfortune happen vpon hym, † ye shall bringe my graye heed, with sorowe vnto the graue.

6 Now therfore when I come to thy seruaunt my father, yf the lad be not with me: seynge that his lyfe hangeth by the laddes lyfe, then as soone as he seeth that the lad is not come, he shall dye. So shall we thy seruauntes, bringe the graye head of thy seruaunt oure father, in sorowe vnto the graue. For I thy seruaunt became suerte for the lad, vnto my father, and sayde: † If I bringe hym not to the agayne, I will bere the blame all my lyfe longe. Now therfore let my lyfe seruaunt, remayne here for the lad, and be my lordes bondeman: and let the lad go home with his brethern. For how can I go vnto my father, and the lad not with me: lest I shulde se the wretchednes that shal come on my father.

CAPI. XLV.

1 THAN Joseph coulde no longer refrayne before all them that stode about hym, but commaunded that they shulde go all out from hym, and that none shulde be no man with him, whyle he dyd make himself knowen vnto his brethern. And he † wepte aloude, so that the Egyptians, and the house of Pharao herde it. And he sayde vnto his brethern: I am Joseph, doth my father yet lyue? But his brethern coulde not answere him, for they were abashed at his presence. And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: come nere to me. And they came nere. And he sayde: † I am Joseph your brother, whome ye solde into Egypte.

13 And nowe be not greued therwith, neyther let it seme a cruell thynge in youre eyes, that ye solde me hyther. For God hath sent me before you, to saue youre lyues. † For thys is the cande yere of derth in the lande, and yet mo are behynde, in whiche there shall neyther be earynge no: heruest.

Wherfore God sent me afore to make prouision, that ye myght continue in the earth, & to saue youre lyues by a greate deliuerraunce.

So now, it was not ye that sent me hyther, but God: and he hathe made me as a father vnto Pharao, and lorde ouer all his house, & ruler in all the lande of Egypte. Haste you therfore, and go to my father, and tell him, this sayth thy sonne Joseph: God hath made me lorde ouer all Egypte. Come downe vnto me and tarye not. And thou shalt dwell in the lande of Golan, and be by me: bothe thou, & thy children, and thy childrens children: and thy shepe, and beastes, and all that thou hast. There will I make prouision for the: for yette remayne yet fyue yeres of derth, lest thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, perysshe.

Beholde, youre eyes do se, and the eyes also of my brother Ben Jamin, that I speake to you by mouthe. Therfore tell my father of all my honoure, whiche I haue in Egypte, and of all that ye haue sene, and make hast & bring my father hyther.

And he fell on his brother Ben Jamins neck and wept, and Ben Jamin wept on his necke. Moreouer he kyssed all his brethren, & wepte vpon them. And after that, his brethren talked with him. And when the tydynges were brought to Pharaos house, that Josephs brethren were come, it pleased Pharao well, and all his seruauntes.

And Pharao spake vnto Joseph: saye vnto thy brethren, this do ye: lade youre beastes, & get you hence, And when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan, take youre father, and youre household, and come vnto me, and I will gene you the best of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the farre of the lande. And commaunded also. This do ye: take charettes with you, out of the lande of Egypte, for youre children, and for youre wyues: and bringe youre father, and come. Also, regarde not youre stuffe, for the goodes of all the lande of Egypte shal be youre.

And the children of Israel dyd accordyngly. And Joseph gaue them charettes at the commaundement of Pharao, and gaue them vytayle also, to spende by the waye. And he gaue vnto eche of them, chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin, he gaue thre hundred peces of syluer, and fyue chaunge of rayment. And vnto his father he sent lykewyse ten asses laden with good out of Egypte, and ten she asses laden with corne, bread and meate to eate his father by the waye. So sent he his brethren awaye, and they departed. And he sayde vnto them: se that ye fall not oute by the waye.

And they departed from Egypte, and entred the lande of Canaan, and came to Jacob their father, and tolde him, sayenge. Joseph is yet a lyue, and is gouernour ouer all the lyf of Egypte. And Jacobs hert was troubled, but he beleued them not. And they tolde him all the wordes of Joseph, whiche he had sayde vnto them. But when he sawe the charettes which Joseph had sent to carye him, then his spyrites reuyued. And Israel sayde. I haue ynoughe, yf Joseph my sonne be yet alyue: I will go and se him, or that I dye.

CAPI. XLVI.

ISrael tooke his ✱ iourney, with all he had, and came vnto Berseba, and offred offrynges vnto the God of his father Isaac. And God sayde vnto Israel in a vysyon by nyght, and called vnto him: Jacob Jacob. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: I am that myghtye God of thy father, feare not to go downe into Egypte. And Jacob rose vp from Berseba. And the sonnes of Israel caryed Jacob their father, and their children, and their wyues in the charettes, whiche Pharao had sent to carye him. And they toke their catell, & the goodes whiche they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, & came into Egypt: both Jacob and all his seed with him, his sonnes, and his sonnes sonnes with him, his doughters, & his sonnes doughters, and all his seed brought he with him into Egypte.

And he sent Iuda before hym vnto Ioseph, that she waye myghte be shewed hym vnto Golan, and they came into the lande of Golan. And Ioseph made redy his charet, & went to mete Israel his father, vnto Golan, & presented hym selfe vnto hym, & fell on his necke and wepte vpon his necke a good whyle. And Israel sayde vnto Ioseph: Nowe am I content to dye, for almoche as I haue sene the, & thou arte yet alyue.

And Ioseph sayde vnto his brethren & vnto his fathers house: I will go and shewe Pharao, and tell hym: that my brethren and my fathers house, which were in the lande of Canaan, are come vnto me, and howe they are departed (for they were men of catell) & they haue brought their shepe and their oxen, and all that they haue, with them. If Pharao call you, and aske you what your occupation is/ saye: thy seruauntes haue bene occupyed about catell, frome oure childhode vnto this tyme: bothe we and our fathers, that ye may dwell in the lande of Golan. For the Egyptians abhorre all shepardes.

¶ Iacob cometh before Pharao/and bydeth him to geue the lande of Golan. He chargeth his sonne for his buryal.

CAPI. XLVII

And Ioseph went and tolde Pharao, & sayde: my father and my brethren, their shepe and their beastes, & all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan/ & are in the lande of Golan. And Ioseph toke a part of his brethren: euen fyue of them, and presented them vnto Pharao. And Pharao sayde vnto his brethren: what is youre occupation? And they sayde vnto Pharao: shepehertes are thy seruauntes, bothe we and also our fathers. They sayde moreouer vnto Pharao: for to * sogorne in the lande are we come, for thy seruauntes haue no pasture for their shepe, so sore is the famyshement in the lande of Canaan. Now therfore let thy seruauntes dwell in the lande of Golan.

And Pharao sayde vnto Ioseph: thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the. The lande of Egypte is open before the: In the best place of the lande, make bothe thy father and thy brethren dwell: And euen in the lande of Golan let them dwell. Moreouer yf thou knowe any men of actiuite amonge them, make the rulers ouer my catell. And Ioseph brought in Iacob his father, and set hym before Pharao. And Iacob blessed Pharao. And Pharao asked Iacob, howe olde are thou? And Iacob sayde vnto Pharao: the dayes of my pilgremage, are an hundred and thirty yeres. Fewe and euyll haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not attayned vnto the yeres of the lyfe of my fathers, in the dayes of their pilgremages. And Iacob blessed Pharao, and went out frome hym. And Ioseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, and gaue them possessions in the lande of Egypte, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Hamesses, as Pharao commaunded. And Ioseph made prouysyon for his father, his brethren and all his fathers houshold, as ponge children are fed with bread.

There was no bread in al the lande, for the derth was exceadynge sore: so that the lande of Egypte, and the lande of Canaan, were famyshed, by the reason of the derth. And Ioseph gathered together all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypte, and of Canaan, for the corne whyche they bought: and he layde vp the money in Pharaos house. When money fayled in the lande of Egypte, & of Canaan, all the Egyptians came vnto Ioseph, and sayde: geue vs sustenaunce: wherfore intreat thou vs to dye before the: for our money is spent. Then sayde Ioseph: bringe youre catell, and I will geue you for youre catell, yf ye be without money. And they brought their catell vnto Ioseph. And he gaue them bread for horses and shepe, and oxen and asses: so he fed them with bread, for all their catell, that yere.

When that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the next yere, and sayde vnto hym: we will not hyde it frome my lorde, how that we haue neyther money nor catell, for my lorde: there is no more left for my lorde, but our bodyes, and oure landes. Wherfore intreat thou vs not before thyne eyes, and the lande to go to naught! bye vs and our landes for bread: and let bothe we and our landes be bonde to Pharao. Geue vs seed, that we maye lyue/ & not dye, and that the lande go not to waste.

And Ioseph bought all the lande of Egypte for Pharao. For the Egyptians solde euery man his lande, because the derth was sore vpon them: and so the lande became Pharaos. And he appointed the people vnto the cytees/ frome one syde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of priestes bought he not. For there was an ordinaunce made, by Pharao/ for the priestes, that they shuld eate that whyche was appointed vnto them: whiche Pharao had geuen them, wherfore they solde not their landes.

Then Ioseph sayde vnto the folke: beholde I haue bought you this daye, and youre landes for Pharao. Take here seed, and go sowe the the lande. And of the encrease, ye shall geue the fyfte parte vnto Pharao, and .iiii. partes shal be youre owne for seed to sowe the felde: and for you, and them of your houssholdes, and for youre children, to eate. And they answered: Thou hast saued our lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syghte of my lorde, and let vs be Pharaos seruauntes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye: that men must geue Pharao the fyfte parte, except the lande of the preastes only, which was not bounde vnto Pharao.

And Israel dwelte in Egypte: euen in the countreye of Gosan. And they had their possessions therin, and they grewe and multyplyed exceadyngly. Moreouer Jacob lyued in the lande of Egypte .xvii. yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob, was an hundred, and .xlvii. yeres.

When the tyme drewe nye, that Israel must dye: he sent for his sonne Joseph, and sayde vnto hym: If I haue found grace in thy syght, put thy hande vnder my thye, and deale mercifully and truely with me, that thou burye me not in Egypte: but let me lye by my fathers and carye me oute of Egypte, and bury me in their buryall. And he answered: I will do as thou hast sayde. And he sayde * sweare vnto me. And he sware vnto hym. And then Israel worshipped the Lorde, and bowed hym vnto the beddes head.

After these wordes, tydynge were brought vnto Joseph, that his father was sicke. And he toke with him his two sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it sayde vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph commeth vnto the. And Israel toke his strength vnto hym, and sat vp on the bedde, and sayde vnto Joseph: God almyghtye apeared vnto me at * Luz, in the lande of Canaan, & blessed me, and sayde vnto me: beholde, I will make the growe, and will multyplye the, and will make a great * nombre of people of the, and will geue this lande vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the, for an euerlastinge possession. Now therfore thy two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim, whiche were borne vnto the before I came to the into Egypt, shalbe myne euen as Ruben and Symeon shal they be vnto me. And the children whiche thou getteste after them, shalbe thyne owne: but shalbe called with the names of their brethren in their enheritaunces. And after I came frome Mesopotamia, Rachel * dyed vpon my hande in the lande of Canaan, by the weye: when I had but a litle way to go vnto Ephrate. And Israel behelde Josephs sonnes, and sayde: what are these? And Joseph sayd vnto his father: they are my sonnes, whiche God hathe geuen me here. And he sayde: bringe them to me, and let me blesse them. And the eyes of Israel were dymme for age, so that he coulde not well se. And he broughte them to hym, and he kyssed them, and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I wolde not haue thought, that I shoulde haue sene thy face, and yet lo, God hathe shewed it me, and also thy seed. And Joseph toke them awaye frome his lappe, and they fell on the grounde before hym.

Then toke Joseph them both: Ephraim in his eyght hande towarde Israels left hande and Manasses in his lefthande, towarde Israels eyghte hande, and broughte them vnto hym. And Israel stretched oute his eyghte hande, and layde it vppon Ephraims head, whiche was the yonger, and his lefte hande, vppon Manasses head, crossinge his handes, for Manasses was the elder. And he blessed Joseph, sayenge: God before whome my fathers Abraham and Isaac dyd walke, and the God whiche hathe fedde me all my lyfe longe vnto this daye, And the aungell whiche hath deliuered me frome all euyll, bielle these ladds: that they maye be called after my name and after my fathers Abraham and Isaac, and that they maye growe and multipye, vppon the earthe.

When Joseph sawe that his father layde his eyght hande vppon the head of Ephraim, it displeased hym. And he lyfte vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it frome Ephraims head vnto Manasses head, and sayde vnto his father. Not so my father, for this is the eldest. Put thy eyght hande vpon his head. And his father wolde not, but sayde: I know it well my sonne, I knowe it well. He shalbe also a * people, and shalbe greate. But of a truthe his yonger brother shalbe greatter then he, and his seed shalbe full of people. And he blessed them, sayenge: At the ensaumple of these, the Israelites shall bielle, and saye: God make the, as Ephraim and as Manasses. Thus set he Ephraim before Manasses.

1 * Gen. xlvi. b

THESE ARE THE NAmes of the * children of Israel, whiche came to Egypte with Jacob, euery man with his housholde: Ruben, Simeon, Leui, Juda, Jssachar, Zabulon, Ben Jamin, Dan, Nephtali, Gad and Aser. All these soules proceedinge out of the loynes of Jacob, were. lxx. where as Ioseph was in Egypte all redye.

6 * Act. vii. c Plal. cxv. c

When Ioseph was dead, and al his brethern and all the generation: the * children of Israel grewe, encreased, multiplyed, and waxed very myghtye: so that the lande was full of them.

B Then there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypte whiche knewe not Ioseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: beholde the people of the children of Israel are mo & myghtyer than we. Come, let vs playe wysely with them: lest they multiplye, and so (yf there chaunce any warre) they ioyne them selues vnto oure ennemyes and fyghte agaynste vs, and so gette them oute of the lande.

L And he set taskemasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burdens. And they buylt vnto Pharao cyties of wenne: Phithon and Rameses. But the more they vexed the, the more they multyplyed and grewe: so that they abhorred the children of Israel. And the Egyptians helde the children of Israel in bondage without mercye, and made their lyues bitter vnto them, with cruell labour in claye, and bryche, and all maner worke in the fyldes, and in all maner seruice, whiche they caused them to worke, cruelly.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Ebrues women, of whiche the ones name was Sephora, and the other Phua: When ye be the office of a mydwyfe, to the women of the Ebrues, & se in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, kyll it. But yf it be a mayde, let it lyue. Notwithstanding the mydwyues feared God, and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but saued the men children.

D Then the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwyues, and sayde vnto them: why haue ye dell on this maner, and haue saued the men children? And the mydwyues answered Pharao, that the Ebrues women were not as the women of Egypte: but were sturdy women, and were deliuered afore the mydwyues came at them. And god therfore delt well with the mydwyues. And the people multiplyed and waxed very myghty. And because the mydwyues feared God, he made them houses.

Then Pharao charged all his people, sayenge. All the menchildren that are borne, caste into the ryuer, and saue the maydechildren a lyue.

AND there went a man of * the house of Leui. And toke a daughter of Leui. And the wyfe conceyued & bare a sonne. And when she saw that it was a proper child, she hyd him xij. monethes. But when she coulde no longer hyde hym, she toke a basket made of bulrushes, and dawbed it with slyme and pytche, and layde the childe therin, and put it in the flagges by the ryuers brynke. And his syster stode a ferre of, to wytte what wolde come of it. * And the daughter of Pharao came downe to the ryuer to wash her self, and her maydens walked a longe by the ryuers syde. And when she sawe the basket amonge the flagges, she sent one of her maydens, and caused it to be fet. And when she had opened it she sawe the childe, and beholde: the babe wepte. And she had compassion on it and sayde: it is one of the Ebrues childzen. Then sayde his syster vnto Pharaos doughter: shall I go and call vnto the a nurse of the Ebrues wemē, to nurse ☞ the childe? Pharaos doughter answered. Go thy waye. And the mayde ran, and called the childes mother. Then Pharaos doughter sayde vnto her. Take this childe awaye, and nurse it for me / and I wyll rewarde the, for thy labour. And the woman toke the childe, and nursed it vp.

And when the childe was growen, she brought it vnto Pharaos doughter, & it was made her sonne, and she called it ☞ Moses, because (sayde she) I toke hym out of the water. And it happened in those dayes, when Moses was warre great, that he went out vnto his brethren, and loked on their burdens, & spyed an Egyptian smytynge one of his brethren an Ebrue. And he loked rounde aboute, & when he sawe that there was no man by, he slewe the Egyptian, and hyd hym in the sande. And he went forth the next daye: and beholde, two Ebrues stroue togyther. And he sayde vnto hym that dyd the wronge: Wherefore smytest thou thyne neyghbour? And he answered: who hath made the a rular or a iuge ouer vs? intendest thou to kyll me, as thou killedst yesterdaye the Egyptian? Then Moses feared and sayde: Truly the thinge is knowen. And Pharao herde of it, and wente aboute to slee Moses: but he fled from Pharao, and dwelt in the lande of Madian, and he sat downe by a welles syde.

The preest of Madian had. vij. doughters, whiche came and drewe water, and fylled the troughes, for to water their fathers shepe. And the shepeherdes came and droue the maydens awaye: but Moses stode vp, and helped them, and watered their shepe. When they came to ☞ Raguel their father, he sayde: how happeneth it that ye are come so sone to day? They answered: an Egyptian deliuered vs from the shepeherdes, and so drewe vs water, and watered the shepe. And he sayde vnto his doughters: Where is he? why haue ye left the man? So call hym that he may eate bred. And Moses was content to dwell with the man. And he gaue Moses Zephora his doughter which bare a sonne, and he called him Gerson: for he sayde: I haue bene a straunger in a strange lande. And she bare yet another sonne whom he called Eliezer, sayenge: The God of my father is myne helper, & hath ryd me oute of the handes of Pharao.

And it chaunced in processe of tyme, that ☞ kynge of Egypte dyed, and the childzen of Israel syghed by the reason of laboure, and cryed. And their complaynt ascended vnto God from the laboure. MOses kepte the shepe of Jethro his father in lawe, preest of Madian, and he droue the flocke to the backsyde of the wylde mesle, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb. And the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, in a flame of fyre, oute of a bushe. And he perceaued that the bush burned with fyre, and consumed not. Then Moses sayde: I wyll go hence, & see this great syght, how it cometh that the bushe burneth not. And when the Lorde sawe that he came forth to see, he called hym out of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. He answered, I am at hand. And he sayde: come not hyther, but put thy shoes of thy fete: for the place whereon thou standest is ☞ holy ground. And he sayd: I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hyd his face, for he was afrayd to loke vpon God.

Then the Lorde sayde: I haue surely sene the trouble of my people which are in Egypt, and haue herde their crye, which they haue of their taskemasters. For I knowe their sorow and am come downe to deliuer them out of ☞ handes of the Egyptiās, and to bringe them out of that lande, vnto a good lande, and a large, and vnto a lande that floweth with ☞ mylke and hony: euen vnto the place of the Cananytes, Hethytes, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites, & of the Iebusites. Now therfore beholde, the complaynt of the childzen of Israel is come vnto me, and I haue also sene the oppression, wherwith the Egyptians oppresse them. But come, I wil sende the to Pharao, that thou mayste bringe my people the childzen of Israel out of Egypte. And Moses sayde vnto God: what am I to go vnto Pharao, and to bringe the childzen of Israel out of Egypte? And he sayde: I wil be with the. And this shalbe a token vnto the, that I haue sent the: after that thou hast brought the people oute of Egypte, ye shall serue God vpon this mountayne.

And God spake further vnto Moses: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the children of Israel: the Lorde God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob, hath sent me vnto you: this is my name for euer, and this is my memorial throwe out all generations. Go therfore and gather the elders of Israel togyther, and saye vnto them: The Lorde God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob, apeared vnto me, and sayde: I haue visited and sene both you and that whiche is done to you in Egypt. And after that, he will let you go. And ✠ I wyll get this people fauoure in the syghte of the Egyptians: so that when ye go, ye shal not go emptie: but euery wyfe shall borowe of her neyghbouresse, and of her that iourneth in her house, iewels of syluer and of gold and rayment. CAPI. IIII.

Moses answered and sayd: Se, they will not beleue me nor herke vnto my voyce but will saye, the Lorde hath not apeared vnto the. Then the Lorde sayd vnto him: What is that in thyne handt? and he sayde, a rodde. And he sayde cast it on the grounde, he dyd cast it, and it turned vnto a serpent. And Moses ranne awaye from it. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: put forth thyne hande and take it by the tayle. And he put forth his hand and caught it, and it became a rodde agayne in his hande, and this shalt thou worke saith the Lorde, that they maye beleue that the Lorde God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob hath apeared vnto the.

And the Lorde sayd further moze vnto him thrust thyne hande into thy bosome. And he thrust his hande into his bosome, and toke it out. And beholde, his hande was leperous euen as snowe. And he sayde: put thyne hande into thy bosome agayne. And he put his hand into his bosome agayne, and pluckt it oute of his bosome, and beholde, it was turned agayne as his other flesh. If they wil not beleue the, neyther heare the voyce of the first token: yet will they beleue the voyce of the seconde token. But yf they will not beleue the two signes, neyther herken vnto thy voyce, the take of the water of the ryuer, and poure it vpon the drye lande. And the water which thou takest out of the ryuer, shall turne to bloud vpō the drye lande.

And Moses sayde to the Lorde: oh my Lorde, ✠ I am not eloquente, neyther in tymes paste, nor yet sence thou haste spoken vnto thy seruaunte: but I haue an impediment of speche, and am slowe tongued. And the Lord sayd vnto him: who hath made mans mouth or who hath made the domme or the deaf, the seynge or the blynde? haue not I the Lorde? Go therfore, and ✠ I wil be with thy mouth and teache the what thou shalte saye. And he sayde: oh my Lorde, sende I praye the whom thou wilte. And the Lorde was angrye with Moses and sayde, I know Aaron thy brother the Leuite that he can speake. And moreouer beholde, he cometh to mete the, and when he seyth the, he will be glad in his hert. And thou shalt speake vnto him, and put the wordes in his mouth, and I wilbe with thy mouth and with his mouth, and wil teache you what ye shall do. And he shalbe thy spokesman vnto the people: he shall be thy mouth, and thou shalt be ✠ his God: and take this rodde in thy hād wherwith thou shalt do myracles.

And Moses went and returned to Iethro his father in lawe agayne, and sayd vnto him Let me go, I praye the, and returne to my brethren which are in Egypte, that I may se whether they be yet alyue. And Iethro sayde to Moses: go in peace. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses in Madian: returne agayne into Egypte ✠ for they are dede which went about to kyll the. And Moses toke his wyfe, and his sonnes, and sate them on an asse, and returned to Egypte, and toke the rodde of God in his hande.

And the Lorde sayde to Moses: whē thou arte come to Egypte agayne, se that thou do all the wonders before Pharao which I haue put in thy hande: but I will harden his herte so that he shall not let the people go. And tell Pharao, thus sayth the Lorde: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and therfore sayth vnto the: Let my sonne go, that he maye serue me. If thou wylt not let hym go: beholde, I will slay thyn eldest sonne.

And it chaunced by the waye in the ynne that the Lorde met hym, and wolde haue kylled hym. Then Zephora toke a stone and circumcysed her sonne, and fell at his fete, and sayde: a bloudy husbande arte thou vnto me. And he let him go. She sayde a bloudy husbande, because of the circumcision. Lorde vnto Aarō: go mete Moses in the wil-tolde Aaron all the wordes of the Lord, whiche he hadde ſent hym, and all the tokens whiche he had charged him with all. So wet Moſes and Aarō, and gathered all the elders of the childzen of Iſrael. And Aaron tolde all the wordes whiche the Lorde had ſpoken vnto Moſes, and dyd the myracles in the ſyghte of the people, and the people beleued. And when they herde that the Lorde had viſited

the childzen of Iſrael, and hadde loked vpon their tribulatiō, they bowed them ſelues and worſhypped.

¶ Moſes and Aaron go vnto Pharao. The people of Iſrael are oppreſſed more and more: and they crye out vpon Moſes and Aaron therfore.

A CAPI. V.

THen Moſes and Aaron went and tolde Pharao, thus ſayth the Lorde God of Iſrael. Let my people go, that they may kepe holye daye vnto me in the wyldernelle.
And Pharao anſwered: What ſchowe is the Lorde, that I ſhuld heare his voyce for to let Iſrael go? I know not the Lorde, neyther will let Iſrael go. And they ſayde: the God of the Hebrewes hath met with vs: let vs go (we praye the) thre dayes iourney into the deſert, that we maye ſacrifice vnto the Lorde oure
God: leſt he ſmyte vs eyther with peſtilence, or with ſwerde. Then ſayde the kynge of Egypt vnto them: Wherfore do ye, Moſes and Aaron, let the people frome their worke, get you vnto your labourc. And Pharao ſayd furthermore: beholde there is moche people in the lande, and ye make theym reſte, and let their worke ſtande.

B And Pharao commaunded the ſame daye the taſkemaſters oure the people, and the officers, ſayenge: Ie that ye geue the people no more ſtrawe to make bryche with, as ye dyd in tyme paſſed: let them go and gather ſtraw them ſelues, and the nombre of bryche, which they were wont to make in tyme paſſed, laye vnto their charges alſo, and dymynyſhe no-thinge therof. For they be ydell, and therfore crye, ſayenge: Let vs go and ſacrifice vnto our God. They muſt haue more worke layde vpon them, that they maye labourc therin, and then will they not turne theym ſelues to falſe wordes.

Then went the taſkemaſters of the people and the officers out, and tolde the people ſay-enge: Thus ſayth Pharao: I will geue you no more ſtrawe, but go youre ſelues, and gather you ſtrawe where ye can fynde it, yet ſhal none of your labour be mynyſhed. Then the people ſcatered abrode thorow out all the lād of Egypte, for to gather theym ſtubbyll, to be
C in ſtede of ſtrawe.

And the taſkemaſters haſted them forward, ſayenge: Fulfill your werke daye by daye, eue
as when ſtrawe was geuen you. And the officers of the childzen of Iſrael, which Pharaos taſkemaſters had ſet oure them, were beaten.
And it was ſayde vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfilled your taſke in makynge bryche, bothe yeſterdaye and to daye, as well as in tymes paſſe.

Then went the officers of the childzen of Iſ
rael, and complayned vnto Pharao, ſayeng: Wherfore deleſt thou thus with thy ſeruātes? there is no ſtrawe geuen vnto thy ſeruauntes, and yet they ſaye vnto vs: make bryche. And lo, thy ſeruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. And he anſwe-red: Yuell are ye, and therfore ye ſaye: let vs go and ſacrifice vnto the Lorde. Go therefore and worke, for there ſhall no ſtrawe be geuen you, and yet ſe that ye delyuer the hole tale of bryche.

D When the officers of the childzen of Iſrael ſawe them ſelues in ylwyde caſe (in that he ſayde, ye ſhall mynyſhe nothinge of your day-ly makynge of bryche) then they met Moſes and Aaron, ſtondinge in their waye, as they came out frome Pharao, and ſayd vnto them:
The Lorde loke vnto you & iudge, for ye haue made the ſauoure of vs ſtynke in the ſyghte of Pharao, and of his ſeruauntes, and haue put a ſwerde vnto their handes to ſlay vs.

Moſes returned vnto the Lorde, and ſayde:
Lorde, wherfore deleſt thou cruelly with this people: and wherfore haſt thou ſent me? For ſence I came to Pharao to ſpeke in thy name, he hatpe layed hāde with this folke, and yet thou haſt not delyuered thy people at all. The the Lorde ſayde vnto Moſes: Nowe ſhalte thou ſe what I will do vnto Pharao, for with a myghtye hande, ſhall he let them go, & with a myghtye hande, ſhall he dryue them oute of his lande.

CAPI. VI.

AND God ſayde vnto Moſes: I am the A Lorde, that apeared vnto Abraham, Iſhaac and Jacob, an almyghty God: but in my name a Jehouah, was I not knowen vnto them. Moreouer I made an appoynement with them, to geue theym the lande of Canaan: the londe of their pylgremage whein they were ſtrangers. And I haue alſo herde the grouynge of the childzen of Iſrael, becauſe the Egyptians kepe them in bondage, & haue remembred my promyſe.

Wherfore ſaye vnto the childzen of Iſrael I B am the Lorde, and will delyuer you frome the burdens of the Egyptians, and will ayd you out of their bondage, and will delyuer you in a ſtretched oute arme, and with great iudgementes. And I will take you for my people, & will be to you a God. And ye ſhall knowe that I

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng: So and bydd Pharao kynge of Egypte, that he let the children of Israel go out of his lande. And Moses spake before the Lorde, sayenge: beholde, the children of Israel herken not vnto me, howe then shall Pharao heare me: seynge that I haue ‡ vncircumcyded lyppes. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron and gaue them a charge vnto the children of Israel, and vnto Pharao, kynge of Egypt: to bringe the children of Israel, out of the lande of Egypte. These be the headdes of their fathers houses. The * children of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel, are these: Hanoh, Pallu, Hesron, Charmi, these be the houssholdres of Ruben. The children of Symeon are these: Semuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Saul the sonne of a Cananytysh wyfe: these are the kynreddes of Symeon. These ‖ are the names of the children of Leui in their generations: Gerson, Kahath, and Merari. And Leui lyued an hundred and. xxxvii. yere. The sonnes of Gerson: Libni and Semei in their kynreddes. The children of Kahath: Amram, Jesear, Hebron and Vsiel. And Kahath lyued an hundred and. xxxiii. yere. The children of Merari are these: Maheli and Muli: these are the kynreddes of Leui in their generations.

And Amram toke Jochebed his nece to wyfe which bare hym Aaron and Moses. And Amram lyued an hundred and. xxxvii. yere. The children of Jesear: Korah, Nepheg and Sychri. The children of Vsiel: Misael, Elsaphā and Sithri.

And Aaron toke Elisaba wughter of Aminadab and syster of Nahason, to wyfe: which bare hym Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Jthamar. The children of Korah: Assir, Elkana, and Abiasaph: these are the kynreddes of the Korahites. And Eleazar Aarons sonne, toke hym one of the wughters of Putuel to wyfe, whiche bare hym Phinehes: these be the principall fathers of the Leuites in their kynreddes.

These are that Aaron and Moses to whom the Lorde sayde: carye the children of Israel out of the lande of Egypt, with their armyes. These are the same Moses and Aaron which spake to Pharao kynge of Egypte, that they myght bringe the children of Israel out of Egypte. And in the daye when the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the lande of Egypte, he spake vnto hym, sayenge, I am the Lorde, se that thou speake vnto Pharao the kynge of Egipt all that I saye vnto the. And Moses answered before the Lorde: I am of vncircumcysed lyppes, howe shall Pharao then geue me audience?

¶ Tokens. The rodde of Moses is tourned to a serpent. The ryuerers be the same. The waters are tourned into bloude.

CAPI. VII.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: beholde, I haue made the, Pharaos God and Aaron thy brother shal be thy prophete. Thou shalt speke all that I commaunde the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake vnto Pharao: that he sende the children of Israel out of his lande. But I wyll harden Pharaos herte, that I maye multiplye my myracles and my wonders in the lande of Egypte. And yet Pharao shal not herken vnto you, that I may let myne hande vpon Egypte, and bringe out myne armyes, euen my people the children of Israel out of the lande of Egypte, with great iudgementes. And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lorde, when I haue stretched forth my hande vpon Egypte, & haue brought out the children of Israel from them.

Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde commaunded them. And Moses was. lxxx. yere olde, and Aaron. lxxxiij. when they spake vnto Pharao. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayenge: When Pharao speaketh vnto you, and sayth: Shewe a wonder, then shalte thou saye vnto Aaron: Take the rodde, and caste it before Pharao, and it shall turne to a serpente. Then wente Moses and Aaron to Pharao, and dyd as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron cast forth his rodde before Pharao and his seruauntes, and it turned to a serpente. Then Pharao called for the wyse men and * enchaunters of Egypte: and they dyd in lyke maner with their sorcerye. And they caste wyne euery man his rodde, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodde ate vp their roddes: and yet for all this Pharaos herte was hardened, so that he herkened not vnto them, accordyng as the Lord had sayde.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto Moses. Pharaos herte is hardened, and he refuseth to let the people go. Get the vnto Pharao in the morynge, wt he wyll come vnto the water, and stonde thou vpon the ryuers brynke, against he come, and the rodde whiche turned to a serpent take in thyne hande. And saye vnto hym: the Lorde God of the Hebrues hath sent me vnto the, sayenge: let my people go, that they maye serue me in the wyldernesse: but hetherto thou woldeste not heare. Wherfore thus sayth the Lord: herebye thou shalt knowe that I am the Lorde. Beholde, I will smyte with the staffe that is in myne hande, the waters that are in the ryuer, and they shall turne to bloude. And the fyshe that is in the ryuer shall dye, and the ryuer shall stynke, so that it shall greue the Egyptians to drynke of the water of the ryuer.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say vnto Aaron: take thy staffe & stretche out thyne hande ouer the waters of Egypte, ouer their streames, ryuers, pondes, & all pooles of water, that they maye be bloude, and that there may be bloude in all the lande of Egypt: both in vessels of wodde and also of stone.

And Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde commaunded. And he lyfte vp the staffe, and smote the waters that were in the ryuer, in the syght of Pharao, and in the syght of his seruauntes, and al the water that was in the ryuer, turned into bloude. And the fysh that was in the ryuer dyed, * and the ryuer stanke: so that the Egyptians couldo not drynke of the water water of the ryuer. And there was bloud thorow out all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters of Egypte, dyd lykewyse with their enchauntements, so that Pharaos herte was hardened, and dyd not regarde the, as the Lorde had sayde. And Pharao turned hym selfe, & went into his houlse, and set not his herte there vnto. And the Egyptians dygged rounde about the ryuer for water to drynke, for they coulde not drynke of the water of the ryuer. And it contynued a weke, after that the Lorde hadde smyten the ryuer.

¶ The plage of frogges. Moses prayeth for Pharao. The plage of lyce.

CAPI. VIII.

THe Lorde spake vnto Moses: Go vnto Pharao, and tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde: * Let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, beholde, I wyll smyte all thy lande with frogges. And the ryuer shall scrale with frogges, and they shal come vp, & go into thyne houlse and into thy chaumbre, where thou slepeste, and vppon thy bedde, and into the houlses of thy seruauntes, and vpon thy people, and into thyne ouens, and vpon thy vytayles, whyche thou haste in store. And the frogges shall come vppon the, and on thy people, and vpon all thy seruauntes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron: Stretche forthe thyne hande with thy rodde ouer the streames, ryuers and ponds. And brynge vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the water of Egypte: and the frogges came vp, and couered the lande of Egypte. And the sorcerers dyd lykewyse with their sorcery, and the frogges came vp, vppon the lande of Egypte.

Then Pharao called for Moses, and Aaron, and sayde: Praye ye vnto the Lorde that he maye take awaye the frogges from me and frome my people, and I wyll let the people go, that they may do sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayde vnto Pharao: Appointe thou the tyme vnto me, when I shall praye for the, and thy seruauntes, and thy people, to dryue awaye the frogges frome the, and thy houlse, so that they shall remayne but in the ryuer onely. And he sayde to morowe. And he sayd: euen as thou hast sayd that thou mayst knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lord our God. And the frogges shall departe from the, and frome thyne houlses, and frome thy seruauntes, and frome thy people, and shall remayne in the ryuer onely.

And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharao, and Moses cryed vnto the Lorde vppon the apoyntment of frogges, whyche he hadde made vnto Pharao. And the Lorde dyd accordynge to the sayenge of Moses. And the frogges dyed out of the houlses, courtes & fyelds. And they gathered them together vpō heapes so that the lande stanke of them.

But when Pharao sawe that he had rest ryuen hym, he hardened his herte, and herkened not vnto them, as the Lorde hadde sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron, stretche out thy rodde, and smyte the dust of the lande, that it maye turne to lyce / in all the lande of Egypte. And they dyd so. And Aaron stretched oute his hande, with his rodde, and smote the dust of the earth, and it turned to lyce, both in man and beast, so that all the dust of the lande, turned to lyce, throwe out all the lande of Egypte. The thyrde plage.

And the enchaunters assayde lykwyse with their enchauntements, to bryngе forth lyce, but they coulde not. And the lyce were bothe vpon man and beast. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharao: It is the fynger of God. Neuertheles Pharaos herte was hardened, and he regarded them not, as the Lorde had sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ryse vp early in the morneng, and stande before Pharao, for he will come vnto the water: and say vnto hym, Thus sayth the Lorde: let my people go, that they may serue me. If thou wylt not let my people go, beholde, I will sende all manor flyes, bothe vpon the, thy seruauntes, and thy people, and into thy houlses. And the houlses of the Egyptians shalbe full of flyes, and the grounde wheron they are. But I will separate the same daye, the lande of Gosen where my people are, so that there shall no flyes be there: that thou mayste knowe, that I am the Lorde vppon the earth. And I will put a dyuyde, betweene my people and thyne. And euen to morow shal this miracle be wrat. The fourth plage.

And the Lorde dyd accordyngly: and there came noysome flyes into the houlse of Pharao and into his seruauntes houses, and into all the lande of Egypte: so that the lande was marred with flyes. Then Pharao sent for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go and do sacrifice vnto your God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we shulde so offre vnto the Lorde our God, that whyche is an abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whyche is an abomination vnto the Egyptians before their eyes, & shall they not stone vs? we will therfore go thre dayes iourney, into the wyldernesse, and sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God as he hath commaunded vs.

And Pharao sayde: I will let you go, that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lorde your God in the wyldernes: onely go not farre away, and se that ye praye for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I wyll goo oute frome the, and praye vnto the Lorde, and the flyes shall departe frome Pharao, and frome his seruauntes and frome his people, to morowe. But let Pharao frome henceforth deceaue no more, that he will not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And Moses went oute frome Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde dyd as Moses had sayd, and toke away the flyes frome Pharao, and from his seruauntes, and frome his people, so that there remayned not one. But for all that, Pharao hardened his herte euen then also, and wolde not let the people go.

¶ The vi. ca. of boyles. The plage of botches and sores. The horrible haile, thunder and lightenyng.

CAPI. IX.

A Nd the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, go to Pharao and tell him, thus sayth the Lorde God of the Ebrues: let my people go that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, but wylt holde them styl: beholde, the hande of the Lorde shalbe vpon thy cattell which thou hast in the felde, vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen, & shepe, with a mighty great morayne. But the Lorde shall make a diuision betweene the beastes of the Israelites, and the beastes of the Egyptians: so that there shal nothinge dye of all that belonge to the children of Israel. And the Lorde appointed a tyme, sayenge: to morow the Lorde shal do this thinge in the lande.

The fifth plage.

And the Lorde dyd the thynge on the morowe, and all the cattell of Egypte dyed: but of the cattell of the children of Israel dyed not ony. And Pharao sent to wete: but there was not one of the cattell of the Israelites dead. Notwithstandinge the hert of Pharao hardened, and he wolde not let the people go.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: take your handes ful of asshes out of the fornace, and let Moses sprinkel it vp into the ayre in the sight of Pharao, and it shal turne to dust in all the lande of Egypte, and shall make swellynge sores with blaynes, bothe man and beast, in all the lande of Egypte. And they tooke asshes oute of the fornace, and stode before Pharao, and Moses sprinkled it vp into the ayre: And there brake out sores with blaynes, bothe in man and beast, so that the sorcerers couldo not stonde before Moses, for there were botches vpon the enchaunters and vpon all the Egyptians. But the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharao, that he herkened not vnto them, as the Lorde had shewed Moses.

The sixth plage.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ryse vp early in the morowyng, and stonde before Pharao, and tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde God of the Ebrues: Let my people go, that they maye serue me, or els I will at this tyme send all my plages vpon thyne herte, and vpon thy seruauntes, & on thy people, that thou mayst knowe that there is none lyke me in all the erthe. For now will I stretche out my hande, and will smyte the, and thy people with pestilence: so that thou shalt perysh from the erth. Yet in very dede & for this cause haue I stered the vp, for to shewe my power in the ‡ and to declare my name thorow out all the worlde.

* Rom. ix. c

If it be so that thou stoppest my people that thou wilt not let them go: beholde, to morow this tyme I will sende downe a mighty great hayle: euen suche one as was not in Egypte sythens it was founded, vnto this tyme. Sende therfore and let home thy beastes, and all that thou hast in the felde. For vpon all the men & beastes whiche are founde in the felde, & not brought home, shall the hayle fall, and they shall dye. And as many as feared the worde of the Lorde amonge the seruauntes of Pharao made their seruauntes and their beastes flee to house: and they that regarded not the worde of the Lorde, lefte their seruauntes and their beastes in the felde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: stretche forth thyne hande vnto heaue, that there may be hayle in all the lande of Egypte: vpon man and beast, and vpon all the herbes of the felde of Egypte. And Moses stretched oute his rod vnto heauen, and the Lorde thondered & hayled, so that the fyre ran along vpon the ground. & And the Lorde so hayled in the lande of Egypte, that there was hayle and fyre mengled with the hayle, so grieuous, that there was none suche in all the lande of Egypte, sythens people inhabyted it. And the hayle smote in the lande of Egypte, all that was in the felde bothe man and beast. And the hayle smote all the herbes of the felde, and brake all the trees of the felde: only in the lande of Gosan where the children of Israel were, was there no hayle. And Pharao sent and called for Moses & Aaron, and sayde vnto them: I haue nowe synned, the Lorde is righteous, and I and my people are wicked. Praye ye vnto the Lorde, that the thonder of God and hayle may ceasse and I will let you go, and ye shall tary no longer. And Moses sayde vnto hym: assone as I am out of the cytie, I will spreade abroade my handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder shal ceasse, neyther shall there be any more hayle: that thou mayst knowe howe that the earthe is the Lordes. But I knowe that thou and thy seruauntes yet feare not the Lorde God. The flare and the barly were smyten, for the barly was shot vp, and the flare was boulled: but the whete and the rye were not smyte, for they were late sowne.

* Plalm lxxvii. and cv.

And Moses went out of the cytie from Pharao, and spreade abroode his handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder and hayle ceased, neyther rayned it any more vpon the earth: when Pharao sawe that the rayne and the hayle & thunder were ceased, he synned agayne & hardened his herte: both he and his seruauntes. So was the herte of Pharao hardened, that he wolde not let the children of Israel go, as the Lorde had sayde to Moses.

¶ The herte of Pharao is hardened of God. The grashoppers. The thicke darkenes.

CAPI. X.

THe Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go vnto Pharao: neuertheles * I haue hardened his herte, and the hertes of his seruauntes, that I myght shewe these my signes amonge them, and that thou tell in the audience of thy sonne, and of thy sonnes sonne, the baliaunt actes whiche I haue wrought in Egypt, and the myracles whiche I haue shewed amonge them: that ye maye knowe that I am the Lorde. Then Moses and Aaron wente vnto Pharao, and sayde vnto hym: Thus sayth the Lorde God of the Hebrewes: howe longe shall it be, or thou wylte submytte thy selfe vnto me? * Let my people go that they maye serue me. If thou wilte not let my people goo: beholde, to morowe wyll I bringe grashoppers into thy lande, and they shall couer

And Pharaos seruauntes sayde vnto hym: Howe longe shall we be thus cupll entreated? Let the men go that they may serue the Lorde their god: wylt thou not yet knowe that Egypte is destroyed? And then Moses & Aaron were brought agayne vnto Pharao, & he sayd vnto them: Go and serue the lorde your god, but who are they that shall go? And Moses answered, we wyll go with yong and old / yea and with our sonnes and w our doughters / & with our shepe and oxen must we go. For we must holde a feall vnto the Lorde.

And he sayd vnto them: shall it be so? The Lorde be with you / holde I let you go / and your children also? Take hede, for ye haue some myschefe in hande. Naye not so, but go ye that are men and serue the Lorde, for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of Pharaos presence.

The eyght plage.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Stretche out thyne hande ouer the lande of Egypte for grashoppers, that they come vpon the lande of Egypt and eate all the herbes of the lande / and all that the hayle lefte vntouched. And Moses stretched forth his rod ouer the lande of Egypte, and the Lorde broughte an eest wynde vpon the lande, all that daye and all nyght. And in the mourninge the eest wynde brought the grashoppers / and the grashoppers went vp ouer all the land of Egypt and lyghted in all quarters of Egypte very greuously, so that before them were there no suche grashoppers, neither after them shall be. And they couered all the erthe / so that the lande was darke therwith. And they ate all the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees which the hayle had left, so that there was no grene thyng lefte in the trees and herbes of the felde throughe all the lande of Egypte.

Then Pharao called for Moses and Aaron in haste and sayd: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde your God, and agaynst you. For gyue me yet my fawte onely this ones, and pray vnto the Lorde your God, that he may take away from me this deth only. And he went out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lord, and the Lorde turned the wynde in to a myghtye stronge weste wynde / and it toke awaye the grashoppers and cast them in to the reed see: so that there was not one grashopper in al the coostes of Egypte. But the Lorde * hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Stretche out thy hand vnto heuen / & let there be darknesse vpon the lande of Egypt, euen that they may grope the darknes. And Moses stretched forthe his hande vnto heuen, and there was a thycke darkenes vpon the lande of Egypt. iii. dayes long, so that no man sawe an other neither rose vp from the place where he was by the space of iii. dayes / but all the children of Israel had lyght where they dwelled. The nynth plage. Palpable darkenes.

Then Pharao called for Moses and sayde: Go and serue the Lorde, onely let your shepe and your oxen abyde, but let your chyldren go with you. And Moses answered: thou muste gyue vs also offrynges and buent offrynges for to sacrifyce vnto the Lorde our God: our cattell therfore shall go with vs / and there shall not one hoke be lefte behynde, for therof must we take to serue the Lorde our God. Moreouer we can not know wherwith we shal serue the Lorde, tyll we come thyther. I godly answer. Exo.

But the Lorde hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wolde not let them go. And Pharao sayd vnto him: get the from me and take hede to thy selfe that thou se my face no more. For when so euer thou commest in my syght / thou shalt dye. And Moses sayd: Let it be as thou hast sayd: I wyll se thy face no more.

¶ The Lorde commaundeth to spoyle the Egyptians. The deth of all the first begotten in Egypt.

CAPI. XI.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: yet wyll I bringe one plage more vpon Pharao and vpon Egypte / and after that he wyll let you go hence. And when he letteth you go, he shal vtterly dryue you hence. But byd the people that euery man borowe of his frende, and euery woman of her neyghbour, iewels of syluer and iewels of golde. And the Lorde gaue the people fauour in the syght of the Egyptians. And Moses sayde: thus sayeth the Lorde * About mydnyght wyll I go out amonge the Egyptians / and all the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte shall dye: euen from the fyrst borne of Pharao, that sytteth on his seate, vnto the fyrst borne of the mayde seruaunte that is in the mylle / and all the fyrst borne of the catell. And there shall be a greate crye throwe out the lande of Egypte: so that there was neuer none lyke, nor shall be. And amonge all the chyldren of Israel shall not a dogge moue his tonge / nor yet man or beest: that ye maye knowe howe the Lorde putteth a differrence betweene the Egyptians and Israel. and these thy seruauntes shall come downe vnto me, and fall before me, and saye: get the out and all the people that are vnder the, and then wyl I departe. And he went out from Pharao in a great anger.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Pharao shall not regarde you, that many wonders may be wrought in the lande of Egypte. And Moses and Aaron dyd all these wonders before Pharao. But the Lorde hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande.

AND the Lorde spake to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying: This moneth shall be your chefe moneth, euē of the first moneth of the yere shall it be vnto you. Speake ye vnto all the congregation of Israel, saynge: that they take the tenth daye of this moneth to euery housholde a shepe. Yf the housholde be to fewe to, a shepe, then let him and his neighboure that is next vnto his house take accordynge to the nombre of the soules, and counte vnto a shepe accordynge to euery mans eatynge. A shepe without spot, and a male of one yere olde shall it be, and out of the flocke of the lambes and the gootes shall ye take it.

And ye shall kepe him in tyll the xiiij. daye of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shal kyll him about euen. And they shall take of the bloode, and stryke it on the two syde postes, & on the vpper dore post of the houses, wherin they eate him. And they shall eate the flesshe the same nyght, rost with fyre and with vnleuended breed, & with soure herbes they shall eate it. See that ye eate not therof raw, nor sodden in water, but rosted with fyre: both the heed, fete, and purtenance together. And se that ye let nothynge of it remayne vnto the morynge: yf ought remayne burne it with fyre.

Of this maner shall ye eate it: with your loynes gyrded, and shoes on your fete, & your staues in your handes. And ye shall eate it in haste, for it is the Lordes passeouer. For I wyll go about in the lande of Egypte this same nyght, and wyl smyte all the first borne in the lande of Egypte, bothe of man and beest, and vpon all the Goddes of Egypte wyll I the Lorde do execution. And the bloode shall be vnto you a token vpon the houses wherin ye are, for when I se the bloode, I wyll passe ouer you, and the plage shall not be vpon you to destroye you, when I smyte the lande of Egypte.

And this daye shall be vnto you a remembraunce, & ye shall kepe it holy vnto the Lorde euen throughout your generacions after you shall ye kepe it holy daye, that it be a custome for euer. Seuen dayes shal ye eate vnleuended breed, so that euen the first daye ye shall put awaye leuen out of your houses. For who so euer eateth leuended breed from the first daye vntyll the seuenth day, that soule shal be plucked out from Israel. The first daye shall be a holy feast vnto you, and the .vij. also. There shall be no maner of worke doone in them, saue aboute that onely which euery man must eate, that onely may ye do. And se that ye kepe you to vnleuended breed. For vpon that same daye I wyll bringe your armyes out of the lande of Egypte, therfore ye shall obserue this daye, and all your children after you, that it be a custome for euer. The first moneth and the xxij. daye of the moneth at euen, ye shall eate swete breed vnto the xxj. daye of the moneth at euen agayne. Seuen dayes se that there be no leuended breed founde in youre houses. For who so euer eateth leuended breed, that soule shall be rooted out from the multitude of Israel: whether he be a straunger, or borne in the lande. Therfore se that ye eate not leuended breed, but in all youre habitacyons eate swete breed.

And Moses called for the elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Chose out and take to euery housholde a shepe, and kyll passeouer. And take a bunche of hyssope, and dyp it in the bloode that is in the basen, and stryke it vpon the vpper post, and on the two syde postes, and se that none of you go out at the doore of his house vntyll the morynge. For the Lorde wyll go about & smyte Egypte. And when he seeth the blood vpon the vpper dore post, and on the two syde postes, he wyll passe ouer the doore, and wyll not suffre the destroyer to come in to your house to plage you. Therfore se that thou obserue this thynge, that it be an ordinaunce to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And when ye be come in to the lande which the Lorde wyll gyue you according as he hath promysed, se that ye kepe this seruyce. And when your children axe you what maner of seruyce is this ye do? Ye shall say, it is the sacrifice of the Lordes passeouer, which passed ouer the houses of the children of Israel in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians, and saued our houses. Then the people bowed them selues & worshipped. And the children of Israel went and dyd as the Lorde had commaunded Moses and Aaron.

And at mydnyght the Lorde smote all the first borne in the lande of Egypt, from the first borne of Pharao that sat on his seat, vnto the first borne of the captyue that was in prysō, and all the first borne of catell. Then Pharao arose the same nyght and all the seruauntes and all the Egyptians: & there was a great crynge throughout Egypte, for there was no house where there was not one deed.

And he called vnto Moses and Aaron by nyght saynge: Aryse vp, and get you hence from my people, bothe ye and also the children of Israel, and go and serue the Lorde as ye haue sayde. And take your shepe and your oxen with you as ye haue sayde, and departe and & blesse me also. And the Egyptians were strayte vpon the people, and made haste to send them out of the lande: for they sayde: we be all dead men.

And the people toke the dough before it was soured which they had in store, and bounde it in clothes, and put it vpon their shoulders. And the children of Israel dyd accordynge to the sayinge of Moses: and they borowed of the Egyptians iewels of syluer, and iewels of golde, and rayment. And the Lorde gat the people fauour in the syght of the Egyptians, and so they borowed and robbed the Egyptians.

thoulande men of foote, beside chyldren. And moche common people went also with them, and wepe and bren, and catel exceding moche. And they baked swete cakes of the dough whiche they brought out of Egypte / for it was not lowed, because they were thrust out of Egypt and could not tary, neyther had they prepared any other prouision of meate.

And the tyme of the dwellynge of the chyldren of Israel whiche they dwelled in Egypte was .iiij. hundred and .xxx. yere. And when the iiij. hundred and .xxx. yeres was expired, euen the selfe same daye departed all the hoostes of the Lorde out of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyght to be obserued to the Lorde / because he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyght of the Lorde, to be kepte of all the chyldren of Israel and of their generacyons after them.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses & Aaron: this is the maner of Passeouer: there shall no straunger eate therof / but all the seruauntes that are bought for money shall ye circumcise, and then let them eate therof. A straunger and a hyred seruaunt shall not eate therof. In one house shal it be eaten. Ye shal cary none of the fleshe out at the doores: moreouer * se that ye breke not a bone therof. All the multytude of the chyldren of Israel shall obserue it.

If a straunger dwell amonge you, and wyll holde Passeouer vnto the Lorde, let hym circumcyse all that be males, & then let him come and obserue it, & be taken as one that is borne in the land. For vncircumcised person shal eate therof. One maner of lawe shall be vnto them that are borne in the lande / & vnto the straungers that dwell among you. And all the chyldren of Israel did as the Lorde commaunded Moses and Aaron. And euen the selfe same day dyd the Lorde bring the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte with their armyes.

¶ The fyrste begotten must be sanctified vnto the Lorde. The memoryall of their deliuerance, why they were caryed throughe the wildernes. The bones of Joseph. The pyller of the clowde.

CAPI. XIII.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses saying * Sanctyfye vnto me all the fyrst borne that open all maner matrices amonge the chyldren of Israel as well of men as of beastes: for they are myne. And Moses sayd vnto the people, thinke on this day / which ye came out of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage: for with a myghty hande the Lorde brought you out from thence. Se therfore that ye eate no leuended breed. This day come ye out of Egypt, in the moneth of * Abib.

When the Lord had brought the in to the lande of the Chananytes, Hethytes, Amorites, Heuytes and Jebusytes, whiche he sware vnto thy fathers that he wolde geue the a lande wherin mylke and hony floweth, then se that thou kepe this ceremonye in this same moneth. Seuen dayes thou shalte eate swete breed: * and the .viij. daye shall be solemne vnto the Lorde. Therfore thou shalte eate swete breed seuen dayes, and se that there be no leuended breed sene no; yet lyken among you in all your quarters.

God wyll the cause of ceremonie be declared at tyme of the celebracion therof.

And thou shalt shew thy sonne at that tyme saying: this is done, because of that which the Lorde dyd vnto me when I came out of Egypte. Therfore it shall be a synge vnto the vpon thyne hande, and as a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe may be in thy mouthe. For * with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the out of Egypte, se thou kepe therfore this ordynaunce in his season from yere to yere. Moreouer when the Lorde hath brought the in to the lande of the Chananytes, as he hath swone vnto the and to thy fathers, and hath geuen it the, then thou shalt appoynt vnto the Lorde all that openeth the matryce, all the fyrst borne amonge the beastes whiche thou hast / yf they be males. And all the fyrst borne of the asses, thou shalt redeme with a shepe: yf thou redeme hym not, then breake his necke. But all the fyrst borne amonge thy chyldren shalt thou bye out.

And when thy sonne asketh the in tyme to come sayinge: what is this? thou shalte saye vnto hym: with a myghty hande the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharao was lothe to let vs go / the Lord slewe all the fyrst borne in the land of Egypt: as well the fyrst borne of men as of beastes. And therfore I sacrifice vnto the Lorde all the males that open the matrice, but all the fyrst borne of my children I must redeme. And thus shall be as a token in thyne hande, and as a thyng hanged vp betwene thyne eyes because the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte with a myghty hande.

When Pharao had let the people goo, God caryed them not thorow the land of the Philistynes, though it were a nye waye, thynkynge that the people myghte happely repent when they se warre, and so turne agayne to Egypt: therfore god led them about thorow * wyldernesse that bordereth on the red see. The children of Israel went harnessed out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses toke the bones of Joseph with hym: for he made the children of Israel swere saying * God wyl surely visit you, take my bones therfore away hence with you. And they toke their iourney from Sucoth, and pitched their tentes in Etham in the edge of the wyldernes. * And the Lorde went before them by day in a pyller of a cloude to leade them the waye: and by nyght in a pyller of fyre to geue them lyght, that they myght go bothe by day and nyght. * And the pyller of the cloude neuer departed by day, nor the pyller of fyre by nyght out of the peoples syght.

¶ Pharao bent to hardened and followeth the Israelites with all his hoost and is drowned. The Israelites grudge. They go through the red see.

CAPI. XIIII.

THen the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: bydde the chyldren of Israel that they turne and pitche their tentes before the entryng of Hyroth betwene Migdol and the see toward Baalsephon: euen before that shall ye pytche vpon the see. For Pharao wyll saye of the chyldren of Israel: they are inuegled in the lande the wyldernes hath shut them in. And I wyll harden his herte, that he shall folowe after them, to the intent I may get me honour vpon Pharao and vpon all his hoost, that the Egyptians maye knowe that I am the Lorde. And they dyd euen so.

B And when it was tolde the kynge of Egypt that the people fled, then Pharaos herte and all his seruauntes turned agaynste the people and sayde: Why haue we this done, that we haue let Israel go out of our seruyce? And he made redye his charettes and tooke his people with hym, & tooke vi. hundred chosen charettes and all the charettes of Egypte, and captaynes vpon all his people. For the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharao kynge of Egypte, that he folowed after the chyldren of Israel, whiche neuertheles went out thorow an hye hande. And the Egyptians folowed after them, and ouertoke them where they pytched by the see with all the horses and charettes of Pharao and with his horsemen and his hoost: fast by the entrynge of Ziroth before Baal Zephon. And Pharao drewe nye: and when the chyldren of Israel lyfte vp their eyes, and sawe that the Egyptians folowed after them, they were sore afrayde, & cryed out vnto the Lorde.

C Then sayde they vnto Moses. Were there no graues for vs in Egypte, but thou muste bringe vs awaye to dye in the wyldernesse? wherfore hast thou serued vs thus, to carye vs out of Egypt? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypte sayinge, let vs be in reste and serue the Egyptians? For it hadde ben better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians, then to dye in the wyldernesse. And Moses sayde to the people: feare not but stande styll and beholde how the Lorde shall saue you this day: For the Egyptians whome ye se this daye, ye shall neuer se more for euer. The Lorde shall fyght for you, and ye shall be styll.

D The Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Wherfore cryest thou vnto me? speke to the chyldren of Israel to go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretche forthe thy hande ouer the see and diuyde it a sonder, that the chyldren of Israel may go on dye ground, thorow the myddest therof. And beholde, I wyll harden the hertes of the Egyptians that they may folow you. And I wyll get me honour vpon Pharao and vpon all his hoost vpon his charettes, and vpon his horsemen. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lorde when I haue gotten me honoure vpon Pharao, vpon his charettes and vpon his horsemen.

E And the aungell of god whiche went before the hoost of Israel, remoued and went behynd them. And the clouden pyller that was before them, remoued and stode behynde them, & went betwene the hoost of the Egyptians & the hoost of Israel. It was a darke cloude, & gaue lyght by nyght: so that all the nyght longe the one couldē not come at the other.

* When Moses stretched forth his hande ouer the see, the Lorde caryed awaye the see with a strong east wynd that blewe all night, and made the see drye lande, and the water deuyded it selfe. And the chyldren of Israel went in thorow the myddest of the see vpon the dry ground. And the water was a wall vnto them bothe on their ryght hande and on their lefte.

F And the Egyptians folowed, and went in after them to the myddest of the see, with all Pharaos horses and his charettes & his horsemen. And in the morynge watche the Lorde loked vnto the hoost of the Egyptians out of the fiery and cloudye pyller, & troubled their hoost, and smote of their charet wheles, and caste them downe to the grounde. Then sayd the Egyptians: Let vs flee from Israel, for the Lorde fyghteth for them agaynst vs. Then sayd the Lorde vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande ouer the see, that the water may come agayn vpon the Egyptians, vpon their charettes and horsemen.

G Then stretched forth Moses his hande ouer the see, and it came agayne to his course early in the morynge, and the Egyptians fledde agaynst it. Thus the Lord ouerthrew the Egyptians in the myddest of the see, and the water returned and couered the charets & the horsemen: so that of all the hoost of Pharao that came into the see after them, remayned not one. But the chyldren of Israel went vpon dry land in the myddest of the see, and the water was a wall to them, both on the ryght hand of them and also on the lefte.

The late plagis.

* Thus the Lorde deliuered Israel the selfesame daye out of the hande of the Egyptians, and Israel sawe the Egyptians dead vpon the see syde. And when Israel sawe that myghty hande, whiche the Lorde had shewed vpon the Egyptians * they feared the Lorde, and beleued bothe the Lorde, and also his seruaunt Moses.

CAPI. XV.

A Then Moses and the chyldren of Israel sange this songe vnto the Lorde, & sayd. Let vs synge vnto the Lorde, for he is become glorious, the horse and hym that rode vpon hym, hathe he ouerthrowne in the see.

A a songe vnto Lorde.

* The Lorde is my strength and my song, and is become my saluation.

* Psal. 117. Esaie 12.

He is my God and I wyll glorifye hym, he is my fathers God, and I wyll lyft hym vp on hyghe. The Lorde is a man of warre almyghtye is his name: Pharaos charettes and his hoost hath he cast in to the see. His tolye captaynes are drowned in the red see, the depe waters haue couered them: they sonke to the botome as a stone. Thyne hande Lorde is glorious in power, thyne hande Lorde hath all to dasshed the enemye. And with thy great glorye thou haste destroyed thyne aduersaryes, thou sentest forthe thy wrathe, and it consumed them as stobell. With the breth of thyne anger the water gathered together and the floodes stode styll as a roche, and the depe waters congeled together in the myddest of the see.

B The enemye sayde: I wyll folowe and ouertake them, and wyll deuyde the spoyle:

I wyll

I wyll satisfye my luste vpon them: I wyll drawe my swerde, and myne hande shall destroye them.

Thou blewest with thy breth and the see couered them, and they sanke as lead in the mighty waters. Who is lyke vnto the, o Lorde, amonge goddes: who is lyke the, so glorious in holynes, fearfull, laudable, and that shewest wonders? Thou stretchedest out thy ryght hande, & the erth swalowed them. And thou carydest with thy mercye this people whiche thou delyueredest, and broughtest them with thy strength vnto thy holy habitacion. The nacions herde, and were afrayde, panges came vpon the Philistynes. Then the dukes of the Edomytes were amased, and tremblynge came vpon the mygheyest of the Moabytes, and all the inhabiters of Canaan wared fayntherted. Let feare and dread fall vpon them thorow the ❡ greatnesse of thyne arme, and let them be as styll as a stone: whyle thy people passe thorowe, o Lorde, whyle the people passe thorowe, whiche thou hast gotten. Bringe them in, and plant them in the mountaynes of thyne enheritaunce, the place Lorde whyche thou hast made for to dwell in, the sanctuarye Lorde, whyche thy handes haue prepared.

The Lorde reygne euer and alwaye. For Pharao went in on horsebacke with his charettes and horsemen in to the see, & the Lorde broughte the waters of the see vpon them. And the chyldren of Israel went on drye lande thorow the middest of the see. And Maria Jam a prophetesse the sister of Aaron, toke a tymbrel in her hand, & all the wome came out after her with tymbrels in a daunce. And Maria Jam sang before them: Sing ye vnto the Lorde, for he is become glorious in deede: the horse and his ryder hathe he ouerthrowne in the see. Moses brought Israel from the red see, and they went out in to the wyldernesse of Sur. And they went thre dayes longe in the wyldernesse, and could fynd no water. At last they came to Mara: but could not drinke of the waters for bytternesse, for they were bitter, therfore the name of the place was called Mara. Then ✠ people murmured against Moses, sayinge: ✠ what shal we drinke? And Moses cried vnto the Lorde, and he shewed hym a tree which he caste in to the waters, and they wared swete.

There he made vnto them an ordinaunce and a lawe, and there he proued them, and sayd: If ye wyll herken to the voyce of the Lorde your God, and do that which is ryght in his syght, and gyue eare to his commaundementes, and kepe all his ordinaunces: I wyll put none of these diseases vpon you, whiche I broughte vpon the Egyptians, for I am the Lorde God your surgeon.

¶ The Israelites come into the deserte of Sin. It rayneth quayles and Manna. They grudge.

CAP. XVI.

AND ✠ they came to Elim, where were xij. welles of water, and lxx. date trees, & they pyched there by the water. And fynd they toke their iourney from Elim, and al the hole companye of the chyldren of Israel came to the wyldernesse of Syn, whiche lyeth betwene Elim and Synai, the xv. daye of the ij. moneth after that they were come out of the lande of Egypte. And the hole multytude of the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynste Moses and Aaron in the wyldernesse / and sayd vnto them: woulde God we had dyed by the hande of the Lorde in the lande of Egypte, when we sate by the fleshepottes, & ate breed our belyes full / for ye haue broughte vs out in to this wyldernesse to kyll this hole multytude for honger.

Then sayd the Lorde to Moses: beholde, I wyl rayne breed from heuen downe to you, and let the people go out, and gather daye by day that I may proue them whether they wyl walke in my lawe or no. The vj. day let them prepare that whiche they wyll bringe in, and let it be twyse as moche as they gather dayly. And Moses and Aaron sayde vnto all the chyldren of Israel: at euen ye shall know that it is the Lorde, whiche broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, and in the mornynge ye shall se ❡ the glorye of the Lorde: because he hathe herde your grudgynges agaynste the Lorde: for what are we that ye wolde murmure agaynste vs. And moreouer Moses sayd. At euen the Lorde wyll gyue you flesshe to eate, and in the mornynge breed ynoughe, because the Lorde hathe herde your murmure which ye murmur agaynst hym: for what are we? your murmuringe is not agaynst vs, but agaynst the Lorde.

And Moses sayd to Aaron: Say to all the company of the chyldren of Israel, come forth before the Lorde, for he hath herde your grudgynges. And whyle Aaron spake vnto the hole multytude of the chyldren of Israel, they loked towarde the wyldernesse: and beholde the glory of the Lorde appeared in a cloude. And the Lorde spake to Moses sayinge: I haue herd the murmuryng of the chyldren of Israel, tell them therfore and saye that at euen they shal eate flesshe, and in the mornyng they shal be fylled with breed, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God. And at euen the quayles came and coucred the grounde where they laye: And in the mornynge the dewe laye rounde about the hoost. ✠ And when the dewe was fallen, beholde it laye vpon the ground in the wyldernesse small and rounde and thyn as the hore frost on the grounde. When the chyldren of Israel sawe it, they sayd one to an other what is this? For they wyst not what it was. And Moses sayd: ✠ this is the breed whiche the Lorde hath gyuen you to eate. This is the thyng which the Lorde hath commaunded that ye gather euery man ynough for hym to eate: a gomer full for a man accordyng to the nombre of you, and gather euery man for them whiche are in his tente.

And the chyldren of Israel dyd so / and gathered some more, some lesse, and dyd mete it with a gomer. ✠ And to hym that gathered moche was no superfluitie, and to hym that hadde gathered lytle, was no lacke but euery man had gathered sufficyent for his eatynge. And Moses sayd to them: let that no man let ought ought remayne o'r till the mornynge. Notwithstandynge they obeyed not Moses: but some of them lefte of it till mornynge, and it watte full of wormes and stanke and Moses was angry with them.

And they gathered it all mornynges: euery man as moche as suffyced for his eatynge. for as soone as the * heate of the sonne came it moult. And the .vi. day they gathered twyse so moche breed, that is to wyte, two gomers for one man: and the rulers of the multytude came and told Moses. And he said vnto them, this is that whiche the Lorde hath sayde: to morowe is the Sabboth of the holy rest of the Lorde, bake that ye wyll bake, and seethe that ye wyll sethe, and that remayneth laye vp for you, & kepe it till the mornynge. And they layde it vp till the mornynge as Moses bad, and it stanke not, neither was there any wormes therin. And Moses said: eate this to day: for to daye it is the Lordes Sabboth: to daye ye shall fynde none in the felde. Sixe dayes ye shall gather: for the .vii. is the Sabboth: in it shall be none.

Notwithstandyng there went out of the people in the .vii. daye to gather, but they founde none. Then the Lorde sayd to Moses: how long shall it be ere ye wyll kepe my commaundementes and lawes? * Se, vnderstande that the Lorde hath geuen you a Sabboth, therfore he geueth you the first daye breed for two dayes. Abyde therfore euery man at home, and let no man go out of his place the .vii. daye. And the people rested the seuenth daye. And the house of Israel called it man Nan. * And it was like vnto Coryander seed, and whyte: and the taste of it was lyke vnto wafers made with honye.

And Moses sayde: this is that the Lorde commaundeth, fyll a Gomor of it that it may be kept for your chyldren after you, that they may se the breed wherwith he fed you in wyldernesse, when he had brought you out of the lande of Egypt. And Moses sayd vnto Aaron: take a cruse, and put a Gomer full of Man therin / and laye it vp before the Lorde to be kepte for your chyldren after you, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And Aaron layde it vp before the testimony there to be kepte. * And the chyldren of Israel ate Man .xl. yere vntyll they came to a lande inhabited. So they ate Man tyll they came to the borders of the land of Canaan. Truly a Gomor is the tenth part of an Epha.

¶ The Israelytes come in to Raphidim. They grudge. water is geuen them out of the rocke. Moses holdeth vp his handes, and they ouercome the Amalechytes.

CAPI. XVII.

AND all the company of the chyldre of Israel went on their iourneys from the wyldernesse of Sin at the commaundement of the Lorde, and pitched in Raphidim: where was no water for the people to drynke who chode with Moses and sayde: Geue vs water to drynke. Moses sayde vnto them: Why chyde ye with me, and wherfore do ye tempte the Lorde? So the people thyrsted for water, and murmured agaynste Moses, and sayde: wherfore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, to kyll vs and our chyldren and our catell with thurst?

So Moses cryed to the Lorde saying, what shal I do vnto this people? they be almost redye to stone me. Then the Lorde sayd to Moses: go before the people, and take with the of the elders of Israel, & thy rod wherwith thou smotest the ryuer take in thyne hande and go. Beholde I wyll stande there vpon a rocke in Horeb: and thou shalte smyte the rocke, and there shall come water out therof, that the people may drynke.

* And Moses dyd so before the elders of Israel: And called the name of the place Massa, and Meriba, bycause of the chydynge of the chyldren of Israel, and bycause they tempted the Lorde, sayenge: Is the Lorde amonge vs or not?

Then came Amelech and fought with Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayd vnto Iosua: chose out men, and go fyghte with Amelech. To morowe I wyll stande on the top of the hyll, and the rodde of God in myne hande. And Iosua dyd as Moses bade hym, & fought with the Amelechites And Moses, Aaron and Hur wente vp to the toppe of the hyll. And when Moses helde vp his hande, Israel had the better. And when he late his hand downe Amelech had the better.

When Moses handes were weery, they tooke a stone and put it vnder hym, and he sate downe theron. And Aaron and Hur stayed vp his handes, the one on the one syde, and the other on the other syde. And his handes were stedye vntyll the sonne was downe. * And Iosua discomfited Amelech and his people with the edge of his swerde.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses, write this for a remembraunce in a booke and tell it vnto Iosua, for I wyl put out the remembraunce of Amelech vnder heuen. And Moses made an alter, and called the name of it * Iehouah Nissi: for he sayde: the hande is on the syghte of the Lorde, that the Lorde wyll haue warre with Amelech throughout all generations.

¶ Iethro counsell is receyued of Moses.

CAPI. XVIII.

IEthro the preest of Madian Moses father in lawe herde of all that God had done to Moses and Israel his people, how that the Lorde had brought Israel forthe of Egypte. And he toke Ziphora Moses wyfe, after she was sent backe, and her two sonnes, of which the one was called Gerson / for he sayde: I haue ben an alien in a straunge lande. And the other was called Eliezer, for the god of my father was myne helpe, and delyuered me from the swerde of Pharao. So Iethro Moses father in lawe came with his two sonnes & his wyfe to Moses in the wyldernes: where he had pytched his tent by the mounte of God. And he sent worde to Moses: I thy father in lawe Iethro am come to the, and thy wyfe also and her two sonnes with her. And Moses went forthe to mete his father in lawe, and dyd obeysaunce and kyssed hym / and they saluted eche other and came in to the tent. And Moses tolde his father in lawe all that the Lorde had done vnto Pharao, and to the Egyptians for Israels sake / and all the trauayle that had happened them by the waye, & how the Lorde had deliuered them. And Iethro reioyced ouer all the goods whiche the Lorde had done to Israel / and that he had deliuered them out of the handes of the Egyptians. And Iethro sayd: blessed be the Lorde, which hath deliuered you out of the handes of the Egyptians, and oute of the handes of Pharao, and hath deliuered his people from the power of the Egyptians. Now I know that the Lorde is greater then all Goddes, bicause they dealt proudly with them. And Iethro Moses father in lawe offred burnt offrynges and sacrifyces to God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to eate breed with Moses father in lawe before God.

And it chaunced on the morowe that Moses sate to iudge the people / and the people stode aboute Moses from morynge tyl euen. When his father in lawe sawe all that he dyd vnto the people, he sayd: What is this that thou doest vnto the people? why sittest thou thy selfe, and letest all the people stande about the from morynge vnto euen? And Moses sayd vnto his father in lawe, bycause the people came vnto me to seke counsell of God. For when they haue a matter, they come to me, and I must iudge betwene euery man and his neighbour, and must shewe them the ordinaunces of God and his lawes.

And his father in lawe sayde to him: It is not well that thou doest. Thou doest vnwisely, and also this people that is with the, bycause the thynge is to greuous for the, * and thou art not able to do it thy selfe alone. But heare my voyce, and I will gyue the counsell, and God shall be with the. Be thou vnto the people to † Godwarde, and bynge the causes vnto God / and prouyde them ordinaunces and lawes / and shewe them the way wherein they muste walke, and the werkes that they muste do. Moreouer seke out amonge all the people men of actiuite, whiche feare God, and men that are true, & hate couetousnes: and make them heedes ouer the people, rulers ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fyftye, and ouer ten. And let them iudge the people at all seasons: & there be any great matter, let them bynge that vnto the, and let them iudge all small causes them selues, and ease thy selfe, and let them beare with the. If thou shalte doo this thynge, then thou shalte be able to endure that whiche God chargeth the with all, and all this people shall goo to their places quietly.

And Moses herde the voyce of his father in lawe, and dyd all that he had sayde, and chose actyue men out of all Israel, and made them heedes ouer the people, captaynes ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fyftye, & ouer ten. And they iudged the people at all seasons, and brought the harde causes vnto Moses, & iudged all small matters them selues. And then Moses let his father in lawe departe, and he went in to his owne lande.

¶ The chyldren of Israel come to the mounte Sinai: The people of God are holy and royal priesthod. he that toucheth the hill dyeth. God appeareth to Moses on the mount in thonder and lyghtenynge.

CAPI. XIX.

THe thirde moneth after the chyldren of Israel were gone out of Egypt, the same daye they came in to the wyldernesse of Sinai. * For they were departed from Raphidim, and were come to the desert of Sinai, and had pitched their tentes in the wyldernes. And there Israel pytched beinze the mounte. And Moses went vp to God. And the Lorde called to him out of the mountayne, saying: thus saye to the house of Jacob, and tel the children of Israel: ye haue seue what I dyd to the Egyptians, and how I toke you vp vpon eglen wynges, and haue brought you vnto my selfe. Now therfore yf ye will heare my voyce, and kepe myne appoyntmēt, ye shal be mine owne aboue all nations, for all the erth is myne. ye shal be vnto me a kyngdom of preestes, and an holy people, these are the wordes which thou shalte saye vnto the chyldren of Israel.

And Moses came and called for the elders of Israel, and layde before them all these wordes, whiche the Lorde had commaunded him. And the people answered all together and sayde: All that the Lorde hath sayd, we will doo. And Moses brought the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Lo, I will come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people may heare when I talke with the, and also bileue the for euer. So Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Goo vnto the people, and sanctifye them to daye and to morowe, and let them † washe their clothes, that they maye be redye agaynst the thyrde daye. For the thyrde daye the Lorde will come downe in the syghte of all the people vpon mounte Synai. And sette markes rounde aboute the people, and saye: beware that ye go not vp in to the mounte, and that ye touche not the borders of it / for who so euer toucheth the mounte, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touche it, but that he shall either be stoned or els shot thorowe: whether it be beest or man, it shall not liue / when the horne bloweth, then let them come vp in to the mountayne.

And Moses went downe from the mounte to the people, and sanctifyed them, and they washed their clothes. And he sayde vnto the people: be redy agaynst the thyrde daye, & and se that ye come not at youre wyues. And the thyrde daye in the morynge there was thunder, and lyghtenyng, and a thycke cloude vpon mount, and the voyce of the horne waxed exceadynge loude, and all the people that was in the hoste was afrayde. And Moses brought the people out of † tentes to mete with God, and they stode vnder the hyll.

And mounte Sinai was al togyther on a smoke: bycause the Lorde descended downe vpon it in fyre. And the smoke therof ascended vp, as it had ben the smoke of a kyl, and al the mount was exceadynge fearfull. And the voyce of the horne blewe and waxed lowder & lowder. Moses spake, and God answered hym and that with a voyce. And the Lorde came downe vpon mount Sinai, euen in the top of the hyl, and called Moses vp in to the top of the hyll. And Moses wente vp.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Goo downe and charge the people that they preasse not vp vnto the Lorde to se hym, lest so many of them perysshe. And let the preestes also whiche come to the Lordes presence, sanctifye them selues, lest the Lorde smyte them. Then Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: the people can not come vp in to the mount Sinai, for thou chargedest vs, sayinge: set markes aboute the hyl, and sanctifye it. And the Lorde sayd vnto hym: away, and get the downe, and come vp agayne both thou and Aaron with the. But let not the preestes and the people presume to come vp vnto the Lorde, lest he smyte them. And Moses wente downe vnto the people, and tolde them.

A Nd God spake all these wordes & sayd: I am the Lorde thy God, which haue brought the out of the lande of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage. Thou shalte haue none other Goddes in my syght. And when the people sawe it, they remoued and stode a farre of, and sayd vnto Moses: talke thou with vs, and we wyl heare, * but let not God talke with vs lest we dye. And Moses sayde vnto the people, feare not, for god is come to proue you, and that his feare maye be amonge you that ye synne not.

And the people stode a farre of, and Moses went in to the thicke cloude, where God was. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: thus thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye haue seue howe I haue talked with you out of heuen: ye shal not make therfore with me Goddes of syluer, nor Goddes of golde: in no wise shal ye do it. * An alter of erth thou shalt make me, and theron offre thy burnt offrynges, and thy peace offeringes, and thy shepe, and thyne oxen. And in al places where I shal put the remembraunce of my name, thyther wyl I come to the, and * bielle the. CAPI. XXVIII.

AND take thou vnto the Aaron thy brother and his sonnes with hym, forth of the children of Israel, that he maye minister vnto me, both Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar, Aarons sonnes. And thou shalt make holy rayment for Aaron thy brother, both honourable & glorious. Moreouer speke vnto al that are wyse harted, whiche I haue fylled with the spirite of wysdome: that they make Aarons rayment to consecrate hym with, that he maye mynister vnto me.

These are the garmentes whiche they shal make: a ỹ brestlappe, Ephod, a tunycle, a strayte cote, a myter and a gyrdell. And they shal make holy garmentes for Aaron thy brother, and his sonnes, that he maye mynister vnto me.

vpon the brestlappe two rynges of golde, and put them on the edges of the brestlappe, and put them vpon the shulders of the Ephod on the forepsyde of it. And thou shalt yet make. ii.

rynges of golde, and put them in the two edgolde thou shalt make, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth ouer against

¶ And Aaron shall beare the names of the children of Israel, in the brestlappe of iudge-

And thou shalte make the tunycle vnto the Ephod, all together of Jacinct. And there shalbe an hole for the heed, in the myddes of of Jacinct, of scarlet, and of purple, round avpon him, when he ministreth, that the sound maye be herde, when he goeth into the holy place, before the Lorde, and when he cōmeth out, that he dye not.

¶ The consecracion of Aaron and his sonnes.

CAPI. XXIX.

THis is the thynge that thou shalt do vn to them when thou halowest them to be my preestes. Take one oxe and two rammes that are without blemysh, and vnleuended bred, and cakes of swete bred tempered with oyle, and wafers of swete bred, annoynted with oyle (of wheten floure shalte thou make them) and put them in a maunde and bringe them in the maunde with the oxe, and the two rammes.

And bringe Aaron and his sonnes, vnto
the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and wa-she them with water, and take the garmentes, & put vpon Aaron: the strayte cote, and the tunycle of the Ephod, and the Ephod, and the brestlappe: and gyrde them to him, with the brodered gyrdell of the Ephod. And put the mytre vpon his heed, and put the holy crowne vpon the mytre. Then take the annoyntinge oyle, and powre it vpon his heed and anoynt him. And bringe his sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrde them with gyrdels: as wel Aaron as his sonnes. And put the bonet-tes on them, that the preestes office maye be theirs for a perpetuall lawe.

And fyll the handes of Aarō and of his son-nes, and bringe the oxe before the tabernacle of wytnesse. * And let Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon his heed, and kyll him before the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And take of the bloude of the oxe and put it vpon the hornes of the alter, with thy fyngar and powre all the bloud vpon the botome of the alter, and take all the fat that coutereth the inwardes, and the hall that is on the lyuer, and the two kydneys with the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpon
the alter: But the flesh of the oxe & his skynne and his donge shalt thou burne with fyre wt out the hoste, For it is a synne offeringe.

Then take one of the rammes, and let Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpō the heade of the ram, and cause hym to be slayne and take of his bloude, and sprenkel it round about vpon the altar, and cut the ram in pe-ces, and washe the inwardes of him and his legges, and put them vnto the peces, and vn to his heed, and burne the hole ram vpon the alter. For it is a burnt offeringe to the Lorde and a swete sauoure of the Lordes sacrifice.

And take the other ram, and let Aaron and his sonnes, put their handes vpon his heed, & let him than be kylled. And take of his bloud and put it vpon the tryppe of the right eare of Aaron and of his sonnes, & vpon the thombe of them

of their right handes, and vpon the great too of their right fete, and sprenkell the bloude vpon the alter round about.

D Then take of the bloude, that is vpon the alter, and of the annoyntinge oyle, and sprenkell it vpon Aaron, and his best̄mentes, and vpon his sonnes, and vpon their garmentes also. Then is he and his clothes holy and his sonnes, and their clothes holy also.

Then take the fat of the ramme, and his rompe, and the fat that couereth the inwardes, and the hall of the lyuer, and the two kydneys, and the fat that is vpon them, and the right shoulder (for that ram is a full offringe) and a lymnell of bred, and a cake of oyled bred and a wafer oute of the basket of swete bred that is before the Lorde, and put all vpon the handes of Aaro, and on the handes of his sonnes: and waue them in & out a waue offringe vnto the Lorde. Then take it frome of their handes, and burne it vpon the alter: euen vpon the burntoffring, to be a sauoure of swetnesse before the Lorde. For it is a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Then take the breste of the ram that is Aarons full offeringe, and shalt sanctifie it an offringe before the Lorde, and let that be thy part. And sanctify the brest of the waue offringe, and the shoulder of the heueoffringe, which is the fulloffringe of Aaron, and of his sonnes. And it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes duetie for euer, of the children of Israel, for it is an heueoffringe. And the heueoffring shall be the Lordes duetye of the children of Israel: euen of the sacrifice of their peaceoffringes, whiche they haue vnto the Lorde. And the holy garmentes of Aaron, shalbe his sonnes after him, to annoynte them therin, and to fill their handes therin. And that sonne that is preest in his stede after hym, shal put them on seuen dayes: that he go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, to ministre in the holy place.

Then take the ram that is the filloffringe and sethe his flesshe in an holy place. And Aaron and his sonnes shall eate the flesh of him and the bred that is in the basket: euen in the yate of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And they shall eate them, because the attonement was made therwith to fyll their handes, and to sanctifie them: but a straūger shall not eate therof, because they are holy.

If ought of the flesshe of the filloffringes, or of the bred remayne vnto the morninge, thou shalte burne it with fyre: for it shall not be eaten, because it is holy. And le thou do vnto Aaron and his sonnes, euen so in all thinges as I haue commaunded the: that thou fil their handes seuen dayes, and offre euery day an oxe for a synne offringe to reconcyle with. And thou shalt halowe the alter, when thou reconcylest it, and shalt annoynte it, to sanctifie it. Seuen dayes thou shalte reconcyle the alter, and sanctifie it, that it maye be an alter most holye: so that no man may touche it but they that be consecrate.

This is that thou shalt offre vpon the alter two lambes of one yere old, daye by daye for euer, the one thou shalt offre in the morninge and the other at euē. And vnto the one lambe take a tenth deale of floure myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of beaten oyle, and the fourth parte of an hin of wyne, for a drynkofringe. And the other lambe thou shalte offre at euen, and shalt in therto accordynge to the meatcofringe and drynkofringe in the morninge, to be an odoure of a swete sauoure of a sacrifice of the Lorde. And it shalbe a continuall burnt offringe, amonge your children after you, in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, before the Lorde, where I will mete you, to speke vnto you there. There I wil mete with the children of Israel, and will be sanctyfied in myne honoure. And I will sanctifie the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the alter: and I wil sanctifie also both Aaron and his sonnes to be my preestes. And moreouer I wil dwell amōg the children of Israel, and will be their God. And they shall knowe that I am the Lorde their God, that brought them out of the lād of Egypte, to dwell amonge them: euen I the Lorde their God.

¶ The alter of encēse. The brasen lauer. The annoyntynge oyle.

CAPI. XXX.

A AND thou shalte make an alter to burne encēse therin, of Sethim wodde: a cubyte longe, and a cubyte broade, euen folwrsquare shall it be, and two cubytes hye: with hornes procedynge oute of it, and thou shalte ouerlaye it with fyne golde, bothe the rofe, and the walles rounde aboute, and his hornes also, and shalt make vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about, and two golden ringes on eyther syde, euen vnder the crowne, to put staues therin, for to beare it withall. And thou shalte make the staues of Sethim wodde and couer them with golde. And thou shalte put it before the vayle, that hangeth before the arche of wytnesse, and before the mercy seate that is before the wytnesse, where I wil mete the.

B And Aaron shall burne theron swete encē euerye morninge, when he dresseth the lampes: and lyke wyse at euen, when he setteth vp the lampes, he shall burne encē perpetually before the Lorde, throwe oute your generacyons. Ye shall put no straunge encē theron, neyther burntsacrifice, nor meatofferynge, neyther poure any drynkofferynge theron.

And Aaron shall reconcyle vpon the hornes of it, once in a yere, with the bloude of the synneofferinge of reconcylinge: euen once in the yere shall he reconcyle it throwe your generacions. And so is it moost holye vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * When thou takeste the summe of the children of Israel, and tellest them, they shal gyue euerye man a reconcylynge of his soule vnto the Lorde that there be no plage amonge the when thou tellest them. The ryche shal not passe, and the poore shall not goo vnder halfe a sycle, when they gyue an heue offringe vnto the Lorde, for the attonement of their soules. And thou shalte take the reconcylinge money of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt put it vnto the vse of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and it shall be a memorall of the chyldren of Israel, before the Lorde, to make an attonnement, for their soules.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng: * Thou shalte make a lauer of brasse, and his fote also of brasse to washe with, and shalte put it betwene the tabernacle of witnesse and the alter, and put water therein: that Aaron and his sonnes may washe both their handes and their fete therout, when they go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they go vnto the altare, to mynister and to burne the Lordes offringe, lest they dye. And it shalbe an ordinaunce for euer vnto him & his seed among your children after you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayenge: take principall spices: of pure myrre fyue hundred sycles, of swete cynamome halfe so moch two hundred and fyfty sycles: of swete calempte, two hundred and fyfty. Of casia, two hundred and fyfty, after the holy sycle, and of oyle olyue, an hin. And make of them ℣ holy anoyntynge oyle, euen an oyle compounde after the crafte of the Apotycary. And sacrifie them that they may be moste holy: so that no man touche them, but they that be halowed. And anoynte Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them to minister vnto me.

& This holy anoyntynge oyle, doth typifie the very true oyle of holy ghost, declared of the holy ghost by the myght of gods worde, wherwith Christ our hye preest was anoynted vpon the D Apostles and all the faythfull as an Hebrues expresse

And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayeng: This shalbe an holy oynting oyle vnto me, thorowe oute youre generacions. And the Lorde sayde to Moses: Take to the swete spices: stacte, onycha, swete galbanum, and pure frankencens, of eche lyke moche: and make encense of them compounde after the crafte of the apotycary, myngled together, that it maye be malt pure and holy. And beate it to powder, and put it before the witnesse, in the tabernacle of wytnesse, where I wyll mete the, but let it be vnto you holye. And se that ye make none after the makyng of that, but let it be vnto you holy for the Lorde. And who so euer shall make lyke vnto that, to smell there to, shall perysshe from his people.

CAPI. XXXI.

1 * Exod. 35.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: Beholde * I haue called by name Bezaleel, the sonne of Uri, sonne to Hur, of the tribe of Juda. And I haue fylled hym with the spirite of God, with wysdome, vnderstandynge and knowledge: euen in all maner woorke, to fynde oute sotle sraptes, to woorke in golde, syluer and brasse, and with ℣ crafte to graue stones, to set and to carue in tymbre, and to woorke in all maner woorkmanshyp. And beholde, I haue gyuen hym, to be companyon, Aholiab, the sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, & in the hertes of all that are wyse harted, I haue put wysdom to make all that I haue commaunded the: the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the arke of wytnesse, and the mercyseate that is there vpon all the ornamentes of the tabernacle, and the table with his ordinance, and the pure candelsticke with all his apparell, and the alter of incens, and the alter of burnt offringes, with all his vessels, and the lauer with his foote, and the vestimentes to minister in, and the holy garmentes for Aaron the preest, and the garmentes of his sonnes to minister in, & the annoyntynge oyle, and the swete cense for the sanctuary: accordynge to all that I haue commaunded the, shall they do.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: In any wyse, se that ye kepe my * Sabboth, for it shall be a signe betwene me and you, in youre generacyons, for to knowe, that I the Lorde doo sanctifie you. Kepe my Sabboth therfore, that it be an holy thinge vnto you. He that defyleth it shalbe slayne therfore. For who so euer woorketh there in, the same soule shalbe roted out frome his people.

Sixe dayes shal men woorke, but the seuenth daye is the Sabboth, of the holye reste of the Lorde: so that who so euer doeth any woorke in the Sabboth daye, shall dye for it: Wherfore let the children of Israel kepe the Sabboth, that they obserue it thorowe out their generations, that it be an appoyntement for euer. For it shalbe a signe betwene me and the children of Israel, for euer. * For in sixe dayes the Lorde made heauen and earthe, and the seuenth daye he rested and was refreshed.

And when he hadde made an ende of commynge with Moses vpon the mounte Sinai, * he gaue him two tables of wytnesse: which were of stone, and written with the ℣ fynger of God.

¶ The Israelites worshyp the golden calfe. Moses prayeth for them, puttynge God in remembraunce of his promyse. He breaketh the tables for anger. He chydeth Aaron. The idolaters are slayn. Moses prayeth God to forgyue them, or to put him out of the booke of lyfe.

CAPI. XXXII.

And

AND when the people sawe that it was longe or Moses came wyne of ꝑ mountayne, they gathered them selues together, and came vnto Aaron, and sayde vnto him. * Aryse and make vs a God to go before vs: for of this Moses thy frlow that brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte, we wote not what is become.

And Aaron sayde vnto them: plucke of the golden earynges, whiche are in the eares of your wyues, your sonnes and of your doughters: and bringe them vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges, that were in their eares, and broughte them vnto Aaron. And he * receyued them of their handes, and facyoned it with a grauer and made it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: * This is thy God O Israel, whiche broughte the out of the lande of Egypte.

And when Aaron saw that, he made an altare before it, and made a Proclamation sayenge, To morowe shall be holy daye vnto the Lorde. And they rose vp in the morynge and offred burntofferinges, and broughte offringes of attonement also. * And than they sat them wyne to eate and drinke, and rose vp agayne to playe.

Then the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: * go get the downe, for thy people whiche thou broughtest oute of the lande of Egypte haue marred all, they are turned at once out of the waye whiche I commaunded them: * & haue made them a calfe of molten metall, and haue worshypped it, and haue offred therto, & haue sayde: This is thy God thou Israel, whiche hath brought the out of the lande of Egypte. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: behold * I se this people that it is a styfe necked people and nowe therfore suffre me that my wrathe maye waxe hote vpon them, and that I maye consume them: and then will I make of the a myghty people.

Then Moses besought the Lorde his God and sayde: O Lorde, Why shulde thy wrath waxe hote vpon thy people whiche thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte ꝺ greate power and with a myghtye hande? * wherfore shulde the Egypcians speake and say: For a mischefe dyd he bringe them out: euen to slee them in the mountaynes, and to consume them frome the face of the earth? Turne from thy fearfe wrath, and haue compassion ouer ꝑ wyckednesse of thy people. Remembre Abraham, Isaac and Israel thy seruauntes, to whō thou sworest by thyne owne selfe, and saydest vnto them: * I will multeplye youre seed as the starres of heauen, and all this lande whiche I haue sayde, I will gyue vnto your seed: & they shall enherete it for euer. And the Lorde repented him selfe frome that euyll, which he sayde he wolde do vnto his people.

And Moses turned his backe, and wente downe frome the hyll, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande: whiche were written on bothe the sydes, and were the worke of God, and the wrytynge was the wryting of God, grauen vpon the tables. And when Iosua herde the noyse of the people as they shouted, he sayde vnto Moses: there is a noyse of warre in the hoste. And he sayde: it is not the crye of them that haue the maistrye, nor of them that haue the worse: but I do heare the noyse of syngynge.

And as sone as he came myghe vnto the host and sawe the calfe and the daunsyng, his wrath waxed hote, and he cast the tables out of his hande, and brake them euen at the hyll fote. And he toke the calfe which they had made, & burned it with fyre, and stampt it vnto powder, and strawed it in the water, and made ꝑ children of Israel drynke. And than Moses sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast brought so great a synne vpon them?

And Aaron sayde: let not the wrath of my Lorde waxe fearse, thou knowest the people that they are euen set on mischefe: they sayde vnto me: Make vs a God to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moses thy frlow, that brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. And I sayd vnto them: Let them that haue golde, take and bringe it me: and I cast it into the fyre, & there of came out this calfe.

When Moses sawe that the people were naked (for Aaron had made them naked vnto their shame when they made insurrection) he went and stode in the gate of the hoste, & sayd: Yf any man pertayne vnto the Lorde, let him come to me. And all the sonnes of Leui gathered them selues together, and came vnto him. And he sayde vnto them: Thus sayth ꝑ Lorde of Israel: * Put euery man his sword by his syde, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the host: and slee euery man his brother, euery man his frende, and euery mā his neyghboure. And the children of Leui dyd as Moses had sayde. * And there were slayne of the people the same daye, aboute three thousande men. Then Moses sayde: fyll your hādes vnto the Lorde this daye, euery man vpō his sonne and vpon his brother: to bringe vpon you a blessynge this daye.

And on the morowe, Moyses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue synned a great synne. But now I will goo vp vnto the Lorde, to wytte whyther I can make an attonement for your synne.

And Moses went agayne vnto the Lorde, & sayde: Oh, this people haue synned a great synne, and haue made them a god of golde: yet forgyue them their synne I praye the: Yf not, a wype me out of thy boke whiche thou hast written. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will put him out of my boke that hath synned against me. But goo and bringe the people vnto the lande which I sayd vnto the: beholde, myne aungell shall goo before the. Neuertheles in the daye when I vysit, I will ‡ vysit their synne vpon them. And the Lorde plagued the people, because they made the calfe which Aaron made.

¶ The Lorde sendeth an aungell before his people. The Lorde bedeyeth to go vp with the people. The people lament their synne. Moses talketh with the Lorde and desyreth to se his face: and is commaunded to stande vpon the rocke.

CAPI.

* To wype him out of ꝑ boke, is to put him oute of the nōbre of the chosen and to caste him clean out frome god, as Romans xi. c.

‡ To vysit their synne is to haue their synne in remembraunce to punysshe: as in Genesis xl.

CAP. XXXIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: departe and go hence: both thou and the people which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypt, vnto the lande whiche I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, saynge: vnto thy seed I will gyue it. * And I will sende an angell before the, and will caste oute the Cananytes, the Amorytes, the Hethites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, and the Jebusytes: that thou mayste go vnto a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. But I will not go amonge you my selfe, for ye are a styffnecked people: lest I consume you by the waye. And when the people herde this cruell tydynges, they sorowed: and no man dyd put on his best rayment.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, Say vnto the children of Israell: ye are a styffnecked people: I must come once sodenly vpon you, and make an ende of you. Put now put your goodly rayment from you, that I maye wete what to do vnto you. And the children of Israel layde their goodly rayment from them by mount Horeb.

And Moses toke the tabernacle & pytched it without the hoste a farre of from the hoste, and called it the tabernacle of wytnesse. And all that wolde ask any question of the Lorde, went oute vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, which was without the hoste. And when Moses went out vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode euery man in his dore, and loked after Moses, vntyll he was gone into the tabernacle. And as sone as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the clouden pyller descended, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And when all the people saw the clouden pyller stande in the tabernacle dore, they rose vp & worshipped: euery man in his tent dore.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses † face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende. And when Moses turned again into the hoste, the lad Josua the sonne of Nun departed not out of the tabernacle. And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: See, thou saydest vnto me: Leade this people forthe, but thou hast not shewed me whom thou wilt sende with me. And hast sayd moreouer: I know the by name and thou hast also founde grace in my sighte: Now therfore, yf I haue founde fauour in thy sight, then shew me thy waye, & let me know the: that I maye fynde grace in thy sighte. And loke on this also, how that this nacyon is thy people.

And he sayde: my presence shall go with the, and I will gyue the rest. And he sayde vnto him: If thy presence go not with me, cary vs not hence for how shall it be knowen now that both I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy sighte, but in that thou goest with vs: that both I and thy people haue a preeminence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will do this also that thou haste sayde, for thou haste founde grace in my syghte, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayde: I beseche the, shewe me thy glory: And he sayd: I will make all my good go before the, & I will be called in this name Jehouah before the, and will shewe mercy to whome I shewe mercye, and will haue compassion on whome I haue compassion. And he sayde furthermore: thou mayst not se my face, for there shall no man se me and lyue.

And the Lorde sayde, Beholde, there is a place by me, & thou shalt stonde vpon a rocke, and whyle my glory goeth forthe, I will put the in a clyfte of the rocke, and will put myne hande vpon the whyle I passe by. And then I will take awaye myne hande, and thou shalte se my backe partes: but my face shall not be sene.

¶ The tables are renued. The mercye of God. To haue fellowshyp with the gentyles is forbidden, and they yt obserue also. The feast of swete breade. The fyrste begotten. The Sabboth. The frutes of the workes. The feaste of the fruites. Moses face glystreth.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: hewe the two tables of stone, lyke vnto the first, that I may wryte in them the wordes which were in the first two tables, which thou brakest. And be redy against the morning that thou mayst come vp early vnto the mount of Sinai and stande me there vpon the toppe of the mounte. But let no man come vp with the, neyther let any man be sene thorowe out all the mount, neyther let shepe nor oxen fede before the hyll.

And Moses hewed two tables of stone like vnto the first, and rose vp early in the morning and went vp vnto the mount of Sinai as the Lorde commaunded him, and toke in his hand the two tables of stone. And the Lorde descended in the cloude, & stode with him there: and he called vpon the name of the Lorde. And when the Lorde walked before him, he cryed: Lorde * Lorde God, full of compassion and mercy, whiche are not lyghtly angrye, but abundant in mercy and truth, and kepest mercy in store for thousandes, and forgyuest wyckednesse, trespace, and synne (for there is no man innocent before the) and visytest the wyckednesse of the fathers vpon the children, & vpon children children, euen vnto the thyrde and fourth generations. And Moses bowed him selfe to the erth quyckly, and worshypped and sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy syght, o Lorde, then let my Lorde go with vs (for it is a stubburne people) and haue mercy vpon our wickednes and our synne, and let vs be thyne enheritaunce.

And he sayd: beholde, I make an appoyntment before all thy people, that I will worke marueiles, suche as haue not ben doone in all the worlde, neither amonge any nacion. And all the people, amonge which thou art, shall se the worke of the Lorde: for it is a terrible thynge that I will do with the: kepe all that I commaunde the this daye, and beholde, I wyl cast out the

But ouerthrowe their altars and breake their pyllers, and cut downe their grouues, for thou shalte worshippe no straunge God. ☞ For the Lorde is called gelous, because he is a gelous God: leaste yᵗ thou make any agreement with the inhabitauntes of the lande when they go a hooringe after their goddes and so sacrifice vnto their goddes, they call ỳ and thou eate of their sacrifice: and thou take of their doughters vnto thy sonnes, and whē their doughters go a hooringe after their goddes, they make thy sonnes go a hooringe after their goddes also.

¶ Thou shalte make the no goddes of metall. The feast of swete breed shalte thou kepe, and seuen dayes thou shalt eate vnleuend bred (as I commaunded the) in the tyme appointed in the moneth of Abib: for in the moneth of Abib thou camest out of Egypte. Sixe dayes thou shalte worke, and the seuenth thou shalt rest: bothe frome eareynge & reapynge. * Thou shalte obserue the feast of weekes with the firste frutes of wheate hervest and the feast of ingadreynge at the yeres ende. Thrise in a yere shall all youre men children appeare before the Lorde omnipotent God of Israel: for I will cast out the nacyons before the, and wyll enlarge thy costes, so that no man shall desyre thy lande, whyle thou goest vp to appeare before the face of the Lorde thy God, thrise in the yere.

* Thou shalte not offre the bloude of my sacrifice with leuended bred: neyther shall aught of the sacrifice of the feast of Paskouer be lefte vnto the morninge. The firste of the firste frutes of thy lande, thou shalte bringe vnto the house of the Lorde thy God. And se, thou seethe not a kydde in his mothers mylke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Wryte these wordes, for vpon these wordes I haue made a couenaunt with the, and with the children of Israel. * And he was there with the Lorde. xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes, and neyther ate bred nor dranke water. And he wrote in the tables the wordes of the couenaunt: euen ten verses.

And Moses came downe frome mount Sinai, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande, and wyste not that his face shone with beames of his commeynge with the Lorde.

And when Aaron and all the children of Israel looked vpon Moses, and sawe that the shyne of his face shone with beames, they were afrayde to come nyghe him. But he called them to hym, and then Aaron and all the chiefe of the company came vnto him, & Moses talked with them.

And at last all the children of Israel came vnto him, and he gaue commaundment vnto them of all that the Lorde had sayde vnto him in mounte Sinai. And as soone as he hadde made an ende of talkynge with them, he put a couerynge vpon his face. But when he went before the Lorde to speake with him, he toke the couerynge of, vntyll he came out. And he came out and spake vnto the children of Israel that which he was commaunded. And the children of Israel sawe the face of Moses, that the shynne of his face shone with beames / but Moses put a couerynge vpon his face, tyll he went in to commen with him.

¶ The Sabboth. The firste frutes are required. The redynes of the people to offer. Bezaleel and Aholiab are prayed of God and set to worke.

CAPL. XXXV.

AND Moses gathered all the companye of the chyldren of Israel togyther, and sayde vnto them / these are the thynges whiche the Lorde hathe commaunded to doo. Sixe dayes ye shall worke, but the seuenth daye shall be vnto you the holy Sabboth of the Lordes reste / so that whosoeuer dothe anye worke therein, shall dye. Moreouer ye shall kyndle no fyre throwout all youre habitations, vpon the Sabboth daye.

And Moses spake vnto all the multytude of the chyldren of Israel saying * this is the thynge whiche the Lorde commaunded, saynge. Offer frome amonge you firste frutes vnto the Lorde. * Exodꝰ. 25.

And all the company of the children of Israell departed from the presence of Moses.

And they went (as many as their hertes couraged them, & as many as their spirites made them wyllynge) and broughte heueofferinges vnto the Lorde, to the makynge of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and for all his vses, & for the holy vestimentes. And the men came with the women (euen as many as were wyllinge harted) and broughte bracelettes, earynges, rynges and girdels, and all maner Jewels of golde. And all the men that waued waueoffrynges of golde vnto the Lorde and euery mā with whome was founde Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, Fyne or goottes heare or red skynnes of Rammes or Tarus skynnes, broughte it. CAPI. XXXVII.

And Bezaleel made the arche of Sethim wode two cubytes and an halfe longe and a cubyte and a halfe brode, and a cubyte and an halfe hyghe: and ouerlayde it with fyne golde both within & without, and made a crowne of golde to it round aboute, and caste for it foure ringes of golde for the foure corners of it: two ringes for the one syde and two for the other, and made staues of Sethim wode, and couered them with golde, and put the staues in the ringes along by the syde of the arcke to beare it with.

And the Cherubins spred out their wynges aboue an hyghe, and couered the mercystate therewith. And their faces were one to an other: towardes the mercystate, were the faces of the Cherubins.

And he made the table of Sethim wode. ij. cubytes longe and a cubyte brode, and a cubyte and a half hyghe, and ouerlayde it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of gold round about, and made therto an hoope of an hande breadth rounde about, and made vnto the hoope a crowne of golde rounde aboute, & cast for it foure ringes of golde and put the ringes in the foure corners by the fete: euen vnder the hoope to put staues in to beare the table with. And he made staues of Sethim wode and couered theym with golde to beare the table with, and made ꝑ vessels that were on the table of pure golde, the dysshes, spones, flatpeces and pottes to powre with.

And he made the candelstycke of pure thicke golde: both the candelstycke and his shaft: w braunces, bolles, knoppes and flowres procedynge out of it. Sixe braunches, procedynge out of the sydes therof, three oute of the one syde, and three out of the other. And on euery braunche were three cuppes lyke vnto almondes with knoppes and flowres thorowe oute the sixe braunches that proceded out of the candelstycke. And vpon the candelstycke self were foure cuppes / after the facyon / of almondes with knoppes and flowres: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knoppes, and the braunches proceded oute of it, & were all one pece of pure thicke gold. And he made seuen lampes therto, and the snoffers therof, and fyrepannes of pure golde. An hundred weyght of pure golde, made he the and all that belonged therto.

And he made the altare of incense, of Sethim woode, of a cubyte longe, and a cubyte brode: euen foure square, and two cubytes hyghe with hornes procedynge out of it. And he couered it with pure golde, both the toppe and the sydes rounde aboute, and the hornes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of gold rounde aboute.

And he made two ringes of golde vnto it, euen vnder the crowne vpon eyther syde of it, to put staues in for to beare it with: & made staues of Sethim wode, and ouerlayde them with golde. And he made the holye annoyntinge oyle and the swete pure incense after ꝑ Apothecaris craft.

¶ The aulter of burntoffrynges. The brasen lauer. The summe of that the people offred to the buildyng of the habytacyon of the Lorde.

CAPI. XXXVIII.

And he made the burntoffrynge altare of Sethim wode, fyue cubytes longe / and fyue cubytes brode: euē iiij. square and three cubytes hyghe. And he made hornes in the foure corners of it procedinge out of it, and ouerlayde it with brasse. And he made all the vessels of the altare: the cauldrons, shouels, basyns, flesshehookes, and colepannes, all of brasse.

And he made a brasen gerdyron of net-worke vnto the altare rounde aboute alowe beneth vnder the compasse of the altare: so that it reached vnto halfe the altare, and cast foure ringes of brasse, for the foure endes of the gerdyron to put staues in. And he made staues of Sethim woode, and couered them with brasse, and put the staues in the ringes alonge by the altare syde to beare it, and made the altare holowe with bordes. And he made the lauer of brasse, and the fote of it also of brasse in the lighte of them that dyd watche before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And he made the court with hangynges of twyned Bysse, of an hundred cubytes longe, vpon the southsyde, and twenty pylers with twenty sockettes of brasse: but the knoppes of the pylers, and the hoopes were syluer. And on the Northsyde the hangynges were an hundred cubytes longe with twenty pylers, and twenty sockettes of brasse, but the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were of syluer. And on the weste syde, were hangynges of fyfty cubytes longe, and. x. pylers with their ten sockettes, and the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were syluer. And on the east syde towarde the sonne rysynge, were hangynges of fyfty cubytes: the hangynges of the one syde of the gate were fyftene cubytes lōg, and their pylers three with their three sockettes. And of the other syde of the courte gate were hangynges also of. xv. cubytes longe, and their pylers three with three sockettes.

Now all the hangynges of the courte rounde aboute, were of twyned Bysse, and the sockettes of the pylers were brasse: but the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were syluer and the heedes were ouerlayde with syluer, & all the pylers of the courte were hooped aboute with syluer. And the hangynge of the gate of the courte was needleworke, of Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bysse twenty cubytes longe and fyue in the breed, accordynge to the hangynges of the courte. And the pylers were foure with foure sockettes of brasse, and the knoppes of syluer, and the heedes ouerlayde with syluer and hooped aboute with syluer, and all the pynnes of the tabernacle and of the courte rounde aboute were brasse.

This is the summe of the habitacle of wytnesse, which was counted at the commaundement of Moses: and was the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preeste. And Bezaleel sonne of Uri, sonne to Hur of the tribe of Juda, made all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, and with hym Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, a connynge grauer, and a worker of needleworke in Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and Bysse.

All the golde that was occupyed vpon all the worke of the holy place (whiche was the golde of the waueoffrynge) was. xxix. hundred weyght, and seuen hundred and thirtye sycles, accordynge to the holy sycle. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was fyue score hundred weyght, and a thousande seuen hundred and. lxxv. sycles of the holy sycle. Euery man offeryng halfe a sycle after the weyght of the holy sycle among them that went to be nombred from twenty yere olde and aboue, among sixe hundred thousand and three thousande, and fyue hundred and fyfty men.

And the fyue score hundred weyght of syluer went to the castynge of the sockettes of the sanctuary and the sockettes of the vayle: an hundred sockettes of the fyue score hundred weyght, an hundred weyght to euery socket. And the thousande seuen hundred and. lxxv. sycles, made knoppes to the pylers, and ouerlayde the heedes and hooped them.

And the brasse of the waueoffrynge was. lxx. hundred weyght and two thousande, and foure hundred sycles. And therwith he made the sockettes to the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brasen altare, and the brasen gerdyron that longeth thereto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sockettes of the courte rounde about, and the sockettes of the court gate, and all the pynnes of the habitacion, and all the pynnes of the courte rounde about.

¶ The makynge of Aaron and his sonnes apparell. And that the Lorde commaunded was offered.

CAPI. XXXIX.

And of the Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned Bysse, they made the vestimentes of mynistration to do seruice in that holy place, and made the holy garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made the Ephod of golde, Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bysse. And they dyd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyres: to worke it in the Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, and the Bysse, with broidred worke. And they made the sydes come together, and closed them vp by the. v. edges. And the broderynge of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe and after the same worke of Golde, Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and twyned Bysse, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they wrought Onix stones, closed in ouches of golde and grauen as signettes are grauen with the names of the children of Israel, & put them on the shoulders of the Ephod that they shoulde be a remembraunce of the children of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made the brestlappe of connynge worke, after the worke of the Ephod: euen of Golde, Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple & twyned Bysse. And they made it foure square and double, an handebreadth long and an handebreadth brode. And they fylled it with foure rowes of stones (the first rowe Sardius, a Topas, and Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Rubye, a Saphir & a Diamonde: the third rowe, Ligurius, an Achat & an Amatiste: the fourth fourth rowe, a Turcas, an Onix and a Jaspis) closed in ouches of golde in their inclosers. And the .xii. stones were grauen as signettes with the names of the children of Israel, euery stone with his name, accordyng to the .xii. tribes.

D And they made vpon the brestlappe, two fastenynge cheynes of wrethen worke of pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde and two golde ringes, and put the two ringes vpon the two corners of the brestlappe. And they put the two cheynes of golde in the two ringes, in the corners of the brastlappe. And the two endes of the two chaynes they fastened in the two hokes, and put theym on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the forefronte of it.

And they made two other ringes of golde and put theym on the two other corners of the brestlappe a longe vpon the edge, toward the inside of the Ephod that is ouer against it. And they made yet two other golden ringes, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the forefyde of it, euen where the sydes goo together, aboue vpon the bordinge of the Ephod, and they strayned the brestlappe by his ringes vnto the ringes of the Ephod, with laces of Jacinct, that it myght lye fast vpon the bordynge of the Ephod, and should not be lowsed from of the Ephod, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he made the Tunicle vnto the Ephod E of wouen worke, and all together of Jacinct, and the head of the Tunicle was in the myddest of it as the coler of a partlet, with a bond rounde about the coler, that it should not rent. And they made beneth vpon the hem of the Tunycle, Pommegranates of Jacynct, Scarlet, purple and twyned Bysse. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put the amonge the Pommegranates rounde about vpon the edge of the tunycle a bell & a Pomgranate, a bell and a Pommegranate rounde about the hemmes of the Tunycle, to mynyster in, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made cootes of bysse of wouen worke for Aaron and his sonnes, and a mytre of Bysse, and goodly bonettes of Bysse, and lynen breches of twyned bysse, and a girdell of twyned Bysse, Jacynct, Scarlet and purple, euery of nedleworke, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

F And they made the plate of the holy crowne of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it with grauen worke, the holynes of the Lorde, and tyed it to a lace of Jacynct to fasten it an hyghe vpon the mytre, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Thus was all the worke of the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse fynyshed. And the children of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde hadde commaunded Moses.

And they brought the habitation vnto Moses, the tent and all the furniture therof, the buttons, boordes, barres, pyllers and sockettes, G and the couerynge of Ramis skynnes red, and the couerynge of Taxus skynnes, and the hangynge vayle, and the arcke of wytnesse with the staues therof, and the mercyseate: the table and all the ordinaunce therof, and the shewbred, and the pure candelstycke, and the lampes prepared therunto, with all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyghtes, and the golden altare, and the annoyntynge oyle and the swete incense, and the hangynge of the tabernacle worke, and the brasen altare, and the gredyron of brasse longynge therunto with his barres and all his vessels, and the lauer with his fote, and the hangynges of the courte with his pyllers and sockettes, and the hangynge to the courte gate, his boordes and pynnes, and all the ordinaunce that serueth to the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the mynistrynge vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes of Aaron the preaste and his sonnes raymentes to mynistre in, accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, euen so the children of Israel made all the worke. And Moses beheld all the worke, and se, they hadde wrought it euen as the Lorde commaunded, and then Moses blessed them.

¶ The tabernacle is reared vp. The glorye of the Lorde appeareth in a cloude couerynge the tabernacle.

CAPI. XL.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge. In the first daye of the fyrste monethe shalt thou set vp the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and put therin the arcke of wytnesse, and couer the arche with the vayle, and bringe in the table and appareil it, and bringe in the candelstycke and put on his lampes, and set the cense altare of golde, before the arcke of wytnesse, and put the hangynge of the doze vnto the habitatiō. And set the burntoffrynge altare before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and put water therin, and make the courte rounde about, and set vp the hangynge of the court gate. B

* And take annoyntynge oyle and anoynt the habitation, and all that is therein, and halowe it, and al that belongeth therto: that it maye be holye. And annoynte the altare of the burntoffrynges, and all his vessels, and sanctifye the altare that it maye be moste holye. And annoynte also the lauer and his fote and sanctify it. * Exod.xxx.

Than bringe Aaron and his sonnes vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and washe them with water. And put vpon Aaron the holy vestimentes, and annoynte hym and sanctifye hym that he maye mynyster vnto me, that their annoyntinge maye be an euerlastinge preasthode vnto theym thorowe out their generacyons. * And Moses dyd * Num.viii.

Thus was the tabernacle reared vp the

And Moses reared vp the tabernacle/ and fastened his sockettes, and set vp the bo;des, and put in their barres, and reared vp the pilers, and spred ab;ode the tent ouer the habitation, and put the couerynge of the tente on vpp̄e about it: as the Lo;de commaunded Moses.

And he tobe and put the testimony in the arche, and set the staues to the arche, and put thegu crepsate on vpp̄e vpon the arche, and broged te the arche into the habitation, and hanud vp the vayle and couered the arche of wytnesse, as the Lo;de commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of wytnesse in the Lo;thsyde of the habitation, without the vayle, and set the breed in o;dre before the Lo;de, euen as the Lo;de had commaunded Moses.

And he put the candilsticke in the tabernacle of witnesse ouer against the table in the southsyde of the habitation, and set vp ꝑ lampes before the Lo;de: as the Lo;de commaunded Moses.

And he put the golden altare in the tabernacle of witnesse before the vayle, and burnt swete incense theron as the Lo;de commaunded Moses.

And set vp the hangynge in the wo;de of the habitation, and set the burntoffrynge altare before the wo;de of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and offred burntoffrynges and meatoffrynges therron: as the Lo;de commaunded Moses.

And he reared vp the court rounde about the habitation and the altare, and set vp the hangynge of the court gate: and so Moses fynished the wo;ke.

When the cloude was taken vp frome of the habytation, the childzen of Israell toke their iourneys as ofte as they had io;neyed. THE THYRDE BOKE OF MOSES, CALLED LEVITICVS.

¶ The order of burnte offrynges, whether it be of small or great cattell or fowles.

CAPI. I.

AND the Lorde called Moses, and spake vnto him out of the tabernacle of witnes, sayinge: Speke to the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: who so euer of you shall bringe a gifte vnto the Lorde shall bringe it of the cattell: euen of the oxen and of the shepe.

If he bringe a burnt offrynge of the oxen, he shall bring a male without blemysshe, and shall bringe hym to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes, that he maye be accepted before the Lorde. And let him put his hand vpon the heed of the burnt sacrifyce, and fauoure shall be gruen him to make an attonement for him, and let him kyll the oxe before the Lorde. And let the prestes Aarons sonnes bring the bloude and let them sprynkle it roundе aboute vpon the alter, that is before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And let the burnt offrynges be strypped and hewed in peces. And then let the sonnes of Aaron the preest put fyre vpon the alter, and put wod vpon the fyre, and let them laye the peces with the heed and the fat vpon the wod that is on the fyre in the alter. But the intrayles and the legges they shall washe in water, and the preest shall burne all together vpon the alter, that it be a burnt sacrifyce, and an offrynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

If he wyll offre a burnt sacrifyce of the shepe, whether it be of lambes or of the gotes he shall offre a male without blemysshe. And let hym kyll it on the northe syde of the alter before the Lorde. And let the prestes, Aarons sonnes sprynckle the bloude of it roundе aboute vpon the aulter. And let it be cutte in peces: euen with his heed and his fatte, and lette the preeste put them vpon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre in the aulter. But lette hym washe the intrayles and the legges with water, and then bringe all together and burne it vpon the aulter: that is a burnt offrynge, and a sacrifices of swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

If he wyll offre a burnt offrynge of the foules, he shall offre eyther of the turtle doues, or of the younge pygyons. And the preeste shall bringe it vnto the aulter, and wringe the necke asonder, and burne it on the aulter, and lette the bloude runne oute vpon the sydes of the aulter, and pluche awaye his croppe and his fethers, and caste them beside the aulter on the East part vpon the heape of asshes, and breake his wynges, but pluche them not asonder. And then lette the preeste burne it vpon the aulter: euen vpon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre, a burnt sacrifyce, and an offrynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

¶ The order of meateoffrynges, of swete cakes, of fyne flower, of frankencense. &c. without leuen and without hony, but not without salte.

CAPI. II.

If any soule wyll offre a meat offrynge vnto the Lorde, his offrynge shall be fyne floure, and he shall poure therto oyle, and put frankensence theron, and shall bringe it vnto Aarons sonnes the Preestes. And one of them shall take therout his handfull of the floure, and of the oyle with all the frankensence, and burne it for a remembraunce vpon the aulter: an offrynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And the remnaunt of the meat offryng shall be Aarons and his sonnes, as a thynge moost holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde.

If anye man bringe a meate offrynge that is baken in the ouen, lette hym bringe swete cakes of fyne floure mingled with oyle, and vnleuened wafers annoynted with oyle. If thy meate offrynge be baken in the fryinge panne, then it shall be of swete floure mingled with oyle. And thou shalte mynce it small, and poure oyle theron: and so it is a meat offrynge.

If thy meat offrynge be a thynge broyled vpon the gredyron, of floure myngled with oyle it shall be. And thou shalte bringe the meat offrynge that is made of these thynges vnto the Lorde, and shalte delyuer it to the preest, and he shall bringe it vnto the aulter, and shall heue vp parte of the meat offrynge for a memoriall, and shall burne it vpon the aulter: an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that is lefte of the meat offrynge shall be Aarons, and his sonnes, as a thynge that is moost holy of the offrynges of the Lorde.

All the meat offrynges which ye shal bryng vnto the Lorde, shall be made without leuen. For ye shall neyther burne leuen nor hony in any offryng of the Lorde: Notwithstandyng ye shall bringe the firste frutes of them vnto the Lorde: but they shall not come vpon the aulter, to make a swete sauour.

All thy meat offrynges thou shalt salte with salte: neither shalt thou suffre the salte of the couenaunt of thy God to be lacking from thy meat offryng: but vpon all thyne offrynges thou shalt bringe salte.

If thou offre a meat offrynge of the first ripe frutes vnto the Lorde, then take that whiche is yet grene, and dyre it by the fyre, and beat it small, and so offre the meat offrynge of thy first ripe frutes. And then poure oyle therto, and put frankensence theron: and so it is a meat offrynge. And the preest shall burne parte of the beaten corne, and parte of that oyle with all the all the frankencence, for a remembraunce, that is an offeryng vnto the Lorde.

¶ The order of peace offeryngs, whiche were offered for the keppyng of peace, made of oxen, sheepe, lambes and goates.

CAPI. III.

1 YF any man bryng a * peace offeryng of the oxen: whether it be male or female, he shall bryng suche as is without blemyshe before the Lorde: and let hym put his hande vpon the heed of his offeryng, and kyll it before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aarons sonnes the Preestes shall 2 sprynckle the bloude vpon the aulter rounde about. And they shall offre of the peace offeryng to be a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatte that coutreth the inwardes and all the fat ϕ is vpon the inwardes: and the two kydneys, with the fatte that lyeth vpon the loynes: and the hall that is on the lyuer they shall take awaye with the kydneys. And Aarons sonnes shall burne them vpon the aulter with the burnt sacrifyce which is vpon the wod on the fyre: that is a sacrifyce of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

3 Yf a man bryng a peace offeryng vnto the Lorde frome the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shall be without blemyshe. 4 Yf he offre a lambe, he shall bryng it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon his offeryngs heed, and kyll it in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and Aarons sonnes shal sprynckle the bloude therof rounde about the aulter.

5 And of the peace offeryng they shall bryng a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatte therof and the rompe all togyther whiche they shal take of, harde by the backe bone: and the fat that coutreth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys with the fatte that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loynes, and the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take awaye with the kydneys. And the Preest shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes offeryng with.

6 Yf the offeryng be a goote, he shall bryng it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon 7 the heed of it, and kyll it before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the sonnes of Aaron shall sprynckle the bloude therof vpon the aulter rounde about. And he shall bryng therof his offeryng vnto the Lordes sacrifyce: the fatte that coutreth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kydneys, and the fat that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loynes, & vpon the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take awaye with the kydneys. And the Preest shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes sacrifyce with, and to make a swete sauour. And thus shal all the fatte be the Lordes, and it shall be a lawe for euer amonge youre generations after you in youre dwellynge places: that ye eate neyther fat nor bloude.

¶ The offeryng made for synnes doone of ignorauncr.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saynge 2 Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: when a soule synneth therow ignorauce, and hath done any of thole thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden in his commaundementes to be doone: Yf the 3 preest that is anoynted, synne and make the people to doo amysse, he shall bryng for his synne whiche he hathe done: an ore without blemyshe vnto the Lorde for a synne offring. 4 And he shall bryng the ore vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde, and shall put his hande vpon the ores heed, & kyll hym before the Lorde.

5 And the preest that is *anoynted shal take of the ore bloude, and bryng it in to the ta- * Lem. bernacle of wytnesse, and shall dyppe his fynger in the bloude and sprynckle therof seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall put some 6 of the bloude vpon the hornes of the aulter of swete incense before the Lorde, which is in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall poure all the bloude of the oxen vpon the bottome of the aulter of burnt offeryngs, whiche is by the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And he 7 shall take awaye all the fatte of the ore that is the synne offeryng: the fatte that coutreth the intrayles, and all the fatte that is aboute them, and the two kydneys with the fat that lieth vpon them and vpon the loynes, and the hall vpon the lyuer let them take awaye also 8 with the kydneys: as it was taken from the ore of the peace offeryng, and let the Preest burne them vpon the aulter of burnt offeryngs. 9 But the skynne of the ore, and all his fleshe with his heed, his legges, his intrayles with his donge, shall he cary all togyther 10 oute of the hoste vnto a clene place: where the asshes are poured oute, and burne hym on wodde with fyre: euen vpon the heape of asshes.

11 Yf the hole commonalte of the chyldren of Israel syn throwe ignorauce, and the thyng be hyd from theyr eyes: so that they haue committed any of these thynges which the Lorde 12 hath forbydden to be done in his commaundementes and haue offended, and the synne whiche they haue synned be afterwarde knowen, 13 then shall they offre an ore for a synne offeryng, and shall bryng hym before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the elders of the multitude shall put theyr handes vpon his heed before the Lorde.

14 * And the Preest that is anoynted, shall * Lem. bryng of his bloude in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall dyppe his fynger in to the bloude, and sprynckle it seuen tymes before the Lorde, euen before the vayle. And shall put 15 of the bloude vpon the hornes of the aulter whiche is before the Lorde in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall poure all the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter of burnt offeryngs, which is by the doore of the tabernacle

C of wytnesse, and shall take all his fatte frome hym, and burne it vpon the aulter, and shall do with his ore as he dyd with the fynne offerynge ore. And the Preste shall make an attonement for them, and so it shall be forgyuen them. And he shall dyrynge the ore without the hoste, and burne hym as he burned the firste: so is this the fynne offerynge of the commonalte.

When a Lorde synneth, and commytteth thorow ignorauncе any of these thynges whiche the Lorde his God hathe forbydden to be doone in his commaundementes and hath so offended: when his fynne is shewed vnto hym whiche he hathe synned, he shall dyrynge for his offerynge an he goote without blemyshe, and laye his handе vpon the heed of it, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offerynges are kylled before the Lorde: this is a fynne offerynge. Then let the preest take of the bloud of the fynne offerynge with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offerynge aulter, and poure his bloude vpon the bottome of the burnt offerynge aulter, and burne all his fatte vpon the aulter, as he dothe the fatte of the peax offerynges. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym as concernyng his fynne, and so it shall be forgyuen hym.

I If one of the common people of the lande synne thorowe ignorauncе, and commyt any of the thynges whiche the Lorde hathe forbydden in his commaundementes to be done and so hath trespaced, when his fynne which he hathe synned is come to his knowlege, he shall dyrynge for his offerynge a he gote without blemyshe for his fynne whiche he hathe synned, and laye his handе vpon the heed of the fynne offerynge, and slee it in the place of Leuit.iii.b burnt offerynges. * And the preest shal take of the bloude with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offerynge aulter, and poure all the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter, and shall take awaye all his fat as the fat of the peax offerynges is taken awaye. And the preest shall burne it vpon the aulter for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, and the preest shal make an attonement for hym, and it shal be forgyuen hym.

If he dyrynge a lambe, and offre it for a fynne
6 offerynge, he shall dyrynge a female without blemyshe, and laye his handе vpon the heed of the fynne offerynge, and slee it in the place where the burnt offrynges are slayne. And the preest shall take of the bloude of the fynne offerynge with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offrynge aulter, and shall poure all the bloude therof vnto the bottome of the aulter. * And he shall take awaye all Leuit.iii.b the fatte therof, as the fatte of the sheepe of the peax offerynges was taken awaye. And the Preest shall burne it vpon the aulter of the Lordes sacrifice, and the preest shall make an attonement for his synne, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

¶ Of othes. The clensynge of him that toucheth vncleane thynges. The purgation of an othe and of synne done by ignorauncе.

CAPI. V.

When the soule hath synned, and herd the voyce of cursyng, and is a wytnes, whether he hath sene or knowne of it, yf he 1 haue not vttered it, he shall beare his synne. Eyther when a man toucheth any vncleane thynge: whether it be the caryon of an vncleane beest, or of vncleane catell or vncleane wormе, and is not ware of it, he is also vncleane and hathe offended. Eyther when he toucheth any vnclennesse of man (what so euer vnclennesse it be, that a man is defyled wt) and is not ware of it, and after commeth to the knowlege of it, he is a trespacer.

Eyther when a soule sweareth, so that he 3 pronounceth with his lyppes to do cuyll, or to doo good (what so euer it be that a man pronounceth with an othe) and the thynge be out of his mynde, and afterwarde commeth to the knowlege of it, then he hathe offended in one of these. Then when he hathe synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that wherin he hath synned, and shall dyrynge his trespace offerynge vnto the Lorde for his syn whiche he hathe synned. A female frome the flocke, whether it be a lambe, or a she goote, for a fynne offryng. And the preest shall make an attonement for hym for his synne. * But yf he be not able to dyrynge a sheepe, then let * Leuit.xii.b Luke.ii.b hym dyrynge for his trespace whiche he hathe synned, two turtle doues, or two yonge pygeons to the Lorde, one for a synne offryng, and an other for a burnt offrynge. And he shall dyrynge them vnto the preest, which shall offre the synne offrynge firste, and wryng the necke a sonder of it, but pluckе it not clene of. And let hym sprynckle of the bloude of the synne offrynge vpon the syde of the aulter, and lette the reste of the bloude bleede vpon C the botome of the aulter, and then it is a synne offrynge. And let hym offer the seconde for a burntoffrynge as the maner is: and so shall the preest make an attonement for him for the synne whiche he hath synned, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

And yet yf he be not able to dyrynge two turtle doues or two yonge pygeons, then let him dyrynge his offrynge for his synne: * the * Exodus.g.

And let hym dyrynge it to the preest, and the Preest shall take his handefull of it, and burne it vpon the aulter for a remembraunce, to be a sacrifyce for the Lorde: that is a synne offrynge. And let the Preest make an attonement for hym for his synne whatsoeuer of these he hath synned, and it shall be forgiuen. And the remnaunt shalbe the preests as it is in the meate offrynge. D

And the Lorde commaunded with Moses, sayynge: When a soule trespaseth and synneth thorowe ignorauncе in any of the holye thynges of the Lorde, he shall dyrynge for his trespace vnto the Lord a ramme without blemyshe out of the flocke valued at two sycles after the syclе of the sanctuarye, for a trespace

offeryng. And he shall make amendes for the harme that he hath done in the holy thynge, and put the fyfte parte more to, and gyue it vnto the Preest. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym with the ramme of the trespace offeryng, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

When a soule synneth and committeth any of these thynges whiche are forbydden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lorde: though he wyst it not, he hathe yet offended and is in synne, and shall bringe a ram without blemyshe out of the flocke that is esteemed to be worthe a synne offeryng, vnto the Preest. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym for the ignorance which he did, and was not ware, and it shall be forgyuen him: This is a trespace offeryng, for he trespaced agaynst the Lorde.

¶ The offerynges for synnes whiche are done wylfully. The lawe of burnt offerynges. ¶ The fyre must alwaye continue vpon the aulter. The offerynges of Aaron and his sonnes.

CAPI. VI.

1 And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: When a soule synneth, and trespaceth agaynst the Lorde, and denyed vnto his neyghboure that whiche was taken hym to kepe, or that was put vnder his hande or that which he hath violently taken away, or that whiche he hath defrauded his neyghboure of with iniquite, or hathe founde that whiche was lost and denyeth it, and sweareth falsely in what so euer thyng it be that a man doothe, and synneth therin.

Then when he hath synned or trespaced, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently awaye or the wronge whiche he did, or that which was delyuered him to kepe, or the lost thynge whiche he founde, or what so euer it be about whiche he hathe sworne falsely, he shall restore it agayne in the hole summe, and adde the fyfte parte more therto, and gyue it vnto him to whome it pertayneth, the same daye that he offereth for his trespace, and shal bring for his trespace offeryng vnto the Lord a ramme without blemyshe out of the flocke that is esteemed worth a trespace offeryng vnto the Preest. And the Preeste shall make an attonement for him before the Lorde, and it shall be forgyuen him, in what so euer thyng it be that a man doth and trespaceth therin.

8 And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge: this is the lawe of the burnt offeryng. The burnt offeryng shal be vpon the harth of the aulter all nyght vnto the morninge, and the fyre of the aulter shall burne therin. And the preest shall put on his lynnen vesture, and his lynnen breches vpon his fleshe, and take away the asshes whiche the fyre of the burnt sacrifice in the aulter hath made, and put them beside the aulter, & then put of his rayment, and put on other, and carye the asshes out, without the hoost vnto a clene place.

The fyre that is vpon the aulter shal burne therin, and not go out. And the preest shal put woode on the fyre euery morninge, and put the burnt sacrifyce vpon it, and he shall burne theron the fatte of the peace offerynges. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the aulter, and neuer go out. *Leui. 6.

This is the lawe of the meat offeryng: Aarons sonnes shall bringe it before the Lorde, vnto the aulter; and one of them shall take his handfull of the floure of the meat offeryng and of the oyle with all the frankencens whiche is theron, and shall burne it for a remembraunce vpon the aulter, to be a swete sauour of the memorrall of it vnto the Lorde. And the rest therof, Aaron and his sonnes shal eate vnleuended: it shall be eaten in the holy place: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of wytnesse they shall eate it. They? parte which I haue gyuen them of my sacrifice shall not be baken with leuen, for it is moost holy, as is the synne offeryng, and trespace offeryng. All the males amonge the chyldren of Aaron shall eate of it: and it shall be a duty for euer vnto your generations of the sacrifices of the Lorde, neyther shall any man touche it, but he that is halowed.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: this is the offeryng of Aaron and of his sonnes which he shall offre vnto the Lorde in the daye when they are anoynted: the tenth part of an Epha of floure, whiche is a dayly meat offeryng perpetually: halfe in the morninge and halfe at nyght: and in the fryinge panne it shall be made with oyle. And when it is fryed, thou shalt bringe it in as a baken meat offeryng mynsed small, and shalte offer it for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that preest of his sonnes that is anoynted in his stede shall offre it: and it shalbe the Lordes duty for euer, and it shall be burnt all together. For all the meat offerynges of the preestes shall be burnt all together, and shall not be eaten.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and vnto his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the synne offeryng. In the place where the burnt offeryng is kylled, shal the synne offeryng be kylled also before the Lorde, for it is moost holy. The preest that offereth it, shall eate it in the holy place: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of wytnesse. No man shall touche the fleshe therof saue he that is halowed. And yf any rayment be spynckled therwith, it shall be washed in the holy place, * and the erthen potte that it is soden in, shall be broken. Yf it be soden in brasse, then the potte shall be scoured and rynsed in water. All the males amonge the preestes shall eate therof, for it is moost holye. Notwithstandynge no synne offeryng that hathe his bloude broughte in to the tabernacle of wytnesse to reconcyle with, in the holy place, shall be eaten: but shall be burnt in the fyre. *Leui.

¶ The

CAPI. VII.

¶ This is the lawe of the trespace offeryng which is moste holy. In the place where the burnt offeryngs is kylled, the trespace offeryng shal be kylled also: & his bloude shal be sprinckled rounde about vpon the aulter. And all the fat that coureth the inwardes and the two kydneys with the fat that lyeth on them and vpon the loynes, and the hall on the lyuer shall be taken awaye with the kydneys: and the preest that burne them vpon the aulter, to be an offeryng vnto the Lorde, this is a trespace offeryng.

All the males among the preestes shal eate therof in the holy place, for it is moste holy. As the synne offeryng is, so is the trespace offeryng, one lawe serueth for bothe. And it shall be the preestes that reconcyleth therwith. And the preest that offered a mans burnt offeryng shall haue the skynne of the burnt offeryng whiche he hath offered. And all the meat offeryngs that are baken in the ouen, & all that is dressed vpon the gredyron and in the frying pan, shall be the preestes that offereth them. And all the meat offeryngs that are mingled with oyle or drye, shall pertayne vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, one shall haue as moche as an other.

¶ This is the law of the peax offeringes whiche shall be offered vnto the Lorde. If he offre to gyue thankes, he shal bryng vnto his thanke offeryng: swete cakes mingled with oyle & swete wafers anoynted with oyle, and cakes mingled with oyle of fyne flower fryed, and he shall bryng his offeryng vpon cakes made of leuend bread vnto the thanke offeryng of his peax offeryngs, and of them all, he shall offre one to be an heue offeryng vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the preestes that sprincleth the bloude of the peax offeryngs. And the flesshe of the thanke offeryng of his peax offeryngs shall be eaten the same daye that it is offred, and there shall none of it be layde vp vntyll the morowe.

If it be a vowe or a free wyll offering that he bryngeth the same daye that he offereth it, it shall be eaten, and that remayneth maye be eaten on the morow: but as moche of the offered flesshe as remayneth vnto the thyrde daye, shall be burnt with fyre. For yf any of the flesshe of the peax offeryngs be eaten in the thyrde daye, then shall he that offred it obtayne no fauour, neyther shall it be reckened vnto him, but shall be an abhommacion, and the soule that eateth of it, shall beare the synne therof.

¶ The flesshe that toucheth any vncleane thynge, shall not be eaten, but burnte with fyre: and al that be clene in theyr flesshe, may eate flesshe. If any soule eate of the flesshe of the peax offeryngs that pertayne vnto the Lorde, and his vnclennes yet vpon hym, the same soule shall perysshe oute of his people.

Moreouer yf a soule toucheth any vncleane thynge, whether it be the vnclennes of man, or of any vncleane beest, or any abhominacion that is vncleane, and then eate of the flesh of the peax offeryngs, whiche pertayne vnto the Lorde, that soule shall perysshe from his people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: ye shall eate no maner fatte of oxen, sheepe, or goates: yet the fatte of the beest that dyeth alone and the fatte of that whiche is torne with wylde beestes, maye be occupyed in all maner vses: but ye shall in no wyse eate of it. For who so euer eateth the fatte of the beest of whiche men bryngе an offeryng vnto the Lorde, that soule that eateth it, shall perysshe from his people.

Moreouer ye * shall eate no maner of blonde where so euer ye dwell, whether it be of foule or of beest. What so euer soule it be that eateth any maner bloude, shall perysshe from his people. * Lev. 3. vers. 17. D

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: he that offereth his peax offeryng vnto the Lorde, shall bryngе his gyfte vnto the Lorde of his peax offeryngs: his owne handes shall bryngе the offeryngs of the Lorde: euen the fatte vpon the breest, he shall bryngе with the breest, to waue it a waue offeryngs before the Lorde. And the preest shall burne the fat vpon the aulter, and the breest shall be Aarons and his sonnes. And the ryght shoulder they shall gyue vnto the preest, to be an heue offeryngs, of theyr peax offeryngs. And the same that offereth the bloude of the peax offeryngs and the fatte amonge the sonnes of Aaron, shall haue the ryght shoulder vnto his parte, for the wauebreest and the heueshoulder I haue taken of the chyldren of Israel, euen of theyr peaxofferyngs, and haue gyuen it vnto Aaron the preest, and vnto his sonnes: to be a dutye for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

This is the anoyntynge of Aaron, and of the sacrifyces of the Lorde, in the daye when they were offred to the preestes vnto the Lord, whiche the Lorde commaunded to be gyuen them in the daye when he anoynted them, of the chyldren of Israel, & to be a dutye for euer amonge theyr generations. This is the lawe of burntofferyngs, of meatofferinges, of synne offeryngs, of trespaceofferinges, of fulfillinges, of peacefferyngs, which the Lorde commaunded Moses in the mounte Sinai, in the daye when he comaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer theyr offeryngs vnto the Lorde in the wildernesse of Sinai.

CAPI. VIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take Aaron and his sonnes with hym, and the vestures and the anoyntynge oyle, and an oxe for a synneofferyng, and two rammes and a basket of swete breed: and gather all the commentye together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded hym, ¶

bym, and the people gathered them selues to-gether, vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses sayd vnto the people, this is the thynge which the Lorde commaunded to do.

And Moses brought Aaron and his sonnes and washed them with water, and put vpon him the albe, and gyrded him with a gyrdell, & put vpon him the tunicle, and put the Ephod theron, and gyrded him with the broyder gyrdell of the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therwith. And he put the brestlap theron, and put in the brestlap Urim and Thumim. And he put the myter vpon his heed, and put vpon the myter euen vpo the forefront of it the golden plate of the holy crowne, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And Moses toke the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynted the habitacion and all that was therin, & sanctified them, and sprynckled therof vpon the alter seuen tymes, and anoynted the aulter and all his vessels, and the fauer with the fote, to sanctifie them. And he poured of the anoyntynge oyle vpon Aarons heed, and anoynted him to sanctifie him. And he brought Aarons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrded them with gyrdles, and put bonettes vpon their heedes: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And the synne offeryng was brought. And Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the oxe of the synneofferynge. And when it was slayne, Moses toke of the bloude and put it vpon the hornes of the alter rounde about with his finger, and purified it, and poured the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter, and sanctified it, and reconciled it. And he toke al the fatte that was vpon the inwardes, and the hall that was on the lyuer, and the two kydneys with their fatte, and burned it vpon the aulter. But the oxe, the hyde, his flesshe and his donge, he burnt with fyre without the hoste, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the ramme of the burntofferynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and it was kylled. And Moses sprynckled the bloud vpon the aulter rounde about, and cut the ramme in peces, and burnt the heed, the peces and the fatte, and washed the inwardes and the legges in water, and burnte the ramme euery whit vpon the aulter. That was a burnt sacrifyce of a swete sauoure, and an offeryng vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the other ram that was the fullofferyng, and Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and when it was slayne, Moses toke of the bloud of it, and put it vpon the typ of Aarons ryght eare, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the greate too of his ryghte foote. Then were Aarons sonnes brought, and Moses put of the bloude on the typ of the ryghte eare of them, and vpon the thombes of their ryghte handes, and vpon the greate toes of their ryghte feete, and sprynckled the bloude vpon the aulter rounde about.

And he toke the fat and the rompe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the hall of the lyuer, and the two kydneys with their fatte, and their ryght shoulder. And out of the basket of swete breed that was before the Lorde, he toke one swete cake of oyled bred and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and vpon the ryght shoulder: and put all together vpon Aarons handes, and vpon his sonnes handes, and waued it a waue offeryng before the Lorde.

And then Moses toke them from their handes agayne, and burnt them vpon the aulter, euen vpon the burntofferyng: These are the fullofferyngs of a swete sauoure, and a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde. And Moses toke the brest, and waued it a waue offeryng before the Lorde, of the ramme of the fullofferinges: and it was Moses parte, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And Moses toke of the anoyntynge oyle, & of the bloud which was vpon the aulter, and sprynckled it vpon Aaron, and vpon his vestimentes, and vpon his sonnes and on their vestimentes with him, and sanctified Aaron and his vestures, and his sonnes and his sones vestures also. Then Moses sayd vnto Aaron & his sonnes: boyle the flesshe in the doze of the tabernacle of witnes, and there + eate it with the bread that is in the basket of fullofferyngs, as the Lorde commaunded, sayenge: Aaron and his sonnes shall eate it: and that with the remaynyth of the flesshe and of the breed, burne it with fyre.

And if ye departe not from the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse seuen dayes longe, tyll the dayes of your fullofferyngs be at an ende. For seuen dayes muste your handes be fylled, as they were this day: euen so the Lorde hath commaunded to do, to thintent to reconcyle you. Therfore ye abyde in the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse day and nyght seuē dayes longe: and kepe the watche of the Lorde that ye dye not, for so I am commaunded. And Aaron and his sonnes did all that the Lorde commaunded by the handes of Moses.

¶ The fyrste offeryngs of Aaron, for hym selfe and for the people. Aaron blesseth the people. The glorye of the Lorde is shewed. The fyre commynge frome about consumeth the sacrifyce.

CAPI. IX.

And the eyght daye, Moses called Aaron and his sonnes, and the elders of Israel, and sayd to Aaron: take a calfe for a synne offeryng, a ram for a burntofferynge: both without blemysshe, and bryng them before the Lorde. And vnto the children of Israel he spake, sayeng: take ye an he gote for a synne offeryng, and a calfe and a lambe both two of a yere old, & without blemysshe for a burnt sacrifice, and an oxe and a ramme for peaceofferyngs, to offre before the Lorde, and a meatofferynge mingled with oyle, for to daye the Lorde will appere vnto you.

And

And they broughte that whiche Moses commaunded vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse and all the people came and stode before the Lorde. And Moses sayde: this is that the Lorde commaunded ye sholde do: and then the glory of the Lorde shall appere vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Goo vnto the aulter, and offre thy synneoffrynge, and make an attonement for the and the people: and then offre the offrynge of the people, and reconcyle them also: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And Aaron went to the aulter, and slewe the calfe that was his synneoffrynge. And the sonnes of Aaron broughte the bloude vnto hym, and he dypte his fynger in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the aulter, and poured the bloude vnto the bottome of the aulter. And the fatte and the two kydneys, with the hall of the lyuer of the synne offrynge he burnt vpon the aulter, as the Lorde commaunded Moses: but the flesshe and the hyde, he burnt with fyre without the hoste. Afterwarde he slewe the burntoffrynge, and Aarons sonnes broughte the bloud vnto hym, and he sprynkled it rounde about vpon the aulter. And they broughte the burntoffrynge vnto hym in peces, and the heed also, and he burnt it vpon the aulter, and dyd washe the inwardes, and the legges, and burnt them also vpō the burnt offrynge in the aulter.

And then he broughte the peoples offrynge and toke the goote that was the peoples synneoffrynge, and slewe it, and offered it for a synneoffrynge: as he dyd the first. And then broughte the burntoffrynge, and offered it as the maner was, and broughte the meatoffrynge and fylled his hande therof, and burnt it vpon the aulter, beside the burnt sacrifice in the morninge.

Then he slewe the oxe and the rammе that were the peoples peaceoffringes, and Aarons sonnes broughte the bloude vnto hym, and he sprynckled it vpon the aulter rounde about, and toke the fat of the oxe and of the rammе: the rompe, the fat that coureth the inwardes and the kydneyes and the hall of the lyuer, and put them vpon the brestes and burne it vpon the aulter: but the brestes and the right shoulders Aaron waued before the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And Aaron lyfte vp his hande ouer the people and blessed them, and came downe from offrynge of synneofferinges, burntoffringes and peaceoffringes. Then Moses and Aaron went in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, and came out agayne and blessed the people, and the glorye of the Lorde appeared vnto all the people. And there came a fyre out from the Lorde, and consumed vpon the aulter, the burntoffrynge and the fat. And all the people sawe it, and shoted, and fell on theyr faces.

And Nadab and Abihu the sonnes of Aaron toke either of them his censer, and put fyre therin, and put eens vpon, and broughte straung fyre before the Lorde: which he commaunded them not: and there wente a fyre out from the Lorde, & consumed them, and they dyed before the Lorde. Then Moses sayd vnto Aaron: this is that the Lorde spake saying: I wyll be sanctified in them that come nye me, and before all the people I wyll be glorified. And Aaron held his peace. And Moses called Misael and Elisaphan the sonnes of Oziel the vncle of Aaron, and sayd to them: Go and carye youre brethren from the holy place out of the hoste. And they went to them and caryed them in theyr aldes out of the hoste as Moses bad.

And Moses sayd vnto Aaron and Eliazar, and Ithamar his eldest sonnes: vncouer not youre heed, neyther rent youre clothes, leest ye dye, and wrath come vpon all the people, let youre brethren the hole house of Israel bewepe the burnynge whiche the Lorde hathe burnt. But go ye not out by the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, leest ye dye: for the anoyntynge oyle of the Lorde is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses bad.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron, sayinge: Drynke no wyne ne stronge drynke, neyther thou nor thy sonnes with the: when ye go in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, leest ye dye. And let it be a lawe for euer vnto youre chyldren after you: that ye maye put difference betwene holy and vnholy, betwene vncleane and cleane, and that ye maye teache the chyldren of Israel all the ordinaunces whiche the Lorde hath commaunded them by the handes of Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron, and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar his sonnes that were lefte. Take the meatoffrynge that remaineth of the sacrifyces of the Lorde, and eate it without leuen beside the aulter, for it is moost holy: eate it therfore in the holy place, because it is thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye of the sacrifyce of the Lorde: for so I am commaunded. And the wauerofft and heue shoulder eate in a cleane place: both thou and thy sonnes, and thy doughters with the. For it is thy dutye, and thy sonnes duty with the, of the peaceoffrynges of the chyldren of Israel. For the heueshoulder, and the wauebrest whiche they bringe with the sacrifyces of the fatte, to waue it before the Lorde, shall be thyne, and thy sonnes with the: and be a lawe for euer, as the Lorde hathe commaunded.

And Moses sought for the goote that was the synneoffrynge, and se it was burnt. And he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar the sonnes of Aaron, whiche were lefte alyue, saying: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offrynge in the holy place, seynge it is moost holy: and for as moche as it is geuen you to bere the synne of the people, and make agreement for them before the Lorde? Behelde, the bloude of it was not brought in within the holy place, therfore sholde ye haue eaten it in said vnto Moses: beholde, this day haue they offered their synneofferynge and their burnt me after this maner. If I sholde eate of the synneofferyng to day, wolde the Lorde be con-

he was content.

whiche ye shall eate amonge all the beastes that are on the erth: what so euer hath hoofe

these shal ye not eate of them that chewe cud and haue hoofes. The Camell, for he cheweth cud, but he deuideth not the hoofe in to two clawes, therfore he shall be vncleane vnto you.
And the Conye, for he cheweth the cud, but de-uideth not the hoofe in to two clawes, therfore he is vncleane to you. And the Hare, for he like wyse cheweth the cud, but deuideth not ℔ hoofe into two clawes, he is therfore vncleane to you And the Swyne, for though he deuyde the hoofe in to two clawes, yet he cheweth not the cud, and therfore is vncleane to you. Of their flesh se ye eate not, and their carkalles se ye touche not, for they are vncleane to you.

These shal ye eate, of all that are in the waters: what so euer haue fynnes and scales in the waters, sees and ryuers, that shal ye eate.
And all that haue not fynnes and scales in the sees and ryuers of all that moue and lyue in the waters shall ye abhorre. Se ye eate not of their flesshe, and also that ye abhorre their carcalles: for all that haue no fynnes nor scales in the waters, shall be abhominacion vnto you. These are the foules which ye shal abhorre, and which shal not be eaten, for they are abhominacion. The egle, the goldwaube, the cormorannt, the kyte, the vultur and all his kynde, and all kynde of rauens, the estrich
the nyghtcrow, the cuckow, the sparowhauke and all the kynde: and the lytle oule, ℔ storme,
the great oule, the backe, the pellicane, ℔ ype,
the heron, ℔ lape with the kynde, the lapwing, and the swalowe. And all foules that crepe and go vpo all foure, shall be an abhominacion vnto you.

Yet these maye ye eate of all the foules that moue and go vpon four fete: euen those that haue no knees aboue vpon their fete to leape withall vpon the earthe: euen these of them ye may eate: the Arbe and all his kynde:
the Solaam with all his kynde: the Hargol and all the kynde, the Hagab and all his kynd.
All other foules that moue and haue foure fete, shall be abhominacion vnto you. In such ye shal be vncleane who so euer touche the carkalle of them, shall be vncleane vnto the euen:
and who so euer beareth the carkalle of them
shal washe his clothes, and so shal be vncleane vntyll euen.

Amonge all maner beastes that haue hoofes and deuyde them not in to two clawes, or that chewe not the cud, shall be vncleane vnto you: and all that toucheth them shall be vncleane. And all that goeth vpon his handes amonge all maner beastes that go on all foure fete, are vncleane vnto you: and as many as touche their carkalles, shall be vncleane vntyll the euen. And he that beareth the carkalle of them, shall washe his clothes, and be vncleane vntyll the euen, for suche are vncleane vnto you.

And these are also vncleane to you amonge the thynges that crepe vpon the erathe: the wesell, the mouse, the toode, and all his kynde,
the hedgehogge, stellio, the lizerde, the snayle, and the moule: these are vncleane to you among all that moue, and al that touche them when they be dead, shall be vncleane vntyll the euen. And what so euer any of the dead car-kalles of them fall vpon, shall be vncleane:
what so euer vessell of wod it be, or rayment, or skynne, or bagge, or what so euer thynge it be that any worke is wrought withall. And they shall be plunged in the water, and be vncleane tyll the euen, and then they shal be cleane agayne.

All maner of erthen vessell wherinto any of them falleth is vncleane with al that therin is and ✠ ye shal breake it. All maner meate that is eaten, yf any suche water come vpon it, it shall be vncleane. And all maner drynke that is dronke in all maner suche vessels shal be vncleane. And whether it be ouen or hetrel it shal be broken. For they are vncleane, and shal be vncleane vnto you. Howbeit the fountaynes and welles, and pondes of water, shal be cleane tyll. But who so euer toucheth their carkalles, shall be vncleane.

If the dead carcalle of any such fal vpon any seed vsed to sowe, it shal yet be cleane tyll: but yf any water be poured vpon the seed, and afterwarde the dead carkalle of them fall theron,
then it shal be vncleane vnto you.

If any beest of whiche ye may eate, dye, he ℔ toucheth the dead carcalle shal be vncleane tyll the euen. And he that eateth of any suche dead carkalle, shal washe his clothes, and remayne vncleane tyll the euen. And he also that beareth the carkalle of it, shal washe his clothes and be vncleane tyl euen.

All that crauleth vpon the earthe, is abhommacion, and shal not be eaten. And what so euer goeth vpon the brest, and what so euer goeth vpon foure or mo fete, amonge all that crauleth vpon the erth, of that se ye eate not:
for they are abhominable.

Make not your soules abhominable with nothyng that crepeth, neither make your sou-les vncleane with them: that ye sholde be defiled therby. For I am the Lorde your God, ✠ be sanctified therfore that ye may be holy, for I am holy: and defyle not your soules with any maner thyng that crepeth vpon the erth.
For I am the Lorde that brought you out of the lande of Egypt to be your God: be holy therfore, for I am holy.

This

This is the lawe of beest and foule, and of all maner thynge that ryueth and moueth in the water, & of all thynges that crepe on the earth, that ye may put difference betwene vncleene and cleene, and betwene the beestes that are eaten, and the beestes that are not eaten.

¶ The lawe howe women shuld be purged after theyr childbirthe.

CAPI. XII.

1 AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and sayd: speake vnto the childzen of Israel and saye: when a woman hath conceyued, and hath borne a man childe, she shall be vncleane seuen dayes: euen in lyke maner as when she is put apart in tyme of her naturall disease. And in the eyght daye the flesh of the childes foreskynne shall be cut awaye. And she shal continue in the bloude of her purifyinge .xxxiij. dayes, she shall touche no halowed 4 thynge, nor come in to the sanctuarye, vntyll the tyme of her purifyng be out. Yf she beare a maydechylde, then she shall be vncleene two wekes, as when she hath her naturall disease. And she shall continue in the bloude of her purifyng .lxvj. dayes.

5 * And when the dayes of her purifyinge are out: whether it be a sonne or a doughter, she shal bring a lambe of one yere olde for a burnt offering, and a yonge pigeon or a turtle doue for a synne offeryng vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, vnto the preest: which shall offre them before the Lorde, and make an attonement for her, & so she shal be purged of her yssue of bloud. * This is the law for her that hath borne a childe, whether it be male or female. But yf she be not able to bring a shepe then let her bringe two turtles, or two yong pygions: the one for the burntofferyng, and the other for the synneofferyng. And the preest shall make an attonement for her, and she shall be cleene.

¶ The Preestes are appointed to iudge who are Lepers.

CAPI. XIII.

1 AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and vnto Aaron, sayinge: when there appeareth a ryssyng in a mans flesshe eyther a scabbe or a glysteryng whyte: as thoughe the plage of leprosye were in the skyn of his flesh, let him be brought vnto Aaron the preest, or vnto one of his sonnes the preestes, and lette the preest loke on the soze that is in the skynne of his flesshe. Yf the heere in the soze be turned vnto whyte, & the soze also seme to be lower then the skynne of his flesshe, then it is surely a leprosye, and let the preest loke on hym, and iudge him vncleene.

3 Yf there be but a whyte plecke in the skyn of his flesshe, and seme not to be lower then the other skyn, nor the heere therof is turned vnto whyte, then let the preest shut him vp seuen dayes. And let the preest loke vpon hym the seuenth day: yf the soze seme to hym to abyde styll, and to go no further in the skynne, then let the preest shut him vp yet seuen dayes mo. And let the preest loke on him agayne the seuenth daye. Then yf the soze be waxed blackyssh, and is not growen abrode in the skynne, let the preest make him cleene, for it is but a skurfe. And let him washe his clothes, and then he is cleene: But yf the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is seene of the preest agayn: if the preest se that the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, let him make hym vncleene: for it is surely a leprosye.

9 Yf the plage of leprosye be in a man, let him be brought vnto the preest, and let the preest se him. Yf the ryssing appeare whyte in the skyn, and haue also made the heere white, and there be rawe flesshe in the soze also: then it is an olde leprosy in the skyn of his flesshe. And the preest shall iudge him vncleane, and shall not shut him vp. for he is vncleane.

11 Yf a leprosy breake out in the skyn, and couer all the skynne from the heed to the foote ouer all where so euer the preest loketh, then let the preest loke vpon hym. Yf the leprosye haue couered all his flesshe, let him iudge the 12 sore cleene, for in as moche as he is all togyther whyte, he is cleene. But yf there be rawe flesshe on hym when he is seene, then he shall be vncleene. Therfore when the preest seeth the rawe flesshe, let him iudge him vncleene. For in as moche as his flesshe is rawe, he is vncleene: and it is surely a true leprosye. But if the rawe flesshe depart agayn and chaunge in to whyte, then let him come to the preest, and let ỳ preest se hym. Yf the sore be chaunged vnto whyte, let the preest iudge the sore cleene, and then he is cleene.

18 When there is a byle in the skynne of any mannes flesshe, and is healed and after in the place of the byle there appeare a whyte ryssyng eyther a shynynge whyte, somwhat redysshe, let hym be seene of the preest. Yf when the preest seeth hym, it appeare lower then the other skynne, and the heere therof be chaunged vnto whyte, let the preest iudge hym vncleane: for it is a very leprosye, that is broken out in the place of the byle. But if when the preest loketh on it there be no white heeres therin, neyther the scabbe lower then the other skynne, and be somwhat blackysshe, then the preest shall shut him aparte seuen dayes. Yf it spred abrode in the meane season, then let the preest iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But yf the glysteryng whyte abyde styll in one place, and goo no further, then it is but the 23 pynne of the byle, and the preest shall iudge him cleene.

24 When the skyn of any mans flesshe is burnt with fyre that it be rawe, and there appere in the burnynge a glysteryng whyte that is somwhat redysshe or all togyther whyte, let the preest loke vpon it. yf the heere in that brightnesse be chaunged to whyte, and it also appere lower then the other skynne, then it is a leprosye that is broken oute of the place of the burnynge. And the preest shall iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosye. But yf (when the Preste loketh on it) be se there is no whyte heere in the bryghtnes, and that it is no lower then thother skynne, and that it is also blackeishe, then let the Preest shut hym vp seuen dayes. And yf (when the preest loketh on him the seuenth daye) it be growen abrode in the skynne, let hym iudge hym vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But yf that bryghtnesse abyde styll in one place and go no further in the skynne and be blackish, then it is but a rysyng in the place of the burnynge, and the Preest shall make hym cleane: for it is but the pynne of the burnynge onely.

When eyther man or woman hathe a brea kynge out vpon the heed or the beerde, let the Preest se it. And yf it appeare lower then the other skynne, and there be therin golden heres and skynne, let the preest iudge hym vncleane, for it is a breakynge oute of leprosye vpon the heed or beerde. Yf (when the Preeste loketh on the breakynge oute) he se it is no lower then thother skynne, and that there are blacke heeres therin, let hym shut hym vp seuen dayes. And let the preest loke on the disease the seuenth daye: and yf the breakynge out be gone no further, neyther be any golden heeres therin, neyther the scabbe be lower then the other skynne, then let him be shauen, but let him not shaue the scabbe: and let the preest shut hym vp seuen dayes mo. And let the preest loke on the breaking out the.ix. daye agayne: yf the breakyng out be gone no further in the skynne, nor more lower then thother skynne, then let the preest iudge him cleane, and let hym washe his clothes, and then he is cleane.

Yf the breakynge out growe in the skynne after he be ones iudged cleane, let the preeste se hym. yf it be growen abrode in dede in the skynne, let the Preest take no further for any golden heeres, for he is vncleane. But yf he se the scabbe stande styll, and that there is blacke heere growen vp therin, then the scabbe is healed, and he is cleane: and the Preeste shall iudge hym cleane. Yf there be founde in the skynne of the flesshe of man or woman a glysterynge whyte, lette the preest se it. Yf there appeare in ther flesshe a glysterynge whyte, somwhat blackyshe, then it is but freckels growen vp in the skynne: and he is cleane.

Yf a mans heere fall of his heed, then he is heedbauide and cleane. Yf his heere fall before in his forehed, then he is forehedbauide and cleane. Yf there be in the bauide heed, or bauide forehed a redyshe whyte scabbe, then there is leprosye sprongē vp in his bauide heed, or bauide forehed. And let the preest se it: and yf the rysynge of the sore be reddyshwhyte in his bauide heed or forehed after the maner of a leprosye in the skynne of the flesshe, then he is a leper, and vncleane: and the preest shall iudge him vncleane, for the plage of his heed. And the leper in whom the plage is, shal haue his clothes rent, and his heed bare, and his mouthe mufled, and shall be called vncleane. And as long as the disease lasteth vpon hym, he shall be vncleane, for he is vncleane: he shall therfore dwell alone, and euen without the hoost shall his habitacion be.

When the plage of leprosye is in a clothe: whether it be lynnen or wollen, yea and whether it be in the warpe or woofe of the lynnen, or of the wollen: eyther in a skynne, or any thynge made of skynne, yf the disease be pale or somwhat reddyshe in the clothe or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or woofe, or any thyng that is made of skynne, then it is a leprosye, and must be shewed vnto the preest. And when the preest seyth the plage, let hym shut it vp seuen dayes, and let him loke on the plage the seuenth daye. Yf it be increased in the cloth, whether it be in the warpe or woofe or in a skynne, or in any thynge that is made of skynne, then the plage is a freatyng leprosye, and it is vncleane: and that clothe shall be burnt, eyther warpe or woofe, whether it be wollen or lynnen, or any thynge that is made of skynne wherin the plage is, for it is a freatynge leprosye, and shall be burnt in the fyre. Leprosye in clothe.

Yf the preest se that the plage hath freaten no further in the clothe: eyther in the warpe or woofe, or in what so euer thynge of skynne it be, then let the preest commaunde them to washe the thynge wherin the plage is, and let hym shut it vp seuen dayes and moo. And let the preest loke on it agayne after that the plage is washed. If the plage haue not chaunged his fashion, though it be spred no further abrode, it is yet vncleane. And se ye burne it in the fyre, for it is freat inwarde: whether in parte or in all. But yf the preest se it somwhat blackyshe after it is washed, let hym rent it out of the clothe, or out of the skynne, or out of the warpe or woofe.

And yf it appeare any more in the clothe eyther in the warpe, or in the woofe, or in any thynge made of skynne, then it is a watynge plage. And se ye burne that with fyre wherin the plage is. Discouer the cloth either warpe or woofe, or what so euer thing of skynne it be which thou hast washed, and the plage be departed from it shall be washed ones agayne, and then it is clene. This is the lawe for the plage of leprosye in a cloth, whether it be wollen or lynnen: either whether it be in the warpe or woofe, or in any thyng made of skynnes, to iudge it clene or vncleane.

¶ The cleansinge of the leper, and of the house that he dwelleth in.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * this is the lawe for a leper when he shall be cleansed: He shal be brought vnto the preest, and the preest shall go forthe without the hoost and loke vpon hym. Yf the plage of leprosye be healed in the leper, then shall the preest commaunde that there be brought for hym that shall be cleansed two lyuynge birdes that are clene, and cedar wodde, and a pece of purple cloth and yssope. And the preest shal commaunde that one of the byrdes be killed hylled in an erthen vessell with rennyng water. And the preest shall take the lyuynge byrde and the cedar wode and the purple and the hyssope, and shal dyppe them and the lyuing byrde in the bloude of the slayne byrde, and in the rennynge water and sprynkle it vpon him that muste be cleensed of his leprosye seuen tymes and cleanse him, and shall let the liuing byrde goo free in to the feldes.

B And he that is cleensed shall washe his clothes, and shaue of all his heere, and wash him selfe in water, and then he is clene. And after that he shall come in to the hoost, but shal tarye without his tent seuen dayes. When the seuenth daye is come, he shall shaue of all his heere, bothe vpon his heed, and his berde, and on his browes: and euen all the heere that is on him, shall be shauen of. And he shal washe his clothes and his flesshe in water, and then he shall be clene.

And when the eyght daye is come, let hym take two lammes without blemysshe, and a ewelambe of a yere olde without blemysshe, and thre tenth deales of fyne flour, for a meat offeryng, mynegled with oyle, and a logge of oyle. Then let the preeste that maketh him clene, bringe the man that is made clene with those thinges before the Lorde vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let the preest take one of the lambes, & offer hym for a trespasoffering, and the logge of oyle: and waue them before the Lorde. And then let them slee the lambe in the place where the synne offering and the burntoffering were slayne: euen in the holy place. For as the synneoffrynge is, euen so is the trespasoffrynge of the preestes for it is moost holy.

C Then let the preest take of the bloude of the trespasoffrynge, and put it vpon the typ of the right eare of him that is cleensed, and vpon the thombe of his eyght hande, and vpon the great too of his right foote. Then let the preest take of the logge of oyle, and poure it in to the palme of his lefte hande, and dyp his right fynger in the oyle that is in the palme of his lefte hande, and let him sprynckle it with his fynger seuen tymes before the Lorde. And of the reste of the oyle that is in his hande, shall the preest put vpon the typ of the eyght eare of hym that is cleensed, and vpon the thombe of his eyght hande, and vpon the great too of his eyght foote: euen vpon the bloude of the trespasoffrynge. And the reste of the oyle that is in the preestes hande, he shall poure vpon the heed of hym that is cleensed: and so shall the preest make an attonement for him before the Lorde.

Then let the preest offre the synneoffrynge and make an attonement for him that is cleensed for his vncleanesse. And then let the burnt offryng be slayne, and let the preest put bothe the burntoffryng and the meatoffryng vpon the aulter: and make an attonement for him and then he shall be clene. Yf he be poore and can not get so moche, then let hym bryng one lambe for a trespace offryngе to waue it, and to make an attonement for him, and a tenthe deale of fyne flour mynegled with oyle for a meatoffryngе, and a logge of oyle, and two turtle doues or two yonge pigions whiche he is able to get, and let thone be a synneoffryngе, and thother a burnt offryngе. And let him bryng them the eyght day for his cleensing vnto the preest to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde.

D And let the preest take ỹ lambe that is the trespace offryngе, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And when the lambe of the trespasoffryngе is slayne, the preest shall take of the bloude of the trespace offryngе, and put it vpon the typ of his eyght eare that is cleensed, and vpon the thombe of his eyghte hande, and vpon the greate too of his eyghte foote. And the preest shall poure of the oyle in to his eyghte hande, and shall sprynckle with his fynger of the oyle that is in his lefte hande seuen tymes before the Lorde.

And the preest shall put on the oyle that is in his hande (vpon the typ of the eyghte eare of hym that is cleensed, and vpon the thombe of his eyght hande, and vpon the greate too of his eyghte foote: euen in the place where the bloude of the trespasoffryngе was put. And the reste of the oyle that is in his hande, he shall poure vpon the heed of him that is cleensed: to make an attonement for hym before the Lorde. And he shall offre one of the turtle doues, or of the yonge pigions, suche as he can get: the one for a synne offryng, and thother for a burntoffryngе vpon the aulter. And so shal the preest make an attonement for him that is cleensed before the Lorde. This is the lawe of him that hathe the plage of leprosye, whose hande is not able to get that belongeth to his cleensynge.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron saying: when ye become vnto the land of E Canaan which I giue you to possesse: yf I put the plage of leprosye in the house of the lande of your possession, let hym that owneth ỹ house go and tell the preest, saying: me thynke that there is as it were a leprosye in the house. And the preest shall commaunde them to voyde all thynge forth of the house, before the preest, enter to se the plage: that he make not all that is in the house vncleane, and then the preest shal go in, and se the house.

F Yf the preest se that the plage is in the walles of the house, and that there be holow strakes pale or redde whiche seme to be lower then the other partes of the wall, then lette the preest go out at the house doores, and shut vp the house for seuen dayes. And let the preest come agayne the seuenth daye and se it, yf the plage be increased in the walles of the house, lette the preeste commaunde them to take awaye the stones in whyche the plage is, and lette them caste them in a foule place without the cyte, and scrape the house within rounde aboute: and poure oute the duste without the cyte in a foule place. And lette them take other stones, and put them in the places of those stones, and other matter, and plaster the house with. Yf nowe the plage come agayne, and breake oute in the house, after that they haue taken awaye the stones, and scraped the house, and after that the house is playsterco anewe: let the Priest come and se it. And if then he perceyue that the plage hath eaten further in the house, it is a frettynge leprosye that is in the house, and it is vncleane. Then they shall breake downe the house: both the stones, tymbre, and all the morter of the house, and carye it forthe of the cuye vnto a foule place. Moreouer he that goeth in to the house all the whyle it is shut vp, shall be vncleane tyll nyght. And he that slepeth in the house shall washe his clothes, and he also that eateth in the house, shall washe his clothes.

But yf the Priest come and se that the plage hathe spred no further in the house after it is newe plastered, then let hym make it cleane, for the plage is healed. And lette hym take to clense the house with: two byrdes, cedar wodde, and purple clothe and slope. And let hym kyll one of the byrdes in an earthen vessell with runnynge water: and take the cedar wodde, the slope, the purple and the lyuynge byrde, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slayne byrde, and in the runnynge water, and sprynckle vpon the house seuen tymes, and clense the house with the bloude of the byrde, and with the runninge water, and with the lyuynge byrde, and with the cedar wodde, and the slope, and the purple clothe. And he shall let the lyuynge byrde flee forthe of the towne in to the wylde feldes, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shall be cleane. This is the lawe for all maner plage of leprosye and breakynge out, and of the leprosye of clothe and house, and of rysinges, scabbes, and glysterynge white, to teache when a thynge is vncleane or cleane. This is the lawe of leprosye.

¶ The maner of purgynge the vnclennes bothe of men and women.

CAPI. XV.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and say vnto them: euery man that hath a runnynge yssue in his flesshe, is vncleane by reason of his yssue. And hereby shall it be knowen when he is vncleane. Yf his flesshe runne, or yf his flesshe congele by the reason of his yssue, then he is vncleane. Euery couche wheron he lyeth, and euery thynge wheron he sytteth shall be vncleane. He that toucheth his couche shall washe his clothes, and bath him selfe with water, and be vncleane tyll the euen.

He that sytteth on that wheron he sate, shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euenynge. And he that toucheth his flesshe, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. Yf any suche spyt vpon hym that is cleane, he muste washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water and be vncleane vntyll euen.

And what so euer sadel that he rideth vpon shall be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth any thynge that was vnder hym, shal be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any suche thynges, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: and what so euer he toucheth (yf he haue not fyrste washed his handes in water) must washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euenynge. * And yf he touche a vessell of erth, it shall be broken: and all vessels of wod, shall be rynsed in water. * Lem. 11. and 15.

When he that hath an yssue is clensed of his yssue, let hym nombre seuen dayes after he is cleane, and washe his clothes, and bathe his flesshe in runnynge water, and then he is cleane. And the eyght daye lette hym take two turtle doues, or two yonge pygeons, and come before the Lorde vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and gyue them vnto the Priest. And the Priest shall offre them: the one for a fynne offrynge, and the other for a burntoffrynge: and make an attonement for hym before the Lorde concernynge his yssue.

Yf any mans seed departe frome him in his slepe, he shall washe his flesshe in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And all the clothes or furres wheron suche sede chaunceth, shall be washed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And yf a woman lye with suche person, they shall washe them selues with water, and be vncleane tyll euen.

When a womans naturall course of bloud runneth, she shall be put aparte seuen dayes: and who so euer toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth or sytteth vpon as longe as she is put aparte, shall be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth her couche, shall washe his clothes, and bath him selfe with water, & be vncleane vnto the euen. And who so euer toucheth any thyng that she sate vpon, shal washe his clothes, and washe hym selfe also in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: so that whether he touch her couche or any thynge wheron she hath sytten, he shal be vncleane vnto the euen: and yf a man lye with her in the meane tyme, he shall be put aparte as well as she, and shall be vncleane seuen dayes, and all his couche wherin he sleepeth shall be vncleane.

When a womans bloude runneth longe tyme, beyonde the tyme of her naturall course: as longe as her vnclennesse runneth, she shall be vncleane, after the maner as when she is put aparte. All her couches wheron she lyeth (as longe as her yssue lasteth) shall be vnto her as her couche, when she is put aparte. And what so euer she sytteth vpon, shall be vncleane as is her vnclennesse when she is put aparte. And who so euer toucheth them, shall be vncleane, and shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto euen.

But yf she be cleane of her yssue, lette her count her seuen dayes, after that she is clene. And the eyght daye let her take two turtles or two yonge pygeons and bringe them vnto the the preste vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the preste shall offer the one for a synneoffrynge, and the other for burntoffrynge: and so make an attonement for her before the Lorde, concernynge her vncleane nesse. Make the chyldren of Israel to kepe them selues frome theyr vnclennes, that they dye not in their vnclennesse: when they haue defyled my habitacion that is amonge them.

This is the lawe of him that hath a runnynge sore, and of hym whose seed runneth from him in his slepe and is defiled therwith, and of her that bathe an yssue of bloude as longe as she is put aparte, and of whosoeuer hath a runnynge sore whether it be man or woma, and of him that sleepeth with her that is vncleane.

What Aaron muste doo or he entre in to the holy place. The clensynge of the sanctuary or holy place. Of the feast of clensynge. Aaron confesseth the sinnes of the chyldren of Israel ouer the lyue gote and putteth them vpon his heade.

CAPI. XVI.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses * after the death of the two sonnes of Aaron, when they had offered before the Lorde and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moses: speake vnto Aaro thy brother that he go not at all tymes into the holy place, that is within the vayle that hangeth before the mercyseate which is vpon the arche that he dye not. For I will appeare in a clowde vpo the mercyseate. * Exod. 30.

But on this maner shall Aaron go into the holy place: with a bullocke for a synneoffring and a Ram for a burntoffringe. And he shall put the holy lynen albe vpon him, and shall haue a lynen breche vpon his fleshe, and shal gyrde him with a lynen gyrdell, and put the lynen myter vpon his heade: for they are holy rayments. And he shall washe his fleshe with water, and put theym on. And he shall take of the multitude of the children of Israel two he gotes for a synneoffring and a Ram for a burntoffringe.

And Aaron shall offer the bullocke for his synneoffringe and make an attonemẽt for him and for his houshe. And he shall take the two gotes and presente them before the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the two gootes: one lot for the Lorde, and an other for a scapegote. And Aaron shall bringe the gote vpon which the Lordes lot fell, and offer him for a synneoffringe. But the gote on which the lot fell to escape, he shal set alyue before the Lord to reconcyle with and to let him go for into the wyldernesse. And Aaron shall bringe the bullocke of his synneoffringe, and make attonement for him selfe and for his houshold, and kyll him.

And then he shall take a censer full of burnynge coles out of the altare that is before the Lorde, and his handefull of swete incense beaten small and bringe them within the vayle, and put the incense vpon the fyre before the Lorde: that the clowde of the incense maye couer the mercyseate that is vpon the wytnes that he dye not. * And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke and sprinkle it with his fynger before the mercyseate eastwarde: and seuen tymes. * Hebr. 12. and 9.

Then shall he kyll the gote that is the peoples synneoffringe, & bringe his bloude within the vayle, and do with his bloude as he did with the bloude of the bullocke, and let hym sprinkle it towarde the mercyseate, and before the mercyseate: and reconcyle the holy place frome the vnclennesse of the chyldren of Israel, and frome their treſpaces and all their synnes. And so let him do also vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse that dwelleth with them, euē amonge their vnclennesses.

* And there shalbe no person in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, tyll he come forth agayne. And he shall make attonement for him selfe and his houshold, and all the multitude of Israel. Then he shall go forthe vnto the aultare that standeth before the Lorde, and clense it, and shall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and the gote, and put vpon the hornes of the altare rounde about, and sprynkle of the bloude vpon it with his fynger seuen tymes, and clense it, and halow it frome the vnclennesses of the chyldren of Israel. * Luke 1.9

And when he hath clensed the holy place & the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the altar, let him bringe the lyue gote, and let Aaron put bothe his handes vpon the head of the lyue gote, and confesse ouer him all the misdrades of the chyldren of Israel, and their treſpaces, & all their synnes: and let him put theym vpon the heed of the gote, and sende him awaye by the handes of one that is acquaynted in the wyldernesse. And the goote shall beare vpon him all their misdedes into the wyldernesse, and he shall let the gote go for in the wyldernesse.

And let Aaron go into the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and put of the lynen clothes which he put on when he went into the holy place, and leaue them there. And let him washe his fleshe with water in the holy place, and put on his owne rayment, and then come out and offer his burntoffrynge and the burntoffring of the people, and praye for him selfe and the people, and the fat of the synneoffrynge let him burne vpon the altare. And let him that caryed forth the scapegote, washe his clothes and bathe his fleshe in water, and then come into the hoste agayne.

And the bullocke of the synneoffringe and the gote of the synneoffrynge (whose bloude was brought in to make an attonemẽt in the holy place) let one carye forthe without the hoste and burne with fyre: bothe their skynnes, their fleshe and their dunge. And let him that burneth theym, washe his clothes and bathe his fleshe in water, and so come into the hoste agayne. And this shalbe an ordinaunce for euer vnto you. And euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, ye shall humble your

soules and shall do no worke at al: whether it be one of your selues or a straunger that sojourneth amonge you, for that day shall an attonement be made for you to clense you 15 frome all your synnes before the Lorde, and ye shall be cleane. It shall be a Sabboth of rest vnto you, and ye shal humble your soules, and it shall be an ordynaunce for euer.

And the preest that is anoynted and whose hande was fylled to mynister in his fathers stede, shall make the attonement and shall put on the holy lynnen clothes and holy vestimentes, and shall repourge the holy sanctuary and the tabernacle of wit nesse and the aultare, and shall make attonement also for the preestes and all the people of the congregacion. And this shall be an euerlastyng ordinaunce vnto you to make attonement for the chyldren of Israel for al theyr synnes once a yere. and it was done euen as ✠ Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ All sacrifyce must be brought to the doye of the tabernacle. To deuyls may they not offer. Bloude and all karen is forbydden them.

CAPI. XVII.

AND the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake to Aaron and his sonnes, and vnto al the chyldren of Israel, and tell them, this is the thyng which the Lorde charged, sayinge: what so euer he be of the house of Israel, that killeth an oxe, lambe or gote, in the hoste or out of the hoste, and bryngeth them not vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, to offre an offrynge vnto the Lorde, before the dwellyng place of ✠ Lorde, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as thoughe he had shedde bloude, and that man shall perysshe from his people.

Wherfore let the chyldren of Israel bryng theyr offrynges that they offre in the wylde felde, vnto the Lorde: euen vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and vnto the preest, and offre them for the peaceoffrynges vnto the Lorde. And the Preest shall sprynckle the bloude vpon the aulter of the Lorde in 15 the booze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fat to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And let them no moze offre theyr offrynges vnto deuyls, after whome they go an hoorynge. And this shall be an ordinaunce for euer vnto you, thorowe out youre generacions.

And thou shalte saye vnto them: what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the straungers that sojourne among you, that offreth a burntoffrynge, or any other offrynge, and bryngeth it not vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse to offre vnto the Lorde, the same shall perysshe frome his
E people. And what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the straungers that sojourne amonge you that eateth any maner of bloude, I wyll sette my face agaynst that soule that eateth bloude, and wyll destroye him out of his people, for the lyfe of the flesh is in the bloude, and I haue gyuen it vnto you
D vpon the aulter, to make attonement for youre soules, for bloude shall make attonement for the soule. And therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: se no soule of you eate bloude, ne any straunger that sojourneth amonge you.

Whatsoeuer man it be of the chyldren of Israel or of the straungers that sojourne amonge you: that hunteth and catcheth any beest or foule that maye be eaten, he shall poure out the bloude and couer it with erth, for the lyfe of al flesshe is in the bloude, therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel ✠ ye shall eate the bloude of no maner of flesshe, for the lyfe of all flesshe is in his bloude, and whosoeuer therfore eateth it, shall perysshe. And whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth that whiche dyed alone or that whiche was torne with wylde beastes: whether it be one of youre selues or a straunger, he shall washe his clothes and bathe him selfe in water and shall be vncleane vnto the euen, and then is he cleane. But yf he wasshe them not nor washe his flesshe, he shall beare his synne.

¶ what degrees of kynred maye marye together and what not.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and shewe them, I am the Lorde your god. Wherfore after the doynges of the lande of Egypte wherin ye dwelte, se ye doo not: after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, whyther I wyll bringe you: neyther walke ye in theyr ordinaunces, ✠ but do after my iudgementes, and kepe myne ordynaunces, to walke therin. For I am the Lorde youre God. Kepe therfore myne ordinaunces, and my iudgementes, whiche yf a man doo, he shall lyue therby: for I am the Lorde.

Se ye goo to none of youre nyghest kynred, for to vncouer theyr secretes, for I am the Lorde. The secretes of thy father, and thy mother, se thou vnpyle not: she is thy mother, therfore shalte not thou discouer her secretes. The secretes of thy fathers wyfe shalte thou not discouer, for they are thy fathers secretes. Thou shalte not discouer the 15 nuditie of thy sister the daughter of thy father or of thy mother: whether she be borne at home or without. Thu shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy sones daughter or thy daughters daughter, for that is thyne owne secrete: Thou shalte not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers wyues daughter, whiche she bare to thy father, for she is thy sister: Thou shalte therfore not discouer her secretes Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers sister, for she is thy fathers nexte kynswoman. Thou shalte not discouer the secretes of thy mothers sister, for she is thy mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalte not vncouer the secretes of thy thy fathers brother: that is, thou shalte not go in, to his wyfe, for she is thyne awnte.

Thou shalt not discouer the secretes of thy doughter in lawe, for she is thy sonnes wyfe: therfore vncouer not her secretes. Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy brothers wife, for that is thy brothers priuite. Thou shalte not discouer the priuytes of the wyfe and her daughter also, neyther shalte thou take her sonnes daughter or her daughters daughter to vncouer their secretes, they are her nerre kynne, it were therfore wyckednesse. Thou shalte not take a wyfe and her sister vnto, to vexe her that thou wouldst open her secretes as longe as she liueth. Thou shalte not goo vnto a woman to vncouer her priuitye, as longe as she is put aparte for her vncleannesse. ✠ Thou shalte not lye with thy neyghbours wyfe, to defyle thy selfe with her. Thou shalt not geue of thy seed to offer it vnto Molech, for thou defyle not the name of thy God, for I am the Lorde.

Thou shalt not lye with mākynde as with womankynde, for that is abhommination.

Thou shalt lye with no maner of beaste to defyle thy selfe therwith, neyther shall any woma stonde before a beast to lye wnto therto, for that is abhommination.

. Defyle not your selues in any of these thinges, for with all these thinges are the nacions defyled which I cast out before you: and the lande is defyled, and I will visyte the wickednesse therof vpon it, and the lande shall spewe out her inhabiters. ✠ Kepe ye therfore myne ordinaunces and iudgementes, and se ye wo none of these abhominations: neyther any of you nor any straunger that sojourneth amonge you (for all these abhommanations haue the men of the lande wne whiche were there before you, and the lande is defyled) lest the lande spewe you out when ye haue defyled it, as it spewed oute the nations that were there before you. For who so euer shall comit anye of these abhominations, the same soules that do them shall perisshe from their people. Therefore se ye kepe myne ordinaunces, that ye commit none of these abhommable customes whiche were committed before you: that ye defyle not your selues therwith for I am the Lorde your God.

CAPI. XIX.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to all the multitude of the children of Israel, and saye vnto the. ✠ Be holy for I the Lorde your God am holy. Se ye feare euery man his father and his mother, and that ye kepe my Sabbothes, for I am the Lorde your God. Ye shal not turne vnto ydolles nor make you goddes of metall: I am the Lorde your God.

When ye offre your peaceoffrynges vnto the Lorde, ye shall offer them that ye may be accepted. And it shalbe eaten the same daye ye offer it and on the morowe, but what so euer is lefte on the thirde daye shalbe burnt in the fyre. If it be eaten the thirde daye, it shalbe vncleane and not accepted. And he that eateth it shall beare his synne, because he hath defyled the halowed thinges of the Lorde, and that soule shall perisshe from his people.

✠ When ye reape wone the tyme come of your lande, ye shall not reape wone the vttermost borders of your feldes, neyther shalt thou gather that is lefte behynde in thy haruest. Thou shalte not pluche in all thy vynearde clene, ne gather in the grapes that are ouercraped. But thou shalte leaue them for the poore and straunger. I am the Lorde your God.

Ye shal not steale neyther lye, neither deale falsely one with an other. ✠ Ye shal not sweare by my name falsely, that thou defyle not the name of thy God, I am the Lorde. Thou shalt not begyle thy neyghboure with cauillations, neyther robbe him violently, neither shall the workmans labour abyde with the vntyll the morowe. Thou shalte not curse the deafe, neyther put a stombyng blocke before the blynde, but shalt feare thy God. I am the Lorde. Ye shall do no vnrighteousnes in iudgement. ✠ Thou shalt not fauoure the poore nor honoure the myghtye, but shalte iudge thy neyghbour righteously.

Thou shalt not go vp and downe a prieuy accuser amonge thy people, neither shalt thou holde the blonde of thy neyghboure: I am the Lorde. ✠ Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thyne harte, but shalt in any wyse rebuke thy neyghboure, that thou bere not synne for his sake. ✠ Thou shalt not auenge thy selfe nor beare hate in thy mynde against the children of thy people, but shalt loue thy neyghbour as thy selfe, I am the Lorde.

Kepe myne ordinaunces. Let none of thy cattell gendre with a contrary kynde, neyther sowe thy felde with myngled seed, neyther shalt thou put on any garment of lynen and wollen.

If a man haue to do with a woman that is bonde and hathe bene medled with all of an other man which neyther is bought nor freedome gyuen her, there shalbe a payne vpon it, but they shall not dye, because she was not made free. And he shall bringe for his trespasoffrynge vnto the Lorde, euen vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, a Ram for a trespasoffrynge. And the preest shal make attonement for him with the Ram of the trespasoffrynge before the Lorde, for his synne whiche he hathe done, and it shall be forgyuen him, concernynge the synne whiche he hath done.

And when ye come to the lande and haue planted all maner of trees whereof men eate ye shall holde them vncircumcysed as concernynge their frute, euen three yere shall they be vncircumcysed vnto you and shall not be eate of, and the fourth yere all the frute of them shall be holy and acceptable to the Lorde. And the fifth yere maye ye eate of the frute of them

Ye shall not rent your flesshe for any soules sake, nor pynne any markes vpon you: I am the Lord. Thou shalt not pollute thy daughter, that thou wolest maynteyne her to be an hoore: least the lande fall to whoredome, and wax full of wyckednesse. Se ye kepe my Sabbothes & feare my sanctuary: I am the Lord. Turne not to them that worke with spirites, ne regarde them, that obserue dumall dayes: that ye be not defyled by theym, for I am the Lorde your God.

Thou shalt ryse vp before the hoorehed, & reuerence the face of the olde man, and dread thy God, for I am the Lorde. * If a straunger sojourne by the in youre lande, se ye vexe him not: But let the straunger that dwelleth with you, be as one of your selues, and loue him as thy selfe, for ye were straungers in the lande of Egypte. I am the Lorde your God.

Ye shall do no vnrygh teousnes in iudgemēt neyther in mete yerde, weyght or measure. But ye shall haue true balances, true weyghtes, a true Epha, and a true Hin. I am the Lord your God which brought you forth of the lād of Egypt, that ye shulde obserue all myne ordinaunces and iudgementes and kepe them: I am the Lorde.

¶ They that gyue of theyr seed to Moloch shall dye therfore. Other goodly lawes necessarye to be vsed in common weales.

CAPI. XX.

AND the Lorde talked with Moses, sayenge: tell the children of Israel, whoso euer he be of the children of Israel or of the straungers that dwell in Israel, that giueth of his seed vnto Moloch he shall dye for it: the people of the lande shall stone him with stones. And I will set my face vpon that fellow, and will destroye him from his people: because he hath geuen of his seed vnto Moloch, to defyle my sanctuary and to polute my holy name. And thoughe the people of the lande hyde their eyes from that fellow, when he geueth of his seed vnto Moloch, so that they kyll him not: yet I will put my face vpō that man and vpon his generation, and will destroye him and all that goo a whoorynge with him and commit whoredome with Moloch fro their people.

If any soule turne him to enchaunters or sorcerers of tokens and go a whoorynge after them, I will put my face vpon that soule and will destroye him from his people. Sanctifye your selues therfore, and be holy, for I am the Lorde youre God. And se ye kepe myne ordinaunces and do them. For I am the Lorde which sanctifye you.

Who so euer curseth his father or mother, that dye for it, his bloud on his head, because he hath cursed his father or mother.

He that breaketh wedlocke with an others mans wyfe shall dye for it, because he hathe broke wedlocke with his neyghbours wyfe, & so shall the lyke wyse.

If a man lye with his fathers wyfe & vncouer his fathers secretes, they shall bothe dye for it, their bloude be vpon their heedes.

If a man lye with his daughter in lawe they shall dye both of the: they haue wrought abhominacion, their bloude vpō their heedes.

If a man lye with mankynde after the maner as with woman kynde, they haue bothe committed abhominacion and shal dye for it. Their bloude be vpon their heades.

If a man take a wyfe and her mother therto, it is wickednesse. Men shall burne with fyre both him and them, that there be no wickednesse amonge you.

If a man lye with a beast he shall dye, and ye shall slay the beast.

If a woman go vnto a beast and lye with the: thou shalte kyll the woman and the beast also, they shall dye, and their bloude be vpon their heades.

If a man take his sister, his fathers daughter or his mothers daughter, & se her secretes and she se his secretes also: it is a wyched thinge. Therfore let them perysshe in the sight of their people, he hath vncouered his sisters secretnesse, he shall therfore beare his synne.

If a man lye with a woman in tyme of her flowers and vncouer her secretes and ope her fountayne, and she also open the fountayne of her bloude, they shall both perysshe from the people.

Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy mothers sister nor of thy fathers sister, for he that doth so, vncouereth his nexte kyn: & they shall beare their myswynge.

If a man lye with his vncles wyfe, he hath vncouered his vncles secretes, they shall beare their synne, and shall dye childelesse.

If a man take his brothers wyfe, it is an vncleane thynge, he hath vncouered his brothers secretes, they shall be childelesse therfore.

* Se ye kepe therfore all myne ordinaunces and all my iudgementes, and that ye do them, that the lande whether I bringe you to dwell therin, spewe you not out. And se ye walke not in the maners of the nacyons which I cast out before you. For they committed all these thinges, and I abhorred them.

But I haue sayde vnto you that ye shall enioye their lande, and that I wil geue it vn to you to possesse it: a lāde that floweth with milke and hony. I am the Lorde your God, which haue diuyded you from other nacions: * that ye shulde put differēce betwene cleane beastes and vncleane, and betwene vncleane soules and them that are cleane. Make not your soules therfore abhominable with beastes and soules, and with all maner thinge that creepeth on the grounde, which I haue secreted vnto you to holde them vncleane. Be holy vnto me, for I the Lorde am holy, and haue secreted you from other nations: that ye shulde be myne.

CAPL. XXI.

A And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Speake vnto the preestes the sonnes of Aaron and saye vnto them. A preest shall not defyle him selfe at the wath of any of his people, but vpon his kynne that is nyghe vnto him: as his mother, father, sonne, doughter and brother: and on his syster as longe as she is a mayde and dwelleth nyghe him and was neuer gyuen to man: on her he maye defyle him selfe. But he shal not make him selfe vncleane vpon a ruler of his people to polute him selfe withall.

☞ They shall make them no baldnesse vpon their heades or shaue of the lockes of their beardes, nor make any markes in their flesshe. They shall be holy vnto their God, and not polute the name of their God, for the sacrifices of the Lorde and the breed of their God they offre: therfore they muste be holy.

☞ B They shall take no wyfe that is an hoore or polluted, or put frome her husbande: for a preest is holy vnto his God. Sanctifye hym therfore, for he offreth vp the bread of God: he shall therfore, be holy vnto the, for I the Lorde which sanctifie you, am holy.

I am the Lorde. He shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe: but no wydow nor deuorsed nor defyled hoore. But he shall take a mayde of his owne people to wyfe, that he defyle not his seed vpon his people: for I am the Lorde which sanctifye him.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayenge/ speake to Aaron, and saye: No man of thy seed in their generacions that hath any deformitie vpon him, shall preace to offer the bred of his God: for none that hath any blemyshe shall come nere: whether he be blynde, lame, mutilated, or that hath any mishapped membre, or broken foted, or broken handed, or croke backed, or perlesyed, or gogeleyed/or maungre, or skaulde, or hath his stones broken.

No man that is deformed of the seed of Aaron the preest, shall come nyghe to offre the sacrifices of the Lorde. If he haue a deformitie, he shall not preace to offer the bred of his God. Notwithstandinge he shall eate of the bred of his God: euen as well of the most holy, as of the holy: but shall not go in, vnto the vayle, nor come nyghe the altare, because he is deformed that he polute not my sanctuary/ for I am the Lorde that sanctifye them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to his sonnes and vnto all the Chyldren of Israel.

¶ What maner personnes ought to abstayne from eatynge the thynges that were offred. How, what, and when they shulde be offered.

CAPL. XXII.

A And the Lorde comened with Moses, sayenge: byd Aaron and his sonnes that they abstayne fromes the halowed thinges of the children of Israel which they haue halowed vnto me, that they polute not my holy name: for I am the Lorde. Saye vnto them: who so euer he be of all youre seed amonge youre generacion after you, that goeth vnto the halowed thinges which the children of Israel shall haue halowed vnto the Lorde, his vnclennes shall be vpon hym: and that soule shall perysshe forth of my sight. I am the Lorde.

None of the seed of Aaron that is a leper or that hath a runnynge sore, shall eate of the halowed thinges tyll he be cleane. And whoso euer toucheth any vncleane soule, or man whose seed runneth frome him by nyghte, or who so euer toucheth any wormē that is vncleane to him, or man that is vncleane to him what so euer vnclennesse he hath: the same soule that hath any suche thinge, shall be vncleane vntyll euen, and shall not eate of the halowed thinges vntyll he haue washed his flesshe with water. And then when the sonne B is downe, he shall be cleane and shall afterwarde eate of the halowed thinges: for they are his fode. Exod.xxii.b. Ezech.xliiii.g.

* Of a beast that dyeth alone or is rent with wylde beastes, he shall not eate, to defyle him selfe therwith: I am the Lorde. But let them kepe therfore myne ordinaunce least they lade synne vpon them and dye therin, when they haue defyled them selues: for I am the Lorde which sanctify them.

There shall no straunger eate of the halowed thinges, neyther the preestes gest, or hyred seruaunt. But yf the preest bye any person with money, he maye eate of it, and he also that is borne in his houfle, maye eate of his bred. If the preestes doughter be maryed vnto a straunger, she maye not eate of the halowed breuestinges. Notwithstandinge yf the preestes doughter be a wydow or deuorsed, and haue no childe but is returned vnto her fathers houfle agayne, she shall eate of her fathers bred as well as she dyd in her youth. But there shall no straunger eate therof. If a man eate of the halowed thinges vnwittingly, he shall put the fyfte parte therunto, and make good vnto the preest the halowed thinge. And let the preestes se, that they defyle not the halo-halowed thinges of the children of Israel which they haue offred vnto the Lorde, least they lade them selues with mekynge a trespace in eatynge their halowed thinges, for I am the Lorde which halowe them.

C And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to Aaron and his sonnes and to all the childzen of Israel and saye vnto them, what so euer he be of the house of Israel or straunger in Israel that will offer his offrynge: what so euer vowe or freewyll offrynge it be wyche they wyll offer vnto the Lorde for a burntoffrynge to reconcyle them selues, it muste be a male without blemyth of the oxen, sheepe, or gootes, let them offer nothyng that is deformed for they shall gette no fauoure

If a man wyll offer a peaceoffrynge vnto the Lorde and seperate a vowe or a freewyll offrynge of the oxen or the flocke, it muste be without deformyte, that it maye be accepted.

There maye be no blemyshe therin: whether it be blynde, broken, wounded or haue a wen, or be maungye or scabbed, se ye offre no suche vnto the Lorde, nor put an offrynge of any such vpon the aultare vnto the Lorde.

An oxe or a sheepe that hathe any membre out of proporcion, mayste thou offer for a freewyll offrynge: but in a vowe it shall not be accepted. D Thou shalt not offre vnto the Lorde that is bruised, broken, plucked out or cutt awaye, neyther shalte make any suche in youre lande, neyther of a straungers hande shall ye offre an offrynge to your God of any suche. For they marre all in that they haue deformytes in them, and therfore can not be accepted for you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: when an oxe, a sheepe, or a goote is brought forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder the dam. And frome the eyght daye forth, it shall be accepted vnto a gyfte in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And whether it be oxe or sheepe, ye shall not kyll it and her younge both in one daye.

When ye wyll offer a thanke offrynge vnto the Lorde, ye shal so offre it that ye may be accepted. And the same day, it muste be eaten vp, so that ye leaue nont of it tyl the morowe. For I am the Lorde, kepe now my commaundementes and do them, for I am the Lorde. And polute not my holy name, that I maye be halowed amonge the childzen of Israel. For I am the Lorde whiche halowe you, and brought you out of the lande of Egypt, to be your God: for I am the Lorde.

¶ Of the holy dayes, as the Sabboth. Ester, whitsonyde, the feast of the fyrste frutes. The feaste of clensynge. The feaste of Tromperes. The feast of the tabernacles.

CAPI. XXIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel, and saye vnto them. These are the feastes of the Lorde whiche ye shall call holy feastes. Syx dayes ye shall worcke, and the seuenth is the Sabboth of reste an holye feaste: so that ye maye doo no worcke therin, for it is the Sabboth of the Lorde, wherso euer ye dwell. These are the feastes of the Lorde whiche ye shall proclayme holye in their seasons. * The.xiij. daye of the fyrste moneth at euen is the Lordes * Passouer. And the fyftene daye of the same moneth is the feaste of swete breade vnto the Lorde seuen dayes ye muste eate vnleuened breade. The fyrste daye shalbe an holy feaste vnto you, so that ye maye do no laborious worcke therin. But ye shall offer sacrifyces vnto the Lorde seuen dayes, and the seuenth daye also shalbe an holy feaste, so that ye maye do no laborous worcke therin.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel and saye vnto them: when ye be come in to the lande which I gyue vnto you and repe doune youre haruefte, ye shall bringe a sheffe of the fyrste frutes of youre haruest vnto the preeste, and he shall waue the sheffe before the Lorde to be accepted for you: and euen the morowe after the Sabboth the preeste shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye when he waueth the sheffe, a lambe without blemyshe of a yere olde for a burntoffrynge vnto the Lorde: and the meatoffrynge therof, two tenthe deales of fyne flour mengled with oyle to be a sacryfice vnto the Lorde of a swete sauoure: and the drynkoffrynge therto, the fourth deale of an hyn of wyne. And ye shall eate neyther breade, nor parched corne, nor frymentye of new corne: vntyl the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offrynge vnto your God. And this shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your childzen after you, wherseuer ye dwell.

And ye shall counte frome the morowe after the Sabboth: euen frome the daye that ye brought the sheffe of the waueoffryng. vij. wekes complete: euen vnto the morowe after the seuen wekes, ye shal nombre .l. dayes. And then ye shall bringe a newe meatoffring vnto the Lorde. And ye shal bring out of your habitacions two wauerlones made of two tenth deales of fyne flour leuended and baken, for fyrst frutes vnto the Lorde. And ye shal bring with the breed seuen lambes without blemyshe of one yere of age, and one younge oxe, and two rammes, which shal serue for burnt offrynges vnto the Lorde, with meatoffrynges, and drynckeoffrynges longynge to the same, to be a sacrifyce of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

And ye shall offre an he gote for a synneoffrynge: and two lambes of one yere olde for peaceoffringes. And the preest shall waue them in the bread of the fyrst frutes before the Lord and with the two lambes. And they shall be holy vnto the Lorde, and be the preestes. And ye shall make a proclamacion the same daye, that it be an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall do no laborious worke therin: And it shal be a law for euer throwout all your habitacions vnto your childzen after you.

* When ye repe downe your haruest, thou shalt not make clene sydbaunce of thy feloe, neither neyther shalt thou make any aftergatheringe of thy haruest: but shalt leue them vnto the poor and the straunger. I am the Lorde youre God.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye. The first daye of the seuenth moneth shall be a rest of remembraunce vnto you, to blowe hornes in, an holy feast it shalbe, and ye shal do no laborious worke therin, and ye shal offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng: also the tenthe daye of the selfe seuenth moneth, is a daye of attonement, and shal be an holy feast vnto you, and ye shal humble your soules and offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Moreouer ye shal do no worke the same daye, for it is a daye of attonement to make an attonement for you before the Lorde your God. For what so euer soule it be that humbleth not him selfe that daye, he shall be destroyed from his people. And what so euer soule do any maner worke that daye, the same I will destroye from his people. Ye ye do no maner worke therfore. And it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your generations after you in all youre dwellynges. A Sabboth of rest it shalbe vnto you, and ye shall humble your soules. The .ix. daye of the moneth at euen and so forth euen to euen agayne, ye shall kepe your Sabboth.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: the .xv. daye of the same seuenth moneth, shal be the feaste of tabernacles. vii. dayes vnto the Lorde. The first daye shalbe an holy feast, so that ye shall do no laborious worke therin. Seuen dayes ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde, and the .viii. daye shalbe an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. It is the ende of the feast, and ye shal do no laborious worke therin.

These are the feastes of the Lorde whiche ye shall proclayme holy feastes, for to offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde, burntofferynges, meatofferinges and drinkofferinges euery daye: beside the Sabbothes of the Lorde, and beside your gyftes, and all your vowes, and al your freewillofferinges which ye shall geue vnto the Lorde.

Moreouer in the .xv. daye of the seuenth moneth after that ye haue gathered in the frutes of the lande, ye shall kepe holy daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes longe. The first daye shall be a daye of rest, and the eyght daye shall be a daye of rest. And ye shall take you the first daye, the frutes of goodly trees and braunches of palme trees and the bowes of thycke trees, and wylowes of the brooke: and shall reioyse before the Lorde seuen dayes. And ye shall kepe it holye daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes in the yere. And it shall be a lawe for euer vnto youre children after you, that ye kepe that feast in the seuenth moneth. And ye shall dwell in boothes seuen dayes: euen all that are Israelites borne, shall dwell in boothes, that your children after you may know howe I made the children of Israel dwell in boothes, when I brought them out of the lande of Egypte: for I am the Lorde youre God. And Moses tolde all the feastes of the Lorde vnto the children of Israel.

¶ The oyle for the lampes and lyghtes of the brede of remembraunce of the widow. he that cursseth must be stoned. he that killeth shalbe killed. &c.

CAPL XXIIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: commaunde the children of Israel that they bringe vnto the, pure oyle olyue beaten for lyghtes to poure into the lampes alwaye, without the vayle of wytnesse within the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall dresse them bothe euen and morynge before the Lorde alwayes. And it shal be a lawe for euer amonge youre children after you. And ye shall dresse the lampes vpon the pure candelstycke before the Lorde perpetually.

And thou shalt take fyne floure and bake xij. wastels therof, two tenth deales shall euery wastell be. And make two rowes of the, sixe on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lorde, and put pure frankencens vpon the rowes. And it shall be bred of remembraunce, and an offrynge to the Lorde. Euery Sabboth he shall put therm in rowes before the Lorde euermore, gyuen of the children of Israel, that it be an euerlastinge couenaunte. And they shall be Aarons and his sonnes, and they shall eate therm in the holye place. For they are moste holye vnto him of the offrynges of the Lorde, and shall be a duety for euer.

And the son of an Israelytish wyfe whose father was an Egyptian, went oute amonge the children of Israel. And this sonne of the Israelytysh wyfe and a man of Israel, strout togyther in the hoste. And the Israelytysshe womans sonne blasphemed the name of the Lorde and cursed, and they brought him vnto Moses. And his mothers name was Salompth, the dogter of Dibry of the tryde of Dan: and they put him in warde, that Moses shulde declare vnto them what the Lorde sayde thereto.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayenge, bringe him that blasphemed without the host and let all that herde him, put their handes vpon his heed, and let al the multitude stone him. And speake vnto the children of Israel, sayenge. Who so euer cursseth his God, shall beare his synne: And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lorde, shall dye for it: all the multitude shall stone him to deathe. And the straunger as well as the Israelite, yf he curse the name, shall dye for it.

He that killeth any man, shall dye for it, but he that killeth a beaste shall paye for it, beast for beast. If a man maymet his neyghbourre, euen as he hath done, so shal it be done to him agayne: broke for broke, eye for eye and tothe for tothe: euen as he hath maymed a man, so shall he be maymed agayne.

D So now he that kylleth a beast shall paye for it: but he that kylleth a man, shall dye for it. Ye shall haue one maner lawe amonge you: euen for the straunger as well as for one of your selues, for I am the Lorde your God.

And Moses tolde the children of Israel, that they shulde bringe him that had cursed, out of the host, and stone him with stones. And the children of Israel dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ The Sabboth of the seuen yeres and of the yere of iubelie, otherwise called the syxtye yere.

CAPI. XXV.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in mount Sinai, sayenge: speake vnto the children of Israel and saye to them. When ye be come into the lande which I geue you let the lande kepe a Sabboth vnto the Lorde. Sixe yeres thou shalt sowe thy felde, and sixe yere thou shalt cut thy vynes and gather in thy fruites. But the seuenth yere shall be a Sabboth of rest vnto the lande. The Lordes sabboth it shalde, and thou shalt neither sowe thy felde, nor cut thy vynes. The Sabboth of seuen yeres.

The corne that groweth by it selfe thou shalt not repe, neyther gather the grapes that growe without thy dressynge: but it shall be a Sabboth of rest vnto the lande. Neuertheles the Sabboth of the lande shall be meate for you: euen for the and thy seruaunte and for thy mayd and for thy hyred seruaunt and for the straunger that dwelleth with the: and for thy cattell and for the beastes that are in thy lande, shall all the encrease therof be meate. Then nombre seuen wekes of yeres, that is, seuen times seuen yere: and the space of the seuen wekes of yeres wyll be vnto the xlix. yere. And then thou shalte make an horne blowe: euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, which is the day of attonement. And then shall ye make the horne blowe, euen throwe out all your lande. And ye shall halowe the fyftieth yere, and proclayme lyberte throwe out the lande vnto all the inhabiters therof. It shall be a yere of iubelie vnto you and ye shall returne: euery man vnto his possession, and euery man vnto his kynred agayne. A yere of iubelye shall that fyftyeth yere be vnto you.

Ye shall not sowe neyther repe the corne that groweth by it selfe, nor gather the grapes that growe without thy labour. For it is a yere of iubelye and shall be holye vnto you: howe be it, yet ye shall eate of the encrease of the felde. And in this yere of iubelie ye shall returne, euery man vnto his possession agayne.

When thou sellest oughte vnto thy neighboure or byest of thy neyghbours handt, ye shall not oppresse one an other: but accordynge to the nombre of yeres after the iubelye yere, thou shalte bye of thy neyghboure, and accordynge vnto the nombre of frute yeres, he shall sell vnto the. Accordyng vnto the multytude of yeres, thou shalte increase the pryce therof, and accordynge to the fewnesse of yeres, thou shalte mynysshe the pryce: for the nombre of the frute he shal sell vnto the. And se that no man oppresse his neyghboure, but feare thy God. For I am the Lorde youre God. Wherfore doo after myne ordinaunces, and kepe my lawes, and doo them, that ye maye dwell in the lande in saferye. And the lande shall gyue her frute, and ye shall eate youre fyll and dwell therin in saferye.

If ye shall saye: what shall we eate the seuenth yere, in as moche as we shall not sowe, nor gather in oure encrease. I wyll sende my blessyng vpon you in the syxte yere, and it shall bringe forthe frute for thre yeres: and ye shall sowe the eyghte yere, and eate of olde frute vntyll the nynth yere, and euen vntyll her fruites come, ye shall eate of olde stoore.

Wherfore the lande shall not be solde for euer, because that the lande is myne, and ye but straungers and soiourners with me: and ye shall throwe oute all the lande of youre possession, let the lande goo home free agayne.

When thy brother is waxed poore, and hath solde of his possession: yf any of his kin come to redeme it, he shall bye out that whiche his brother solde. And though he haue no man to redeme it for hym, yet yf his hand can get sufficient to bye it out agayne, then let hym counte how longe it hath be solde, and delyuer the rest vnto hym to whome he solde it, and so he shall returne vnto his possession agayne. But yf his hande can not get sufficyent to restore it to hym agayne, then that whiche is solde shall remayne in the hande of hym that hathe boughte it, tyll the Jubelye: and in the yere of Jubelye it shall come oute, and he shall returne vnto his possession agayne.

If a man sell a dwellynge house in a walled citye, he maye bye it oute agayne anye tyme within a hole yere after it is solde: and that shall be the space in whiche he maye redeme it agayne.

But yf it be not bought out agayne within the space of a full yere, then the house in the walled citye shall be stablysshed for euer vnto hym that boughte it, and to his successours after hym, and shall not goo out in the yere of Jubelye. But the houses in villages whiche haue no walles rounde about them shall be counted lyke vnto the feldes of the countrey, and maye be boughte oute agayne at any season, and shall goo oute free in the yere of Jubelye.

Notwithstandynge the cityes of the Leuytes and the houses in the cyteres of theyr possessions, the Leuytes maye redeme at all seasons. And yf a man purchase oughte of the Leuytes: whether it be house or city that they possesse, the bargayne shall goo oute in the yere of Jubelye: for the houses of the citeres of the Leuytes, are theyr possessions amonge the children of Israel. But the fyldes that lye rounde about theyr cyteres, shall not not be bought: for they are theyr possessyons for ever.

F Yf thy brother be waxed poore and fallen in decaye with the, receyue hym as a straunger or a sojourner, and lette hym lyue by the.

Exo. xxii. c. Deute. xxiii. c. Psalm. xxxvii. b. * And thou shalte take none vsurye of hym, nor gaynes. But shalte feare thy God, that thy brother maye lyue with the. Thou shalte not lende hym thy money vpon vsurye, nor lende hym of thy lode to haue gaynes by it: for I am the Lorde youre God whiche haue brought you forth of the lande of Egypte to gyue you the land of Canaan and to be your God.

Yf thy brother that dwelleth by the, waxe poore and sell hym selfe vnto the, thou shalte not let him labour as a bondseruaunt doeth: but as an hyred seruaunte, and as a sojourner he shall be with, and shall serue the, vnto the yere of Jubelye, and then shal he departe from the: both he and his chyldren with hym, and shall returne vnto his owne kynred agayne and vnto the possessions of his fathers: for they are my seruauntes whiche I brought out of the lande of Egypte, and shall not be solde as bondmen.

Leuit. xxv. a. Sondaye or Sabbaye

He therfore thou rayne not ouer him crueltye, but feare thy God. Yf thou wilte haue bondseruauntes and maydens, thou shalte bye them of the heythen that are rounde about you, and of the chyldren of the straungers that are sojourners emonge you and of theyr generacions that are with you, whiche they begate in your lande and ye shal possesse them and gyue them vnto youre chyldren after you, to possesse them for ever: and they shall be youre bondemen. * But ouer your brethren the chyldren of Jsrael, ye shall not rayne one ouer an other cruelly.

Deut. xv. a.

G When a straunger and a sojourner waxeth ryche by the, and thy brother that dwelleth by him waxeth poore and sell him selfe vnto the straunger that dwelleth by the, or to anye of the straungers kynne: after that he is solde he maye be redemed agayne: one of his brethren maye bye hym oute: whether it be his vncle or his vncles sonne, or any that is nye of kynne vnto hym of his kynred: eyther yf his handes can get so moche, he maye be loosed.

And he shal reckon with hym that bought hym from the yere in whiche he was solde, vnto the yere of Jubelye, and the price of his beynge shall be accordynge to the nombre of yeres, and he shall be with hym as a hyred seruaunt.

Yf there be yet many yeres behynde, accordynge vnto them he shall gyue agayne for his deliuerraunce, of the money that he was solde for.

Yf there remayne but fewe yeres vnto the yere of Jubelye, he shall so counte with hym, and accordynge vnto his yeres gyue hym agayne for his redemption, and shall be with hym yere by yere as an hyred seruaunte, and the other shall not rayne cruelly ouer hym in thy syght. Yf he be not bought free in the meane tyme, then he shall go out in the yere of Jubelye and his chyldren with him: for the chyldren of Jsrael are my seruauntes whiche I brought out of the lande of Egypte.

¶ Images are forbidden. Blessed are they that kepe theyr thynges that God ordeyned and moost cursed are they that kepe them not.

CAPI. XXVI.

I Am the Lorde your God. Ye shal make you no ymages nor grauen ymage, neyther reare you vp any pyller, neyther ye shall set vp any ymage of stone in your lande to bowe your selues therto: for I am the Lorde your God: kepe my Sabbothes and feare my sanctuarye: for I am the Lorde. 2

If ye shall walke in myne ordinaunces and kepe my commaundmentes and do them, then I will sende you rayne in the tyme conuenyent, & your lande shall yelde her encrease and the trees of the felde shall gyue their fruite. And the threshynge shall reache vnto wyne harueste, & the wyneharuest shall reache vnto sowynge tyme, and ye shall eate youre breed in plentefulnes, and shall dwell in youre lande prosperously. And I will sende peace in your lande, that ye shall slepe, and no man shall make you afrayde.

And I will ryd euyll beastes out of youre lande, and there shall no swerde goo thorowe out your lande. And ye shall chace your enemyes, and they shall fall before you vpon the swerde. And fyue of you shall chace an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousande to flyghte, and your enemyes shal fall before you vpon the swerde. And I will tourne vnto you and encrease you and multiplye you, and set vp my testament with you. And ye shall eate olde fooode, and caste out the olde for plentefulnes of the newe. * I will make my dwellynge place amonge you, and my soule shall not lothe you. And I will walke amonge you, and will be youre God, and ye shall be my people. For I am the Lorde your God, whiche brought you out of the lande of the Egyptians, that ye should not be their bondmen, and I brake the bowes of youre yockes, and made you go vpryght.

* 2. Cor. vi. b. Ezech. xxxvii. d.

* But yf ye will not herken vnto me, nor will do all these my commaundmentes, or yf ye shall despyse myne ordinances, eyther yf youre soules refuse my lawes, so that ye will not do all my commaundementes, but shall breake myne appoyntement: then I will do this agayne vnto you: I will vysyt you with vexacions, swellinge and feuers, that shall make your eyes faynt, and waste your bowes of heate. And ye shall sowe youre seed in vayne, for your enemyes shall eate it. And I will set my face agaynste you, and ye shall fall before your enemyes, and they that hate you shall rayne ouer you, and ye shall flee when no man pursueth you. 4 5

* De. xxviii. b. Psal. xxxiii. a.

And yf ye will not yet for all this herken vnto me, then will I punyshe you seuē tymes more for youre synnes, and will breake the pryde of youre strengthe. For I will make the heauen ouer you as harde as yron, & your lande as harde as braſſe. And ſo your laboure ſhalbe ſpent in vayne. For your lande ſhall not gyue her encreaſe, neyther the trees of the lande ſhall gyue their frutes.

And yf ye walke contrary vnto me and wil not herken vnto me, I will bringe ſeuen tymes mo plages vpon you accordynge to your ſynnes. I will ſende in, wylde beaſtes vpon you, which ſhall ſpoyle you of your children and deſtroye your catell, and make you ſo few in nombre that youre highe wayes ſhal grow to a wyldernelle.

And yf ye wyll not be lerned yet, for all this, but ſhal walke contrarye vnto me, then will I alſo walke contrarye vnto you, and wyll punnyſh you yet ſeuen tymes for your ſynnes. I wyll ſende a ſwerde vpon you, that ſhall auenge my teſtament with you. And when ye are fled vnto youre cyttyes, I wyll ſende the peſtilence amonge you, ye ſhalbe geuen into the handes of your enemyes. And when I haue broken the ſtaffe of youre breed, that x. wyues ſhall bake your breed in one ouen and men ſhall delyuer you your breed agayne by weyght, then ſhall ye eate and yet not be fylled.

And yf ye will not yet for all this, herken vnto me, but ſhall walke contrary vnto me, then I will walke contrarye vnto you alſo, wrathfully and will alſo punyſhe you ſeuen tymes for your ſynnes: ſo that ye ſhall eate the fleſhe of your ſonnes and the fleſhe of youre doughters. And I will deſtroye your altares buylt vpon hyghe hylles, & ouerthrowe your ymages, and caſt your carkaſes vpon the bodyes of your ydolles, and my ſoule ſhall abhorre you. And I will make your cyttes deſolate, & bringe your ſanctuaries vnto nought, and will not ſmell the ſauoures of your ſweete owrres.

And I will bringe the lande vnto a wyldernelle: ſo that your enemyes whiche dwell therin, ſhall wondre at it. And I will ſtrawe you amonge the hethen, and will drawe out a ſwerde after you, and youre lande ſhall be waſt, and your cyttes deſolate. Then the lad ſhall reioyſe in her Sabbothes, as longe as it lyeth voyde and ye in your enemyes lande euen then ſhall the lande kepe holy daye and reioyſe in her Sabbothes. And as longe as it lyeth voyde it ſhall reſt, for that it couldē not reſte in youre Sabbothes, when ye dweite therein.

And vpon them that are left alyue of you I will ſende a faynтnelle in to their hertes in the lande of their enemyes: ſo that the ſound of a leef that falleth, ſhall chace them, & they ſhall flee as thoughe they fled a ſwerde, and ſhall fall no man folowinge them. And they ſhal fal one vpon an other, as it were before a ſwerde no man purſuyng them, and ye ſhal haue no power to ſtande before youre enemyes: And ye ſhall perryſhe amonge the hethen, and the lande of youre enemyes ſhall eate you vp.

And they that are left of you, ſhall pyne away in their vnrighteouſnes, euen in their enemyes lande, and alſo in the miſdeades of their fathers ſhall they conſume. And they ſhall confeſſe their miſdedes, and the myſdedes of their fathers in their treſpaces whyche they haue treſpaced againſt me, and for that alſo that they haue walked contrary vnto me. Therfore I alſo will walke contrarye vnto them, and will bringe them into the lande of their enemyes. And then at leſt waye their vncircumcyſed hertes ſhall be tamed, & then they ſhall make attonement for their myſdedes.

And I will remembre my bonde with Jacob and my couenant with Iſaac, and my teſtament with Abraham, and will thinke on the lande. For the lande ſhall be left of them and ſhall haue pleaſure in her Sabbothes, whyle ſhe lyeth waſt without them, and they ſhall make an attonement for their miſdedes, becauſe they deſpiſed my lawes and their ſoules refuſed myne ordinaunces. And yet for all that when they be in the lande of their enemye, * I will not ſo caſt them away nor my ſoule ſhall not ſo abhorre them, that I will vtterly deſtroye them, and breake myne appointement with them: for I am the Lorde their God. I will therfore remembre vnto them the firſt couenaunte made when I brought them out of the lande of Egypte in the ſight of the hethen to be their God: for I am the Lorde.

These are the ordinaunces, iudgementes, and lawes whiche the Lorde made betwene hym and the children of Iſrael in mount Sinai by the hande of Moſes.

And the nombre of them in their kynredes, and in the houses of their fathers, was two thousande, syxe hundred, and thyrtye. This is the nombre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Gerson, of all that dyd seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche Moses and Aaron dyd nombre at the commaundement of the Lorde.

And the kynredes of the sonnes of Merari were nombred in their kynredes, & in the houses of their fathers, from thyrtye yere vp vnto fyftye, all that were able to go forth with the house, to do seruice in the tabernacle of witnes And the nombre of them was in their kynredes three thousande and two hundred. This is the nombre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Merari, whiche Moses and Aaron nombred at the commaundement of the Lorde, by the hande of Moses.

The hole summe which Moses, Aaron and the lordes of Israel nombred amonge the Leuytes in their kynredes & houseoldes of their fathers, from thyrtye yere vp vnto fyftye euery man to do his office and seruyce, and to beare his burthen in the tabernacle of wytnes was eyght thousande, fyue hundred and foure score which they nombred at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses, euerye man vnto his seruyce & burthen: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ Who they be that oughte to be caste oute of the house. The knowleggynge of synne. The cleansynge of synne done of ignorannce. The lawe of the tryall trutes, and of gelousye.

CAP. V.

AND the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel they put forth of the house, all lepers, and all that haue yssues, and all that are defiled vpon the dead, whether they be males or females ye shal put them out of the house, that they defile not the tentes among which I dwell. And the chyldren of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the house, as the Lorde commaunded Moses so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lord spake to Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be man or woman, when they haue synned any maner synne whiche a man doth wherewith a man trespaceth agaynst the Lorde: so that the soule hathe doone amisse: then they knowlege their synnes whiche they haue done, and restore agayne the hurte that they haue wone in the hole, and put the fifte parte of it more therto, and gyue it him whom he hath trespased agaynst. But yf he that maketh the amendes haue no man to doo it to, then the amendes that is made shall be the Lordes, and the preestes, beside the ramme of the attonement offeringe, wherwith he maketh attonement for him selfe. And all the fyrste frutes whiche the chyldren of Israel bringe vnto the preest, shall be the preestes, and euery mannes halowed thynges shall be his owne, but what so euer any man giueth the preest, it shall be the preestes.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: Speake to the chyldren of Israel, and shewe them. Yf any mannes wyfe goo a syde and trespase agaynst hym, so that an other man lye with her fleshelye and the thynge be hyd frome the eyes of her husbande and is not come to lyghte that she is defylied (for there is no witnesse agaynst her) in as moche as she was not taken with the maner, and the spyryte of gelousye cometh vpon him and he is gelous ouer his wyfe and she defyled, or happelye the spyryte of gelousy cometh vpon him, and he is gelous ouer his wyfe, and she yet vndefyled. Then let her husbande bringe her vnto the preeste, and bringe an offeringe for her: the tenthe parte of an Epha of barlye meele, but he shall poure none oyle therunto, nor put franckencens theron: for it is an offeringe of gelousye, and an offerenge that maketh remembraunce of synne.

And let the preeste bringe her and sette her before the Lorde, and let him take holy water in an erthe vessel and of the dust that is in the floure of the habitacion, and put it in to the water. And the preeste shall set the wife before the Lorde and vncouer her heade, and put the memoriall of the offeringe in her handes whiche whiche is the gelousye offrynge, and the preest shal haue bitter and cursing water in his hand and he shal coniure her, and shal saye vnto her If no man hathe lyen with the, neyther hathe gone aside and defyled thy selse behynde thy husbande, then haue thou no harme of this bytter cursynge water.

But yf thou hast gone aside behynde thyne husbande, and art defyled, and some other man hath lyen with the beside thyne husband (and let the preest coniure her with the coniuracion of the curse, and saye vnto her) the Lord make the a curse and a coniuracion among thy people: so that the Lorde make thy thyghe rotte, and thy belly swell, and this bytter cursyng water goo in to the bowels of the, that thy belye swell, and thy thyghe rotte, and the wyfe shal saye: Amen Amen.

And the preest shal wrote this curse in a byll and washe it oute in the bytter water. And when the cursynge water is in her, then lette the preest take the gelousyoffrynge out of the wymes hande, and waue it before the Lorde, and bringe it vnto the auiter: and he shall take an handfull of the memorryallofrynge, and burne it vpon the auiter, and then make her drynke the water, and when he hath made her drynke the water: Yf she be defyled, and haue trespased agaynste her husbande, then shall the cursynge water goo in to her and be so bytter that her belye wall swell, and her thygh shal rotte, and she shal be a curse among her people: That yf she be not defiled but is clene, then she shal haue no harme, but that she may conceyue.

This is the lawe of gelousye, when a wyfe goeth aside behynde her husbande and is defiled, or when the spirite of gelousye commeth vpon a man, so that he is gelous ouer his wife, then he shall bringe her before the Lorde, and the preest shal minister all this lawe vnto her, and the man shalbe giltlesse, and the wife shal beare her synne.

¶ The lawe of the Nazarees that vowe vpon them abstynence. The maner of offrynge the people.

CAPI. VI.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: when a man or woman appoynteth to vowe a vowe of abstinence for to abstayne vnto the Lorde, he shal abstayne from wyne and stronge drynke, and shall drynke no vynegre of wyne or of stronge drynke, nor shal drynke what so euer is pressed out of grapes: and shal eate no fresh grapes, neyther yet dryed as longe as his abstinence endureth. Moreouer he shal eate nothing that is made of the vyne tree, not so moche as the kynels or the huske of the grape.

And as longe as the vowe of his abstinence endureth, there shall no rasour nor sheres come vpon his heed, vntyll his dayes be runne out whiche he sanctifyeth vnto the Lorde, and he shall be holye, and shall let the lockes of his heere growe. As longe as he abstayneth vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no dead bodye he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the deathe of his father, mother, brother or syster: for the abstynence of his God is vpon his heed. And therfore as longe as his abstynence lasteth, he shall be holye vnto the Lorde.

And yf it fortune that any man dye sodenly before hym, and defile the heed of his abstinence, then muste he shaue his heed the daye of his clensynge: euen the seuenth daye he shall shaue it. And the eyght daye he shall bringe two turtles, or two yonge pygeons to the preest, vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the preest shall offre thone for a synneoffrynge and thother for a burntoffrynge, and make attonement for hym in that he synned vpon the dead, and shal also halowe his heed the same daye, and shall abstayne vnto the Lorde the tyme of his abstinences, and shall bringe a lambe of a yere old for a trespasseoffrynge: but the dayes that were before are lost, because his abstinencie was defiled.

This is the lawe of the abstaynde, when the tyme of his abstynence is runne oute, he shall be brought vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall bringe his offrynge vnto the Lorde: an he lambe of a yere olde without spotte for a burntoffrynge and a he lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for a synneoffrynge, a ramme without blemysh also for a peaseoffrynge, and a basket of swete breed of fyne flour myngled with oyle and wafers of swete breed anoynted with oyle with meatoffrynges and drynkoffrynges that belonge therto.

And the preest shall bringe him before the Lorde and offre his synneoffrynge and his burntoffrynge, and shall offre that ramme for a peaseoffrynge vnto the Lorde with a basket of swete breed, and the preest shall offre also his meatoffrynge and his drynkoffrynge. And the abstayner shall shaue his heed in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall take the heere of his sodden heed and put it in that fyre whiche is vnder the peaseoffrynge.

Then the preest shall take the sodden shoulder, of the ramme and one swete cake oute of the basket, and one swete wafre also, and put them in the handes of the abstayner after he hathe shaven his abstinence of, and the preest shall waue them vnto the Lorde, whiche offrynge shall be holy vnto the preest, with the wauebreest and heue shoulder: e then the abstayner may drynke wyne.

This is the lawe of the Nazaree whiche hathe vowed his abstynence vnto the Lorde for his abstinence, besydes that his handes can gette. And accordynge to the vowe whiche he vowed, so he muste do in the lawe of his abstynence.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge speake to Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge: of this wyse ye shall bleste the children of Israel sayinge vnto them.

* Numb. iii. f. for * I haue taken them vnto me for all the firſtborne that open the matrice amonge the chyldren of Iſrael.

* For all the fyrſtborne amonge the chyldren of Iſrael are myne bothe man and beaſt, * Exod. xiii. a because the ſame tyme that I ſmote the firſtborne in the lande of Egypte, I ſanctifyed them for my ſelfe: and I haue taken the Leuytes for all the fyrſtborne amonge the chyldren of Iſrael, and haue gyuen them vnto Aaron and his ſonnes for the chyldren of Iſrael, to doo the ſeruyce of the chyldren of Iſrael in the tabernacle of wytnelle, and to make an attonement for the chyldren of Iſrael, that there be no plage among the chyldren of Iſrael, yf they come nye vnto the ſanctuarye.

And Moſes and Aaron and all the congregacion of the chyldren of Iſrael dyd vnto the Leuytes accordyng vnto all that the Lorde comaunded Moſes. And the Leuytes clenſed them ſelues, and waſſhed theyr clothes. And Aaron offered them before the Lorde, and made an attonement for them to clenſe them. CAPI. IX.

AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes in the wildernelle of Sinai, in the firſt moneth of the ſeconde yere after they * were come out of the lande of Egypt, ſayeng: let the chyldren of Iſrael offre Paſſeouer in his ſeaſon, euen the .xiiij. daye of this moneth at euen, they ſhall kepe it in his ſeaſon, accordyng to the ordinaunces and maners therof. And Moſes bad the chyldren of Iſrael that they ſholde offre Paſſeouer, and they offered Paſſeouer the .xiiij. daye of the firſte moneth at euen in the wyldernelle of Sinai: and dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded Moſes:

And it chaunced that certayne men whiche were defiled with a dead corſe, ſo that they mygdte not offre paſſeouer the ſame daye, came before Moſes and Aaron the ſame tyme and ſayde: We are defiled vpon a dead corſe, wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offre an offeryng vnto the Lorde in the due ſeaſon, amonge the chyldren of Iſrael? And Moſes ſayde vnto them: tarye, that I maye heare what the Lorde wyll commaunde you. And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayeng: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſaye. If any man amonge you or youre chyldren after you, be vncleane by the reaſon of a corſe, or is in the waye ferre of, then let hym offre paſſeouer vnto the Lorde, the fourtene daye of the ſtronde moneth at euen, and eate it with ſwete herde and ſour herdes, and let them leaue none of it vnto the morowyng, nor breake any bone of it. And accordyng to all the ordynaunce of the paſſouer lette them offre it.

But yf a man be cleane and not lette in a iourney, and yet was negligent to offre paſſeouer: the ſame ſoule ſhall perylſhe frome his people, becauſe he broughte not an offeryng vnto the Lorde in his due ſeaſon: and he ſhal beare his ſynne. And when a ſtrounger dwelleth among you, and wyll offre paſſeouer vnto the Lorde, accordyng to the ordinaunce of paſſeouer and maner therof ſhall he offre it. And ye ſhall haue one law both for the ſtraunger, and for hym that was borne at home in the lande.

And the ſame daye that the habitacion was reared vp, a cloude couered it an hye vpon the tabernacle of wytnelle: and at euen there was vpon the habitacion, as it were the lyknelle of fyre vntyll the morowyng. And ſo it was alwaye, that the cloude couered it by day and the ſymilitude of fyre by nyght. And when the cloude was taken vp frome the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Iſrael iourneyed, and where the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Iſrael pytched theyr tentes. At the mouthe of the Lorde the chyldren of Iſrael iourneyed,

and at the mouth of the Lorde they pytched. And as long as the cloude abode vpon the habitacion, they laye ſtyll, and when the cloude taryed ſtyll vpon the habitacion longe tyme, the chyldren of Iſrael wayted vpon the Lorde and iourneyed not.

Yf it chaunſed that the cloude abode anye ſpace of tyme vpon the habitacion, then they kepte theyr tentes at the mouth of the Lorde: and they iourneyed alſo at the commaundement of the Lorde. And if it happened that the cloude was vpon the habytacyon frome euen vnto morning, and was taken vp in that morning, then they iourneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyghte that the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. But when the cloude taryed two dayes, or a moneth, or a longe ſeaſon vpon the habytacyon, as longe as it taryed theron, the chyldren of Iſrael kepte theyr tentes, and iourneyed not. And as ſoone as the cloude was taken vp they iourneyed. At the mouthe of the Lorde they reſted, and at the commaundement of the Lorde they iourneyed. And thus they kepte the watche of the Lorde, at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moſes.

¶ The Trompettes of ſyluer, and the vſe therof. The Iſraelytes departe frome Sinai. The captaynes of the hoſte are nombred. Hobab refuſeth to go with Moſes.

CAPI. X.

AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaynge: Make the two trompettes of beaten ſyluer, that thou mayſt vſe them to call the company togyther, and when the hoſt ſhall iourney. When they blowe with them, all the companye ſhall reſorte to the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesſe. Yf but one trompet blowe onely, then the prynces which are heedes ouer thouſandes of Iſrael ſhall come vnto the. And when ye trompe the fyrſte tyme, the hoſtes that lye on the eaſt partes ſhall go forwarde.

And when ye trompe the ſeconde tyme, then the hoſtes that lye on the ſouth ſyde ſhal take theyr iourney: for they ſhal trompe whē they take theyr iourneys. And in gatheryng the congregacion togyther, ye ſhall blowe and not trompe. And the ſonnes of Aaron the prieſtes ſhall blowe the trompettes, and ſhall haue them, and it ſhall be a lawe vnto you for euer, and amonge youre chyldren after you.

And when ye ſhall goo to warre in youre lande agaynſte youre enemyes that vexe you ye ſhall trompe with the trompettes, and ye ſhall be remembred before the Lorde your god and ſaued frome youre enemyes. Alſo when ye be merye in your fyrſt dayes, and in the fyrſte dayes of youre mouethes, ye ſhall blowe the trompettes ouer your burnt ſacrifices & peaſe offerynges, that it may be a remembraunce of you before youre God. I am the Lorde your God.

And it came to paſſe the twentye daye of the ſeconde moneth in the ſeconde yere that the cloude was take vp from the tabernacle of witnesſe. And the chyldren of Iſrael toke theyr iourney out of the wyldernesſe of Sinai, and the cloud reſted in the wyldernesſe of Pharan. And they fyrſte toke theyr iourney at the mouth of the Lorde by the hand of Moſes: euen the ſtandarde of the hoſte of Iuda armoured with theyr armyes, whoſe capytayne was Nahaſſon ſonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoſte of the tryde of the chyldren of Iſſachar, was Nathanael the ſonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoſte of the tryde of the chyldren of Zabulon was Eliab the ſonne of Helon. And the habytacyon was taken downe: and the ſonnes of Gerſon and Merari went forth bearynge the tabernacle.

Then the ſtandard of the hoſte of Ruben went forthe with theyr armyes, whoſe capytayne was Elizur the ſonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoſte of the tryde of the chyldren of Symeon: was Samaliel the ſonne of Zuri Saddai. And ouer the hoſte of the tryde of the chyldren of Gad: was Eliaſaph the ſonne of Deguel. Then the Cahathytes went forwarde and bare the holy thynges, and the other dyd ſet vp the habitacion agaynſte theyr commynge.

Then the ſtandard of the hoſte of the chyldren of Ephraim went forth with theyr armies whoſe capitayne was Elyſama the ſonne of Ammiud. And ouer the hoſte of the tryde of the ſonnes of Manaſſe, was Gamaliel the ſonne of Pedazur. And ouer the hoſte of the tryde of the ſonnes of Ben Jamin, was Abidan the ſonne of Gedeoni.

And hynderwoſt of all the hoſte, came the ſtandarde of the hoſte of the chyldren of Dan with theyr armies whoſe capitayne was Ahiezer the ſonne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hoſte of the tryde of the chyldren Aſer was Pagiel the ſonne of Ochran. And ouer the hoſte of the tryde of the chyldren of Nephthali, was Ahira the ſonne of Enan: In this maner were the iourneys of the chyldren of Iſrael with theyr armyes when they remoued.

And Moſes ſayd vnto Hobab the ſonne of Raguel the Madianyte, Moſes father in lawe: We goo vnto the place of whiche the Lorde ſayde, I wyll gyue it you. Goo with vs, and we wyll do the good: for the Lorde hath promyſed good vnto Iſrael. And he ſayd vnto hym: I wyll not, but wyll go to myne owne lande, and to my kynred. And Moſes ſayde: oh naye, leaue vs not, for thou knoweſt where is beſt for vs to pytche in the wyldernesſe, and thou ſhalte be our guyde. And yf thou goo with vs, loke what goodneſſe the Lorde ſheweth vpon vs, the ſame we wyll ſhewe vpon the.

And they departed frome the mounte of the Lorde thre dayes iourney, and the arke of the teſtament of the Lorde went before them in the thre dayes iourney, to ſeeke out a reſtyng place for them. And the cloude of the Lorde was ouer them by day when they went forth of the tentes.

And when the Arke went forthe, Moſes ſayd sayde, Ryse vp Lorde, and let thyne enemyes be scattered, and let them that hate the, flee before the. And when the arke rested, he sayd: returne (Lorde) vnto the manye thousandes of Israel.

¶ The people murmureth and is punyshed with fyre. They desyre flesshe. They loothe Manna. The murmurynge and wauerynge saythe of Moses. The Lorde dyuydethe the burden of Moses to seuentye of the auncyentes, and they prophesye. Eldad and Medad doo also prophesye in the hoste. Israyneth quayles. The flesshe raueners are punyshed.

CAPI. XI.

AND the people complayned, and it displeased the eares of the Lorde. And when the Lorde herd it, he was wroth, and the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them, and consumed the vttermost of the hoste. And the people cryed vnto Moses, and he made sute vnto the Lorde, and the fire quenched. And they called the name of the place Thaberah, because the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them.

And the common sorte of people that was amonge them fell a lustynge. And the chyldren of Israel also wepte to, and wepte and sayde: who shall gyue vs flesshe to eate? we remembre the fysshe whiche we tholde eate in Egypte for nought, and of the Cucumbres and melouns, lekes, onyons, and garlyke. But nowe oure soules are dryed awaye, for our eyes loke on nothynge elles, saue vpon Manna.

The Manna was as it hadde ben Coliander seed, and in apparaunce lyke Bdellion. And the people went aboute and gathered it, and grounde it in mylles, or beat it in morters and baked it in pannes, and made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke vnto the taste of an oyle cake. And when the dewe fell aboute the hoste in the nyght, the Manna fell therwith.

And when Moses herde the people wepe in theyr hosholdes, euery man in the doore of his tente, then the wyeche of the Lorde warde hote exceadyngly: and it greued Moses also. And Moses sayd vnto the Lorde: wherfore dealest thou so cruelly with thy seruaunt? wherfore doo I not fynde fauour in thy syghte, sythens thou puttest the wyghte of this people vpon me? Haue I conceyued all this people? or haue I begot them, that thou tholdest saye vnto me, carye them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the lucklyng child) vnto the lande whiche thou swarest vnto their fathers? where tholde I haue flesshe to gyue vnto all this people? For they wepe vnto me, sayenge: gyue vs flesshe that we may eate. I am not able to beare all this people alone, for it is heuye for me. Wherfore yf thou deale thus with me, kyll me, I praye the, yf I haue founde fauour in thy syghte, and let me not se my wretchednesse.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: gather vnto me thre score and ten of the elders of Israel, whiche thou knowest that they are the elders of the people, and officers ouer them, & bringe them vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, and let them stande there with the. And I wil come downe and talke with the there, & take of the spirite wich is vpon the, and put vpon the and vpon them, and they shall beare with the in the burthen of the people, and so shalt thou not beare alone.

And saye vnto the people: halow youre selues against to morow, that ye may eate flesh, for ye haue whyned in the eares of the Lorde sayenge: who shall gyue vs flesshe to eate, for we were happy whyle we were in Egypt? therfore the Lorde wyll gyue you flesshe, and ye shal eate. Ye shall not eate one daye onely, either two or fiue dayes, either ten or twentye dayes: but euen a moneth longe, and vntyll it come out at the nosthrels of you, that ye be eedye to perdiake: because ye haue caste that Lorde away, which is amonge you, and haue wepte before hym, sayenge: why came we out of Egypt.

And Moses sayde: fyue hundred thousande foote men are there of the people, amonge whyche I am. And thou hast sayd: I wil gyue them flesshe, and they shall eate a moneth longe. Shall the shepe and the oxen be slayne for them to fynde them? Other shall all the fysshe of the see be gathered togyther to serue them? And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Is the Lordes hande waxed shorte? Thou shalte se whether my worde shall come to passe vnto the, or not.

And Moses went forth, and tolde the people the sayenge of the Lorde, and gathered the thre score and ten elders of the people, and sette them rounde about the tabernacle. And the Lorde came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto hym, and toke of the spirite that was vpon hym, and put it vpon the thre score and ten elders. And as the spirite rested vpon them they prophesyed and dyd nought elles. But there remayned two of the men in the hoste: the one called Eldad, and the other Medad. And the spirite rested vpon them for they were of them that were wrytten, but they went not out vnto the tabernacle: and they prophesyed in the hoste.

And there ran a yonge man and tolde Moses, and sayd: Eldad, and Medad do prophesy in the hoste. And Iosua the sonne of Nun the seruaunt of Moses whiche he had chosen out answered and sayde: Master Moses, forbyd them. And Moses said vnto him: enuiest thou for my sake? would God that all the Lordes people couthe prophesye, and that the Lorde would put his spirite vpon them. And then both Moses and the elders of Israel, gat them in to the hoste.

And there wente forthe a wynde from the Lorde and brought quayles from the see, and let them fal about the hoste, euen a dayes iourney rounde about on euery syde of the hoste, And two cubytes hye vpon the erthe. And the people stode vp al that day and all that night, and on the morowe, and gathered quayles. And he that gathered leest, gathered tenne homers full. And they kylled them rounde about the hoste.

And whyle the flesshe was yet betweene theyr teth, afore it was chewed vp, the wrath of the Lorde waxed hoote vpon the people, and the Lorde slewe of the people an exceadynge myghtye slaughter. And they called the name of the place ✠ Kybroth Hathauah: because they buryed the people that lusted there.

✠ That is the graues of lust

And the people toke theyr iourney frome Kybroth Hathauah vnto Haseroth, and abode at Haseroth.

¶ Aaron and Mary grudge agaynst Moses. Mary was stryken with the leper and healed at the prayer of Moses.

CAPI. XII.

And ✠ Marye and Aaron spake agaynst Moses, bycause of his wyfe of Inde whiche he had taken: for he habde taken to wyfe one of Inde. And they sayde, hathe the Lorde spoken onely thorowe Moses? hathe he not spoken also by vs? And the Lorde herde it. But Moses was a very meke man above all the men of the earthe. And the Lorde spake attonce vnto Moses, vnto Aaron, and vnto Marye: Come out ye three vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse: & they came out all three.

✠ The Hebrew hath woman called Cushi.

And the Lorde came downe in the pyller of the cloude, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Marye. And they wente out bothe of them. And he sayde, heare my wordes: yf there be a prophete of the Lordes amonge you, I wyll shewe my self vnto him in a vysion, and wyll speake vnto him in a dreame. But my seruaunt Moses is not so: whiche is faythfull in all myne house Vnto hym I speake mouthe to mouthe, and he seeth the syght and the facyon of the Lorde and not thorowe ryddels. Wherfore then were ye not afrayde to speake agaynst my seruaunt Moses.

Deut. 34.a

And the Lorde was angrye with them, and went his waye and the cloude departed from the tabernacle. And beholde, Marye was become leprous, as it were snowe. And when Aaron loked vpon her and sawe that she was leprous, he sayde vnto Moses: Oh I beseche the my Lorde, put not the synne vpon vs whiche we haue foolyshly committed and synned. Oh let her not be as one that come dede forth of the mothers wombe: for halfe her flesshe is eaten awaye.

And Moses cryed vnto the Lorde, sayinge: Oh God, heale her. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: If her father had spytte in her face, shulde she not be ashamed seuen dayes, let her be shutte forth of the hoste seuen dayes, and after that let her be receyued in agayne. And Marye was shut out of the hoste seuen dayes and the people remoued not, tyll she was brought in agayne. And afterwarde, they remoued from Haseroth, and pitched in the wildernesse of Pharan.

¶ Certayne are sende to searche the lande of Canaan: which bringe with them a cluster of grapes for a signe of fruitfulnesse.

CAPI. XIII.

And the Lorde spake there vnto Moses sayinge: ✠ Sende men oute to searche the lande of Canaan, whiche I gyue vnto the chyldren of Israel: of euery tryne of theyr fathers a man: and let them all be such as are rulers among them. And Moses at the commaundement of the Lorde sent forthe of the wildernesse of Pharan, suche men as were all heedes among the chyldren of Israel, whose names are these.

In the tryne of Ruben: Hammua the sonne of Zacur: In the tryne of Symeon, Saphat the sonne of Hori: In the tryne of Iuda, Caleph the sonne of Iephunne. In the tryne of Isachar, Igeal the sonne of Ioseph. In the tryne of Ephraim, Hosea the sonne of Nun. In the tryne of Ben Iamin, Palty the sonne of Raphu. In the tryne of Zabulon, Gadiel the sonne of Sodi. In the tryne of Ioseph: that was of Manasse, Gaddi the sonne of Susi. In the tryne of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Gemali. In the tryne of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Michael. In the tryne of Naphthali, Nabbi the sonne of Vophsi. In the tryne of Gad, Guel the sonne of Machi: These are the names of the men whyche Moses sent to espye out the lande. And Moses called the name of ✠ Hosea the sonne of Nun, Iosua.

✠ Hosea: Or in Ieremy Saluator or sauiour. Iosua or Iesus signifieth the sauiour of the Lorde.

And Moses sent them forthe to espye oute the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them: get you southwarde, and go vp in to the high countrey, and se the lande what maner thynge it is, and the people that dwell therin: whether they be stronge or weake, fewe or many and what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad, & what maner of cities they dwell in, whether in tentes or walled townes, and what maner of lande it is: whether fatte or leane, and whether there be trees therin or not. And be of good courage, and bringe of the fruite of the lande. And it was about the tyme that grapes are rype.

And they went vp and searched out the lande from the wildernesse of Zin vnto Rehob, as men go to Hemath, and they ascended vnto the south and came vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was and Hesai, and Thalmai the sonnes of Enachi. Hebron was buylt seuen yere before Zoan in Egypt. And they came vnto the riuer of Eschol, and they cut downe there a braunche with one cluster of grapes, and bare it vpon a staffe betweene twayne, and also of the pomegranates, and of the figges of the place. The tryne was called Nehel Eschol, bycause of the cluster of grapes whiche the chyldren of Israel cut downe there.

And they turned backe agayne frome searchynge the lande at fourtye dayes ende. And they wente and came to Moses and Aaron and vnto all the companye of the chyldren of Israel, vnto the wildernesse of Pharan, euen vnto Cades, and broughte them worde and That is to saye, replenished with all plentye and commodities also vnto all the congregacyon, and shewed them the fruite of the lande. And they talde him, sayinge: we came vnto the lande whyther thou sendest vs, and surely it is a lande that floweth with mylke and honye, and here is of the fruite of it. Neuertheles the people be stronge that dwell in the lande, and the cytyes are walled and exceadynge greate, and moreouer we sawe the chyldren of Enache there.

The Amalechites dwell in the south countrey, and the Hethytes, Iebusytes and the Amorytes dwell in the mountayns, and the Cananytes dwell by the see, and alonge by the coste of Iordane.

And Caleb stylled the murmure of the people agaynst Moses, sayinge: let vs go vp and conquere it, for we be able to ouercome it. But the men that went vp with him, sayd: We be not able to go vp agaynst the people, for they are stronger then we: And they brought vp an euyll rapport of the lande which they had serched vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The lande whiche we haue gone thorowe to serche it out, is a lande that eateth vp the inhabytaunces therof, and the people that we sawe in it are men of stature. And there we sawe also gyaunctes, the chyldren of Enache whiche are of the gyaunctes. And we semed in our syghte as it were grashoppers, and so we dyd in they syght.

¶ The people be prayeng of commyng to the lande promysed, do murmure agaynste God, and wolde haue stoned Caleb and Iosue, The serchers of the land dye. Amalech byldeth the Israelites.

CAPI. XIIII.

1 ANd all the companye cryed out, and the people wept thorowe out that nyght, and all the people of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron: sayinge. Wolde God we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, eyther we wolde we hadde dyed in this wyldernesse. Wherfore hath the Lorde brought vs vnto this lande to fall vpon the swerde, that both our wyues, and also our chyldren sholde be a praye? is it not better that we returne to Egypte agayne? And they sayd one to another: let vs make a Capitayne, and returne to Egypte agayne.

And Moses and Aaron hearyng this fell on their faces before all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel. And Iosua the sonne of Nun, 6
B Caleb the sonne of Iephone whiche were of them that serched the lande, rent their clothes and spake vnto all the company of the childre of Israel, saying. The lande which we walked thorowe to serche it, is a very good lande. If the Lorde haue lust to vs, he wyll bryng vs in to this lande, and gyue it vs, which is a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebell not agaynst the Lorde. Neyther feare ye not the people of the lande, for euen as bread, so may we deuour. Their ayde is departed from them, and the Lorde is with vs: feare them not therfore.

And all the people bade stone them with stones. But the glorye of the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle of witnesse vnto all the childre of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses Howe longe shall this people rayle vpon me, and howe longe wyll it be er they beleue me? for all my tygnes whiche I haue shewed amongest them? I wyll smyte them with the pestylence and destroye them, and wyll make of the a greater nation, and a myghtier then they.

And Moses sayd vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for thou broughtest this people with thy myght from them. And it wyl be tolde to the inhabiters of this lande also, for they haue herde sykewyse that thou the Lorde arte amonge this people, and that thou arte sene face to face, and that thy cloude standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them by daye tyme in a pyller of a cloude, and in a pyller of fire by nyght.

If thou shalte kyll all this people, as they were but one man, then the nations whiche haue herde the fame of the wyll speake, sayinge: because the Lorde was not able to bryng in this people in to the lande which he sware vnto them, therfore he slew them in the wyldernesse.

Be now let the power of my Lord be great accordynge as thou hast spoken, sayinge: the Lorde is longe er he be angrye, and full of mercye, and suffereth synne and trespace, and leaueth no man innocent, and visyteth the vnrygh teousnesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen vpon the thyrde and fourth generacion, be mercyfull I beseche the therfore vnto the synne of this people, accordynge vnto thy greate mercye, and accordynge as thou hast forgyuen this people from Egypte, euen vnto this place.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue forgyuen it, accordynge to thy request. But as truelye as I lyue, all the earthe shall be fylled with my glorye. For of all those men whiche haue sene my glorye, and my myracles whiche I dyd in Egypte, and in the wyldernesse, and yet haue tempted me now this tenne tymes, & haue not herkened vnto my voyce, there shall not one se the lande whiche I sware vnto their fathers: neyther shall any of them that rayled vpon me, se it. But my seruaunt Caleb: because there is an other maner spirite with hym, and because he hathe followed me: him I wyll bryng in to the lande whiche he hath walked in, and his seed shall conquere it, and also the Amalechytes and Cananytes whiche dwell in the lowe countreys. To morow turne you and get you in to the wyldernesse: euen the waye towarde the red see.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: how longe shall this euyll multytude murmure agaynst me: I haue herd the murmuryngs of the chyldren of Israel, which they murmure agaynst me. Tell them that the Lorde sayth: as truly as I lyue, I wyll F doo vnto you euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Youre carkaises shall lye in the wyldernesse: neyther shall ayny of these nombres whiche

which were nombred frome twenty yere and above of you which haue murmured againste me come into the lande ouer which I lyfted vp myne hande to make you dwell therin, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

And your children which ye sayde shulde be a praye, them I will bringe in, and they shall knowe the lande which ye haue refused, and your carkaises shall lye in this wyldernesse.
And your children shall wandre in this wyl-dernesse. xl. yeres and suffre for youre whoredome vntyll your carkeises be wasted in the wyldernesse, after the nombre of the dayes in which ye searched out the lande. xl. dayes, and euery day a yere: so that they shal beare your vnrighteousnes. xl. yere, and ye shall fele my displeasaunce. I the Lorde haue sayde that I will so it vnto all this euyll congregacion that are gathered togyther against me: eue in this wyldernesse ye shalbe consumed, and there ye shall dye.

And the men which Moses sent to serche the lande, and which (when they came ageyne) made all the people to murmure ageynst it in that they brought vp a sclaunder vpon the lande: dyed for their bringyng vp that euyll sclaunder vpon it, and were plaged before the Lorde. But Josua the sonne of Nun and Caleb the sonne of Jephune which were of the men that went to enserche the Lande, lyued styll. And Moses tolde these sayenges to all the children of Israel, & the people toke great sorowe.

And they rose vp early in the morneyng and gat them into the toppe of the mountayne, sayenge: lo we be here, and will go vp vnto
the place of which the Lorde sayde, for we haue synned. And Moses sayd: wherefore will ye go on this maner beyonde the worde of the Lorde? it will not come well to passe, go not vp (for the Lorde is not amonge you) least ye be slayne before your enemyes. For the Ama lechytes and the Cananytes are there before you, and ye shall fall vpon the swerde, because ye are turned away frome the Lorde, therfore
the Lorde will not be with you.

But they were blynded to goo vp in to the hyll toppe: Nevertheles, the arcke of the testamet of the Lorde and Moses departed not out of the hoste. Then the Amalechytes and the Cananytes which dwelt in that hil, came downe and smote them and perced them euen vnto Horma.

¶ The drynkofferynges of them that enter in to the lande the punyshment of hym that synneth of arrogancy or pryde. The man is stoned that gathered stickes on the Sabboth. Fringes must be made vpon the quarters of theyr garmentes.

CAPI. XV.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say-enge: speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: When ye be come into the lande of your habitacion which I geue vnto you, and will offer an offeryng vpon the fyre vnto the Lorde, wherther it be a burntofferynge or a sacryfyce, to perfo-offringe, or yf it be in youre principall feastes to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, of oxen or of the flocke.

Then, let him that offereth his offeryng vnto the Lorde, bringe also a meatofferyng of a tenth deale of floure, myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of oyle, and the fourth part of an hin of wyne for a drynkofferynge, and offer with the burntofferynge or any other offeryng when it is a lambe. And vnto a Ram thou shalt offer a meatofferyng of .ii. tenth deales of floure, myngled with the thyrde parte of an hin of oyle, and to a drynkofferyng thou shalt offer the thirde parte of an hin of wyne, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

When thou offerest an oxe to a burntoffe-ryng or to any speciall dewe or peaceoffering vnto the Lorde, then thou shalt bringe vnto an oxe, a meatofferinge of thre tenth deales of floure myngled with halfe an hin of oyle.
And thou shalt bringe for a drynkofferynge halfe an hin of wyne, that is an offeryng of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. This is the maner that shalbe vsed vnto one oxe, one Ra a lambe or a kydde. And accordynge to the nu bre of suche offerynges, thou shalte euermore
the meatoffrynges and the drynkofferinges.

All that are of youre frindes shall do these thinges after this maner, when he offereth an offeringe of swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.
And yf there be a straunger with you or be amonge you in your generacions, and will offer an offeryngе of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde: euen as ye do, so he shall do. One ordynaunce shall serue both for you & the con-gregacion, and also for the straunger. And it shalbe an ordynaunce for euer amonge youre children after you, that the straunger and ye shalbe lyke before the Lorde. One lawe and one maner shall serue, both for you and for the straunger that dwelleth with you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng:
speake vnto the children of Israel and saye vnto them: When ye be come into the lande whether I will bring you, then when ye wil eate of the breade of the lande, ye shal geue an heueofferinge vnto the Lorde. Ye shall geue a lofe of the first of your dowe vnto an heue-offeringe: as ye do the heueofferinge of the barne euen so ye shall geue it. Of the first of youre dowe ye muste geue vnto the Lorde an heueof feringe, throughout your generacions.

If ye omytte your selues and obserue not al
these commaundemetes which the Lorde hath spoken vnto Moses, and all that the Lorde hathe commaunded you by the hande of Moses, frome the first daye forwarde that the Lorde commaunded amonge youre generacions: when ought is committed ignorauntly before the eyes of the congregacion, then al
the multitude shall offer a calfe for a burntofferinge to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, and the meatofferinge and the drynkoffringe therto, accordynge to the maner: and an he gote for a synneofferinge. And the preest shall make an attonement for all the multitude of the children of Israel, and it shalbe forgeuen

them for it was ignorauncē. And they shall bringe their gyftes vnto the offeringe of the Lorde, and their synneofferinge before the Lorde for their ignorauncē. And it shalbe forgiuen vnto all the multitude of the children of Israel, and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonges you: for the ignorauncē pertayneth vnto all the people.

D Yf any one soule synne throwgh ignorauncē, he shall bringe a she gote of a yere olde for a synneofferinge. And the preaste shall make an attonement for the soule that synned vnwetyngly with the synneofferynge before the Lorde and make him at one, and it shalbe forgiuen him. And both thou that art borne one of the children of Israel & the straunger that dwelleth amongst you, shall haue bothe one lawe, yf ye synne vnwetingly.

God punisheth them y despise his worde.

And the soule that with oughte presumptuously, whether he be an Israelite or a straunger, the same hath rayled the Lorde. And ꝑ soule shall be destroyed out of his people, because he hath despised the worde of the Lorde and hath broken his commaundmentes, that soule therfore shall perysh and his synne shal be vpon him.

And whyle the children of Israel were in the wylderneße, they founde a man gatheringe stickes vpon the Sabboth daye. And they that founde him gatheringe stickes, broughte him vnto Moses and Aaron and vnto all the congregacion: and they put him in warde, for it was not declared what shoulde be done vnto him. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: the man shall dye: let all the multitude stone him with stones forth of the host. And all the multitude broughte him without the hoste & stoned him with stones, and he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Garden. Deute xxiii.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to the children of Israell, and bydde them, they make them gardes on the quarters of their garmentes throwgh out their generacions and let them make the gardes of rybandes of Jacyncte. And the garde shall be vnto you, to loke vpon it, that ye remembre all the commaundementes of the Lorde and do them: that ye seke not after youre owne hertes, and after youre owne eyes, to go a hooring after them: but that ye remembre and do all my commaundementes, and be holye vnto youre God, for I am the Lorde youre God, whyche broughte you oute of the lande of Egypte to be your God. I am the Lorde God.

¶ The rebellion and resistaunce of Corah Dathan and Abiram. The erth openeth and swalowed them vp.

CAPI. XVI.

¶ * Some wyll haue that Corah the sonne of Jezehar.

* Item wyll Abiram.

AND * Corah the sonne of Jezehar, the sonne of Caheth, the sonne of Leui, & Dathan, and * Abiram the sonne of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: stode vp before Moses, with other of the children of Israel. C. hundred and fyftye heades of the congregacion, and counsaillours and men of fame, and they gathered them selues togither against Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: ye haue wne ynoughe. For all the multitude are holy euery one of them and the Lorde is amonge them. Why therfore auaunce ye your selues about the congregacion of the Lordes.

When Moses herde it, he fell vpō his face and spake vnto Corah and vnto all his companye, sayenge: to morowe the Lorde wyll shewe who is his, and who is holy, and will take them vnto him, & whome so euer he hath chosen, he will cause to come to him. This w: take fyrepannes, thou Corah and all thy cōpanye, and w fyre therin and put cens therto before the Lorde to morowe. And then whō so euer the Lorde wthe chose, the same is holye. Ye make ynoughe to woye the children of Leui.

And Moses sayde vnto Corah: heare ye children of Leui. Semeth it but a smal thinge vnto you, that the God of Israell hath seuered you from the multitude of Israel to bring you to him, to w the seruyce of the tabernacle of the Lorde, and to stande before the people to minister vnto them? he hath taken the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, and ye seke thoffice of the preast also. For which cause both thou and all thy company are gathered togither against the Lorde: for what is Aaron, that ye shoulde murmure against hym.

And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, and they answered, we will not come. Semeth it a small thinge vnto the that thou hast broughte vs oute of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyll vs in the wylderneße? but that thou shalt raygne ouer vs also? Wolte ouer thou hast broughte vs vnto no lande that floweth with mylke and hony, neyther haste geuen vs possessions of tribes or of vynes. Cythet wilte thou pull out the eyes of these men? we wyll not come.

And Moses waxed verye angrye and sayde vnto the Lorde: Turne not vnto their offeringes. I haue not taken so moche as an asse frō them, neyther haue hexed any of them. Then Moses sayde vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy companye before the Lorde: bothe thou they and Aaron to morowe. And take euerye man his censer and put cens in them, and come before the Lorde euery man with his censer: two hundred and fyftye censers, and Aaron with his censer. And they take euery man his censer and put fyre in them and layde cens theron, and stode in the wye of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and Moses and Aaron also. And Corah gathered all the congregacion against them vnto the wye of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregacion. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayenge: stute your selues from this congregacion, that I maye consume them at once. And they fell vpō their faces, and sayde. * O most myghtye God of the spirites of all flesh, one man hath synned and wilte thou be wrothe with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge:

enge: speake vnto the congregacion and say: Get you away fro ꝑ tentes of Corah, Dathā & Abiram. And Moses arose vp and went vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel folowed him. And he spake vnto the congregacion, sayenge: departe frome the tentes of these vngodly men, and touche nothinge of theirs: leaste ye perysshe in all their synnes. And they gat them frome the tentes of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on every syde. And Dathan and Abiram came oute and stode in ꝑ wose of their tentes with their wyues, their sonnes and their children.

D And Moses sayde: Hereby ye shall knowe that the Lorde hathe sent me to do all these workes, and that I haue not done them of of myne owne hed: yf these men dye the comen death of all men, ozyf they be vysited after the visitacion of all men, then the Lorde E hath not sent me. But yf the Lorde make a newe thinge, and the earth open her mouthe and swalowe them, and all that pertayne vnto them, so that they go downe quycke into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue rayled vpon the Lorde.

And as sone as he had made an ende of speakynge all these wordes, the grounde clefe a sonder that was vnder them, and the earthe opened her mouthe and swalowed them and their houses and all the men that were with Corah and all their goodes. And they and all that pertayned vnto them, went downe alyue vnto hell, and the earthe closed vpon them, and they perysshed awaye frome the congregacion. And all Israel that were about them fled at the crye of them. For they sayde: The earth mighte happely swalowe vs also. And there came out a fyre frome the Lorde and consumed the two hundred and fyftye men that offred incense.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Speake to Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preest and let him take vp the censers out of the burnynge and scatter the fyre here & there, for the censers of these synners are halowed in their deathes: and let them be beaten into thynne plates and fastened vpon the altare. For they offred them before the Lorde, & therfore they are holye and they shalbe a signe vnto the children of Israel.

F And Eleazar the preest tooke the brasen censers, which they that were burnt had offred, and beat them and fastened them vpon the altare, to be a remembraunce vnto the children of Israel, that no straunger which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer incense before the Lorde, that he be not made lyke vnto Corah and his compayny: as the Lorde sayd vnto him by the handes of Moses.

And on the morowe all the multitude of ꝑ children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron, sayenge: ye haue kylled the people of the Lorde. And when the multitude was gathered against Moses and Aaron, they loked towarde the tabernacle of wytnesse. And beholde, the cloude had couered it and ꝑ glory of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron went before the tabernacle of wytnes,

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Get you frome this congregacion, that I may consume them quyckely. And they fell vpon their faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censer and put fyre therin oute of the altare, and powre on incens, and go quickely vnto the congregacion and make an attonemēt for them. For there is wrathe gone out from the Lorde and there is a plage begonne. And Aaron toke as Moses commaunded him, and ran vnto ꝑ congregacion: and beholde, the plage was begonne among the people, and he put on incens, and made an attonement for the people. And he stode betwene the dead, and them that were alyue, and the plage ceased. And the nombre of them that dyed in the plage, were. xiiij. thousande and seuen hundred: besyde them that dyed about the busynes of Corah. And Aaron went agayn vnto Moses vnto the wye of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the plage ceased.

¶ Aarons rodde budded and beareth blossomes.

CAPL. XVII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to the children of Israell and take of them, for every principall house a rod, of their princes ouer the houses of their fathers: euen. xij. rodes, and wryte euery mans name vpon his rod. And wryte Aarons name vpon the rode of Leui: for euery heed of the houses of their fathers shall haue a rod. And put them in the tabernacle of wytnesse where I will mete you. And his rod whome I chose, shall blossome: so I will make cease home me the grudgynges of the children of Israel which they grudge against you.

And Moses spake vnto the children of Israel, & all the princes gaue him for every prince ouer their fathers houses, a rod: euen. xij. rodes, and the rodde of Aaron was amonge the rodes. And Moses put the rodes before the Lorde in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And on the morowe, Moses went into the tabernacle: and beholde, ✣ the rod of Aaron of the house of Leui was budded and bare blossomes and almondes. So Moses brought out all the rodes whiche were before the Lorde, vnto all the children of Israel, and they loked vpon them, and toke euery man his rodde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: bringe Aarons rod agayne before the wytnesse to be kept for a token vnto the children of rebellion, that thou mayest stoppe their murmuringes from me, that they dye not. And Moses dyd as ꝑ Lorde commaunded him. And the children of Israel spake vnto Moses, sayenge: beholde, we are destroyed and all come to naught: ey whosoeuer commeth nygge the dwellynge of the Lorde, dyeth. Shall we vtterly consume awaye?

CAPI. XVIII.

AND the Lorde ſayd vnto Aaron. Thou and thy ſonnes and thy fathers houſe with the, ſhall beare the faute of that whiche is done amyſſe in the holy place. And thou and thy ſonnes with the, ſhal beare the faute of that whiche is done amyſſe in youre preſthode. And thy brethren alſo the tribe of Leui, the tribe of thy father take with the, & let them be ioyned vnto the and miniſter vnto the. And thou & thy ſonnes with the, ſhall miniſtre before the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And let them wayte vpon the and vpon all ꝑ tabernacle: onely let them not come nyghe ꝑ holy veſſels and the altare, that bothe they & ye alſo dye not. And let them be by the, and wayte on the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and on all the ſeruice of the tabernacle, and let no ſtraunger come nyghe vnto you.

Wayte therfore vpon the holy place & vpō the altare, that there fall no more wrath vpō the children of Iſrael: beholde, I haue taken your brethren the Leuites forth of the childre of Iſrael, to be yours, as gyftes gyuen vnto the Lorde to do the ſeruice of the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ſe that both thou and thy ſonnes with the take hede vnto your preſtes office, in all thinges that pertayne vnto the altare and within the vayle. And ſerue, for I haue gyuen your preſtes office vnto you for a gyfte to do ſeruice: and the ſtraunger that commeth nyghe, ſhall dye.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Aaron: beholde I haue gyuen the the keppynge of myne heueofferinges in all the halowed thinges of ꝑ children of Iſrael. And vnto the I haue gyue the vnto annoyntynge and to thy ſonnes: to be a dutye for euer. This ſhall be thyne of moſte holy ſacrifices. All their gyftes, therow out all their meatofferynges, ſynneofferynges, and treſpaceofferinges which they bringe vnto me. They ſhalbe moſt holy vnto the and vnto thy ſonnes. And ye ſhall eate it in the moſte holy place: all that are males ſhall eate of it, for it ſhalbe holy vnto the.

And this ſhalbe thyne: the heueofferynges of their gyftes, therow out all the waueofferynges of the children of Iſrael, for I haue gyuen theym vnto the, and thy ſonnes, and thy doughters with the to be a dutye for euer: & all that are cleane in thy houſe, ſhall eate of it, all the fat of the oyle, of the wyne and of ꝑ corne: their firſt frutes which they gyue vnto the Lorde, haue I gyuen vnto the. The firſt frutes of all that is in their landes, whyche they bringe vnto the Lorde, ſhall be thyne: and all that are cleane in thyne houſe, ſhall eate of it.

All dedicate thinges in Iſrael, ſhalbe thyne. All that breaketh the matrice of all fleſhe ꝑ men bringe vnto the Lorde, both of man and beaſt, ſhall be thyne. Neuertheleſſe the firſte borne of man ſhall be redemed, and the firſte borne of vncleane beaſtes ſhall be redemed. And their redemptions ſhall be at a moneth olde, valued at fyue ſycles of ſiluer, of the holy ſycle. A ſycle maketh twentye Gerah. But the firſt borne of oxen, ſheepe and goates ſhall not be redemed. For they are holy, and thou ſhalt ſprinkle theyr bloude vpon the altare, & ſhalt burne their fat to be a ſacrifice of a ſweete ſauoure vnto the Lorde.

And the fleſhe of them ſhalbe thyne, as ꝑ wauebreaſt and all the tygot ſhulder is thyne all the holy heueofferinges which the children of Iſrael heue vnto the Lorde, I gyue the & thy ſonnes and thy doughters with the to be a dutye for euer. And it ſhall be a ſalted couenaunt for euer, before the Lorde: vnto the & to thy ſeed with the.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Aaron: thou ſhalt haue none enheritaunce in their land nor parte amonge them. For I am thy parte and thy enheritaunce amonge the children of Iſrael. And beholde I haue gyuen the children of Leui, the tenth in Iſrael to enherite, for the ſeruice which they ſerue in the tabernacle of witnes, that the children of Iſrael henceforth come not nyghe the tabernacle of wytneſſe, & beare ſynne and dye. And the Leuites ſhall do the ſeruice in the tabernacle of witneſſe and beare their ſynne, and it ſhalbe a lawe for euer vnto your children after you: But amonge the children of Iſrael they ſhall enherete none enheritaunce. For the tythes of the children of Iſrael whiche they heue vnto the Lorde, I haue gyuen the Leuites to enherete. Wherfore I haue ſayde vnto the: Amonge the children of Iſrael, ye ſhall enherete none enheritaunce.

And the Lorde ſpake to Moſes, ſayenge: ſpeake vnto the Leuites, and ſaye vnto them: when ye take of the children of Iſrael the tythes which I haue gyuen you of them to youre enheritaunce, ye ſhall take an heueofferinge of that ſame for the Lorde: euen the tenthe of ꝑ tythe. And it ſhalbe reckened vnto you for youre heueofferinge, euen as though ye gaue corne out of the barne or a fulloffringe fro the wyne preſſe.

And in this maner ye ſhall heue an heueofferinge vnto the Lorde, of all your tythes whiche ye receyue of the children of Iſrael, and ye ſhall gyue therof the Lordes heueofferinge vnto Aaron the prieſte. Of all youre gyftes, ye ſhall take out the Lordes heueofferinge: euen the fat of all their halowed thinges.

And thou ſhalte ſaye vnto them: when ye haue take awaye the fat of it frome it, it ſhal be counted vnto the Leuites, as the encreaſe of corne and wyne. And ye ſhall eate it in all places both ye and your houſholdes, for it is your rewarde for your ſeruice in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ye ſhal beare no ſynne by the reaſon of it, when ye haue taken frome it the fat of it: neyther ſhall ye vnhalowe the halowed thinges of the children of Iſrael, and ſo ſhall ye not dye.

¶ Of the redde kowe. The lawe of him that dyeth in the tabernacle: and of him alſo that toucheth any vncleane thynge.

CAPI. XIX.

And

A Nd the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayenge: this is the ordinaunce of the lawe which the Lorde commaundeth, sayenge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel and let theym take the a red kowe without spot whiche neuer bare yocke vpon her. And ye shall gyue her vnto Eleazar the preest and he shall bringe her without the host and cause her to be slayne before him.

And Eleazar the preest shall take of her bloude vpon his fynger, & sprynkle it streyght towarde the tabernacle of wytnes. vij. tymes. And he shal cause the kowe to be burnt in his sight: both skynne, flesshe and bloude, with the wunge also. And let the preest take Cedar woode, and Isope and purple clothe, and cast it vpon the kowe as she burneth. And let the preest washe his clothes and bathe his flesshe in water, and then come into the host, & the preest shalbe vncleane vnto the euen.

And he that burneth her, shall washe his clothes in water and bathe his flesshe also in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And one that is cleane, shall ga and take vp the asshes of the kowe, and put them without the host in a cleane place, where they shall be kept to make sprynklynge water for the multitude of the childzen of Israel: for it is a synneoffring. And let him that gathered the asshes of the kowe, washe his clothes, and remayne vncleane vntyll euen. And this shall be vnto the childzen of Israel and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonge them, a lawe for euer.

He that toucheth any dead persone, shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And he shal purify him selfe with the asshes the thyrde daye, and so he shalbe cleane the seuenth daye. And yf he purifye not him selfe the thyrde daye, then the seuenth daye, he shall not be cleane. Wholesoeuer toucheth anye persone that dyed and sprinkleth not him selfe, defyleth the dwellynge of the Lorde: and therfore that soule shall perysshe out of Israel, because he hathe not sprinkled the sprynklynge water vpō him, he shalbe vncleane, and his vncleanesse shall remayne vppon him.

This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tent: all that come into the tet and al that is in the tent, shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And all the vessels that be open whiche haue no lyd nor couerynge vpon them, are vncleane. And who so euer toucheth one that is slayne with a sweard in the felde, or a dead persone, or a bone of a dead man, or a graue: shall be vncleane seuen dayes.

And they shall take for an vncleane person of the burnt asshes of the synneoffringe, and put runnynge water therto into a vessell. And a cleane persone shal take Isope and dyppe it in the water, and sprynkle it vpon the tent & vpon all the vessels and on the soules that were there, and vpō him that touched a bone or a slayne persone or a dead body or a graue. And the cleane person shall sprynkle vpon the vncleane the. iij. daye and the. vij. daye. And the. vij. daye he shall purify him selfe washe his clothes and bathe him selfe in water, and shalbe cleane at euen.

If any be vncleane and sprynkle not hym selfe the same soule shalbe destroyed from of the congregation: for he hath defyled the holy place of the Lorde and is not sprynkled with sprynklynge water, therfore is he vncleane. And this shalbe a perpetual lawe vnto them. And he that sprinkleth the sprynklynge water, shall washe his clothes.

And he that toucheth the sprynklynge water, shall be vncleane vntyll euen. And what so euer the vncleane persone toucheth, shall be vncleane. And the soule that toucheth it, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen.

¶ Wir Jam dyeth. The people murmure. They haue water euen out of the rocke. Edom denyeth the Israelites passage thorow his cuntre. The death of Aaron in whose rowme Eleazar succedeth.

CAPI. XX.

ANd the hole multitude of the childzen of Israel, came into the wilderne of Sin in the fyrst moneth, & the people dwelt at Cades. And there dyed Mirye, and was buryed there. Moreouer there was no water for the multitude, wherfore they gathered them selues together against Moses and Aaron. And the people chode with Moses and spake, sayenge: wolde God we had perysshed, when our brethre perysshed before the Lorde. Why haue ye brought the congregacō of the Lorde vnto this wyldernesse, that both we and our cattell shulde dye here? Wherfore brought ye vs out of Egypte to bringe vs into this vngracious place, which is no place of seed nor of figges nor vynes nor of pomgranates, nether is there any water to drynke?

And Moses and Aaron went fro me the congregacion vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and fell on their faces. And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Take the staffe, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregacion togethar, and saye vnto the rocke before their eyes, that he geue forth his water. And thou shalt bringe them water out of the rocke and shalt gyue the cōpany drynke and their beastes also.

And Moses toke the staffe fro me before the Lorde, as he commaunded him. And Moses & Aaron gathered the congregacion togethar before the rocke, and he sayd vnto the, heare ye rebellyous, maske we fet you water out of this rocke? And Moses lyfte vp his hande & his staffe and smote the rocke. ij. tymes, and the water came out abundantly, and the multitude dranke and their beastes also.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron because ye beleued me not, to sanctifie me in the eyes of the childzen of Israel, therfore ye shal not bringe this congregacion into the lande which I haue geuen them. This is the water of strife, because the childzen of Israel stroue with the Lorde, and he was sanctified vpon them.

And Moses sent messengers fro me Cades vnto the kynge of Edom. Thus sayth thy brother Israel: Thou knowest all the trauaile hath hathe happened vs, howe oure fathers went downe into Egypte, and how we haue dwelt in Egypte a longe tyme, and how the Egyptians vexed bothe vs and oure fathers. Then we cryed vnto the Lorde, and he herde oure voyces, and sent an aungell and hathe let vs out of Egypte. And beholde, we are in Cades a cyty harde by the borders of thy countrey, let vs go we pray the thorow thy countrey we will not go thorow the fyldes nor thorow * vyneyardes, neyther will we drynke of the water of

* fountaynes, but we will go by the hye way & neyther turne vnto the right hand nor to the left, vntyll we be past thy countreye. And Edom answered him: Se thou come not by me, lest I come out against the with the swerde.
And the chyldren of Israel sayde vnto him:
we will goo by the beaten waye: and yf cy-ther we or oure cattell drynke of thy waters, we will paye for it, we will do no more but passe thorowe by fote onely. And he sayde:
ye shall not go thorow. And Edom came out against him with mothe people and with a mighty power. And thus Edom denyed to gyue Israel passage thorowe his countreye.
And Israel turned awaye from him.

And the children of Israel remoued from Cades and wente vnto mount Hor with all the company. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron in mounte Hor, whyche is vpon the borders of the lande of Edom, say-enge: let Aaron be put vnto his people, for he shall not come into the lande whyche I haue geuen vnto the children of Israel: because ye disobeyed my mouth at the water of stryfe.
Take Aaron and Eleazar his sonne, and bringe them vp vnto mount Hor, and stryppe Aaron out of his vestmentes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and let Aaron be put vnto his people and dye there.

And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded:
and they went vp into mount Hor in * sight of all the multitude. And Moses toke of Aarons clothes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and Aaron dyed there in the toppe of the mount. And Moses & Eleazar came whn out of the mount. And all the house of Israel mourned for Aaron. xxx. dayes.

The death of Aaron. Deute. x. b.

¶ Israel vanquysheth kyng Arad. The fyrye serpentes stynge them: but when they loke at the brasen serpent whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses to lyft vp, they are healed. The kynges Sehon and Og are ouercome in battell.

CAPI. XXI.

AND when kynge Arad the Cananite, whyche dwelt in the south partyes, herde tell that Israel came by the way that the espyes had founde out, he came and foughte with Israel and toke some of them prysoners. Then Israel vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayde: If thou wilt geue this people into our handes, we will destroye their cyties. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Israel, and deliuered vnto them the Cananytes. And they destroyed both them and their cyties, and called the place Horma.

Then they departed frome mount Hor to-warde the redsee: to compasse the lande of Edom. And the soules of the people fainted by the waye. And the people spake against God and against Moses: Wherfore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, for to dye in the wyldernesse, for here is neyther bread nor water, and oure soules lothe this * lyghte bred.

Then the Lorde sent fyrye serpentes amog
the people, which stonge them: so that moch people dyed in Israel. And the people came to Moses, and sayde: we haue synned, for we haue spoken against the Lord and against the, make intercession to the Lorde, that he take awaye the serpentes frome vs. And Moses made intercession for the people. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: make the a serpent and hange it vp for a signe, and let as manye as are bytten loke vpon it, and they shall lyue.
And Moses made a serpent of brasse, and set it vp for a signe. And when the serpentes had bytten any man, he went and beheld the serpent of brasse and recouered.

And the chyldren of Israel remoued & pyt-ched in Oboth. And they departed frome O-both and laye at Eyebarim in the wyldernes whyche is before Moab on the eastsyde. And they remoued thence, and pyched vpon the ryuer of Zared. And they departed thence & pyched on the other syde of Arnon, whyche ryuer is in the wyldernesse, and commeth out of the coostes of the Ammorites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Ammorytes. Wherfore it is spoken in the * booke of the warre of the Lorde: goo with a violence, both on the ryuer of Arnon and on the ryuers heed, whyche hooketh towne to dwell at Ar, and leaneth vpon the coostes of Moab.

And frome thence they came to Beer, why-che is the well, where of the Lorde spake vnto Moses: gather the people togither, that I may geue them water. Then Israel sange this songe: Aryse vp well, synge vnto: The wel which the rulers digged and the cappraynes of the people with the helpe of the lawgyuer and with their staues.

And frome this wyldernesse they went to Matana, and frome Matana to Nahaliel, & frome Nahaliel to Bamoth, and frome Ba-moth to the valay that is in the fylde of Moab in the toppe of * Phesgah which boweth towarde * Jesimon. And Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the Ammorites, sayenge: let vs go thorow thy lande: we will not turne into thy fyldes nor into thy vyneyardes, ne drynke of the water of the welles:
but goo alonge by the common waye, vntyll we be past thy countreye. And Sehon wolde geue Israell no lycence to passe thorowe his countreye, but gathered all his people togy-ther and made out against Israel into the wil-dernesse. And he came to Jahyza and foughte with Israel.

And Israel smote him with the edge of the swerde and conquered his lande, frome Arnd vnto Jaboch: euen vnto the chyldren of Ammon. For the borders of the chyldren of Ammon,

mon, are stronge. And Israel toke all these cytes, and dwelt in all the cytes of the Am-monites /in Hesbon/ and in all the townes therevnto belongynge. For Hesbon was the cyte of Sehon the kynge of the Ammonites, who had fought before with the kynge of the Moabytes, and had taken all his lande forth of his hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherfore it is a prouerbe, go to Hesbon and let the cyte of Sehon be buylt and made redy, for there is a fyre gone forth of Hesbon and a flame from the cyte of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar of the Moabytes, and the men of the hyllis of Arnon. Wo to the Moab: o people of Cha-mos ye are vndone. His sonnes are put to flyghte, and his doughters brought captyue vnto Sehon kynge of the Ammonites. There fyght is out from Hesbon vnto Dibon, and we make a wyldernesse euē vnto Nopha whiche reacheth vnto Medaba. And thus Israel dwelt in the lande of the Amorites. And Moses sent to serche out Jazer, and they toke townes belongynge therto, and conquered Amorites that were there.

And then they turned and went vp toward Basan. And Og the kyng of Basan came out against them, bothe he and all his people, to warre at Edrei. And the Lorde sayd vnto Mo ses: feare him not, for I haue delyuered him into thy handes with all his people and his land. And thou shalt do with him as thou dyd with Sehon the kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Hesbon. And they smote him and his sonnes and all his people, vntil there was nothinge left him. And they conquered his lande, and the children of Israel remoued & pytched in the feldes of Moab, on thother syde of Jordan, by Jericho.

Chynge Balac sendeth for Balam, to curse Israel but Balam can do nothynge against the will of the Lorde, Balams asse speaketh to him in the waye.

CAPI. XXII.

AND Balac the sonne of Zipho saw al that Israel had done to the Amorites, and the Moabites were sore afrayed of the people, because they were many, and abhorred the children of Israel: And Moab sayd vnto the elders of Madian, nowe shall this company lycke vp al that are rounde about vs
as an ox lycketh vp the grasse of the felde.
And Balac the sonne of Zipho was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.

And he sent messangers vnto Balam the sonne of Beor, the & interpreter which dwelt vpon the ryuer of the lande of the children of his folke, to call him, sayenge: Behold, there is a people come out of Egypte whiche cou-ereth the face of the earth and lyeth ouer hard by me. Come nowe I praye the, and curse me this people. For they are to myghtye for me/so peraduenture I myghte be able to smyte them, and to dryue them out of the lande.
For I wote that whom thou blessest, shall be blessed, and whome thou cursest shall be cursed.

And the elders of Moab went with the elders of Madian, haueinge the rewardes of the sothesayenge in their handes. So they came vnto Balam and tolde him the wordes of Ba-lac. And he sayde vnto the, tary here al nighte and I will bringe you worde, euen as & Lorde shall saye vnto me. And the lordes of Moab abode with Balam.

And God came vnto Balam & sayd: What men are these which are with the? And Bala sayde vnto God: Balac the sonne of Zipho kynge of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayenge:
Behold, there is a people come forth of Egypte and couereth the face of the earth: come now therfore and curse me them, that so peraduenture I may be able to ouercome them in battell, and to dryue them out. God sayde vnto Balam: thou shalt not go with them, neyther curse the people for they are blessed.

So Balam rose vp in the morninge & sayd vnto the lordes of Balac: Get you into your lande, for the Lorde will not suffre me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp & went vnto Balac and sayd. Balam wold not come with vs. And Balac sent agayne a greater company of Lordes, and more honorable then they. And they came to Balam and told him: Thus sayth Balac the sonne of Zipho Oh, let nothinge let the, to come vnto me, for I will highly auaūce the vnto great honour, and will do what so euer thou sayest vnto me,
come therfore I praye the, curse me this people.

And Balam answered and sayde vnto the seruauntes of Balac. * If Balac wold giue me his house full of siluer and golde, I can go no further, then the worde of the Lorde my God, to do lesse or more. Neuertheles tary ye here all nighte: that I may wete, what & Lorde wil saye vnto me once more. And God came vnto Balam by nighte and sayde vnto him: If the men come to fet the, aryse vp and go with them: but what I say vnto the, that onely thou shalt do.

And Balam arose vp early, and sadled his asse, and went with the Lordes of Moab.
But God was angrye because he went. And the aungell of the Lorde stode in the waye against him. And he ryd vpon his asse and two seruauntes with him. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde stonde in the waye & his swerde drawen in his hande, she turned a syde out of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.

And the aungell of the Lorde went & stode in a path betweene & vyneyardes, where was a wall on the one syde and an other on the other. When the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde, she thrusted vnto the wal and thrust Balams fote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. But the aungell of the Lorde went further, & stode in a narow place, where was no waye to turne, either to the right hand or to the lyft. And when the asse sawe the angell of the Lorde, she fell downe vnder Balam: & Balam was wroth and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Lorde opened the mouth of Balams asse (speaker).

the Asse, and the sayde vnto Balam: What haue I wrought vnto the, that thou smytteste me thus thre tymes? And Balam sayde vnto the Asse: because thou hast mocked me? I wolde that I hadde a swerde in myne hande, that I myght now kyll the. And the Asse sayde vnto Balam: am not I thyne Asse which thou hast ryden vpon sythes thou wast borne vnto this daye? Was I euer wont to do so vnto the? And he sayde, naye.

And the Lorde opened the eyes of Balam, that he sawe the angell of the Lorde standing in the waye, with his swerde drawen in his hande. And he bowed him self and fell flat on his face. And the aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto him: Wherfore smytest thou thyne asse thus thre tymes? Beholde I came oute to resist the, for thy waye is frowarde and contrary vnto me, and the Asse saw me and auoyded me thre tymes: or elles (hadde she not turned frome me) I had surely slayne the and saued her alyue. And Balam sayde vnto the aungell of the Lorde: I haue synned: for I wist not that thou stodest in the way against me. Now therfore yf it displease thyne eyes, I wil turne againe. And the aungell sayde vnto Balam, go with the men: but in anye wyse, what I saye vnto the, that saye. And Balam went wt the lordes of Balac.

And when Balac herde that Balam was come, he went out against him vnto a cytie of Moab that stode in the border of Arnon, whiche was the vttermost parte of his countrey. And Balac sayd vnto Balam: dyd I not sende for the, to call the? wherfore camest thou not vnto me? thinkeste thou I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? And Balam sayd vnto Balac: Lo I am come vnto the. But I can saye nothinge at all, saue what God putteth in my mouthe, that muste I speake. And Balam went with Balac, and they came vnto the large cytie. And Balac offred oxen and shepe, and sent for Balam and for the lordes that were with him.

¶ Balam blesseth the people, where he was required to curse them and prophesieth that they shall be a greate people.

CAPI. XXIII.

AND on the morrynge, Balac tooke Balam, and brought him vp into ꝑ hyghe place of Baal, and thence he sawe vnto the vttermost parte of the people. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: buylde me here seuen altares and prouyde here seuen bullockes and seuen Rammes. And Balac dyd as Balã sayd. So Balac and Balam offred on euery altare a bullocke and a Ram. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: stande by the sacrifice, whyle I go to wete whether the Lorde will come and mete me, and what so euer he sheweth me, I wyll tell the, and he wente forthwith. And God came vnto Balam, and Balam sayd vnto him I haue prepared seuen altares, and haue offred vpon euery altare, a bullocke and a ram. And ꝑ Lorde put a sayeng in Balams mouth and sayde: goo againe to Balac and saye on this wyse. And he went againe vnto him and lo, he stode by his sacrifice, both he and al the lordes of Moab. And he began his parable & sayde: Balac the kynge of Moab hath fet me frome Mesopotamia out of the mountaynes of the East, sayenge: Come and curse me Jacob, come and befye me Israel. How shall I curse whome God curseth not, and how shal I defye whome the Lorde defyeth not? from the toppe of the rockes I se him and from the hylles I beholde him: loo, the people shall dwell by him selfe and shall not be reckened amonge other nacions. Who can tell the dust of Jacob, and the nombre of the fourth parte of Israel. I praye God my soule may dye the death of the ryghteous, and that my last ende maye be lyke his. And Balac sayde vnto Balam, What hast thou wrought vnto me? I dyd fet the to curse myne enemyes: and behold thou blessest them. And he answered and sayde: must I not kepe that and speake it, whiche ꝑ Lorde hathe put in my mouthe? And Balac sayde vnto him: Come I praye the with me vnto an other place whence thou shalte se the and shalt se but the vttermoste paete of them and shalt not se them all, and curse me them there. And he brought him into a playne feld, where men myght se farre, euen to the toppe of Phasgah, and buylt seuen altares and offred a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare. And he sayde vnto Balac: stande here by thy sacrifice, whyle I go ponder. And the Lorde met Balam, & put wordes in his mouth, and sayde: go againe vnto Balac, and thus saye. And when he came to him: beholde, he stode by his sacrifice and the lordes of Moab with him. And Balac sayde vnto him: What sayth the Lorde?

And he toke vp his parable and sayde: aryse vp Balac and heare, and herken vnto me thou sonne of Ziphor. The Lorde is not a man, ꝑ he can lye, neyther the sonne of man, that he can repent: shulde he saye and not do, or shulde he speake and not make it good? Beholde, I haue begon to blesse and haue blessed, and can not go backe therfro. He beholde no wickednesse in Jacob nor sawe I wlatrye in Israel: The Lorde his God is with him, and the triumphe of a kynge amonge them. God that brought the out of Egypte, is as the strength of an vnycorne vnto them, for there is no sorcerer, in Jacob, nor soothsayer in Israel. Whē the tyme commeth, it will be sayde of Jacob and of Israel, what God hath wrought. Beholde, the people shall ryse vp as a lyonesse & heue vp him selfe as a lyon, and shall not lye wowne agayne, vntyll he haue eaten of the praye and dronke of the bloude of them that are slayne.

And Balac sayde vnto Balã: neyther curse them nor blesse them. And Balam answered and sayde vnto Balac / tolde not I the sayenge / all that the Lorde bydeth me, that I must do? And Balac sayde vnto Balam, come I praye the, I will bringe the yet vnto an other place, so peraduenture it shal please God that thou mayst curse them there. And Balac brought Balam vnto the toppe of Peor, that that boweth towarde the wyldernesse. And Balam sayde vnto Balac / make me here. vij. altares, and prepare me here. vij. bullockes & vij. Rammes. And Balac dyd as Balam had sayde, and offered a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare.

¶ Balam prophesyeth of the kyngdome of Israel and of the commynge of Christe. Balac is angrye with Balam. The destruccion of the Amelechites and of the kenytes.

CAPI. XXIIII.

1 When Balam sawe that it pleased the Lorde that he shulde blesse Israel, he went not as he dyd twyse before to set sothsayenge, but set his face towarde the wildernesse, and lyft vp his eyes and loked vpon Israel as he laye with his trybes, & the spyrite of God came vpon him. And he toke vp his parable and sayde: Balam the sonne of Beor hathe sayde, and the man whose eye is open hath sayde: he hath sayde which heareth the wordes of God, and seeth the visions of the almyghty, which falleth downe and his eyes are opened.

How goodly are the tentes of Jacob and thyne habitation Israel, euen as the brode valeyes and as gardens by the ryuers syde, as the tentes which the Lorde hath pitched, and 2 as Cypres trees vpon the water. The water shal flowe out of his bouket and his seed shal be many waters, and his kynge shalbe higher then Agag. And his kyngdome shalbe exalted. God that brought him oute of Egypte, his strength is as the strength of an vnicorne, and he shall eate the nacions that are his enemies and breake their bones & perce them thorowe with his arowes. He couched him selfe & laye downe as a lyon and as a lyoncelle, who shall stere him vp? blessed is he that blesseth the, & cursed is he that curseth the.

And Balac was wrothe with Balam, and smote his handes together, and sayde vnto him: I sent for the to curse myne enemyes: & beholde, thou hast blessed them this three tymes, and now get the quickly vnto thy place. I thought to haue auaunced the vnto honour, 3 but the Lorde hath kept the backe frome worshyp. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: tolde I not thy messengers whiche thou sentest vnto me sayenge. * If Balac wolde gyue me his 3. Reg. 22. house full of syluer and golde, I can not passe the mouth of the Lorde, to do eyther good or bad of myne owne mynde. What the Lorde sayeth, that must I speake. And now beholde, I go vnto my people: come let me shewe the, what this people shall do to thy folke in the later dayes. And he began his parable & sayd: Balam the sonne of Beor hath sayde, and the man that hath his eye open hath sayde, & he 4 hath sayde that heareth the wordes of God, and hath the knowlege of the moste hyghe, & beholdeth the vysion of the almyghtye, and when he falleth downe hath his eyes opened I se him but not now, I beholde him but not nyghe. There shall come a starre of Jacob & 17 ryse a scepter of Israel, which shall smyte the coostes of Moab, and vndermyne all the chyldren of Seth. And Edom shall be his possessio and the possession of Heir shall be their enemyes, and Israel shall do manfully. And out of Jacob shall come he that shall destroye the residue of the cyties.

And he loked on Amalech and began his parable and sayde: Amalech is the first of the nacions, but his latter ende shal perysshe vtterly. And he loked on the Kenites and toke his parable and sayde: stronge is thy dwellynge place and put thy nest vpon a rocke, Neuerthe- D lesse thou shalt be a burnynge to Kain, vntyl Assur take the prysonner: And he toke his parable and sayde: Alas, who shall lyue when God weth this? The shyppes shall come out of the coste * of Chittim, and subdue Assur, and subdue Eber, and he hym selfe shall perysshe at the last. And Balam rose vp & went and dwelt in his place: and Balac also went his waye. * Chaldy and the commune translacion Italy.

For ye were disobedient vnto my mouthe in the deserte of Sin in the stryfe of the congregacion, that ye sanctified me not in the water before their eyes. That is ꝑ water of stryfe in Cades in the wyldernesse of Sin. And Moses spake vnto the Lorde sayenge: let ꝑ Lord God of the spirites of all fleshe, set a man ouer the congregacion, whyche maye goo in and out before them, and to leade them in & out that the congregacio of the Lorde be not as a flocke of sheepe without a shepharde. And put thy prayse vpon him, that all the cõpany of the children of Israel may heare. CAPI. XXX.

AND Moses spake vnto the heades of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: this is the thynge whiche the Lorde commaundeth. If a man bowe a bowe vnto the Lorde, or sweare an othe, and bynde his soule, he shal not go backe with his worde but shall fulfyll all that proceedeth oute of his mouthe.

If a damosell bowe a bowe vnto the Lorde, and bynde her selfe beynge in her fathers house and vnmaried: yf her father heare the bowe and bonde, whiche she hathe made vpon her soule, and holde his peace therto: then all her bowes and bondes whiche she hath made vpon her soule, shall stande good. But yf her father forbydde her the same daye that he heareth it, none of her bowes ne bondes whiche she hath made vpon he soule, shal be of value, and the Lorde shall forgyue her, because her father forbad her.

If she hath an husbande when she bowed or pronounced ought oute of her lyppes, wherwith she bounde her soule, and her husbande, and herde it, and helde his peace therat the same daye he herde it: Then her bowes and her bondes wherwith she bounde

C The vowe of a widowe, and so her that is diuorsed, and all that they haue bounde theyr soules with, shall stande.

If she vowed in her husbandes house, or bounde her soule with an othe, and her husbande herde it, and helde his peace and forbadde her not: then all her vowes and boundes wherwith she bounde her soule, shall stande. But yf her husbande disanulled them the same daye he herde them, then notwithstandyng that proceded oute of her lyppes in vowes and boundes wherwith she bounde her soule shall stande: for her husbande hathe loosed them and the Lorde shall forgyue her.

All vowes and othes that bynde to humble the soule, maye her husbande stablyshe or breake. But yf her husbande holde his peace from one daye vnto an other, then he stablysheth all her vowes and boundes which she had vpon her, because he helde his peace the same daye he herde them. And yf he afterwarde breake them, he shall beare her synne hym selfe.

D These are the ordynaunces whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses, betwene the man and his wyfe, and betwene the father and his doughter, beynge a damsell in her fathers house.

CAPI. XXXV.

AND the Lorde spake to Moses in the feldes of Moab by Iordane oute a-gaynst Iericho, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, that they geue vnto the Leuytes of the enheritaunce of theyr possession: * cityes to dwell in. And ye shall geue also vnto the cityes of the Leuytes, suburbes rounde aboute them. The cityes shall be for theym to dwell in, and the suburbes for theyr catell, possession, and all maner beastes of theyrs.

* Iosue xxi.

And the suburbes of the cityes whiche ye shall geue vnto the Leuytes, shal reache from the wall of the cyte outwarde, a thousande cubytes rounde aboute. And ye shall measure without the cyte, and make the vttermoost border of the eest syde, two thousande cubytes And the vttermoost border of the south syde, two thousande cubytes. And the vttermoost border of the west syde, two thousande cubytes: and the vttermoost border of the northe syde, two thousande cubytes also, and the city shall be in the myddes. And these shall be the suburbes of theyr cityes.

And amonge the cityes which ye shal geue vnto the Leuytes, * there shall be sixe cityes of sauncty, whiche ye shall geue to that intent, that he whiche kylleth maye flee thyther. And to them ye shall adde fourtye and two cityes moo: so that all the cityes whiche ye shall geue the Leuytes, shall be fourty and eyght with theyr suburbes.

* Iosue xxi. e Leuite xxi. b Deutonomy.

And of the cityes whiche ye shall geue out of the possessyons of the chyldren of Israel, ye shall geue manye oute of theyr possessyons that haue moche, and fewe oute of their possessions that haue lytle: so that euerye tryde shall geue of his cityes vnto the Leuetes, accordynge to the enheritaunce whiche he enheriteth.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * when ye be come ouer Iordane in to the lande of Canaan, ye shall deuyde cytes, whiche shall be pryuileged townes for you: that he whiche sleeth a man vnwares, maye flee thyther. And the cityes shall be to flee from the reuenger of bloude, that he whiche kylleth dye not, vntyll he stande before the congregacion in iudgement.

The vse and office of cities.

And of these sixe free cityes whiche ye shall geue, thre ye shall geue on this syde Iordan, and thre in the lande of Canaan. And these sixe free cityes shall be for the chyldren of Israel, and for the straunger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you, that all they whiche kyll anye person vnwares, maye flee thyther.

If any man smyte an other with a weapon of yron that he dye, then he is a murtherer: and shall dye for it.

If he smyte hym with a throwynge stone that he dye therwith, then he shall dye, for he is a murtherer, and shall be slayne therfore.

If he smyte hym with a hande weapon of wood that he dye therwith, then he shall dye: for he is a murtherer, and shall be slayne therfore.

The reuenger of bloude shall slee the murtherer, as soone as he fyndeth hym: If he thrust at him * of hate, or hurle at him with lynge awayte that he dye, or smyte hym with his hande of malice that he dye, he that smote him shall dye, for he is a murtherer. The reuenger of bloude shall slee him as soone as he fyndeth hym.

* Deut.

But if he pushed hym by chaunce, and not of hate, or caste at hym with anye maner of thynge, and not lynge of wayte: or caste anye maner of stone at hym that he dye therwith, and sawe him not: And he caste it vpon hym and he dye, but was not his enemye, neither sought hym anye harme: then the congregation shall iudge betwene the sleer, and the reuenger of bloude in suche cases. And the congregation shall deliuer the sleer oute of the hande of the reuenger of bloude, and shall restore hym agayne vnto the straunchesed cytye, whither he was fleed. And he shall remayne there * vnto the deathe of the hyghe preest whiche was anoynted with holy oyle.

* Iosue xx.

But if he came without the lymytes of his priuileged cityе whyther he was fledde, * the reuenger of bloude fynde hym without the precincte, of his free towne, he shall slee the murtherer, and be giltlesse: because he shulde haue kepte hym selfe in his free towne vntyll the dethe of the hyghe preest, and after the dethe of the hyghe preest, he shall returne agayne vnto the lande of his possession. And this shall be an ordynaunce and a lawe vnto you, amonge youre chyldren after you, in all youre habitacions.

Who so euer sleeth, shall be slayne by the mouthe of wytnesses. For one wytnesse shall not pronownce agaynste one person to put him to dethe. Moreouer ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of the murtherer which is wor thy to dye: but he shall be put to deathe. Also ye shall take none attonement for him that is fledde to a free cityе, that he shulde come a-geyne and dwell in the lande before the death of

of the bygbe pzeeste. And se ye defyle not the lande whiche ye are in / foz blonde defyleth the lande. And the lande can none otherwyse be clensed of the blonde that is shedde therin, but by the blonde of hym that shedde it. Defyle not therfoze the lande whiche ye inhabyte, and in the myddes of whyche, I also dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel.

¶ An order for the mariage of the doughters of Zelaphead. That of the trybes maye not marye with an other, but euerye one muste take him a wyfe of his owne tryde.

CAPI. XXXVI.

AND the heades of the chyldren of Galaad the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the chyldren of Joseph, came fozthe and spake before Moses and the pzynces which were auncient vpon the chyldren of Israel, and sayd, * The Lozde commaunded my lozde to gyue the lande to inherite by lotte to the chyldren of Israel. And then my lozde commaunded in the name of the Lozde, to gyue the enheritaunce of * Zelaphead our bzother vnto his doughters.

Nowe when any of the sonnes of the trybes of Israel take them to wyues, then shall theyr inheritaunce be taken fromthe enheritaunce of our fathers, and shall be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tryde in whiche they are, and shall be taken fromthe lotte of oure enheritaunce. And when the yere of Jubelye commeth vnto the chyldren of Israel, then shall theyr enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tryde wherin they are and so shall theyr enheritaunce be taken away from the enheritaunce of the tryde of oure fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel at the mouth of the Lozde, saying: the tryde of the chyldre of Joseph haue sayd wel. This therfoze dothe the Lozde commaunde the doughters of Zelaphead, sayinge: * Let them be wyues to whom they them self thynk beste, but in the kynred of the tryde of theyr father shall they marye, that the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Israel voide not from tribe to tryde. But that the chyldren of Israel may abyde euerye man in the enheritaunce of the tryde of his fathers. * Tob. vi. c.

And euery doughter that possesseth any enheritaunce, amonge the trydes of the chyldren of Israel, shall be wyfe vnto one of the kynred of the tryde of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euerye man the enheritaunce of his father, and that the enheritaunce goo not fromone tryde to an other: but that the trydes of the chyldren of Israel may abyde euery man in his owne enheritaunce.

And as the Lozde commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the doughters of Zelaphead: Mahela, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha, and Noa, and were maried vnto theyr fathers brothers sonnes, of the kynred of the chyldren of Manasses the sonne of Joseph, and so they habde theyr enheritaunce in the tryde of the kynred of theyr father. These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lozde commaunded thozowe Moses vnto the chyldren of Israel in the feldes of Moab vpon Jozdan nere vnto Jericho.

¶ The ende of the fourth boke of Moses.

THE FYFTE BOOKE OF MOSES CALLED. DEVTERONOMIVM.

¶ A briefe rehersall of thynges done before, frome the preachynge at mount Horeb vntyll they came to Cades barne.

CAPI. I.

THese be the wordes which Moses spake vnto al Israel on the other syde Jordan in the wyldernes & in the feldes by the red see, betwen Pharan & Thophel, Laban, Haseroth, and Dizahab xi. dayes iourney frome Horeb vnto Cades barne, by the way that leadeth vnto mount Seir. And it happened the first daye of the xi. moneth, in the xl. yere that Moses spake vnto the children of Israel according vnto all that the Lord had geuen him in commaundement vnto them after he had smytten Sehon the kyng of the Amorites which dwelt in Hesbon and Og kynge of Basan, whiche dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai.

Numeri xxi. c

On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, Moses began to declare this law, sayinge: the Lorde oure God spake vnto vs in a Horeb, sayinge: Ye haue dwelt long ynough in this mount: departe therfore and take your iourney and go vnto the hylls of the Amorites, and vnto all places nye theret vnto: both feldes, hylles and dales: and vnto the southe and vnto the sees syde of the lande of Canaan, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue set the lande before you: go in therfore and possesse the lande whiche the Lorde sware vnto your fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue vnto them, and their seed after them.

a Horeb and Sinai are both one.

And I sayd vnto you the same season: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde your God hath multiplied you: so that ye are this daye as the starres of heuen in nombre. The Lorde God of your fathers make you a thousande tymes so many mo as ye are, and bleese you as he hath promysed you. How (said I) can I my selfe alone beare the accombraunce charge and stryfe that is amonges you: bring therfore men of wysdome and of vnderstandynge and of experience, knowne among your trybes, that I maye make them rulers ouer you. And ye answered me and sayd, that which thou hast spoken is good to be done. And then I toke the heades of your trybes men of wisdome and experience, and made them rulers ouer you: capitaynes ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, ouer fyftye, and ouer ten, and officers amonge your trybes.

Judges.

And I charged your Iudges the same tyme, sayinge: heare your brethren, and iudge rygh-teously betwene euerye man and his brother, and the straunger that is with hym. Se ye know no mans personage in iudgement, but heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayde of no man, for the iudgement is Gods. And the cause that is too harde for you, bringe vnto me, and I wyll heare it. And I commaunded you the same season al thinges which ye sholde do. And then we departed frome Horeb, and walked thorow all that great and terrible wyldernesse as ye haue sene alonge by the waye that leadeth vnto the hylles of the Amorites, as the Lorde oure God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barne. And there I sayd vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hylles of the Amorites whiche the Lorde oure God dothe geue vs.

Beholde, the Lorde thy God hathe set the lande before, goo vp and conquere it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers sayethe vnto the: feare not, neyther be discouraged. And then ye came vnto me euerye one, and sayde, Lette vs sende men before vs, to inserche out the lande, and to bringe vs worde agayne, bothe what waye we shall goo vs by, and vnto what cytyes we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue men of you, of euerye tryde one. And they departed and wente vp into the hyghe countrey, and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and serched it oute, and toke of the frute of the lande in their handes, and broughte it downe vnto vs, and broughte vs worde agayne and sayd: It is a good lande which the Lorde oure God dothe geue vs.

Notwithstandynge ye wolde not consent to goo vp, but were disobediente vnto the mouth of the Lord your God, and murmured in youre tentes, and sayde: because the Lorde hateth vs, therfore he hath broughte vs oute of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amorites, and to destroye vs. Howe shall we goo vp? Oure brethren haue discouraged our hertes, sayinge: The people is greater and taller then we, and the cityes are greate and walled, euen vp to heuen: and more ouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there.

And I sayde vnto you: dred not, neyther be afrayde of them. The Lorde your God which goeth before you, he shall fyght for you accordyng to all that he dyd vnto you in Egypte, before your eyes, and in the wyldernesse, as thou hast sene how the Lorde thy God bare the as a man shalde beare his sonne thorowe out all the waye whiche ye haue gone, tyll ye came vnto this place. And yet for all this, ye dyd not beleue the Lorde your God, whiche goeth the waye before you, to serche you oute a place to pytche your tentes in. In fire by nyght, that ye myght se what waye to go and in a cloude by daye.

And the Lorde herde the voyce of your wordes, and was wrothe and sware, sayinge: there shall not one of these men of this frowarde generacion se that good lande whiche I sware to geue vnto your fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune, he shall se it: and to hym wyll I geue the lande whiche he hathe walked in, and to his children bycause he hathe continually followed the Lorde.

Likewise

Lykewyse the Lorde was angrye with me for your sakes, sayinge: thou also shalte not goo in thyther. But Iosua the sonne of Nun whiche standeth before the, he shall go in thyther. Holden him therefore for he shall dyuyde the heritage vnto Israel.

* Moreouer your chyldren whiche ye sayd should be a praye, and your sonnes whiche knowe neyther good nor bad this daye, they shall goo in thyther, and vnto them I wyll geue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne backe and take your iourneye in to the wyldernesse: euen the waye to the redde see. Then ye answered and sayde vnto me: We haue synned against the Lorde we wyll goo vp and fyghte, according to all that the Lorde oure God commaunded vs. And when ye hadde gyrde on euerye man his weapons of warre, and were redye to goo vp into the hylles, the Lorde sayd vnto me: saye vnto them, se ye go not vp and that ye fyghte not, for I am not amonges you: lest ye be slayne before your enemyes. * And when I told you ye wolde not heare: but disobeyed the mouthe of the Lorde, and wente presumptuously vp in to the hylles.

Then the Amorytes whiche dwelt in those hylles, came out against you and chased you as bees do, and hewed you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came againe and wept before the Lorde: but the Lord wold not heare your voyce, nor geue you audience. And so ye abode in Cades alonge season.

¶ Rehersall of that whiche was done frome the tyme that they departed frome Cades barne, vnto the battell against the kynges Sehon and Og.

CAPI. II.

Then we turned and toke oure iourneye in to the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the redde see as the Lorde commaunded me. And we compassed the mountaynes of Seir a longe tyme. Then the Lorde spake vnto me sayinge: Ye haue compassed this mountayne long enoughe, turne you northwarde. And warne the people, saying: Ye shall go thorow the costes of your brethren the chyldren of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir, and they shall be afrayde of you: But take good hede vnto youre selues, that ye prouoke them not, for I wyll not geue you of their lande, no not so moche as a fote breade: because I haue geuen mounte Seir vnto Esau in possessyon. Ye shall bye meate of them for money to eate, and ye shall bye water of them for money to drynke. For the Lorde thy God hathe blessed the in all the workes of thyne hand, and knewe the as thou wentest thorow his great wylderneselle. Moreouer the Lorde thy God hath ben with the this fourtye yeres, so that thou hast lacked nothynge.

And when we were departed from our brethren the chyldren of Esau whiche dwelte in Seir by the fryde waye from Elath and Esion Gaber, we turned and wente the waye to the wyldernesse of Moab. Then the Lorde sayd vnto me, se that thou vexe not the Moabites, neyther prouoke them to battayle. for I wyll not geue the of their lande to possesse: because I haue geuen Ar vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. The Emims dwelt therin in tymes past, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims: whiche also were taken for gyauntes as the Enakims: And the Moabites called them Emims.

In lyke maner the Horims dwelte in Seir before tyme whiche the chyldren of Esau cast out, and destroyed them before them & dwelte there in their stede: as Israel dyd in the lande of his possession whiche the Lorde gaue them. Now ryse vp (sayd I) and get you ouer the ryuer Zared. And we wente ouer the ryuer Zared. The space in which we came from Cades Barne, vntyll we were come ouer the ryuer Zared was. xxxviij. yeres, vntyll all the generacion of the men of warre were wasted oute of the hoste as the Lorde sware vnto them. For in deede the hand of the Lorde was against them to destroye them oute of the hoste, tyll they were consumed.

And as soone as all the men of warre were consumed and dead for the of the people, then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge. Thou shalte go thorowe Ar the coste of Moab this daye, and shalt come neere vnto the chyldren of Ammon: se thou vexe them not, nor yet prouoke them. For I wyll not geue the of the lande of the chyldren of Ammon to possesse, because I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. That also was taken for a land of gyauntes, and gyauntes dwelt therin in olde tyme, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummims. A people that was greate, many and tall, as the Enakims. But the Lorde destroyed them before the Ammonytes, and they caste them out, and they dwelte there in their stede: as he dyd for the chyldren of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir: euen as he destroyed the Horims before them, and they caste them oute and dwell in their stede vnto this daye. And the Aeuims whiche dwelte in Hazerim euen vnto Aza, the Caphthorims whiche came out of Caphthor, destroyed them and dwelte in their rowmes.

Ryse vp, take youre iourneye and goo ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen in to thy hande Sehon the Amoryte, kynge of Hesbon and his lande. Go and conquere, and prouoke hym to battayle. This daye I wyll begyn to sende the feare and dred of the vpon all nations that are vnder all partes of the heauen: so that when they heare speake of the, they shal tremble and quake for feare of the.

Then I sente messengers oute of the wyldernesse of the caste vnto Sehon kynge of Hesbon with wordes of peace, sayinge: * Let me goo thorowe thy lande. I wyll goo alwayes alonge by the hye waye, and will neyther turne vnto the right hand nor to the left. Sell me meate for money to eate, and geue me drynke for money to drynke. I wyl go thorow by fote onely (as the chyldren of Esau dyd vnto me which dwell in Seir, and the Moabites which dwel in Ar) vntyll I be come ouer

L.ij. Iordan,

But Sehon the kyng of Hesbon wolde not let vs passe by him, for the Lorde thy God had hardened his spirite, and made his herte tough bicause he wolde delyuer him in to thy handes, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: beholde I haue begon to set Sehon and his lande † before the: go to and conquere, that thou mayst possesse his lande. And we toke all his cityes the same season and destroyed all his cityes, with men, women and chyldren, and let not hynge remayne saue the catell only we caught vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cityes whiche we toke, frome Aroer vpon the brynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and the citye in the ryuer, vnto Galaad: there was not one citye to stronge for vs. The Lorde our God delyuered all vnto vs: onely vnto the lande of the chyldren of Ammon ye came not, nor vnto all the coste of the ryuer Jaboche, nor vnto the cityes in the mountaynes, nor vnto what so euer the Lorde our God forbad vs.

Then we turned and wente vp the waye to Basan: ✣ And Og the kyng of Basan came out agaynst vs: bothe he and all his people to battell at Edrai. And the Lorde sayd vnto me: feare hym not, for I haue delyuered hym and all his people and his lande in to thy hande, and thou shalte deale with hym as thou dealedst with Sehon kynge of the Amorytes whiche dwelte at Hesbon. And so the Lorde our God delyuered in to our handes, Og also the kynge of Basan, and all his folke. And we smote him, tyll nought was lefte hym.

And we toke all his cityes the same season (for there was not a citye which we toke not from them, euen thre score cityes, all the region of Argob, the kyngdom of Og in Basan. All these cityes were made stronge with hye walles, gates, and barres, besyde vnwalled townes a greate meyny. And we vtterly destroyed them as we played with Sehon kyng of Hesbon, bryngynge to nought all the cytyes with men, women, and chyldren. But all the cattell and the spoyle of the cityes, we pre serued for our selues.

And thus we toke the same season, the lande out of the hande of two kynges of the Amorytes on the other syde Jordan, frome the ryuer of Arnon vnto mounte Hermon. (whiche Hermon the Sidons call Sarion, but the Amorytes call it Senyr) all the cityes in the playne, and all Galaad, & all Basan vnto Salecha and Edrai, cityes of the kyngdom of Og in Basan. For onely Og kynge of Basan remayned of the race of the graunts, his bedde his yron bed is yet at Rabah among the chyldren of Ammon, nyne cubytes longe, and four cubytes brode, of the cubytes of a man.

And when we had conquered this land the same tyme, I gaue from Aroer, which is vpon the ryuer of Arnon, and halfe mount Galaad, and the cityes therof vnto the Rubenites, and Gadites. And the rest of Galaad and all Basan, the kyngdome of Og, I gaue vnto the halfe tryde of Manasse, all the region of Argob with all. Basan was called the lande of graunts. Jair the sonne of Manasse tooke all the regyon of Argob vnto the costes of Gesuri and Maachati, and called them after his owne name: Basan † Hauoth Jair vnto this daye. And I gaue halfe Galaad vnto Machir. And vnto Ruben and Gad I gaue fro Galaad vnto the ryuer of Arnon, and halfe the valley and the coste, euen vnto the ryuer Jaboche, whiche is the border of the chyldren of Ammon, and the tribes and Jordan with the coste from Cenereth vnto the see in the fryde, whiche is the salt see vnder the springes of Phasgah eastwarde.

And I commaunded you the same tyme (ye Ruben and Gad) sayinge: the Lorde youre God hathe gyuen you this lande to enioye it: se you goo harnessed before youre brethren the chyldren of Israel all that are men of warre amonges you. Your wyues onely, youre chyldren and your catell (for I wote that ye haue mothe catell) shall abyde in your cityes which I haue gyuen you, vntyll the Lorde haue gyuen rest vnto youre brethren as well as vnto you, and vntyll they also haue conquered the lande which the Lorde your God hath gyuen them beyonde Jordan: and then returne agayne euery man vnto his possession which I haue gyuen you.

And I warned Josua the same tyme, sayinge: thyne eyes haue sene all that the Lorde your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen so the Lorde wyll doo vnto all kyngedomes whyther thou goest. Feare them not, for the Lorde youre God it is, that fyghteth for you.

Num. 32.

And I besought the Lorde the same tyme, sayinge: O Lorde God, thou hast begon to shewe thy seruaunt thy greatnesse & thy mighty hande, for there is no God in heuen nor in erth that can doo after thy workes, and after thy power: let me goo ouer and se the good land that is beyonde Jordan, that goodly hye countrey, and Libanon. But the Lorde was angry with me for your sakes, and wolde not heare me, but sayde vnto me: be content, and speake hence forthe no more vnto me of this matter. ✣ Get the vp in to the top of Phasgah and lyfte vp thyne eyes west, north, south and east, and beholde it with thyne eyes, for thou shalte not goo ouer this Jordan. Moreouer charge Josua and incourage him, and bolden him, for he shall go ouer before this people, & he shall diuyde the lande, whiche thou shalte se, vnto them. And so we abode in the valley beside Bethphegor.

CAPI. IIII.

AND nowe herken Israel vnto the ordynaunces and lawes which I teache you for to doo them, that ye maye lyue and go and conquere the lande whiche the Lorde God of your fathers gyueth you. Ye shall put nothyng vnto the worde whiche I commaunde you, neyther do ought therefrom, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde your God, whiche I commaunde you. ✠ Your eyes haue sene what the Lorde dyd to Baal Peor: for all the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lorde your God hathe destroyed amonge you. But ye that cleue vnto the Lorde your God are alyue euerye one of you this daye. Beholde, I haue taught you ordinaunces and lawes suche as the Lorde my God commaunded me that ye shulde do in the lande whyther ye go to possesse it.

Kepe them therfore and do them, ✠ for that is your wysdome and vnderstandynge in the sight of the nacions: whiche when they haue herde all these ordynaunces, shall saye: O what a wyse and vnderstanding people is this greate nacion. For what nacion is so greate that hathe Goddes so nye vnto him: as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs in all thynges, when we call vnto him? Yea, and what nacion is so great, that hathe ordinaunces and lawes so ryghteous, as all this lawe whiche I set before you this daye.

Take hede to thy selfe therfore onely, and kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynges whiche thyne eyes haue sene, and that they departe not out of thyne herte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but teache them thy sonnes, and thy sonnes sonnes. The daye that I stode before the Lorde your God in Horeb when he sayd vnto me, gather me the people together, that I may make them heare my wordes to chastent they may lerne to feare me as long as they lyue vpon the erth, and that they may teache their chyldren: ye came and stode also vnder the hyll, and the hyll burnt with fire: euen vnto the myddes of heuen, where was derknes cloudes and mist. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the fire, and ye herd the voyce of the wordes: but sawe no ymage, saue herde a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt, whiche he commaunded you to doo, euen ten sayinges, and wrote them in to tables of stone. And the Lorde commaunded me that same season to teache you ordinaunces and lawes, for to doo them in the lande whyther ye goo to possesse it.

Take hede vnto your selues diligently, forasmuche as ye sawe no maner of ymage the day whe the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb out of the fire, lest you marre your selues, and make you grauen ymages after what so euer lykenesse it be: whether after the lykenes of man or woman, or any maner beest that is on the erth, or of any maner fethered foule that fleeth in the ayre, or of any maner worme that creepeth on the erth, or of any maner fysshe that is in the water beneethe the erth: yea and lest thou lyfte vp thyne eyes vnto heuen, and when thou seest the sonne and the mone and the sterres, and what so euer is contayned in heuen, shulest be allured, and shulest bowe thy selfe vnto them, and serue those thynges whiche the Lorde thy God hath deuyded vnto all nacions, that are vnder all quarters of heuen.

For the Lorde toke you and broughte you out of the yron fornace of Egypte, to be vnto him a people of enherytaunce, as it is come to passe this daye. Furthermore, the Lorde was angrye with me for your sakes and sware, that Deuteron. 4
I shulde not goo ouer Iordane, and that I shulde not go vnto that good lande, which the Lorde thy God gyueth the to enherytance. For I muste dye in this lande, and shall not goo ouer Iordan. But ye shall goo ouer and conquere that good lande.

Take hede vnto youre selues therfore that ye forget not the appoyntment of the Lorde your God whiche he made with you, and that ye make you no grauen ymage of what so euer it be that the Lorde thy God hath forbydden the. For the Lorde thy God is a consuming fire and a gelous God.

Yf after thou haste gotten chyldren, and chyldrens chyldren, and haste dwelte longe in the lande, ye shall marre youre selues and make grauen ymages after the lykenesse of what so euer it be, and shalte worke wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke him, I call heuen and earthe to recorde vnto you this daye, that ye shall shortly perysshe forthe of the lande whether ye go ouer Iordan to possesse it: ye shall not prolonge youre dayes therin, but shall shortly be destroyed. And the Lorde shall skatter you amonges nacions, and ye shall be lefte fewe in nombre among the people whyther the Lorde shall bringe you: and there ye shal serue gotdes whiche are the workes of mennes handes, wodde and stone whiche neyther se, nor heare, nor eate, nor smell. Neuerthe lesse, ye shall seke the Lorde your God euen there, and shall fynde hym, yf thou seke hym with all thyne herte, and with all thy soule. In thy tribulacyon, and when all these thynges are come vpon the euen in the latter dayes, thou shalte conuerte vnto the Lorde thy God, and shalte herken vnto his voyce. For the Lorde thy God is a pitifull God: he wyll not forsake the, neyther destroye the, nor forget the appoyntment made with thy fathers whiche he sware vnto them.

For aske I praye the, of the dayes that are paste whiche were before the, frome the daye that God created man vpon the earthe, and frome the one syde of heuen vnto the other, whether any thynge hath ben lyke vnto this great thyng, or whether any suche thynge hathe ben herde as it is, that a people hathe herde the voyce of God speakynge out of fyre

ANd Moses called all Israel, and sayde vnto them: Heare (Israel) the ordynaunces and lawes whiche I speake in eares this daye, and learne them, and kepe to do them. The Lorde our God made an appointment with vs in Horeb. The Lord made not this bonde with oure fathers, but with vs: we are they whiche are all here alyue this daye. The Lorde talked with you face to face in the mount out of the fyre. And I stode betwene the Lorde and you the same tyme, to shewe you the sayinge of the Lorde. For ye were afrayde of the fire, and therfore went not vp in to the mounte, and he sayd. * I am the Lorde thy God, whiche brought the oute of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue therfore none other goddes in my presence.

Thou shalte make the no grauen ymage of anye maner lykenesse that is in heuen aboue, or in erth nether, or in the water beneth the erth. * Thou shalt neyther bowe thy selfe vnto them nor serue them: for I the Lorde thy God am a gelous God, visityng the wickednesse of the fathers vpon the children, euen in the thyrde and fourthe generacyon, amonge them that hate me; and shewe mercye vpon thousandes amonges them that loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

* Thou shalte not take the name of the Lorde thy God in vayne: For the Lorde wil not holde hym giltelesse that taketh his name in vayne.

* Kepe the Saboth daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the Lorde thy God hath commaunded the. Sixe dayes thou shalte labour, and do all that thou hast to do, but the seuenth daye is the Sabath of the Lorde thy God: thou shalte doo no maner worke, neyther thou nor thy sonne, nor thy daughter, nor thy seruaunt, nor thy mayde, nor thyne oxe, nor thyne asse, nor any of thy catell, nor the straunger that is within thy cyte, that thy seruaunte and thy mayde may rest as well as thou. And remembre thou waste a seruaunt in the lande of Egypte, and how that the Lorde God brought the oute thence with * a myghtye hande, and a stretched oute arme. For which cause the Lorde thy God commaunded the to kepe the Sabath daye.

* Honour thy father and thy mother, as the Lorde thy God hathe commaunded the: that thou mayst prolonge thy dayes, and that it maye go well with the on the lande whiche the Lorde thy God giueth the.

* Thou shalte not slee.

Thou shalte not commyt aduoutrye.

Thou shalt not steale.

Thou shalt not beare false wytnesse against thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not lust after thy neyghbours wyfe: thou shalte not couet thy neyghbours house, felde, seruaute, mayde, oxe, asse, nor ought that is thy neyghbours.

These wordes the Lorde spake vnto all youre multitude in the mounte, oute of the fyre, cloude, and darkenesse, with a loude voyce, and added no more thereto, and wrote them in two tables of stone, and deliuered them vnto me.

But as soone as ye herde the voyce, oute of the the darkenesse, and lawe the hyll burne with fyre, ye came vnto me all the heades of youre tribes and youre elders: and ye sayd, Beholde, the Lorde our God hath shewed vs his glory and his greatnesse, and * we haue herde his voyce out of the fyre, & we haue sene this daye that God may talke with a man and he yet lyue. And now wherfore shulde we dye? this great fyre shuld consume vs: If we shuld heare the voyce of the Lorde our God anymore, we shulde dye. For what is any flesshe that he shulde heare the voyce of the lyuynge God speakynge out of the fyre as we haue done and shulde yet lyue: Go thou and heare all that the Lorde our God sayth, & tell thou vnto vs all that the Lorde our God sayeth vnto the, and we will heare it and do it.

And the Lorde herde the voyce of youre wordes when ye spake vnto me, and he sayde vnto me: I haue herde the voyce of the wordes of this people whiche they haue spoken vnto the. they haue well sayde al that they haue sayd. * Oh that they had suche an harte with them to feare me and kepe all my commaundementes alwaye, that it myght go well with them and with their children for euer. Go and say vnto them: Get you into youre tentes agayne but stande thou here before me and I will tell the all the commaundementes, ordinaunces, and lawes which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the lande whiche I geue them to possesse.

Take hede therfore ye do, as the Lord youre God hath commaunded you, and * turne not aside: neyther to the right hande or to the left: but walke in all the wayes which the Lorde youre God hath commanded you, that ye may lyue, and that it maye go well with you, and that ye maye prolonge youre dayes in the land which ye shall possesse.

¶ The lawe must be earnestly printed in theyr hartes and to kepe it in memorye they must write it on the doores and postes of theyr houses: And teache it vnto theyr children.

CAPI. VI.

THese are the commaundementes, ordinaunces & lawes which the Lord youre God commaunded to teache you, that ye myght do them in the lande whether ye go to possesse it: that thou myghtest feare the Lorde thy God, to kepe all his ordinaunces and his commaundementes whiche I commaunde the, both thou and thy sonne and thy sonnes sonne all dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therfore Israel and take hede that thou do therafter, that it maye go well with the, and that ye maye encrease myghtely euen as the Lorde God of thy fathers hathe promysed the, a lande that floweth with mylke and hony.

Heare Israel, the Lorde thy God is Lord only and thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God with all thyne harte, with all thy soule and with all thy myght. And these wordes which I commaunde the this daye, shalbe in thyne harte and thou shalt whet them on thy children, and shalt talke of them when thou sytte at home in thyne house, and as thou walkest by the waye, and when thou lyest downe and when thou ryseste vp: and thou shalt bynde them for a signe vpon thyne hande. And they shalbe papers of remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, and shalt write them vpon the postes of thy house and vpon thy gates.

And whē the Lorde thy God hath brought the into the lande whiche he swore vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to geue the: with great and goodly tytles which thou buyldedst not, and houses full of all goodes which thou fylledst not, and welles dygged which thou dyggedst not, and vynes & olyue trees whiche thou plantedst not, and when thou hast eaten and arte full: Then beware lest thou forget the Lorde which brought the out of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. But feare the Lorde thy God & serue him, and sweare by his name, and se ye walke not after straunge goddes of the nacions which are aboute you. For the Lorde thy God is a gelous God amonge you, least the wrathe of the Lorde thy God wax hote vpon the and destroye the from the earth.

Ye shall not tempte the Lorde your God, as ye dyd at * Masa. But se ye kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde your God, his witnesses and his ordinaunces which he hath commaunded the, and se thou do that is right and good in the sight of the Lorde: that thou mayst prospere, and that thou mayst goo and conquere that good lande whiche the Lorde sware vnto thy fathers, and that the Lorde maye cast out all thyne enemyes before the, as he hath sayde.

When thy sonne asketh the in tyme to come, sayinge: What meaneth the remembraunces, ordinaunces and lawes whiche the Lorde our god hath commaunded you? Thou shalt saye vnto thy sonne: We were bondmē vnto Pharao in Egypt, but the Lord brought vs out of Egypte with a myghty hande. And the Lorde shewed signes and wonders bothe great and myll vpon Egypte, Pharao & vpon all his housholde, before our eyes & brought vs from thence: to bringe vs in, and to geue vs the lande which he sware vnto our fathers. And therfore commaunded he vs to do all these ordinaunces and to feare the Lorde our God, for our welthe alwayes, and that he myghte saue vs, as it is come to passe this daye. Moreouer it shall be righteousnes vnto vs before the Lorde our God yf we take hede to kepe all these commaundementes as he hath commaunded vs.

¶ The Israelites may make no league or couenaunt with the Gentiles. They must vtterly slay theyr Idoles. Them that kepe the commaundementes hath God lous and blessed, and the contrarye hateth and punysheth. Prolonged muste be dayes.

☞ But thus ye shall trate with theym: ouerthrowe their alcares, breake downe their pyllers, cut downe their grouis, and burne their ymages with fyre. For thou arte an holy nacion vnto the Lorde thy God, the Lorde thy God hathe chosen the, to be a seuerall people

Deute.xiiii.a and xxvi.b vnto him selfe, of all nacions that are vpon the earthe. ℣ It was not because of the multitude of you aboue all nacions, that ℣ Lorde had lust vnto you and chose you. For ye were fewest of all nacions. But because the Lorde loued you, and because he wold kepe the othe which he had sworne vnto your fathers, therfore he brought you oute of Egypte with a myghty hande, and delyuered you forth of the house of bondage: euen frome the hande of Pharao, kynge of Egypte.

Vnderstande therfore, that the Lorde thy God is God, and that a true God, whiche kepeth appoyntement and mercy vnto them that loue him and kepe his commaundmetes, euen thorow out a thousande generacions, & rewardeth them that hate him before his face so that he bringeth them to nought, & wyll not differre ℣ tyme vnto him that hateth him: but will rewarde him before his face. Kepe therfore the commaundementes, ordinaunces and lawes which I commaunde you this day, that ye do them.

If ye shall herken vnto these lawes & shall fulfill and do them, then shall the Lorde thy God kepe appoyntement with the & the mercy which he sware vnto thy fathers, and will loue the, blesse the, and multiplye the: he will blesse the frute of thy wombe, & the frute of thy felde, thy corne, thy wyne, and thyne oyle the frute of thyne oxen, and the flockes of thy shepe in the lande which he sware vnto thy fathers to gyue ℣. If thou shalt saye in thyne herte, these nacions are mo than I, how can I cast them out? feare them not, but remember, what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto Pharao, and vnto all Egypte, and the greate temptacions which thyne eyes sawe, and the signes and wonders and myghtye hande & stretched arme / wherewith the Lorde thy God, brought the out: euen so shall the Lorde thy God do vnto all the nacions of whiche thou arte afrayde.

Moreouer, the Lorde thy God will sende hornettes amonge them vntyll they that are left and hyde them selues frome the, be destroyed. Se thou feare theym not, for the Lorde thy God is amonge you a myghty God and a terrible. The Lorde thy God wil put out these nacions before the by lytle and lytle, thou mayst not consume them at ones least the beastes of the felde encrease vpon the. And the Lorde thy God shall deliuer them vnto the and tyme vp a myghty tempest amonge them vntyl they be brought to nought. And he shal deliuer their kynges into thyne hande, & thou shalt destroye their names awaye vnder heauen. There shall no man stande before the, vntyll thou haue destroyed them. The ymages of their goddes thou shalt burne with fyre, & se thou couet not the ✱ syluer or golde that is on them nor take it vnto the, least thou be snared therwith. For it is an abhominacion vnto the Lorde thy God. Bringe not therfore the abhominacion to thyne house, lest thou be accursed as it is: but vtterly detest it, and abhorre it / for it is a thinge that must be destroyed.

¶ Moses putteth the Israelites in remembraunce of the adoptions and benefytes that they hadde the fortye yere whiche they were in the wildernesse.

CAPI. VIII.

All the commaundementes whiche I commaunde the this daye, ye shal kepe to do them, that ye maye lyue and multyply and go and possesse the lande which the Lorde sware vnto your fathers. And thinke on all the waye which the Lorde thy God led the this. xl. yere in the wyldernesse, for to humble the & made the hunger, and fed the with Manna, which neyther thou nor thy father knewe of, to make the knowe that a man must not lyue by bread only: but by all that proceadeth oute of the mouthe of the Lorde must a man lyue. Thy rayment warred not olde vpon the, neyther dyd thy fote swell this. xl. yere.

Vnderstand therfore in thyne herte that as a man nourtereth his sonne, euen so the Lord thy God nourtereth the. Kepe therfore the commaundmetes of the Lorde thy God that thou walke in his wayes, and that thou feare him. For the Lorde thy God bringeth the into a good lande, a lande of ryuers of water, of fountaynes & of springes that springe out bothe in valeyes and hylles: a lande of wheate and of barly, of vynes, figgetrees and pom granates, a lande of oliue trees of oyle and of he-

of honye a lande wherin thou shalte not eate bred in skarcenesse, and where thou shalt lack nothinge, a lande whose stones are yron, and out of whose hylles thou shalt dygge bralle. When thou hast eate therefore and fylled thy selfe, then blesse the Lorde for the good lande which he hath gyuen the.

But beware thou forget not the Lorde thy God, that thou woll not kepe his commaundementes, lawes and ordinaunces whiche I commaunde the this day: yee and when thou hast eaten and fylled thy selfe and hast buylt goodly houses and dweite therein, and when thy beastes and thy shepe are waxed manye & thy syluer and golde is multiplied and all that thou hast encreased, then beware least thyne herte ryse and thou forget the Lord thy God which brought the out of the lande of Egypt the house of bondage, and which led the in ℔ wyldernesse both great and terrible with fyrye serpentes and Scorpions, & drouth where was no water which brought the water oute of the rocke of flynt: which fed the in the wildernesse with Manna, whereof thy fathers knewe not, for to humble the, and to proue the, that he mygbte wo the good at thy latter ende.

And beware thou saye not in thyne herte, my power and the mygbt of myne owne hād hath wone me all these actes: But remembre the Lorde thy God, that it is he which gaue the power to w manfullye, for to make good the promyse which he sware vnto thy fathers as it is come to passe this daye.

For yf thou shalt forget the Lorde thy God and shalt walk after straunge goddes & serue them and worshyp them, I testifye vnto you this daye, that ye shall surely perysshe. As the nations whiche the Lorde destroyeth before the, so ye shall perysshe, because ye wolde not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde youre God.

CAPI. IX.

HEare Israel, thou goest ouer Iordā this daye, to go and conquere nacions greater and myghtyer then thy selfe, and cyties great and walled vp to heauen, & people great and tall, euen the children of the Enakims, which thou knowest & of whome thou hast herde saye, who is able to stande before the children of Enack? But vnderstande this daye that the Lorde thy God which goeth before the, a consumynge fyre, he shall destroye them, and shall subdue them before the. And thou shalt cast them out, & dryue them forth and destroye quyckely as the Lord hath sayd vnto the.

Speake not in thyne herte, after that the Lorde thy God hath cast them out before ℔, sayeng: for my righteousnes the Lorde hath brought me in, to possesse this lande. Naye, for the wyckednesse of these nacions, ℔ Lorde wolde caste them out before the. It is not for thy righteousnes and vprighte herte that thou goest to possesse their lande: But partely for the wyckednesse of these nacions, the Lorde thy God wil cast them out before the, & partly to performe that the Lorde thy God sware vnto thy fathers / Abraham / Isaac and Iacob.

Understande therefore that it is not for thy ryghteousnes, that the Lorde thy God wolde gyue the this good lande to possesse, for thou arte a styffenecked people. Remembre and forget not, how thou prouokedst the Lorde thy God in the wyldernesse: for sythens the daye that thou camest out of the lande of Egypte vntyll ye came vnto this place, ye haue rebelled against the Lorde. * Also in Horeb ye angred the Lorde, so that the Lorde was wroth with you, euen to haue destroyed you, after ℔ I was gone vp vnto the mount, to fet the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntement which the Lord made with you. And I abode in the hyll. xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes & neyther ate bread nor dranke water. * And the Lorde deliuered me two tables of stone wrytten with the fynger of God, and in them was contayned accordynge to all the wordes whiche the Lorde sayde vnto you in the mounte, out of the fyre in the daye, when the people were gathered together.

And when. xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me the two tables of stone, the tables of the testament, and sayde vnto me. * Aryse, and get the hence quyckely from hence, for thy people which thou hast brought oute of Egypte, haue marred theym selues. They are tourned attonce out of the waye, which I commaunded them, and haue made them a God of metall. Furthermore ℔ Lorde spake vnto me, sayenge: I se this people, howe it is a styffenecked people, let me alone that I maye destroye them and put out the name of them vnder heauen, and I wyll make of the, a nacion bothe greatter and mo than they.

And I turned away and came downe from the hyll (and the hyll burnt with fyre) & had the twoo tables of the appoyntement in my handes. And when I loked and sawe that ye had synned against the Lorde youre God, and had made you a calfe of metall, and had turned all togithers out of the waye whiche the Lorde had commaunded you. * Then I toke the two tables, and cast them out of my two handes, and brake them before your eyes. * And I fell before the Lorde: euen as at the first tyme. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes, and neyther ate bread nor dranke water, ouer al your synnes whiche ye had synned in wrynge wyckedly in the sight of the Lorde and in prouokynge hym. For I was afrayed of the wrath and fearfulnesse wherewith the Lorde was angry with you, euen for to haue destroyed you. But the Lorde herde my petition at ℔ tyme also.

The Lorde was very angry with Aarō also, euen for to haue destroyed him: But I made intercession for Aarō also the same tyme, and I toke your synne, the calf which ye had made and burnt him with fyre, and stamped him and grounde him a good, euen vnto small dust. And I caste the dust thereof in the broke ℌ descended out of the mount. Also at ✻ Thabe-rah, and at Massah, and at the sepulchres of lust ye displeased the Lorde, ye and when the Lorde sent you frome Cades Barne, sayenge: go vp and conquere the lande which I haue geuen you, ye disobeyed the mouthe of the Lorde your God, & neyther beleued him, nor herkened vnto his voyce. Thus ye haue bene disobedient vnto the Lorde, sythens the daye that I knewe you.

And I

✻ Numer. xi. d. and. xvi. a

And I fell before the Lorde. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes which I laye there, for the Lord was mynded to haue destroyed you. But I made intercession vnto the Lorde and sayde. ✻ O Lorde God, destroye not thy people and thyne enheritaunce whiche thou hast delyuered thorowe thy greatnesse, and whiche thou hast brought out of Egypte with a myghtye hande. Remembre thy seruaunte Abraham, Isaac and Iacob, and loke not vnto the stubburnesse of this people, nor vnto their wyckednesse and synne: leaste the lande whence thou broughtest them saye: Because ℌ Lorde was not able to bringe them into the lande whiche he promysed them, and because he hated them, therfore he caryed them out to destroye them in the wyldernesse. Moreouer they are thy people, and thyne enheritaunce, which thou broughtest forth with thy myghty power and with thy stretched arme.

Serue to pray.

At the same season the Lorde sayd vnto me ✻ hewe the two tables of stone lyke vnto the first, and come vp vnto me into ℌ mount and make the an arcke of wood, and I will wryte in the tables, the wordes that were in the first tables whiche thou brakest, and thou shalt put them in the arcke. pe

he brought the water of the reed see vpon the as they chased you, and howe the Lorde hath brought them to nought vnto this daye: and what he did vnto you in the wildernesse, vntyll ye came vnto this place: and what he did vnto * Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab the sonne of Ruben, howe the erthe opened her mouth and swalowed them with theyr housholdes and theyr tentes, and all theyr substaunce that was in theyr possession, in the myddes of Israel.

For youre eyes haue sene all the greate deades of the Lorde which he did. Kepe therfore all the commaundmentes which I commaunde the this daye that ye maye be stronge and go and conquere the lande whether ye go to possesse it, and that ye may prolonge youre dayes in the lande which the Lorde sware vnto your fathers to gyue vnto them, & to their seed, a lande that floweth with mylke & hony. For the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypt whence thou camest out, where thou sowedest thy seed and watredest it with thy fete as a garden of herbes: but the lande whither ye go ouer to possesse, is a lande of hilles and valeyes and drinketh water of the rayne of heauen, and a lande which the Lorde thy God careth for. The eyes of the Lorde thy God are alwayes vpon it, frome the begynninge of the yere vnto the latter ende of the yere.

Yf you shall herken therfore vnto my commaundmentes which I commaunde you this daye, that ye loue the Lorde youre God and serue him with all youre hertes, and with all youre soules: then he will gyue rayne vnto your lande in due season, both the first & rayne and the latter, and thou shalte gather in thy corne thy wyne and thyne oyle. And he will sende grasse in thy feldes for thy catell: & thou shalt eate and fyll thy selfe. But take hede to youre selues, that ye be not inveyled that ye turne a syde and serue strange Goddes & worshyp them, & so the wrath of the Lorde wax hote vpon you, and shut vp the heauen that there be no rayne and that youre lande yelde not her encrease and that ye perysshe shortely frome the good lande which the Lorde gyueth you.

Put vp therfore these my wordes in youre hertes and in youre soules, and bynde them for a signe vnto your handes, and let them be as papers of remembraunce betwene youre eyes, and * teache them youre children: so that thou talke of them when thou sittest in thyne house and when thou walkest by the waye, & when thou lyest downe, and when thou ryssest vp: yee and wryte them vpon the postes of thyne house and vpon thy gates, that youre dayes maye be multiplyed, and the dayes of youre children vpon the erth which the Lorde sware vnto your fathers to gyue them, as lõg as the dayes of heaue endure vpon the earth. For yf ye shall kepe all these commaundmentes which I commaunde you, to do them, and loue the Lorde your God, and walke in all his wayes and cleaue vnto him: The will the Lorde cast out all these nacions, & ye shall conquere them whiche are both greatter and myghtyer then your selues. * All the places whyche on the soles of youre fete shall treade, shalbe yours, euen frome the wyldernesse and frome mount Libanon, and frome the ryuer Euphrates, yea vnto the vttermoste see shall your costes be. There shall no man be able to stande before you: the Lorde your God shall cast the feare and dreade of you vpon all landes whether ye shall come, as he hathe sayde vnto you. * Josue 1.b

* Beholde I set before you this day a blessinge and a curse: a blessynge: yf ye herken vnto the commaundmentes of the Lorde your God, which I commaunde you this daye. And a curse: yf ye will not herken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde your God: but turne out of the waye (which I commaund you this daye) to walke after other goddes whome you know not. * Deut.xxx.c Deu.xxvii.a D

When the Lorde thy God hathe brought the into the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, then put the blessinge vpon mounte Garizim, and the curse vpon mounte Ebal, which are beyonde Jordan on the backe syde of the waye towarde the goynge downe of ☉ sonne in the lande of the Cananytes whiche dwell in the feldes ouer against Galgall beside the oke grone of Moreh. For ye shall go ouer to take seasin of ☉ lande which the Lorde your God giueth you, and shall conquere it, and dwell therin. If a man take a wyfe, and when he hathe lyen with her, hate her / and laye shamefull thinges vnto her charge, and bring vp an euil name vpon her, and saye: I toke this wyfe, and when I came to her, I founde her not a mayde. Then let the father of the damsell and the mother bringe forthe the tokens of the damsels virginite vnto the elders of the city, euen vnto the gate. And let the dāsels father saye vnto the elders. I gaue my doughter vnto this man to wyfe, and he hateth her / and lo he layeth shamful thinges vnto her charge sayinge: I founde not thy doughter a mayde. And yet these are the tokens of my doughters virginite. And let them spreade the vesture before the elders of the cuye. Then lette the elders of that city take that man and chastise him, and amercye him in an hundren sicles of syluer and giue them vnto the father of the damsell, because he hathe brought vp an euil reappoyt vpon a mayde in Israel, and she shal be his wyfe, and he may not put her away all his dayes. But yf the thinge be of a trouthe that the damsell be not founde a virgyn, let them bringe her vnto the doore of her fathers house, and let the men of that cuye stone her with stones to ded, because she hath wrought folye in Israel, to playe the hoore in her fathers house, and so thou shalt put cuyl away from the.

Deut. xxii.

If a man be founde lyinge with a woman that hath a wedded husbande, then let them dye bothe of them, as well the man that laye with the wyfe, as also the wife / so thou shalt put awaye euyll from Israel.

Leuit. xx. D

If a mayd be betrouthed vnto an husband and after a man fynde her in the towne & lye with her, then ye shall bring them both forth vnto the gates of that city and shall stone the to deth. The damsel because she cryed not beinge in the cuye / and the man because he hath defiled his neyghbours wyfe, and thou shalte put awaye euyll from the.

Leuit.

But yf a man fynde a betrouthed damsell in the felde, and force her and lye with her: Then the man that laye with her shall dye alone, and vnto the damsell thou shalt do no harme, because there is in the damsel no cause of deathe. For lyke as when a man ryseth agaynste his neyghbour and sleeth him, euen so is this matter. For he founde her in the felde, and the betrouthed damsell cryed, but there was no man to resowe her. No man shall take his fathers wyfe, nor nor vnhylle his fathers secretes.

¶ What maner of men maye not be admytted to the congregacion. Pollutions that happe in the night. Vttary.

CAPI. XXIII.

NOne that is gelded, or hathe his preuye membres cut of, shall come in to the congregacion of the Lorde. And he that is borne of a concubyne, shall not come in to the congregacion of the Lorde, no in the tenth generacion he shall not entre in to the congregacion of the Lorde. The Ammonytes and the Moabytes shall not come in to the congregacyon of the Lorde, no not in the tenth generacion, no they shall neuer come in to the congregacion of the Lorde because they met you not with bred, and water in the waye, when ye came oute of Egypte, and because they hyred agaynste the Balaam the sonne of Beor the interpretour oute of Mesopotamia, to curse the.

Neuertheles the Lorde thy God wold not herken vnto Balaam, but turned the curse to blessynge vnto the, because the Lorde thy God loued the. Thou shalte neuer therfore seke that whiche is prosperous or good for them all thy dayes for euer. Thou shalte not abhorre an Edomite, for he is thy brother, neither shalt thou abhorre an Egyptian, because thou was a straunger in his lande. The chyldren that are begotten of them shall come in to the congregacion of the Lorde in the thirde generacion.

When thou gost oute with the hoste agaynst thyne ennemyes, kepe the from all wickednesse. Yf there be any man that is vncleane by reason of vncleanesse that chaunceth hym by nyghte, let him goo oute of the hoste, and not come in agayne, vntyll he haue washed hym selfe with watre before the euen: & then when the sonne is downe, let hym come in to the hoste agayne.

Thou shalte haue a place without the hoste whyther thou shalte resorte to for necessitie, and thou shalte haue a showell vnder thy gyrdell: and wen thou wylt ease thy selfe, digge therwith and turne and couer that whiche is departed from the. For the Lord thy God walketh in thyne hoste, to eyde the and set thyne ennemyes before. Let thyne hoste be pure, that he se no vncleane thynge amonge you and turne from you.

Thou shalte not deliuer vnto his master the seruaunte whiche is escaped from his master vnto the. Lette him dwell with the, euen amonge you in what place he hym selfe liketh best, in one of the cityes where it is good for hym, and vexe him not.

There shall be no whore of the doughters of Israel, nor whoremonger of the sonnes of Israel. Thou shalte neyther bringe the hyre of an whore, nor the price of dogge in to ꝯ house of ꝯ Lorde thy God in no maner of vow, for bothe of them, are abhominacion vnto the Lorde thy God.

Thou shalte be no vsurer vnto thy brother neither in money nor in fode, nor in any maner thynge that is lent vpon vsurye. Vnto a straunger thou mayst lende vpon vsurye, but not vnto thy brother, for thou shalte lende him to bye with, that the Lorde thy God may bleesse the in all thou settest thyne hande to in the lande whyther thou gost to conquere it.

* When thou hast vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde thy God, se thou be not slacke to performe it. For he wyll surely requyre it of the, and it shall be layde vnto the. Yf thou shalte leaue vowynge, it shall be no synne vnto the: but that whiche is ones gone oute of thy lyppes, thou muste kepe and doo, accordynge as thou hast vowed vnto the Lorde thy God of a free wyll whiche thou hast spoken with thy mouthe.

When thou commest into thy neyghbours vyne yarde, thou mayste eate grapes thy belyfull at thy pleasure: but thou shalte put none in thy bagge.

When thou gost in to thy neyghbours corne, * thou mayst pluche the eares ꝯ thyne hande, but thou mayste not mowe a sycle vnto thy neyghbours corne.

¶ Diuorcement is permitted. He that is newlye maryed shall not be compelled to go to warre. The remnaunte of corne must be lefte in herueste for the poore.

CAPI. XXIIII.

WHen a man hathe taken a wyfe and maryed her, yf she fynde no fauoure in his eyes, because he hath espyed some vncleanesse in her. Then let him wryte her a bill of diuorcement & put it in her hand and sende her forthe of his house.

* Yf when she is departed out of his house, she go and be an other mans wyfe and the seconde husband hate her and wryte her a letter of diuorcement and put it in her hande, and sende her oute of his house: or yf the seconde man dye whiche toke her to wyfe, her fyrste man whiche sent her awaye may not take her agayne to be his wyfe, in as moche as she is defiled. For that is abhommination in the sight of the Lorde: that thou defyle not the lande with synne which the Lorde thy God gyueth the to enherite.

* When a man taketh a newe wyfe, he shal not goo a warreffare, neyther shall be charged with any busynesse: but shall be free at home one yere, and reioyce with his wyfe whiche he hath taken. * Noman shall take the nether or the vpper mylstone to pledge, for then he taketh a mannes lyfe to pledge. Yf anye man be founde stealynge any of his brethren the children of Israel, and maketh chaffraunte of him or selleth him, the there shall dye, and thou shalte put euyll awaye from the. Take Numeri.xii. God dyd vnto Mary by the waye after that ye were come out of Egypt.

If thou lende thy brother anye maner succoure, thou shalte not goo in to his house to fetche a pledge / but shalt stande without and the man to whome thou lendest shall bringe the the pledge out at the doore. Furthermore yf it be a poore bodye, go not to slepe with his pledge, but deliuer hym the pledge againe before the goinge, and let him slepe in his rayment and bleße the.

And it shall be rychteousnes vnto the before the Lorde thy God. * Thou shalte not defraude an hyred seruaunte that is nedye and poore, whether he be of thy brethren, or a straunger that is in thy lande within thy cytyes. Geue hym his hyre the same daye, and lette not the sonne goo downe theron. For he is nedye, and therwith sustayneth his lyfe, lest he crye againste the vnto the Lorde, and it be synne vnto the. The fathers shall not dye for the chyldren, nor the chyldren for the fathers, but euery man shall dye for his owne synne.

* Hyndre not the right of the straunger, nor of the fatherles, nor take wydowes rayment to pledge, but remembre, thou wast a seruaunte in Egypte, and how the Lorde thy God deliuered the thence. Wherefore I commaunde the to do this thynge.

When thou cuttest downe thyne haruest in the fielde & shalt forgot a shefe in the felde, thou shalt not go againe and fetche it. But it shal be for the straunger, the fatherlesse and † widowe that the Lorde thy God maye bleße the in all the workes of thyne hande. When thou beatest downe thyne olyue trees, thou shalt not make clene rydaunce after the, but it shal be for the straunger, the fatherlesse, and the wydow. And whē thou gatherest thy vyneyarde, thou shalt not gather cleane after the, but it shall be for the straunger, the fatherlesse, and the wydow. And remembre thou waste a seruaunte in the lande of Egypt: wherfore I commaunde the to do this thynge.

¶ The punyshment of offenders. The lawe of restyng lord to the brother that is dead. Measures and weyghtes.

CAPI. XXV.

YF there be stryfe betweene men, lette them resort to the lawe, and let the iudges iustifye the rychteous and condemne the trespaser. And yf † trespaser be worthy of stripes, then let the iudge cause to take hym downe and to beate hym before his face, accordynge to his trespace vnto a certayne nombre of stripes he shal giue hym and not passe, lest yf we sholde exceede and beat hym aboue that with many stripes, thy brother sholde appeare vngoodly before thyne eyes.

Therfore hath Gregori thought no lesse of one stripe then of a. C. stripes. ye.

* Thou shalte not muzell the oxe that treadeth out the corne.

When brethren dwell together and one of them dye and haue no chylde, the wyfe of the dead shall not be geuen out vnto a straunger: but his † brother shall go in vnto her and take her to wife and mary her. And the eldest sonne whiche she beareth, shall stande vp in the name of his brother which is dead, that his name be not put out in Israel.

But yf he wyll not take his brothers wyfe, who is due to him by the lawe, then let her go to the gate vnto the elders and saye: My husbandes brother refuseth to stere vp his brothers name in Israel, he wyll not marye me. Then let the elders of his cyte call vnto him and examyn him.

Yf he stande and saye, I wyll not take her, then let the woman goo vnto him in the presence of the elders, and loose his shoo of his foote and spytte in his face, and answere and saye. So shall it be doone vnto that man that wyll not buylde his brothers house. And his name shall be called in Israel, the vnshoed house.

Yf when men stryue togyther one with an other, the wife of the one to rydde her husband out of the handes of him that smyteth him and put forth her hand and take him by the secretes: cut of her hande, and let not thyne eye pitye her.

Thou shalt not haue in thy bagge two maner of weyghtes, a great and a small: neither shalt thou haue in thyne house diuers measures, a great and a smal. But thou shalt haue a true and a full measure, that thy dayes may be lengthed in the land which the Lorde thy God giueth the. For all that do suche thynges and all that do vnryghte, are abhominacion vnto the Lorde thy God.

Remembre what Amalech dyd vnto the by th waye after thou camest out of Egypte, how met the by the waye, and smote the hyndmost of you, all that were ouer laboured and dragged behynde / when thou waste faynted and weerye, and he feared not God. Therfore when the Lorde thy God hath geuen the rest from all thyne enemyes rounde about, in the lande whiche the Lorde thy God giueth the to enherite and possesse: se thou put out the name of Amelech, from vnder heuen, and forget not.

CAPI. XXVI.

When thou art come in to the lande whiche the Lorde thy God giueth the to enherite, and hast enioyed it, and dwellest therin: take of the fyrste of all the frute of the erthe, whiche thou hast broughte out of the lande that the Lorde thy God giueth the, and put it in a maunde, and go vnto the place which the Lorde thy God shal chose to make his name dwell there. And thou shalte come vnto the preste that shall be in those dayes, and and saye vnto hym, I knowlege this daye vnto the Lorde thy God, that I am come vnto the countrey which the Lorde sware vnto our B fathers for to gyue vs.

And the preest shall take the maunde oute of thyne hande, and set it downe before the aulter of the Lorde thy God. And thou shalte answere and saye before the Lorde thy God: My father remoued out of Syrie, and he went downe in to Egypt, and soiourned there with a fewe folke, and grewe there vnto a nation great, myghty, and full of people. And the Egyptians vexed vs and troubled vs, and layd vs with cruell bondage. And we cryed vnto the Lorde God of our fathers, and the Lorde herde our voyce, and loked on our abominacion, labour, and oppression. And the Lorde brought vs out of Egypt with a myghty hande and a stretched oute arme, and with greate terribilnesse, and with signes and wonders. And he hathe brought vs in to this place, and hathe gyuen vs this lande that flowerth with mylke and honye.

C And nowe lo, I haue brought the first frutes of the lande whiche the Lorde hath gyuen me. And set it before the Lorde thy God, and worshyp before the Lorde thy God, and reioyce ouer all the good thynges which the Lorde thy God hath gyuen vnto the, and vnto thine house, bothe thou the Leuite, and the straunger that is amonge you.

When thou hast made an ende of tithynge all the tithes of thyne encrease the thirde yere, the yere of tythynge: thou shalte gyue it vnto the Leuyte, the straunger, the fatherlesse & the wydowe, that they maye eate in thy gates, and fyll them selues. Then saye before the Lorde thy God. I haue brought all that is halowed out of thyne house, and haue gyuen them vnto the Leuite, the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wydowe accordynge to all the comaundementes whiche thou commaundest me: I haue not ouerskypped thy commaundementes, nor forgotten them. I haue not eaten therof in my mournynge nor taken away therof vnto any vncleannesse, nor spente therof about any dead corse, but haue herkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde our God, & haue doone after all that he commaunded me, loke downe from thy holy habitacion of heauen, and bleesse thy people Israel, and the lande which thou hast gyuen vs, as thou swarest vnto our fathers) a lande & flowerth with mylke and honye.

This daye the Lorde thy God hathe commaunded the to doo these ordynaunces and lawes. Kepe them therfore and do them with all thyne herte, and all thy soule. * Thou hast chosen the Lorde this day to be thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his ordynaunces, his commaundementes, & his lawes, and to herken vnto his voyce.

And the Lorde hath chosen the this daye to be a sure all people vnto hym (as he hathe promysed the) and that thou kepe his commaundementes, and to make the hyghest them all nacions whiche he hathe made: in prayse, in name and honoure: that thou mayste be an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God, as he hath sayd.

Yea and the woman that is so tender and delycate amonges you that she dare not aduenture to set the sole of her foote vpon the grounde for softnesse and tendernesse, shall be grieued to loke on the husbande that lyeth in her bosome, euen for the flesshe of her sonne and of her doughter the after byrthe that is come bycause of her children whiche she hath borne, she wolde eate them that same hour for nede of all thynges secretly, in the straytnesse and siege wherwith thyne ennemye shall besiege the in thy cuyes.

And the Lorde shall shatter the amonge all nacions, from the one ende of the worlde vnto the other, and there thou shalte serue straunge Goddes, whiche neyther thou nor thy fathers haue knowen: euen wodde and stone.

And among these nacions thou shalt haue no quyetnes, neyther shal there be any reste to the sole of thy fote. CAPI. XXIX.

1 THese are the wordes of the appoyntment whiche the Lorde commaunded Moyses to make with the chyldren of Israel in the lande of Moab, besyde the appoyntment which he made with them in Horeb. And Moyses called vnto all Israel and sayd vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the Lorde dyd before your eyes in the land of Egypt, vnto Pharao and vnto all his seruauntes, and vnto all his lande, and the great temptacions which thyne eyes haue sene, and those great myracles and wonders: and yet the Lorde hath not geuen you an hert to perceyue, nor eyes to se, nor eares to heare vnto this daye.

Kepe therfore the wordes of this appoyntment, & do them, that ye may vnderstand all that ye ought to do. 7 Ye stande here this daye euery one of you before the Lorde your God: bothe the heedes of your tribes, your elders, your officers, and all the men of Israel: your chyldren, your wyues, and the straunger that soiourneth in thyne house, from the hewer of thy wod, vnto the drawer of thy water, that thou shouldst come vnder the appoyntment of the Lord thy God, and vnder his othe which the Lorde thy God maketh with the this daye, to make the a people vnto hym selfe, and that he maye be thy God, as he hath sayde vnto the, and as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

¶ Neyther I make this bonde, and this othe with you onely: but both with hym that stondeth here with vs this daye before the Lorde our God, and also with him that is not here with vs this daye. For ye know how we haue dwelt in the land of Egypt, and how we came thorow the myddes of the nacions whiche we passed by. And ye haue sene their abominacions and their ydolles: wodde, stone, syluer and golde whiche they worshypped.

Lest there be amonge you man or woman kynred or tryde that turneth away in his hert this daye from the Lorde our God, to go and serue the Goddes of those nacions: and lest there be amonge you some roote that beareth gall and wormewod, so that when he heareth the wordes of this curse, ye blesse him selfe in his hert, saying, I shal haue peace. So that the generacion to come of youre chyldren that shall ryse vp after you, and the straunger that shall come from ferre saye whe they se the plages of that lande, and the diseases wherwith the Lorde hath smytten yt how all the lande is ouerspred with brymstone and salte, and that it is neyther sowne nor beareth nor any gresse groweth therin, accordynge to the ouerthrowynge of Sodome, Gomor, Adama, and Zeboim: whiche the Lorde ouerthrewe in his wrath and angre.

And then shal all nacions also saye: Wherfore hathe the Lorde doone in this wyse vnto this lande? O how feareful is this great wrathe! And men shal saye: because they left the testament of the Lorde, God of their fathers wyche he made with them when he brought them ouer of the lande of Egypte. And they went and serued straunge goodes and worshypped them: goddes which they knewe not, & which hadde geuen them nought. And therfore the wrathe of the Lorde waxed hoote vpon that land to bryngе vpon it all the curses that are wrytten in this boke. And the Lorde cast them out of their lande in angre, wrath, and great furyousnesse, and caste them in to a straunge lande, as it is come to passe this day. The secretes of the Lorde our God are opened vnto vs and our chyldren for euer, that we do all the wordes of this lawe.

And he will shewe the kyndnesse & multiply the about thy fathers. ✱ And the Lorde thy God will circumcise thyne hert, and ℣ hert of thy seed for to loue the Lord thy God with all thyne hert, & all thy soule, that thou maist lyue. ✱ And the Lorde thy God will put all these curses vpon thyne enemyes and on them that hate and persue the.

But thou shalt turne and harken vnto the voyce of the Lorde and to all his commaundementes which I cõmaunde the this daye. And the Lord thy God wyl make the plenteous in all the workes of thyne hand, and in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy catel, and frute of thy lande, and in riches. ✱ For the Lord wil turne agayn and reioyce ouer the, to do ℣ good as he reioyced ouer thy fathers. If thou herke vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commaundementes and ordinaunces, whi che are written in the boke of this law, if thou turne vnto the Lorde thy God with al thyne hert, and all thy soule.

✱ For the commaundement whiche I commaunde the this daye, is not hyd from the, ne farre of. It is not in heuen that thou nedest to saye: who shall go vp for vs to heuen, and fet it vs, that we maye heare it and do it. Neither is it beyonde the see: that thou woldest saye: who shal go ouer see for vs & fet it vs that we maye heare it and do it. But the worde is verye nye vnto the, euen in thy mouth & in thyne hert that thou do it.

Beholde, I haue set before you this daye lyfe and good, deth and euyll: in that I commaunde the this daye to loue the Lorde thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commaundementes, his ordynaunces and his lawes: that thou mayste lyue and multiplye, and that the Lorde thy God maye bleſſe the in the lande whyther thou goest to possesse it.

But if thyne hert turne awaye, so that thou wylt not heare: but shalt go astraye and worship straunge goddes, and serue them, I certifie you this daye, that ye shall surely perysshe, and that ye shal not prolong your dayes vpon the land whyther thou passest ouer Jordan to go and possesse it.

✱ I call to recorde this daye vnto you heuen and erth, that I haue set before you lyfe and death, blessynge and cursynge: but chose lyfe, that thow and thy seed may lyue, in that thou louest thy Lorde thy God, harkenest vnto his voyce, and cleauest vnto hym. For he is thy lyfe and the lengthe of thy dayes, that thou mayste dwell vpon the earth which the Lorde sware vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob to gyue them.

¶ Moses being ready to dye, ordereth Josue to rule the people in his stede. This boke Deuteronomye is written and layde in the tabernacle before the arcke. The Leuytes are charged to reade it to the people.

CAPI. XXXI.

A Lso Moses went and spake these wordes vnto al Israel and sayd vnto them. I am an hundred and twentye yere olde this daye, and can no more go out and in. Also the Lorde hath sayd vnto me, thou shalte not goo ouer this Jordan. The Lorde youre God he wyll go ouer before the, and he wyl destroy these nations before the, and thou shalte conquere them. And Josua shall goo ouer before the, as the Lorde hathe sayde. And the Lorde shall goo vnto them, as he dyd to Sehon and Og kynge of the Amorytes, and vnto their landes, which kynges he destroyed. And when the Lorde hath delyuered them to you, se ye do vnto them accordyng vnto all the commaundementes whiche I haue commaunded you. Plucke vp your hertes and be stronge, drede not, nor be afeerde of them/ for the Lorde thy God him selfe will go with the, and will neither let the go, nor forsake the.

And Moses called Josua and sayd vnto him in the sight of all Israel, ✱ Be stronge & bolde for thou muste goo with this people vnto the land which the Lorde hath sworne vnto their fathers to gyue them, and thou shalte gyue it them to inherite. And the Lorde shall goo before the, and he shall be with the, and wyl not let the goo, nor forsake the, feare not therfore, nor be discomforted.

And Moses wrote this lawe and delyuered it vnto the preestes the sonnes of Leui, which ✱bare the arcke of the testament of the Lorde, and vnto all the elders of Israel, and commaunded them sayeng, ✱ At the ende of the .vij. yere, in the tyme of the fre yere, in the feast of the tabernacles, when al Israel is come to appere before the Lorde thy God, in the place whiche he shal chose: se thou rede this lawe before all Israel in their eares. Gather the people togyther, men, women, and chyldren, and the straūgers that are i thy cityes, that they may heare lerne, and feare the Lorde youre God, and be diligent to kepe all the wordes of this lawe, and that their children which knowe nothing may heare, and lerne to feare the Lorde youre God, as longe as ye lyue in the lande whither ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses. Beholde, thy dayes are come, that thou muste dye. Call Josua and stande in the tabernacle of witnesse, that I may gyue hym a charge. And Moses and Josua went and stode in the tabernacle of witnesse. And the Lorde appered in the tabernacle, euen in the piller of the cloude. And the pyller of the cloude stode ouer the doore of the tabernacle. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: beholde thou must slepe with thy fathers, and this people wyl ryse vp and go a hooryng after straunge goddes of the land whither they go, and wil forsake me and breke the appoyntment which I haue made with them. And then my wrath wil waxe hote against them, and I wyl forsake them, and wyll hyde my face from them in that daye, and they shal be consumed. And when moche aduersitie and tribulacion is come vpon them, then they wyll saye: bye-cause our God is not among vs, these tribulations are come vpon vs. But I will hyde my face that same tyme for all the euyls whiche they haue wrought in that they are turned vnto straunge Goddes.

¶ Nowe therefore wryte thou this songe, and teache the chyldre of Israel, and put it in their mouthes, that this song maye be my witnesse vnto the chyldren of Israel. For when I wyll bryng them in to the lande whiche I swore vnto their fathers that floweth with mylke, & honye, and they haue well eaten & filled themselues, and waxen fat, then shal they turne vnto straunge Goddes and serue them, and rayle on me, & breake my testament. And then when moche mischefe and tribulacions is come vpo them, this song shal answere before them and be a witnesse. It shall not be forgotten out of the mouth of their seed, for I know their imagination whiche they go about euen now before I haue brought them in to the lande which I haue promised them. And Moses wrote this songe that same daye, and taught it the children of Israel. And the Lorde gaue Iosua the sonne of Nun a charge, and sayde: ✱ Be bold and stronge, for thou shalt bryng the children of Israel in to the lande which I promised the, and I wyl be with the.

When Moses had written the wordes of this lawe in a boke, vnto the ende of them, he commaunded the Leuites which bare the arke of the testament of the Lorde, sayinge: take the boke of this law, and put it by the syde of the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God and let it be there for a witnesse against the. For I know thy stubbornes, & thy stiffe necke: beholde whyle I am yet alyue and in company with you this daye, ye haue ben stately against the Lorde, how moche more after our death?

Gather vnto me all ✱ elders of your tribes & your officers, that I may speke these wordes in their eares, and call heuen and erth to recorde against them. For I am sure that after my death, ye will be wickedly, & turne from the waye which I commaunded you, and tribulacion shall come vpon you in the latter dayes when ye haue wrought wickednesse in ✱ sight of the Lorde to prouoke him with the workes of your handes. And Moses spake in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel the wordes of this songe vnto the ende of them.

For it is a nation that hath no forecast, and hath no vnderstandyng in them: I wold they were wyse, and vnderstode this, and wold consider their latter ende.

Howe it commeth, that one shall chase a thousande, and two put ten thousand of them to flyghte: but that their God hathe solde them, and bycause the Lorde hath geuen them ouer.

For oure rock is not as their rock, no though our enemyes be iudge. But their vynes are of the vynes of Sodom, and of the feldes of Gomorra. Their grapes are grapes of gal, & their clusters be bytter.

Are not suche thinges layd in store with me, and sealed vp amonges my treasures? ✱ Vengeaunce is myne, and I wyll acquyte: Their feete shall slyde when the tyme commeth. For the tyme of their destruction is at hande, and the tyme that shall come vpon them maketh haste.

For the Lorde wyll do iustyce vnto his people, and haue cōpassion on his seruaunces. For it shall be sene that their power shall fayle, & them prisoners be lost, and the residue wasted.

And it shal be sayd: where are their goddes wherin they trusted?

Moses wente and spake all the wordes of this songe in the eares of the people, bothe he and Iosua the sonne of Nun. Set your hertes vnto all the wordes which I testifie vnto you this day: that ye commaunde them vnto your children to obserue and doo all the wordes of this lawe. For it is not a deyne worde vnto you: but it is your lyfe, & therowe this worde ye shall prolonge your dayes in the lande whi ther ye go ouer Iordan to conquere it.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, the same daye, saying: get the vp in to this mount Abarim, vnto mount Nebo, whiche is in the lande of Moab ouer against Iericho. And beholde the lande of Canaan whiche I gyue vnto the chyldren of Israel to possesse. Blesse Lorde their power, and accepte the workes of their handes, smyte the backes of them that ryse against them, and of them that hate the: that they ryse not agayne.

Vnto Ben Iamin he sayde. The Lordes beloyng shall dwell safelye with him, and kepe him selfe in the chambre by him contynually, and shall dwell betwene his shoulders.

And vnto Ioseph he sayde: blessed of the Lorde is his lande, with the goodly fruites of heuen, with dewe and with springes that ¶ Moses dyeth. Israel weepeth. Josua succedeth in Moses romme.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

AND Moses wente frome the feldes of Moab vp, in to mounte Nebo, whiche is the toppe of Phasgah, ouer agaynste Jericho. And the Lorde shewed him al the land of Galaad, euen vnto Dan, and al Nephthali and the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, and all the land of Juda: euen vnto the vttermost see, and the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho the citye of palme trees, euen vnto Zoar. And the Lord sayd vnto him. * This is the land which ꝑ I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, sayinge: I wyll gyue it vnto thy seed. I haue shewed it the, before thyne eyes: but thou shalt not go ouer thyther.

¶ * Genes. xxii. xxvi. xxviii. xxxv. xlvi. ꝑ

So Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde dyed there in the lande of Moab, at the commaundement of the Lorde. And he buryed hym in a valey in ꝑ lande of Moab beside Bethphegor: but no man wyste of his sepulchre vnto this daye. And Moses was an hundred and twenty yere olde when he dyed, and yet his eyes were not dymme, nor his chekes abated. And the chyldren of Israel wepte for Moses in the feldes of Moab thirtye dayes. And the dayes of weppynge and mournynge for Moses were ended.

ꝑ Deut. xxxiv.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was ful of the spirite of wysdome: * for Moses had put his hand vpon him. And all the chyldren of Israel herkened vnto him, and dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses. But there arose not a prophete sith that tyme in Israel lyke vnto Moses: whom the Lorde knew face to face in all the myracles and wonders whiche the Lorde sent him to do in the lande of Egypt vnto Pharao and all his seruaunces, and vnto all his lande: and in al the myghtye dedes, and greate wonderfull thynges which Moses did in the syght of all Israel.

¶ The Lorde courageth Iosua to inuade the lande of promyse, and commaundeth him continually to rede deuteronomye.

CAPI. I.

AFter the deth of Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde: the Lorde spake vnto Iosua the sonne of Nun, Moses seruaunt, saying: Moses my seruaunt is dede. Nowe therfore aryse & go ouer Iordan, bothe thou and all this people vnto the lande whiche I gyue vnto the chyldren of Israel. * All the places that the soles of your fete shall treade on, haue I gyuen you, as I sayd vnto Moses: from the wyldernesse & Libanon, vnto the great ryuer Euphrates: and all the land of the Hethites euen vnto the greate see towarde the goynge downe of the sonne, shall be youre boundes. There shall not a man be able to withstande the, all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was with Moses, so wyll I be with the: and wyl neyther leaue the, nor forsake the. * Be strong and bold: for vnto this people shalt thou deuyde the land by lot, which I sware vnto their fathers to gyue them.

Be stronge, and harden thy selfe to obserue and to do, according to all the lawes which Moses my seruaunte commaunded the. * Tourne from them neyther to the ryght hand nor left: that thou mayst haue vnderstanding in all thou takest in hande, * let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouthe: But studye therin daye and nyght, that thou mayst obserue and kepe al that is wrytten therin. For then shalte thou make thy waye prosperous, and then thou shalte haue vnderstanding. Beholde, I haue sayd vnto the, be strong and bolde: neyther feare nor dreade. For the Lorde thy God is with the, whyther so euer thou goest.

Then Iosua commaunded the officers of the people, saynge. Go thorowe the myddes of the hoste, and commaunde the people, saying: prepare you vitayles: for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer this Iordan, to go and enioye the lande, which the Lorde your God giueth you to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses spake Iosua, saynge: Remembre that, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you saynge. the Lorde your God hath gyuen you rest, and all this lande. Let your wyues, your chyldren and your cattell remayne in the lande whiche Moses gaue you on this syde Iordan: But go ye before your brethren armed, all that be men of warre, and fyghte for them, tyll the Lorde haue gyuen your brethren rest, as he hathe you, and tyll they also haue obteyned the lande which the Lorde your God giueth them. And then returne vnto the lande of your possession and enioye it, whiche Moses the Lordes seruaunte gaue you on this syde Iordan, towarde the sonne rysynge. And they answered Iosua, saynge: * All that thou bydest vs we wyll doo, and whyther so euer thou sendest vs, we wyll go. According as we obeyed Moses in all thynges, so we wyll obeye the. Onely the Lorde thy God be with the, as he was with Moses. And who so euer disobeye thy mouthe, and wyll not hearken vnto thy wordes in all thou commaundest hym, lette hym dye. Onely be stronge and of good courage.

¶ Iosua sendeth searchers or spyes to Iericho, whi the were lyke vnto Rahab and is chaped the handes of the pursuers. Rahab beleeueth and confesseth the God of Israel.

CAPI. II.

THen Iosua the sonne of Nun sent out of Sethim two spyes secretly, saynge: Go and vewe the lande, and also Iericho. And they went and came in to a bitelyng house of a woman named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Iericho, saynge: Beholde there came men in hyther to nyght of the chyldren of Israel, to espye out the countrey. And the kynge of Iericho sente vnto Rahab, saying: bryng forth the men that are come to the, which are entred in to thyne house: they be spyes, for they be come to serche out all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men and hyd them. And sayd, in dede there came men vnto me, but I wote not from whence they were. And aboute the tyme of the shuttynge of the gate when it was darcke they went out, whyther I wote not: but folowe after them quickly and ye shal ouertake them. And she brought them vp vnto the rofe of the house, and * hyd them vnder flaxe (yet in the stalkes) which she had lynge abrode vpon the rofe. And the men pursued after them the waye to Iordan euen vnto the † passage, and as sone as they whiche pursued after them were gone forthe, they shut the gates.

And or euer they were a slepe, she came vp vnto them vpon the rofe, and sayde vnto the men. I knowe that the Lorde hath gyuen you the lande, bothe bycause that the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and bycause that the inhabitantes of the lande fayne at your byther resort, for we haue herd how the Lorde * dryed vp the water of the red see before you, when you came out of Egypt, and what you dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites on the other syde Iordan * Sehon, and Og whiche ye vtterly destroyed. And as sone as we had herd these thynges, our hertes dyd fayne. And there remayned no more courage in anye man for feare of your comminge. For the Lorde youre God is the God in heuen aboue, and on the erth beneth.

that lykewyse as I haue shewed you mercye, ye shall also shewe mercye vnto my fathers house and gyue me a true token. And that ye shall saue alyue both my father, and my mother, my brethren, and my systers, and all that pertayne vnto them. And that you shal reskue our soules from death.

And the men answered her, oure lyues for you to dye, so thou do not betraye vs. And so when the Lorde hath gyuen vs the lande, * we wyll deale mercyfully and truly with the. And then she let them downe with a corde thorowe a wyndowe. For her house was annexed to the townes walle. And she sayde vnto them: get you in to the mountaynes, leest the pursuers mete with you, and hyde your selues there thre dayes, vntyll the pursuers be returned, and then maye ye go your wayes. Iosue. vi.c

And the men sayde vnto her, we wyl be discharged of this othe, whiche thou hast made vs sweare, when we come in to the lande, excepte thou bynde this purple threden corde in the wyndowe, whiche thou lettest vs downe by. And thou shalte bringe thy father, thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers household, euen in to the house to the. And then who so euer go out at the dores of thy house in to the streate, his bloude shall be vpon his owne heed, and we gyltlesse. And she sayde, accordynge vnto youre wordes, so be it: and so sente them awaye, and they departed. And she bounde the purple corde in the wyndowe. D

And they departed and got them in to the mountaynes, and there abode thre dayes, tyll the pursuers were returned. And the pursuers sought thorowe oute all the waye, and founde them not. And the two men returned and descended from the mountaynes, and passed ouer, and came to Iosua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that hadde chaunced them. And they sayde vnto Iosua, the Lorde hath deliuered in to oure handes all the lande, for all the inhabitantes of the countrey thynke for feare of vs.

¶ The water of Iordan dryeth vp, and Iosua with the people passe ouer.

CAPI. III.

AND Iosua rose early: and they remoued from Sethim, and came to Iordan, both he and the chyldren of Israel, and sojourned there thre dayes before they wet ouer. And after thre dayes the herolders went thorowe out the hoste, and commaunded the people, sayenge: when ye se the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God, and the preistes that are Leuytes beareynge it: then departe ye fro your places and folowe after it. So yet that there be a space betwene you and it, aboute a two thousande cubytes by measure. And come not nye vnto it, that ye may knowe the waye by whiche ye muste goo: for ye haue not gone by it in tymes past. And Iosua sayde vnto the people, * purifye youre selues, for to morowe the Lorde shall shewe wonders amonges you. B

Then Iosua spake vnto the preistes, sayenge. Take vp the arcke of the couenaunt, and goo before the people. And they toke vp the arcke, and went before the people. * Leuit. Numer. & 1. Reg. & Iosue. viii.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua: this daye wyll I begyn to auaunce the in the syghte of all Israel, that they maye knowe that as I was with Moses, so wyll I be with the. And commaunde thou the preistes that beare the arcke of the testament, sayenge: when ye are entred a litle in to the water of Iordan, stand styll in it.

Then spake Iosua to the chyldren of Israel, sayenge: come nyther, and heare the wordes of the Lord your God. And Iosua sayd: Hereby ye shall knowe that the lyuynge God is amonges you, and that he wyll vndoubtedly caste oute before you the Cananytes, the Hethites, the Hiuites, the Pherezites, the Gergesites, the Amorites, and the Iebusytes. Beholde, the arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde of all the worlde shal go before you in to Iordan. And nowe take you twelue men of the chyldren of Israel, of euery tryde a man. And as soone as the soles of the fete of the preistes that beare the arcke of the omnipotent Lorde of all the worlde, treade in the water of Iordan, the water of Iordan shall deuyde it selfe: and the waters that come frome aboue, shall stande styll vpon an heape. E

And when the people were departed frome theyr tentes to go ouer Iordan, * the preistes beareyng the arcke of the couenaunt before the people) as soone as they that bare the arcke came vnto Iordan, and the feete of the preistes that bare the arcke were dypped in the brym of the water, * Iordan beynge full ouer al his bankes, al the tyme of haruest: the water that came downe frome aboue dyd stoppe, and stode vpon an heape, a greate waye from Adam, a cyte beside Zarthan. And the water that went downe, vanyshed in to the see of the wyldernesse, called the salte see, as soone as it was diuided: and the people * went right ouer agaynste Iericho. And the preistes that bare the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde stode styll vpon drye lande in the myddes of Iordan, tyll all the people were cleane ouer Iordan. * Iosue. iii. * Iosue. iii. F

¶ Twelue stones are reared vp for a remembraunce that Iordane was dryed, and it returneth agayne to his course.

CAPI. IIII.

AND as sone as the people were al gone ouer Iordan, the Lord spake vnto Iosua sayenge. Take twelue men oute of the people, of euery tryde a man, and commaunde them, sayenge: Take you hence oute of the myddes of Iordan, euen oute of the place where the preistes stode, twelue harde stones. G

And

And take ye theym awaye with you and put them in the place where you pytche your tentes this nyght. And Josua called vnto the.xij. men which he had prepared of the childzen of Israel, of euery tribe a man, and sayde vnto them: * get you before the arcke of the Lord your God euen into the myddes of Jordan, & take vp euery man a stone vpon his shoulder, accordinge to the nombre of the trybes of the childzen of Israel, that this maye be a signe amonges you. And when your childzen aske you in tyme to come, sayenge: What meane these stones: saye vnto them, that the water of Jordan shronke backe at the commynge of the arcke of the appoyntement of the Lorde: euen whyle it went ouer Jordan. And these stones shalbe a token of remembrance vnto the childzen of Israel for euer.

And the childzen of Israel dyd as Josua cõmaunded, and toke vp twelue stones forth of the myddes of Jordan, as the Lorde sayd vnto Josua, accordynge to the nombre of the trybes of the childzen of Israel, and caryed the awaye with them, vnto the place where they lodged, & layde them wone there. And thereto Josua set vp twelue stones in the myddes of Jordan in the place where the fete of the prestes whiche bare the arcke of the testament, stoode.

And there they be vnto this daye. For the prestes which bare the arcke stoode in ſ myddes of Jordan, tyll all was accomplyshed ſ the Lorde commaunded Josua to saye vnto the people, accordyng to all that Moses charged Josua. And the people hasted and went ouer. When all the people were cleane ouer, then went ouer the arcke of the Lorde, and also the prestes before the people. And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses went before the chyldren of Israel armed, as Moses charged theym. Fourtye thousande trymmed for warre, went before the Lorde vnto batayle vnto the playnes of Jericho. That daye the Lord magnified Josua in ſ sight of al Israel and they feared him as they feared Moses al dayes of his lyfe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayinge: commaunde the prestes that beare the arcke to come forth of Jordan. And Josua commaunded the prestes, sayinge, Come forthe of Jordan. And when the prestes that bare the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde were ascended out of Jordan: as soone as the soles of the prestes fete were brought to drye lande, the water of Jordan returned agayne vnto his place, and went ouer all his bankes as he dyd before. And the people came vp out of Jordan the tenthe daye of the first moneth, and pitched in Galgal, euen in the easte boyders of Jericho.

And the twelue stones, whiche they toke out of Jordan, Josua pitched in Galgal. And he spake vnto the childzen of Israel, sayenge: when your childzen aske you in tyme to come what meane these stones? shewe your childzē and saye: Israel came ouer this Jordan on drye lande. For the Lord your God dryed vp the water of Jordan before you, tyll ye were ouer, as the Lorde your God dyd vnto the red see, whiche he dryed vp before vs, tyll we were ouer / that all the people of the worlde may know the hand of the Lorde how mighty it is, and that ye myghte feare the Lorde your God for euer.

The Cananytes be aferde. The seconde circumcision of Josua.

CAPI. V.

AND when all the kynges of the Amorytes whiche are on this syde Jordan to the seewarde, and all the kynges of the Cananytes, whiche lye on the see, herde how the Lorde hadde dryed vp the water of Jordan before the chyldren of Israel, tyll they were ouer, they herte fainted in them. And there was no spirite in them any more for feare of the commynge of the childre of Israel.

That same tyme the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: Make the knyues ♀ of stone, and go to agayne, and circumcise the chyldren of Israel the seconde tyme. And Josua made hym knyues of stone, and circumcised the chyldren of Israel in the hyll of foreskynnes. And this is the cause why Josua agayne circumcised. All the people that came out of Egypt that were males, all that were men of warre, dyed in ſ wyldernesse, by the waye after they came out of Egypt. Now all the people that came out were circumcised. But all the people ſ were borne in the wyldernesse by the waye after they came out of Egypt, they circumcised not. For the chyldren of Israel walked forty yeres in the wildernesse, tyll all the people of men of warre that came out of Egypte were consumed, which harkened not vnto the voyce of God, so that the Lorde swarc, that he wolde not shewe them the lande, whiche he swarc vnto theyr fathers that he wolde gyue vs, eue a lande * that floweth wyth mylke and honny. And theyr chyldren he set vp in theyr stede: them Josua circumcised: for they were ♀ vncircumcised, bycause they circumcised them not by the waye.

And when all the people were circumcised, they abode styll in theyr places in the hoste, tyll they were hole. And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua, this daye I haue taken awaye ſ shame of Egypte from you: and called the name of the same place Galgal vnto this day. And the chyldren of Israel pitched theyr tentes in Galgal, and helde the feast of Passouer the fourtene daye of the moneth at euen in the playne of Jericho. And they ate of the corne of the lande on the seconde daye of Vnlet, swete cakes and frumenty the same daye. And Manna ceased on the morowe after they had eaten of the corne of the lande, neyther had the chyldren of Israel Manna any more, but dyd eate of the fruites of that yere in the lande of Canaan.

And when Josua was come to Jericho, he lyfte vp his eyes and loked: and behold there stode a man before him with his sweord drawē

¶ The walles of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

CAPI. VI.

AND Jericho was shut & kepte for feare of the children of Israel, so that no man was so hardy to go out or in. And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: beholde, I haue gyuen in to thyne hande, Jericho and her kynge and the men of warre. And ye shall compasse the citye all that be men of warre, and go round about it ones a daye, and so shall you doo sixe dayes. Upon the seuenth day seuen preestes shal beare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes, & shall go before the arcke. And the seuenth daye, ye shall compasse the citye seuen tymes, and the preestes shall blowe with theyr trompettes. And when there is a longe blaste blowen, as sone as ye heare the sounde of the horne, let all the people shoute a mygthye shoute. And then shall the walles of the citye fall downe, and the people shal ascende, euery man streyght before hym.

And Josua the sonne of Nun, called the preestes and sayd vnto hym: take vp the arcke of the appoyntment, & let seuen preestes beare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde. And he sayd vnto the people, go and compasse the citye, and let the men of armes go before the arcke of the Lord. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people the seuen preestes that bare the seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde went forthe and blewe the hornes, and the arcke of the testament of the Lorde folowed after them. And the men of armes went before the preestes that blewe with the hornes, and the common people came after the arcke: and as they went, they blewe the hornes. And Josua commaunded the people, sayinge, shoute not, nor let youre voyce be herde, or anye worde proceede oute of youre mouthes, tyll the daye I byd you shoute: and then shoute.

So the arcke of the Lorde compased the citye, and went aboute it ones: and then they returned in to the hoste and lodged there. And Josua arose earlye in the mornynge, and the preestes toke vp the arcke of the Lorde, and seuen preestes bare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde, and as they went blewe the hornes. And the men of armes went before them and the common people came after the arcke of the Lorde, and as they went, they blewe the hornes. And the seconde daye they compassed the city ones, and returned agayne in to the host, and so they did sixe dayes.

And the seuenth daye they rose early: euen with the dawnynge of the daye, and compased the citye after the same maner seuen tymes.

And at the seuenth tyme the preestes blewe the hornes, and Josua sayde vnto the people, shoute, for the Lorde hath gyuen you the citye. But the citye shall be cursed, both it and all that is therin vnto the Lorde: onely Rahab the harlot shall lyue, both she and all that is with her in the house, because she * hyd the messengers that we sent. And in any wyse beware that ye touche nothynge at all, that is forbyd you, lest ye be founde transgressours, and cause all the hoste of Israel to be vnder curse and myshappe. But the syluer, golde, vessels of brasse and yron, shall be holye vnto the Lorde, and shall go in to his treasury. ¶ Josua. 6

And the people cryed, and blewe with hornes: for when the people herde the sounde of the hornes, they shouted a great shoute: and the * walles fell downe, and the people went vp in to the citye, euery man forth ryght, and toke the citye. And they vtterly destroyed all that was in the citye, both man and woman, yonge and olde, oxe, shepe and asse, with ‡ edge of the swerde. * Hebru. Jericho is ruy. ‡ Hebru. mouth

Then Josua sayde vnto the two men that * went to espye out the countrey: * go in to the harlottes house, and bringe out thence, both the woman, and all that pertayneth to her, * as ye sware to her. And the yonge men that were spyes, wente in and broughte oute Rahab, and her father, and mother, and all her brethren, & all that she had. * And Josua saued Rahab the harlot, her fathers household, and all that pertayned vnto her, and she dwelt in Israel euē vnto this day, because she hyd the messengers whiche Josua sent to espye out Jericho.

And Josua cursed at that tyme, sayinge: Cursed be the man before the Lorde, that ryseth vp, and buyldeth this citye Jericho: so that he laye the foundacion with the deathe of his eldest sonne, and with the death of his yongest, set vp the gates. And the Lord was with Josua, and his fame was herde, thorowe out all landes.

¶ Ai is spyed out. Achan is stoned because he tooke of the excommunicate thynges.

CAPI. VII.

BVt yet the children of Israel trespased in the cursed thynges: for * Achan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zared, of the tribe of Juda, toke of the cursed thynges. And the wrathe of the Lorde waxed hoote agaynste the children of Israel. * Iosue. Iesum.

Then

Then Iosua sent men frome Jericho to Ai, whiche is beside Bethauen, on the east side of Bethel, and spake vnto them, sayinge / get you vp, and vewe the countrey. And the men went vp and spyed out Ai, and returned vnto Iosua, and sayde vnto hym, let not the people goo vp, but let as it were two or three thousande men goo vp and destroye Ai, and make not all the people to laboure thyther, for they are but fewe.

And so there wente vp thyther aboute .iii. thousande men, whiche fledde before the men of Ai. And the men of Ai smote of them vpon a thirty and sixe men, and chased them before the gates, euen vnto Sabarim, and smote them downe the waye. And the herte of the people, were discouraged and melted lyke water. And Iosua rente his clothes and fell to the earthe vpon his face before the arcke of the Lorde tyll the euen tyde, bothe he and the elders of Israel, and put erth vpon their heades.

And Iosua sayde: Ah, Lorde almyghtye wherfore hast thou brought this people ouer Iordan, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amorytes to destroye vs: Wolde God that as we began, so we hadde aduentured and dwelte on the other syde Iordan. Oh Lorde what shall I saye, when Israel turneth their backes before their ennemyes. Moreouer the Canaanytes, and all the inhabitantes of the lande, shall heare it / and shall come aboute vs, and destroye the name of vs oute of the worlde. And then what wylte thou doo vnto thy myghtye name.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua, get the vp, wherfore lyest thou thus vpon thy face? Israel hathe synned, and also transgressed myne appoyntment whiche I commaunded them, and haue taken of the cursed thinges, & haue stolen and hyd them amonges their owne stuffe. And therfore the children of Israel can not stande before their ennemyes. They shall turne their backes before their ennemyes, because they be cursed. Neyther wyll I be with you anye more, excepte ye destroye the cursed amonges you.

Aryse and ꝙ sanctifye the people, and bydde them sanctifye them selues against the morowe: for so sayethe the Lorde God of Israel, the curse is amonges you Israel, and therfore ye can not stand before your ennemyes, tyll ye haue put to deathe hym that hathe taken of the damned spoyles, amonges you. To morowe morninge ye shall come by your tribes. And the tribe whiche the Lorde shall fynde gylty, shall come by kynredes. And the kynrede whiche the Lorde shall fynde gylty, shal come by houssholdes. And the housholde which the Lorde shall fynde lautye, shall come man by man. And he that is found in the curse, shal be burnte with fire, bothe he and all his goodes, because he hath transgressed the couenant of the Lorde, and because he hathe wrought folye in Israel.

And so Iosua rose vp early in the morninge and brought Israel by their tribes: and the tribe of Iuda was attached. Then he brought the kynredes of Iuda, and founde the kynred of the Zarehites gylty. And he brought the kynred of the Zarehites by houssholders, and Zabdi was caught. And he brought his housholde man by man, and Acan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareh, in the tribe of Iuda was founde gylty.

And Iosua sayd vnto Acan: my sonne, giue glory to the Lorde God of Israel, and giue him prayse, and shew me what thou hast done and hyde it not from me. And Acan answered Iosua and sayde: of a truthe I haue synned against the Lorde God of Israel / and so and so haue I done. I sawe amonge the spoyle a goodly chariet cloke, and two hundred sicles of siluer, and a wyle of golde of fyfty sycles weyght: and I coueted them, & I toke them. And behold they lye hydde in the earth in my tente, and the siluer vnder them.

And then Iosua sent messengers which ran vnto the tent. And beholde, it was hyd in his tent, and the siluer vnder it. And they toke them out of the myddest of his tet, & brought them vnto Iosua and vnto all the children of Israell, and powred them, oute before the Lorde.

And Iosua toke Acan the sonne of Zareh, & the siluer, and the garment, and the wyle of golde, and his sonnes and his doughters, his oxen, asses, sheepe, his tente, and all that he hadde, and all Israell with him, and brought them vnto the valeye of Acor.

And Iosua sayde: forasmoche as thou hast troubled vs: the Lorde shall trouble the this daye. And all Israell stoned him with stones, and burnt all that he had with fyre. And they cast vpon hem a great heape of stones that remayneth vnto this day. And so the Lorde turned frome his feirce wrathe. Wherfore the name of the place is called the valeye of Acor vnto this daye. Acan is stoned

¶ The fyrst and wynnyng of Ai. The kynge therof is hanged. Iosua setteth vp an autier or wherin is written the boke of Deuteronomye. He blesseth the people.

CAPI. VIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua: feare not, ne dreade / but take all the men of warre with the, and aryse and get the to Ai. Beholde I haue geuen into thy handē, the kynge of Ai, and his people, his cytie and his lande. And thou shalte do to Ai & her kyng as thou diddest vnto * Iericho and her kyng. Neuertheles the spoyle and catell therof, ye shall take vnto your selues. But laye a watch vnto the towne on the backsyde therof. * Iosua.vi.d and.xx.c

Then Iosua arose, & all the men of warre, to go vp vnto Ai. And Iosua chose out thyrty thousand men of warre, & sent them by nyght. And commaunded them, sayenge: Se ye lye awayte vnto the towne on the backsyde therof. Go not very farre frome the cytie, and se ye be all redye. As for me and all the people that are with me, we wyll approche vnto the cytie on the other syde. And when they come forth fore the agaynst vs, * as at the first tyme, then B wyll we flee before them. And they wyll come out after vs, tyll we haue plucked the a good space fro me the cite, for they wyll saye they are before vs, as at the fyrste tyme: therfore when we flee, and they pursue after, then shall ye ryse vp from your priuye watche, and slaye out the inhabitaunces of the cite. For the Lorde your God wyl delyuer in to youre handes. As soone therfore as ye haue taken the cite, se ye set it on fyre. Accordyng to the commaundement of the Lorde, se ye do. Beholde,

I haue charged you.

And Iosua sent them forthe, and they went to the place of their priuye watche, and laye betwene Bethel and Ai, on the weste syde of Ai. But Iosua lodged that nyght amonges the people, and he rose vp early in the morning and arayed his companye and went vp, both he and the auncientes of Israel in the forefrõt of the host, with a garrison of fyghtyng mẽ.
And al the men of warre that were with him wente vp and drue nye, and came before the C cite, and pitched on the northe syde of Ai, a valleye betwyne them and Ai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousande men, and put them to lye in a wayte betwene Bethel and Ai, on the west syde of the cite. And he set in order all the host on the northe syde of the cite, and the priuye watche on the weste. And Iosua went the same nyght in to the myddes of the valleye.

And when the kynge of Ai sawe that he hasted and rose vp early, and with all the host of the cite, wente forwarde agaynst Israel to battayle, euen before the playne:
and wyste not that there were ayne that laye
in a wayte on the backe syde of the city.

Iosua and Israel shronke backewarde, as they had ben afrayde, and fledde towarde the wyldernesse. And all the people of the towne cryed to followe after them: and they followed after Iosua, tyll they were drawen away
D from the cyte: so that there was not a man left in Ai, or in Bethel, that went not out after Israel. And they lefte the cite open, and followed after Israel.

Then the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua reache out the speare that is in thyn hande towarde Ai, for I haue gyue it in. And Iosua stretched out the speare that was in his hand, toward the cite. And the priuy watche rose quickely out of their places, and ranne as soone as Iosua had shaken his speare, and they entred in to the cite, and toke it, and set it on fyre.
And when the men of Ai loked back after the and sawe: Beholde, the smoke of the cite ascended vp to heuen. And they had no place to flee either this waye or that, for the people that fledde to the wyldernesse turned backe vpon the followers and fiercely fought.

And when Iosua and all Israel sawe that E they that lay a wayte had taken the cite and that the smoke of it ascended: They tourned and layed on the men of Ai, And the other issued out of the cite agaynst them. And so were they in the myddes of Israel, these besynge on the one syde of them, and the selfe on the other. And they layde vpon them, so that they let none eyther remayne or escape.

The kyng of Ai they toke a lyue & brought him to Iosua. And when Israell had made an ende of slayenge all the inhabitours of Ai who chased them ouer the felde and ꝑ wyldernes. So when they were all slayne in the same place, Israel returned vnto Ai & smote
it. And there was slayne that daye, of men & women, twelue thousande, all men of Ai.

For Iosua plucked not his hande backe a-gayne wherewith he helde vp his speare, tyll they had vtterly destroyed all the inhabiters of Ai. * Onely the catell & spoyle of the sayd cyte, Israel toke vnto them selues, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, which he cõmaun ded Iosua. And Iosua set Ai on fyre, & made it an heape and a wyldernesse forever, euen vnto this daye. And the kynge of Ai he hanged on a tree, vntyll euen. And assone as it was sonneset, at the commaundement of Iosua they toke the carkas downe of the tree, & cast it in the entrynge of the gate of the cite, and * cast theron a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

Then Iosua buylded an aultare vnto the Lord God of Israel, in mount Ebal, as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded children of Israel, as it is written in the boke
* of the law of Moses: an altare of rought stone, ouer which no toole of yron was lyfte.
And they sacrificed therein burntsacrifice, and offred peaxoffringes. And he wrote there vpon the stones the * seconde lawe of Moses, whiche he wrote in the presence of the children of Israell.

And all Israell and the elders therof, and their officers and Judges stode parte on this syde the arche, and parte on that syde, before the priestes: that were Leuytes which bare the arche of the Testament of the Lorde: as well the straunger, as they that were borne amonge them: halfe on the forefrontes of the mount of Garizim, and halfe on the forefront of mount Ebal: as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded, and Iosua first blessed the people Israell. And after that, he red all the wordes of the lawe, both the blessinge & cursinge, accordinge to all that is written in the boke of the lawe: so that there was not one worde of all that Moses commaunded, whyche Iosua red not, before all the congregacion of Israell, with wemen and children, and the straungers that were amonge them.

¶ The Gabaonites obtayne peace of Iosua by subtelte, but are after accursed.

CAPI. IX.

AND when all the kynges that dwell on this syde Iordan, in the hylles and ba-leyes, and a longe by al the coastes of great see, euen vnto Libanon, the Hethites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Pherezites the Hiuites, and the Iebusites, herde of this they gathered them selues togither to fight against Iosua and Israell, with one accorde.

Amorites.

But when the inhabitoures of Gabaon herd what Iosua had wrat vnto Iericho, and Ai, they playd wylyly, and went and toke ambasadours, and tobe old sackes vpon their Asses, and wyne bottelles olde and rent and knyt togythes agayne, and olde clouted shoes vpon their fete, and olde rayment vpon them and all their prouysion of bred was dryed vp and mogged. And they came vnto Iosua into the hoste, to Galgall and sayde vnto him & vnto the men of Israell: we be comy fromme a farre countreye, nowe therfore make a peax with vs. And the men of Israell sayde vnto the Heuites, peraduenture you dwell amonge vs, and then howe shoulde we make peax with you.

And they sayde vnto Iosua, we are thy seruauntes. And Iosua sayde vnto them, what are ye: and whence come ye. And they answered him. Fromme a very farre countreye thy seruauntes are come in the name of the Lorde thy God: for we haue herde the fame of him, and all that he dyd in Egypte, and al that he dyd to the two ✱ kynges of the Amorites beyonde Iordan, Hebon kynge of Hesbon, and Og kynge of Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth. Wherfore our elders and all the inhabitours of our countrey spake to vs, sayenge: take vitayles with you to seruе by the waye, and go against them, & saye vnto them, we are youre seruauntes. Now therfore make a couenaunt of peax with vs. This our prouision of bread we toke with vs out of our houses, hote, the day we departed to come vnto you. And now beholde, it is dryed vp and mogged. And these bottelles of wyne which we fylled were new: and se they be broken. And these our garmentes and shoes are waxen olde by reason of the exceadynge longe Iourneye.

✱ And the men toke of their vitayles, and counsiled not with the mouth of the Lorde. And Iosua made peax with them, and ✱ made a leage with them, to saue their lyues: & the chefe lordes of the armye sware vnto them. But thre dayes after they hadde made peax with them, they herde that they were neyghboures vnto them, and that they dwelte amonges them. For the children of Israel toke their iourneye, and came vnto their cyties the thirde daye: and their cyties were Gabaon, Caphira, Beeroth, and Kariath Iarim. And the children of Israel slewe them not, because the Lordes of the companye had sworne vnto them by the Lorde God of Israell. And therfore all the commons murmured against the Lordes. But the Lordes sayde vnto all the congregation: We haue sworne vnto them by the Lorde God of Israell, and therfore we maye not hurte them. But this we will do to them, let them lyue: & so shall no wrath be vpon vs, because of the othe which we sware vnto them: but let them haue their lyues, that they maye be ✱ hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto all the congregation.

And Iosua sent for them, and talked with them, and sayde: wherfore haue ye begyled vs, whereas in dede ye dwel amonges vs? now therfore cursed be you, & there shall not cease to be of you, bondmen and hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto the house of my God.

And they answered Iosua, and sayde: it was told thy seruauntes, that the Lorde thy God had commaunded his seruaunt Moses to gyue you all the lande, and to destroye all the inhabitoures therof out of youre syghte, and therfore we were sore afrayed of our lyues because of you, and now beholde, we are in thyne hande, do it semeth good, and right in thyne eyes to do vnto vs, so do.

And he dealte as it sayde, with them, & rydde them out of the handes of the children of Israel, that they slewe them not. And Iosua made them that same daye hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto the congregation and vnto the aulter of God vnto this day, in the place which God shulde chose.

¶ The amorites are ouercome of Iosua it rayneth stones. The sonne standeth styll and the daye is long thered. The fyue kynges are hanged.

CAPI. X.

Ad when Adonizedec kynge of Ierusalem had herde, howe Iosua had taken Ai, and had destroyed it, and howe as ✱ he had wrat vnto Iericho and her kynge, euen so he had wrat to Ai and her kynge, and howe the inhabitoures of Gabaon hadde made peax with Israell and dyd remayne amonges the: they feared exceadyngly, for Gabaō was a great cytie, as any cytie of the kyngdome, and therto greater then Ai, & al her men were mighty. A

Wherfore Adonizedec kynge of Ierusalem sent vnto Hoham kynge of Hebron, and vnto Phiram kynge of Iermoth, and vnto Iaphia kynge of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kynge of Eglon, sayenge. Come vp vnto me & helpe me, that we maye smyte Gabaon: for they haue made peax with Iosua and the children of Israel. Then the .v. kynges of the Amorites, the kynge of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Iermoth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon gathered them selues togither, both they and all their hostes & went vp and besieged Gabaon, & made warre against it. B

But the men of Gabaon when they were besieged sent vnto Iosua, vnto the hall to Galgal, sayenge: withdrawe not thy handes fro thy seruauntes, but come vp to vs: and releue vs: for all the kynges of the Amorites which dwell in the mountaynes are gathered togyther against vs.

And Iosua ascended fromme Galgall, he and all the people of warre with him, and all the men of myght, and the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua, feare them not, for I haue delyuered the into thyne hande, there shal not a man of the stande before the. So Iosua came vpon them sodenly, for he had iourneyed fromme Galgall all nyght. And the Lorde tobe their hyrte awaye before Israel, and slew of them a great slaughter at Gabaon, and chased them a log the The fayethfulnes of Iosua.

And as they laye from Israell, euen in the goynge downe to Bethoron, the Lorde cast downe great stones from heauen vpon them tyll they came vnto Azeka, that they dyed. And there were mo that dyed with hayle stones, then the children of Israell slewe with the swerde.

Stones from heauen.

Then spake Iosua vnto the Lorde, the day when the Lorde gaue ouer the Amorites before the children of Israell, and sayde in the sight of all Israell: Sonne, stande thou styll vpon Gabaon, and thou Mone, in the valey of Ayalon. And the sonne abode, and the mone stode styll, tyll the people had auenged them selues vpon their enemyes. Is not this written in the booke of the ryghtwyse, howe the sonne abode in the myddes of heauen and hasted not to goo downe by the space of a hole daye. And there was no daye so longe as that before it, or after it, that the Lorde obeyed the voyce of a man: and all because the Lorde fought for Israell.

Gene. xlvii. a The Sonne & mone stande styll.

And Iosua returned & all Israel with him, vnto the hoste to Galgall: but the fyue kynges fled and hyd them selues in a caue at Maheda. And it was tolde Iosua, sayenge: The fyue kynges are founde hyd in a caue at Maheda. And Iosua sayde, rowle greate stones vnto the mouth of the caue, and appoynt men by them therto, to kepe them. And stande ye not styll, but followe after your enemyes, & smyte the hyndermost of them. And suffre them not to entre into their cyties, for the Lorde your God hath deliuered them into your handes. And when Iosua and the children of Israel had made an ende of slayeng them with a great slaughter, tyll they were well nere wasted per there remayned a certen of them, that had escaped Israels handes and entered into the walled cyties.

The kynge & his hyd

And all the people returned to the hoste, to Iosua at Maheda in peace, hole and without losse of one man so that no man durst moue his tonge against the children of Israel. The sayde Iosua: open the mouth of the caue, and bringe oute these. v. kynges vnto me forth of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those fyue kynges vnto him, out of the caue: The kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jermoth, the kynge of Lachis, and the kynge of Eglon.

And when they had brought out those kynges vnto Iosua: Iosua called for all the men of Israell, and sayd vnto the captaynes of the men of warre, whiche came with him, come nere and put your fete vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere and put their fete vpon the neckes of them. And Iosua sayde vnto them feare not, ne dreade: But be stronge & plucke vp your hertes, for so shall the Lorde serue all your enemyes against whom ye fight.

The fyue kynges be slayne.

And then Iosua smote them and slew them and hanged them on fyue trees tyl euen. And at the goyng downe of the sonne, Iosua gaue commaundement, and they toke them downe of the trees, & cast them into the caue, where they hyd them selues, and layde great stones on the caues mouthe, whiche remayne vnto this daye. Deute.

And that same daye Iosua toke Maheda & smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof also, and vtterly destroyed them and al the soules that were therein, & not one escaped. And he dyd to the kynge of Maheda, as he dyd to the kynge of Jericho. Maheda. Iosue. viii. Iosue. x.

Then Iosua went from Maheda, and all Israell with him vnto Libna, and fought against Libna. And the Lorde deliuered it also in their handes, with the kynge also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein, and let nought remayne in it, and dyd vnto the kynge therof as he dyd vnto the kynge of Jericho. Libna.

After that Iosua departed from Libna, & all Israell with him, vnto Lachis, and besiged and assaulted it rounde about. And the Lord deliuered into the handes of Israel Lachis, that they toke it the second day, & smote it with the edge of the swerde, & al the soules that were therin, according to all that he dyd to Libna. Lachis. ¶

Then Horam kynge of Gezer came vp to helpe Lachis: But Iosua smote him and his people, tyll he left him naught remayninge. Horam

And from Lachis Iosua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israell with him, and there besieged, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, & smote it with the edge of the swerde and all the personnes that were therin: and vtterly destroyed them the same daye, accordynge to all that he dyd to Lachis. Eglon.

Then Iosua departed vp from Eglon and all Israell with him, vnto Hebron. And they fought against it, and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof, and all the townes that belonged to it, and all the soules that were therin, so that they left nought remayninge: but in all thinges as they dyd to Eglon, so they destroyed it vtterly. Hebron. ¶

Then Iosua returned and all Israell with him to Dabir, and they fought against it, and toke it, and the kynge therof and al the townes that appertayned therto. And smote the with the edge of the swerde, and vtterly destroyed all the soules that were therin, & let nought remayne. And as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and the kynge therof, and as he dyd to Libna and her kynge. Dabir.

And Iosua smote all the hill countreyes and the southe countreyes, and the valeyes, & the springes of waters, with all their kynges and let nought remayne, but vtterly destroyed all that ✠ breathed, as the Lorde God of Israell commaunded, from Cades barne, vnto Gasa, and all the country of Golan, euen vnto Gabaon. And all those kynges and their landes, Iosua toke at one tyme: because the Lorde God of Israell fought for Israell. And then Iosua returned and all Israel with him vnto the host to Galgall. CAPI. X.I.

A Nd when Iabin kynge of Hazor herde hereof: he sent to Iobab kynge of Madon, and to the kynge of Someron, and to the kynge of Achaph. And vnto the kynges that are by northe in the mountaynes, and playnes, on the south syde of Cinneroth, and in the lowe countreyes, and in the regions of Dor vpon the see, & vnto the Cananites both by Easte and weste: and vnto the Amorites, Hethithes, Pherezites, and Iebusites in the mountaynes: and vnto the Heuites vnder Hermon in the lande of Maspha: whiche came oute and all theyr hostes with them a multitude of folke, euen as the sandes of the see in nombre, with hostes and charettes a wonderous sorte. And all these kynges mette to gyther, and came and pitched to gyther vpon the water of Merom, to fight with Israell.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua: be not afrayde of them: for to morowe about this tyme, I wyll deliuer them all sore wounded, before al Israel: and thou shalt houghe their hostes, and burne their charettes with fyre.

And Iosua came and all ꝑ men of warre with him against them, vnto the water of Merom sodenly, and fell vpon them. And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of Israel: & they smote them and chased them, vnto great Sidon, and vnto the ✱ hote waters, and vnto the valeye of Maspha eastwarde, & smote them tyll they had none lefte of them. And Iosua serued them as the Lorde had him, houghed their hostes, and burnt their charettes with fyre.

Then Iosua at that tyme turned backe and toke Hazor and smote her kyng with ꝑ swerd for Hazor before tyme was the head of all those kyngdomes. And they smote all the soules that were therin and left not one alyue in it, vtterly destroyenge them, that no breathe was lefte remaynge. And burnt Hazor with fire, and all the cyties round about, whyle kynges Iosua toke and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and vtterly destroyed them ✱ as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israell burnt none of the cyties that stode vpon hilles, saue Hazor onely, that Iosua burnt: but all the spoyle of the sayde cyties & the catell, the children of Israel caught vnto theym selues: But the men onely they smote with the edge of the swerde vntyll they had destroyed them, and had left no breth remaynnge. As the Lorde commaunded Iosua and euen so dyd Iosua ✱ and inuyolated no worde of all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And so Iosua toke al that lande, the hylles and all the south countreye, and all the lande of Goshen, and the lowe countrey, and ꝑ west countrey, the playnes, and the mountayne of Israel, with the lowe countreye of the same, euen frō mount Halah that goeth vp to Seir vnto Baal Gad in the valeye of Libanon, vnder mount Hermon. And all the kynges of ꝑ same he toke and smote them, and slewe the.

Iosua made warre longe tyme with those kynges: for there was no cytie that had not yelded her to the children of Israel, saue those Hethites that enhabited Gabaon: All other they toke with batayle: for it was the Lordes wyll to harden their hartes, that they shulde come agaynste Israel in battayle: euen to destroye them vtterly, that they shulde haue no mercy, but to bryng them to nought As the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And that same season, Iosua went and destroyed the ✱ Enakites out of the mountaynes, and out of Hebron, Dabir, and Anab, & out of all the mountaynes of Iuda, and oute of all the mountaynes of Israell, And Iosua destroyed them vtterly with their cytes, so that there was not one Enakite left in ꝑ land of the children of Israel: only in Aza, Geth and Asod, there remayned of them. ✱ Iud.1.b

And Iosua toke the hole lande, accordynge to all that the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, and gaue it a possession vnto Israell euery man his parte in their trybes: and the lande ceased frō warre.

THen the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayinge: commen with the chyldren of Jsrael and saye: * Appoynte oute fyue cytyes, of whiche I spake vnto you by Moses, that the sleat that kylleth anye person vnwares, and vnwittyngly, maye flee thither. And those cityes shall be youre refuge fromte the auenger of bloude. And the sleat shall flee vnto one of those cityes, and shall stande in the entrynge of the gate of the citye, and shall shewe his cause in the eares of the elders of the sayd citye, that it was no wylful murther. & they shall take him in to the city vnto them, and shall geue him a place that he may dwell amonge them.

And when the auenger of bloude followeth after him, they shall not delyuer the sleat in to his hande, bycause he smote his frende ignorātly, and that can not be proued that he bare him malyce of two or three dayes afore.

And he shall dwell in the sayd citye vntyll he stande before the congregation in iudgement, tayinge for his discharge, and vntyl the deth of the hyghe preest that shall be in those dayes. And then shall the sleat retourne and come vnto his owne citye, and vnto his owne house, and vnto the citye fromte whence he fledde.

E And they appoynted Kedes in Galile, in mounte Nephthali, and Sichem in mounte Ephraim, and Kariatharbe, whiche is Hebron in the mountaynes of Juda. And on the other syde Jordan ouer against Jericho Eastwarde, they gaue Bosor in the wyldernesse, vpon the playne wyldernesse out of the tryb of Ruben and Ramoth in Galaad out of the tryb of Gad, and Golam in Basan out of the tryb of Manasses. Deuter.iiii.g

These were the cityes appoynted for all the chyldren of Jsrael, and to the straungers that sotourned amonge them that who so euer killed anye person ignorantly, the same myghte flee thyther and shulde not dye by the hande of the auenger of bloude, vntyl he stode before the congregation. D

¶ The Cityes giuen to the Leuites, in nombre fortye and eyght. The promyses of gyuynge the lande of Canaan are fulfylled. The Jsraelites are at rest.

CAPI. XXI.

AND then came the principall heedes of A the Leuytes vnto Eleazar the preeste, and vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, and vnto the auncient heedes of the trybes of the chyldren of Jsrael, and spake vnto them at Silo in the lande of Canaan, sayinge: * the Lorde commaunded by Moses, to gyue vs cityes to dwell in, and the fieldes about them for our catell. * Numer.xxxv.a Deuter.xii.b Josu.xxi.a

And the chyldren of Jsrael gaue vnto the Leuites out of theyr inheritaunces, at the bidding of the Lorde, these cities following with theyr suburbes.

And the lotte came oute vnto the kynredes of the Cahathytes: and the chyldren of Aaron the preeste whiche were of the Leuytes hadde gyuen them by lotte, oute of the tryb of Juda, oute of the tryb of Symeon, and oute of the tryb of Benjamin thirtene cityes. And the reste of the chyldren of Cahath hadde by lotte oute of the kynredes of the tryb of Ephraim, oute of the tryb of Dan, and out of the halfe tryb of Manasses ten cityes.

And the chyldren of Gerson hadde by lotte oute of the kynredes of the tryb of Jssachar oute of the tryb of Aser, oute of the tryb of Nephthali, and out of the other halfe tribe of Manasses in Basan, thirtene cityes. And the chyldren of Merari by theyr kynredes, hadde oute of the tryb of Ruben, out of the tryb of Gad, and oute of the tryb of Zabulon, twelue cityes. And the chyldren of Jsrael gaue by lot vnto the Leuites these cityes with theyr suburbes, as the Lorde commaunded by Moses. B

And they gaue oute of the tryb of the chyldren of Juda, and out of the tryb of the chyldren of Symeon, these cityes by name: whiche the chyldren of Aaron beinge of the kynredes of the Cahathites, & of the chyldren of Leui, obtayned: for theirs was the first lotte. And they gaue them Kariah Arbe of the father of Enache, whiche is Hebron in the hyll countreye of Juda, with the suburbes of the same rounde aboute it. But the countrey that pertayned to the citye and the villages therof & Arba was the father of Enach. Josua.xiii.b. a Parei, b.d

they gaue to Caleb the sonne of Jephune, to be his possession.

And the kynredes of the chyldren of Cahath that were Leuytes / that is to saye the other chyldren of Cahath had the cities of their lot, oute of the tribe of Ephraim. And they gaue them the free cityes of the sear: Sichem with her suburbes in mounte Ephraim, and Gazer with her suburbes / and Kadraim with her suburbes / Bethhoron with her suburbes / foure cityes.

And oute of the tryde of Dan: Eltheke with her suburbes, Gibethon with her suburbes, Aialon with her suburbes, and Gathremon with her suburbes, foure cityes. And oute of the halfe tribe of Manasses: Thanach with her suburbes, Gathremon with her suburbes, two cityes. So that all the cytyes whiche were geuen vnto the kynredes of the other chyldren of Cahath, were ten with their suburbes.

And vnto the chyldren of Gerson, whiche were of the kynredes of the Leuytes, they gaue out of the other halfe tribe of Manasses, the cityes of refuge for the sear, Golan in Basan and Bosram with her suburbes: Besthsera with her suburbes, two cityes. And oute of the tryde of Jssachar, Kision with her suburbes, Dabrath with her suburbes, Jarmoth with her suburbes, Enganim with her suburbes, foure cityes. And out of the tribe of Aser Masal with her suburbes, Abdon with her suburbes, Helkath with her suburbes, Rehob with her suburbes, foure cityes.

And out of the tryde of Nephthali, the city of refuge of the sear, Kedes in Galile, with her suburbes: Hamothdor, with her suburbes Carthan with her suburbes: thre cityes. So that all the cityes of the Gersonytes in they; kynredes were thyrteene with their suburbes.

And out of the tribe of Gad, they gaue the fraunchesed cityes of the sear, Ramoth in Galaad with her suburbes, Mahanaim with her suburbes, Hesbon with her suburbes, and Jaser with her suburbes, foure cityes in all, so that all the cityes of the chyldren of Merari in their kynredes, whiche were the reste of the kynredes of the Leuytes, were by they; lotte, twelue cityes. And all the cityes that the Leuytes had in the possession of the chyldren of Jsrael were fortye and eyght with their suburbes. And these cityes habde eche their suburbes rounde about her thorowe oute all the sayd cityes.

And the Lorde gaue vnto Jsrael, all the lande whiche he swore to gyue vnto they; fathers. And they conquered it, and dwelte therein. And the Lorde gaue them reste rounde about, accordynge to all that he swore vnto they; fathers. So that there stode not a man of all they; enemyes before them. But the Lorde delyuered all they; enemyes into they; handes. There skaped nothynge of all the good thynges whiche the Lorde habde sayde vnto the house of Jsrael. But all came to passe.

¶ Ruben, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses are sende agayne to they; possessions. They buylde an aulare for a memoryall.

CAPI. XXII.

THen Josua called vnto the Rubenites, the Gaddites, and to the halfe tryde of Manasses, and sayde vnto them: * ye haue kepte all that Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you: Ye haue not lefte your brethren of a longe season vnto this daye, but haue kepte the commaundement of the Lorde your God. And now the Lorde hathe gyuen reste vnto your brethren, as he promysed them. Wherfore returne and goo vnto your tentes, and vnto the lande of your possession, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

But in anye wyse take erebynge good hede that ye do the commaundement and lawe whi the Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde charged you / whiche is, that ye loue the Lorde your God, and walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaunderaentes, and cleaue vnto him, and serue him with all your hertes, and all your soules. And so Josua blessed theym, and sente them awaye. And they wente vnto they; tentes.

Vnto the one halfe of the tryde of Manasses Moses gaue possession in Basan, and vnto the other halfe therof gaue Josua with they; brethren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And also when Josua sent them awaye vnto they; tentes and blessed them, he sayde vnto them, returne with moche ryches vnto your tentes and with very moche catell, with syluer, golde, brasse, yron, and with rayment above measure and deuide the spoyle of your enemyes with your brethren.

And the chyldren of Ruben the chyldren of Gad

Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, returned and departed from the chyldren of Israel out of Silo, whiche is in the lande of Canaan, to go vnto the countreye of Galaad, and to the lande of theyr possession, wherin they were possessed at the mouthe of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. And when they came vnto the hylles of Jordan that lye in the lande of Canaan: there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses, buylte an aulter fast by Jordan, and that a great aulter to se to. And when the chyldren of Israel herde saye: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the childre of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses haue buylt an aulter in the fore fronte of the lande of Canaan in the borders of Jordan on the syde of the chyldren of Israel: the hole congregacion of the chyldren of Israel gathered them together to Silo to go vpon them with batayle.

And the chyldren of Israel sente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, to the chyldren of Gad, & to the halfe tribe of Manasses in to the lande of Galaad, Phinches the sonne of Eleazar the Preste, and with him tenne lordes, of euerye chyefe houle a lorde, those we oute all the tribes of Israel, whiche heades of theyr fathers houlholdes were ouer the thousandes of Israel. And they went vnto the children of Ruben, of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Galaad, and spake with them sayinge.

Thus saye the hole congregacion of the Lorde: what trāsgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynste the God of Israel, to turne awaye this daye from after the Lorde, and to buylde you an aulter for to rebell this daye agaynst the Lorde? Is the wycked dede of Belphegor to lytle for vs, wherof we are not clensed vnto this daye, and moche people were slayne, but that ye also sholde tourne awaye this daye fro me folowynge the Lorde? Ye shall rebell to daye agaynste the Lorde, & to morowe he shall be wroth with all the congregacion. Not withstandynge yf the lande of your possession be vncleane, then come ouer vn to the lande of the possession of the Lorde, where the Lordes tabernacle dwellerth, and be possessed amonges vs. But rebell not agaynste the Lorde, nor agaynste vs, to buylde you anye other aulter, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God. Dyd not Achan the sonne of Zareth transgresse the commaundement of the Lorde, and wroth fell on all the congregacion of Israel, so that he alone perysshed not for his wyckednesse?

Then the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, answered and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel, The myghtye God, the almyghtye Lorde he knoweth, and Israel shall knowe yf it be to rebell or transgresse agaynst the Lorde, then the Lorde saue vs not this daye.

Or elles yf we haue buylte vs an aulter to turne from folowynge the Lorde, or to offer theron burnt offeryngs or meat offeryngs, or to offer peax offeryngs theron, let the Lorde requyre it: And haue not rather doone it for feare of this, lest in tyme to come youre chyldren shoulde saye vnto ours: What haue ye to doo with the Lorde God of Israel, seynge that the Lorde hathe made Jordan a border betweene vs and you ye chyldren of Ruben and of Gad: ye haue no parte therfore in the Lorde: and so shall youre children make oure chyldren cease from fearynge the Lorde.

Therfore we thoughte it better, and sayde: Lette vs caule an aulter to be made, not for burnt offeryngs, nor sacrifyces, but it shall be a token betweene vs and you, and oure generacyons after vs, that we shoulde serue the Lorde, with oure offeryngs, sacrifyces, and peace offeryngs: and that youre chyldren shoulde not saye to ours in tyme to come: ye haue no parte in the Lorde. Genes. xxxi. g Deuter. xxi. b Iosue. xxiiii. f.

And we thought, yf they sholde so saye to vs, or to oure generacions in tyme to come, that we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the facyon of the aulter whiche oure fathers made, neyther for burnt offeryngs, nor sacrifyces, but that it sholde be a wytnesse betweene vs and you. God forbyd that we sholde rebell agaynste the Lorde, and that we sholde turne this daye from after him, and buylde an aulter for burnt offeryngs or sacrifices, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God that is before his tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the Preste and the Lordes of the congregacyon, and heades ouer the thousandes of Israel whiche were with hym, herde the wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were well content.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preste sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad and of Manasses, this daye we perceyue that the Lorde is amonge vs, because ye haue not doone this trespace agaynste the Lorde. And nowe ye haue ryd the chyldre of Israel oute of the handes of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preste and the Lordes returned from the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad out of the lande of Galaad vnto the lande of Canaan, to the chyldren of Israel, and broughte them worde agayne. And the answere pleased the chyldren of Israel well, and they prayed God, and dyd not intende to goo agaynste them in battayle, to destroye the lande whyche the chyldren of Ruben and Gad dweite in. And the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad called the aulter ✠ Ed, because it is a wytnesse betweene vs, that the Lorde is God.

✠ Iosue exhorteth the people that they ioyne not them selues to the Gentyles and that they truste in none but in God only, whyche had fulfylled his promyses to them.

✠ After the Hebrew. The olmen translated ouer with welle that the Lord is God.

CAPI. XXIII.

And

A And it came to passe a longe season after that the Lorde had geuen rest vnto Israel from all theyr enemyes rounde about that Iosua waxed olde and was stryken in yeres. Wherfore he sent for all Israel, & for theyr elders, theyr heades, theyr iudges and officers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde and stryken in yeres. And ye haue sene all that the Lorde youre God hath done vnto all these nacyons before youre faces. For the Lorde youre God he foughte for you. Beholde, I haue appointed these nacyons that remayne, to be the inheritaunce of youre tribes, euen from Iordane, and all the nacyons that I haue destroyed, euen vnto the great see. And the Lorde youre God he shall expell and caste them oute before you, and ye shall conquere theyr landes, as the Lorde youre God hathe sayd vnto you.

B * Be therfore exceadynge stronge, that ye take hede to do all that is written in the boke of the lawe of Moses, * that ye bow not ayde therefrom, to the ryght hande or to the lefte, and that ye go not vnto these nacions that remayne with you, and that ye neither make mencion of, nor swere by the names of their Goddes, and that ye neither serue them nor bowe youre selues vnto them.

But that ye vnyte fast vnto the Lorde youre God, as ye haue done vnto this daye. So shall the Lorde caste oute before you great nacions and myghtye, as ye se yowe no man hathe stande before you hytherto. * One shall chase a thousande: for the Lord youre God he fyghteth for you, as he hath sayd vnto you. Take good hede therfore vnto youre soules, that ye loue the Lorde youre God.

Deut. vii. a. and xi. d.

But and yf ye shall go backe, and cleaue vnto the rest of these nacions that remayne with you, and shall make mariages with them, and to be in a leage with them, be sure * the Lorde youre God wyll not caste out all these nacyons from before you. * But they shall be snares & trappes vnto you, and scourges for youre sides and thornes in youre eyes, vntyll ye perysshe from this good lande whiche the Lorde youre God hath geuen you.

* Exo. xxiii. a

C Beholde I walke this daye by the waye of all the worlde: cal ye to mynde in all youre hertes and in all youre soules, that nothynge hath fayled of all the good thynges whiche the Lorde youre God promised you. All are come to passe, and nothyng hath fayled there of. And as all good thynges are come vpon you, whiche the Lorde your God hathe promysed you: so shall the Lorde bringe vpon you all euyll, vntyll he haue destroyed you from this good lande, whiche the Lorde youre God hathe geuen you, when ye haue transgressed the appoyntment of the Lorde youre God, whiche he hathe made with you, and go and serue straunge goddes, and bowe youre selues to them. Then shall the wrathe of the Lorde ware hoote vpon you, and ye shall perysshe quyckely from the good lande whiche he hath geuen you.

Deut. xxviii. b

C Iosua exhorteth the people to the keppynge of the law. He dyeth. The bones of Ioseph are buryed. Eleazar dyeth.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A And Iosua gathered all the tribes of Israel to Sichem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for theyr heades Iudges and officers, whiche presented them selues before God. And Iosua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel. * Youre fathers dwelte on the other syde of the floude in olde tyme, euen Thare the father of Abraham and Nachor, and serued straunge goddes. But I toke youre father Abraham from the other syde of the floude and broughte him in to the lande of Canaan, and multiplyed his seed, and gaue him Isaac. And I gaue vnto Isaac, Iacob, and Esau. And I gaue vnto Esau mounte Seir to possesse it. But Iacob and his chyldren wente downe in to Egypt.

* Then I sente Moses and Aaron. And I stroke Egypte in many tymes and wonders, and after that I broughte you youre fathers out of Egypte. And ye came vnto the see, and the Egyptians folowed after youre fathers with charettes and horsemen, vnto the rede see. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And he put darkenesse betwene you and the Egyptians and broughte the see vpon them & couered them.

And youre eyes haue sene what I haue done in Egypte. And ye dwelte in the wildernesse a longe season. And I broughte you in to the lande of the Amorites, whiche dwelte on the other syde Iordan. And they foughte agaynste you: and I gaue them in to youre handes. And ye conquered theyr countrey, and ye destroyed them.

Then Balak the sonne of Zephor, kynge of Moab, arose and warred agaynste Israel, and sente and * called Balam the sonne of Beor for to curse you. But I wolde not agree to harken vnto Balam and therfore he blessed you: And so I deliuered you oute of his hande. And when ye wente ouer Iordan, and came vnto Ierycho, the citizyns of Iericho foughte agaynste you: the Amorytes, Pherezites, Canaanites, Hethites, Gergesites, Heuytes, Iebusites, whiche I deliuered in to youre handes.

And I sent * hornettes before you and ye caste oute before you: euen the two kynges of the Amorytes, but not with youre owne swerde, or with youre owne bowe. And I gaue you a lande in whiche ye dyd no laboure, and cityes whiche you buylte not, and ye dwelte in them. And vynes, and olyue trees whiche ye planted not.

And now feare the Lorde and serue hym in purenesse and trueth. And put awaye the goddes whiche youre fathers serued in Mesopotamia, and in Egypte, and serue the Lorde. But yf it seme euyl vnto you to serue the Lord then chose you this day whom you will serue whether the Goddes, whiche youre fathers serued serued that were on the other syde of ꝑ floude, either the Goddes of the Amorites, in whose lande ye dwell, and I and my house wyl serue the Lorde.

And the people answered and sayde, God forbyd that we sholde forsake the Lorde and serue straunge goddes. For the Lorde our God he it is that brought vs and our fathers oute of the lande of Egypte, the house of bondage, and whiche dyd those myracles in our syghte, and preserued vs in all the waye we went and amonge all the nacions whiche we came thorowe. And the Lorde dyd cast out before vs all the nacions with the Amorytes whiche dwelt in the lande, wherfore we wyl serue the Lorde for he is our God.

But Iosua sayd vnto the people: ye can not serue the Lorde, for he is an holye God, mighty and gelous, and can not beare your transgression and synne. But when ye haue forsake the Lorde, and haue serued straunge goddes, he wyl turne and do you euyll and consume you, after that he hathe doone you good. And the people answered Iosua: not so / but we wyll serue the Lorde.

Then Iosua sayd vnto the folke, ye are witnesses vnto your selues that ye haue chose you the Lorde to serue hym: and they sayd we are witnesses. Then put away, sayd he, ꝑ straunge goddes which are amonge you, and bowe your hertes vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And the people answered Iosua: the Lorde oure God we wyl serue, and his voyce we wil obeye. And so Iosua made a couenaunt with the people the same daye, and set ordinaunces and lawes before them in Sichem.

And Iosua wrote these wordes in the boke of the lawe of God, and toke a great ꝑ stone and pytched it on ende in the sayd place / euen vnder an oake that stode in the sanctuarye of the Lorde. And Iosua sayd vnto all ꝑ people: Beholde, this stoone shall be a wytnesse vnto vs, for it hathe herde all the wordes of the Lorde whiche he spake with you. It shall be therfore a wytnesse vnto you, lest ꝑ after this tyme ye wyll denye and lye vnto your God. And so Iosua let the people depart euery man vnto his enheritaunce.

And after these thynges the tyme came that Iosua the sonne of Nun and the seruaunte of the Lorde dyed, being an hundred and ten yeres olde. Whom they buryed in the borders of his inheritaunce, euen in Thamnath Sarah, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north syde of the hyll of Gaas.

And Israel serued the Lorde all the dayes of Iosua, and all the dayes of the elders that oute lyued Iosua, and which had seene all the workes of the Lorde that he had doone to Israel. And the bones of Ioseph whiche the children of Israel brought oute of Egypte, they buried in Sichem, in a parcel of ground which Jacob bought of the sonnes of Hemor, the father of Sichem, for an hundred sheep pagges, whiche parcell became the inheritaunce of the children of Ioseph. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron died, whom they buryed in Gabaath that pertayned to Phinees his son, and was gyuen hym in mounte Ephraim.

F Josue. xvii. Iudic. i.

In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Canaanites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Canaanites dwelt styll in Gazer amonge them.

Iudic. i.

Neither did Zabulon expel the inhabitours of Kateon, neither the inhabitours of Nahalol. But the Canaanites dwelt amonge them and became tributaryes.

Neuther dyd Aser caste out the inhabitours of Acho, neyther the inhabitours of Zidon, of Ahalab, Achzib, Halbah, Aphek, nor of Rohob, but the Asserites dwelte amonge the Canaanites the inhabitours of the lande, and spare them not out.

G

Neyther dyd Nephthalim dryue oute the inhabitours of Bethsames, nor the inhabytoures of Bethanath, but dwelt amongest the Canaanites the inhabitours of the lande. Neuertheles the inhabitours of Bethsames and of Bethanath became tributaryes vnto them.

And the Amorites kepte the chyldren of Dan in the mountayns, and suffered them not

to come wynne to the valeyes. And so the Amorytes wente to and dwelled in mounte Heres that is to saye a wytnesse in Halon and in Salabim. Neuertheiater the hande of Joseph waxed heuye vpon them, so that they became tributaryes. And the coostes of the Amorytes was from the goyng vp to Acrabim, and from the rocke vpwarde.

¶ The Aungell rebuketh the people because they had made peace w the Canamites. Idolatrers are punyshed, but yet leaue not their murmurations. God sendeth them Judges to deliuer them.

CAPI. II.

A Nd the aungell of the Lorde came vp from Galgall to Bocim, and sayde: I brought you out of Egypte, and haue brought you vnto the lande which I sware vn to your fathers. And I sayd that I wold neuer breke myne appoyntment with you, so that ye shuld make no couenaunt with ỹ inhabitours of this lãde, but breke their aulters: But ye haue not obeyed my voice, why haue ye this done? wherfore I haue lykewyse determined that I will not cast them out before you: but they shall be your enemyes, and their goddes shall be your destruction. And when the aungell of the Lorde had spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israel, the people eyed oute and wepte. And called the name of the sayd place Bocim, and offered there vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua had lete the people awaye, the chyldren of Israel went euery man in to his inheritaunce to possesse the lande. And the people serued the Lord all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that out lyued Josua, and had sene all the great workes of the Lord that he did to Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the Lorde dyed when he was an hundred and ten yeres olde: whome they buryed in the coostes of his enheritaunce: euen in Thamnath Hares in mount Ephraim, on the northe syde of the hyll Oaas. And euen so all that generacion were put vnto their fathers: and there arose an other generacion after them, which neither knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes which he had done vnto Israel.

And then the chyldren of Israel dyd wyckedly in the sight of the Lorde, & serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde God of their fathers, which brought them out of the lande of Egypte, and folowed straunge goddes, euen of the goddes of the nations that were rounde about them, and bowed them selues vnto them and angred the Lorde. And so they forsoke the Lorde and serued Baal and Astaroth. Wherfore the Lorde waxed angrye with Israel, and deliuered them in to the handes of raueners to spoyle them, and solde them in to the handes of their enemyes rounde about them, so that they had no power any longer to stande before their enemyes: but vnto what so euer thynge they wente, the hande of the Lorde was vpon them with cruell luche: euen as the Lorde promysed them. And as he sware vnto them. And they were sore vexed.

Neuertheiesse, the Lorde raysed vp Judges whiche deliuered them out of the handes of their oppressers, and yet for all that they wold not hearken vnto their Judges: But wente a whorynge after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quyckly out of the waye whiche their fathers walked in obeyinge the commaundementes of the Lorde, and dyd not so.

And when the Lorde raysed them vp Judges in their dayes, he had compassion of them, and herde the lamentacion of the oppressed, and deliuered them out of the handes of their enemyes: yet for all that, as sone as ỹ Judge was ded, they tourned and dyd worse then their fathers in folowynge straunge goddes, and in serueynge them, and ceased not from their inuentions, nor from their malicious wayes. Exod. ii. b

Wherfore the Lorde was angrye with Israel and sayd: bicause this people hath transgressed my couenaunte whiche I made with their fathers, and haue not obeyed my voice, therfore henceforthe I will not caste oute one man before them of the nations which Josua lefte when he dyed, and that to proue Israel thrughe them whether they will kepe the waye of the Lorde to walke therin as their fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde left those nacyons alone, and drowe them not oute immediatly, neyther deliuered them in to the handes of Josua. Deute. vii. c. and viii. a ¶ Certayne nations are left among the Israelites to the intent to proue and assaye them. Othoniel deliuereth Israel. Ehud kylleth kyng Eglon. Samgar kylleth vi. Philistines.

CAPI. III.

THese are the nations whiche the Lorde lefte to scourge Israel: euen as many of Israel as had not knowen warres of Canaan: Onely for the learnynge of the generacion of the chyldren of Israel: which before knewe nothyng of warre, he left the fiue lordes of the Philistines, and all the Canamites, the Sidonnes, the Heuites ỹ dwelt in mounte Libanon, euen frome mounte Baal Hermon vnto Hemath. These God suffered to remayne to proue Israel by, ỹ were whether they wolde harken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded their fathers by the hande of Moses, or no. Deuter. vii. b and xx. a

And as the chyldren of Israel dwelte amonge the Canamytes, Hethytes, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuytes, and Jebusites, they toke the doughters of them to be their wyues, and gaue their owne doughters to their sonnes, and serued their goddes. And so the chyldren of Israel dyd wyckedly in the syghte of the Lorde, and forgat the Lord their God and serued Baalim and Astroth. Therfore the Lorde was angrye with Israel, and deliuered them in to the handes of Chusan Rasathaim kynge of Mesopotamia. So that the chyldren of Israel serued Chusan Rasathaim eyght yeres. Hebr. Aram Naharaim.

And then the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde stirred them vp a sauer, and saued them: one Othoniel the sonne of Kenes, and Calebs yonger brother. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon hym, and he iudged Israell, and went oute to warre. And the Lorde ꝑ solde Chusan Rasathaim kynge of Syrye in to his hand. So that his hande was myghtye ouer Chusan Rasathaim, and the lande had rest fourtye yeres. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenes ded. And then the chyldren of Israel wente to agayne, and committed wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde. And then the Lorde hardened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynste the chyldren of Israel, because they had committed wickednesse before the Lorde. And this Eglon gathered vnto hym the chyldren of Ammon and the Amalekites, and went and smote the chyldren of Israel, and conquered the cytye of palme trees. And the chyldren of Israel serued Eglon the king of the Moabites. xviij. yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lorde, and the Lorde stered them vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, a man that coulde doo nothynge handsomlye with his ryght hande.

By whome the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, and he dyd gyrde it vnder his cote vpon his ryght thyghe and caryed the present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Eglon was a verye fatte man. And when he had presented the presente, he sente the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe tourned agayne frome the goodlyes by Galgall, and sayde: I haue a secrete vnto the, o kynge: and the kynge commaunded him to holde his peace, vntyll all that stode aboute hym, were gone oute frome hym.

And Ahud came in vnto him in to a sommer chamber, where he sate alone, and sayde: I haue a message vnto the frome God. And he arose out of his seate, and Ahud put forth his lefte hande, and toke the dagger frome his ryghte thyghe, and thrust it so harde in to his belye, so that the hafte went in after the blade. And the hafte stopped in the fat, for he drewe not the dagger out of his belly, but as he stroke him, so lefte he the dagger in the wounde tyll that by the priuye partes of nature the dyrte came out. And Ahud gat him out at a posterne wore, and shut the doores of the parlour vpon him, and locked them. The kynges seruauntes came and loked, and se the doores of the parlour were locked, they sayde: A, he is a doyng of his easement in his sommer chamber. And when they had tarried tyl they were ashamed, for no man dyd the doores of the parlour open, then they toke a keye and opened them. And beholde, their Lord was fallen downe ded vn to the erth. But Ahud escaped whyle they tarryed, and was gone beyonde the quarryes, and escaped vnto Seirath.

And when he was come, he blewe a trompet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel went down with him, ꝑ he before them, and sayd vnto them: folow me, for the Lorde hathe delyuered your enemyes the Moabites in to youre handes. And they descended after hym, and stopped the freyes of Jordan frome the Moabites, and suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slewe of the Moabites ꝑ same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, all fat, and men of myghte: that there escaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdued that daye vnder the handes of Israel, and the lande had rest foure score yeres.

And after him came Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche slewe of the Philistines sixe hundred men with an oxe gode, and delyuered Israel also.

¶ Israel is committed in to the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatrye. Debora and Barak delyuer them: Sisara is kylled of Jael.

CAPI. IIII.

And the chyldren of Israel began again to do wickedly in the syght of the Lord when Ahud was ded. And the Lorde ꝑ solde them in to the handes of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that raygned in Hasor, whose Capitayne of warre was Sisara, whiche dwelte in Harosech of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde, for he had nyne hundred charettes of yron, he oppressed the chyldren of Israell with power twentye yeres.

And Debora a Prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, and dwelte vnder the palme tree of Debora, betwene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, out of Kedes Nephthalim and sayd vnto him.

The Lorde God of Israel commaundeth the that thou goo and leade an hoofte vnto mounte Thabor, and take with the ten thousande men, of the chyldren of Nephthalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyl bring vnto the at the ryuer of Kison, Sisara the Capitayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charettes and his people, and wyll delyuer them in to thyne handes. And Barak sayd vnto her, yf thou wylt go with me, I wyll go: but and yf thou wylt not go with me, then I wyll not go. And she answered, I wyll surely goo with the, but then the prayse shall not be thyne in ꝑ waye which thou goest, for the Lorde shal delyuer Sisara in to the handes of a woman. And she arose and went with Barak to Kedes, and Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim, wt vp with ten thousande men: ꝑ Debora wente with him.

But Haber the Kenyte went oute of kynde from the other Kenites his brethren, the chyldren of ꝑ Hobab who was father to Moses wyfe, and pitched his tent vntyl he was come to the oke of Zaanaim, by Kedes.

And then it was shewed vnto Sisara how that that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mounte Thabor. And Sisara called for all his charettes, euen. ix. hundred charettes of yron, and all for the people that he had from Haroseth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kison. Then said Debora vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath delyuered Sisara in to thyne handes, for the Lord is gone oute before the. And so Barak wente downe from mounte Thabor, and ten thousande men after him.

But the Lorde trouncled Sisara and all his charettes, and all his hoste with the edge of the swerde before Barak. And Sisara lyghted downe of his charet, and fledde a fote. But Barak followed after the charettes, and after the hoste, euen vnto Haroseth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man lefte. How be it Sisara fledde a fote to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite, for there was peace betwene Jabin the kynge of Hasor, and the housholde of Haber the Kenyte.

And Jael wente oute agaynste Sisara and sayde vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, tourne in to me, and feare not. And he turned in to her in to her tent: & she couered him with a mantel. And he sayd vnto her: gyue me a lytell water to drynke, for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue him drynke and couered him. And he sayd vnto her, Stande in the dore of thy tent, and yf any mā come and aske the, or enquyre of the whether there be any man here, saye naye.

Then Jael Haberes wyfe tooke a nayle of the tent, and an hammer in her hande, & went softlye vnto him, and smote the nayle with the hammer thorowe the temples of his heed in to the grounde, and as he slombered beyng wery, he dyed.

And beholde as Barak followed after Sisara, Jael came oute agaynste hym, and sayde vnto hym: Come, and I wyll shewe the the man whome thou seekest. And when he came in to her tent: beholde Sisara laye dead, and the nayle thorowe his temples. And so God broughte Jaben the kynge of Canaan in to subiection that daye before the children of Israel. And the hande of the children of Israel prospered, and was soze vpon Jaben the kynge of Canaan, vntyll they hadde broughte him to nought.

¶ The longe and thankes gyuynge of Debora and Barak, after the victorye.

CAPI. V.

THen Debora & Barak ſ sonne of Abinoam, sang the same daye saying: Bycause he hathe auenged the vengeaunce wonne to Israel, the people offering them selues wyllyngly: prayse ye the Lorde. Heare kynges, & harken Lordes, I am she, I am she that wyll synge, and gyue prayse vnto the Lorde God of Israel.

Lorde, when thou departedst out of Seir, & camest thorowe the countreys of Edom, ſ erth trembled, and the earthe rayned, and the cloudes dropped water: the mountaynes melted before the Lorde, euen mounte Sinai before the Lorde God of Israel. Deuter. xxxiij. Psalm. lxviij.

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath, and in the dayes of Jael, the hye wayes were vnoccupied, and they that walked by pathes, went by wayes that set compasses about. The champions of Israel were discouraged & fayne hearted, vntyll I Debora arose, vntyll I arose a mother in Israel. Iudi. iij. Iudi. viij.

God chose new facions of warre, for when they had warre at their gates, there was not seene amonge fourtye thousande, eyther shelde or spere in Israel. Myne hert loueth the mainteners of the lawe in Israel, ye that willingly haue put youre selues in aduenture, blesse ye the Lorde, ye that ryde on goodly asses, and dwell before Middin. And ye ſ walke by the wayes, make dules. Where as the charettes were broken a peces, where the hoste of oure aduersaries was choked, there shall they tell of the iustice of the Lorde, & how gracious was the stronge God of Israel: then the people of the Lorde went downe vnto the gates, & wan the maistrye.

Vp vp Debora, vp vp and synge a songe, vp Barak and take thy praye, thou sonne of Abinoam. Then they that had escaped, vnder Israel raigned ouer the prouesll of the people. The Lorde fought amonges the stronge.

Ephraim was the fyrst that destroyed Amaleh. And after hym Ben Jamin, amonge the people.

Of Machir came lerned men in the lawe, and of Zabulon that well couthe conueye an hoste to warre. Iudi. v.

The Lordes of Issahar were with Debora. And as Barak, euen so was Issahar sente in to the valeye a fote, and put his life in aduenture. But in the diuisions of Ruben were great imaginacions of herte.

Wherfore abodest thou amonge the shepe foldes, to heare the bleatynges of the flockes. In the diuysions of Ruben greate were the ymaginacions of herte. Galaad abode on the other syde Jordā, and tarryed Dan in shyppes. And Aser sate in the hauens of the see, and abode styll in his owne coostes. But Zabulon is a people that put their lyues in iuopardye of deathe, and Nephthalim in lyke maner, euen vnto the toppe of the feldes. Kynges came and fought. Then fought the kynge of Canaan at Thanach, vpon the water of Magetw. But the syluer that they coueted, they carryed not awaye.

From heuen came battayle: for the sterres beyng in their course, fought agaynst Sisara. The ryuer of Kison caught them awaye: that auncient ryuer, the ryuer Kison.

My soule, treade thou the myghtye vnder foote. Then their horses stombled as they fledde, that their mighty courlers lefte praunsynge.

Curse ye Meros, sayd ſ aungell of the Lorde curse, curse ſ inhabitours therof, bycause they came not forthe to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde amonge the myghty.

Blessed be Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenyte, abone of her women: abour of her wome dissio be she in the tente.

Iudic. vi.c. She asked water, but she gaue him mylke, and brought butter in a goodly dysshe. She caught a nayle in her lefte hande, and a wozkynge hammer in her ryghte, and nayled Sisara and wounded his herd, and perced and went thorowe his temples. Betweene her fete he bowed him selfe, fell downe and laye styll: Betweene her fete he sprauled and laye deed lyke a wretche.

Thorow a wyndow loked Sisaras mother and howled out of her chambre, why abideth his charet so longe that it commeth not, why tary the wheles of his waggans? The wyseste of his wiues answered her ye a, and she answered her owne wordes her selfe, sayinge they haue founde, and diuyde the spoyle. A mayde, ye two maydes for a pece / a spoyle of diuers coloures for Sisara, a spoyle of diuers coloures with broudered wozkes, diuers coloured, broudered wozkes for the neche for a prayse. So perysshe all thyne ennemyes Lozde / but they that loue the, let them be as the sonne ryssynge in his myght.

And the lande had rest fourtye yeres.

¶ Israel is oppressed of the Madianites, because he returned agayne into Idolatrye. Gedeon is sent of God to helpe them deliuerer. The aulter of Baal is ouerthrowen.

CAPL. VI.

1 AND the chyldren of Israel committed wyckednes in the syghte of the Lozde. And the Lozde deliuered theym in to the handes of the Madianites seuen yeres.

And when the hande of the Madianites was sore vpon Israel, the chyldren of Israel made them dennes in the mountaynes, and caues, and stronge holdes. For when Israell had sowen, the came the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Easte countreye vpon them, and pitched their tentes agaynste them, and destroyed the encrease of the erth euen vn to Azah, and left no sustinaunce in Israel, neyther shepe, oxe, or asse/for they came with their cattell and housholdes, euen as grashoppers in multitude/so that both they and also their camels were without nombre, and wasted all that euer they layde handes on. And they entred the lande to destroy it. And so was Israel exceedyngly impouerished by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Lozde. And when the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lozde because of 2 the Madianites, the Lozde sent a prophet vnto them, and sayd vnto them. Thus sayeth the Lozde God of Israel, I set you from Egypte and brought you out of the house of bondage, and I ryd you out of the hand of the Egyptias, and out of the handes of all that oppressed you, and cast them out before you, & gaue you their landes. And I sayd vnto you, I am the Lozde your God, and therefore feare not the Goddes
10 Deut. vii. Iosue. xxiii. of the Emorites in whose land you dwell. But you wolde not obeye my voyce. And the aungell of the Lozde came and sate vnder an oke in Ophrah that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Ezrites. And his sonne Gedeon threshed out whete out of the rates in a presse, for to flee from the Madianites. And the aungell of the Lozde appeared vnto him, and sayde: the Lozde is with the, thou man of myght. And Gedeon answered him: Oh my Lozde, if the Lozde be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: ye and where be his myracles which our fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: the Lozde brought vs out of Egypt. But now the Lozde hathe forsaken vs, and deliuered vs in to the handes of the Madianites. And the Lozde loked vpon him, and sayd: Go hence in this thy myght, and deliuer Israel out of the handes of the Madianites: Behold, I haue sent the. And he answered him. Oh Lozde, wherwith shalde I saue Israel? Behold my kynred is the poorest in Manasses, and I am the least in my fathers house. But then the Lozde sayde vnto him: I wyl be with the/ and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he answered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, then shewe me a signe, that thou art the Lozde that talketh with me. Departe not hence, vntyll I come agayne vn to the, and bringe myne offeryng, and haue set it before the.

And he sayd, I wyll tarye vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon went and made redy a kydde, and swete cakes of an Epha of flour, & put the flesshe in a basket, and the brothe in a pot, and brought it out vnto him vnder ye oke and presented it. And the aungell of God sayd Iudic. xiii.
vnto him: take the flesh and the swete cakes and put them vpon this rocke, and powre out the brothe. And he dyd so. Then the aungel of the Lozde put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hande, and touched the flesshe and the cakes. And there arose vp fyre out of the Genes. xv. Leuit. ix.
rocke and consumed the flesshe and the cakes, and the aungell of the Lozde vanyshed out of his syght. And whe Gedeon perceyued that it was an aungell, he sayd: alas my Lozde almighty, that I haue sene an aungell of the Genes. xxxii. Iudic. xiii.
Lozde face to face. And the Lozde sayde vnto him, peax be with the, and feare not/ for thou 22 shalte not dye. Then Gedeon made an aulter there vnto the Lozde, and called it ✠ Jehouah, Salom, which vnto this day is yet in Ophrah ✠ Thou Lord of peace.
that pertayneth vnto the father of the Ezrites. And the same nyght the Lozde sayd vnto him, take an ox of thy fathers, and an other of seuen yeres olde, and destroye the aulter of Baal that belongeth vnto thy father, and cut downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Lozde thy God vpon the top of this rocke and furnisshe it. And take the seconde ox and offre burnte sacrifice with the wodde of the groue whiche thou shalte haue cut downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his seruauntes, & dyd as the Lozde bad him. But 27 because he durste not do it by daye, for feare of his fathers housholde, and of the men of the citye, he dyd it by nyght.

When the men of the citye were vp erly in the morninge: Behold, the aulter of Baal 28 was broken, and the groue that stode about it cut it cut downe. And the seconde ore offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they sayd one to an other: Who hathe done this thing, and they enquyred and asked for him that shoulde haue wone it? And it was tolde them that Gedeon the sonne of Joas hadde doone it. Then the men of the cite sayde vnto Joas, bringe oute thy sonne that he maye dye, bycause he hath dyoken the aulter of Baal, and cut downe the groue that was aboute it. And Joas sayde vnto all that stode by him: will ye fight for Baal, or will ye be his auengers? he that stryuethe for him, shall dye afore to morowe. If he be a God let him reuenge his quarel vpon him that cast downe his aulter. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the same time saying: let Baal reuengye him, bycause he hath dyoken downe his aulter.

G When all the Madianites, the Amalechites and they of the East were gathered togyther, and had gone and pitched in the valeye of Jezrael, the spirite of the Lorde entred in to Gedeon. And he blewe a trompet and called togyther the house of Abiezer to folowe him, and sent messengers thorow out al Manasses, and called them vp to folow him also. And he sent other messengers vnto Aser, Zabulon & Nepthalim, whiche came also to mete him.

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: yf thou wilt saue Jsrael by my handes, as thou hast sayde. Beholde, I wyll put a fleece of wolle in the threshyngye place. And yf the dewe be on the fleece onely, and drye vpon all the earth beside: then I shal be sure that thou wylt saue Jsrael by my handes, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. And he rose vp erly on the morowe, and he pressed the fleece togither, & wrong the dewe therout, and filled a dysshe full of water. And Gedeon sayd vnto God, be not angry with me that I speake ones more, let me proue onely ones agayne with the fleece. Let it be drye onely vpon the fleece, and dew vpon al the ground aboute. And God dyd so that same nyght: so that it was drye vpon the fleece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, dewe.

¶ The soudyars that shulde goo with Gedeon to battayle are proued by takinge them vp water. Gedeon with thre hundred men ouercommeth the Madianites. Oreb and Zeb are slayne.

CAPI. VII.

THen Jerobaal, otherwise called Gedeon rose erlye, and all the people that were with him & pitched beside the wel of Harad, so that the hoste of the Madianites were in a valey on the north syde of the hyll Hamored. And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon, the people that are with the, are to manye for me to gyue the Madianites in to their handes, lest Jsrael make their vaunt to my dishonour, and say: our owne hande hath saued vs. Now therfore make a proclamacion in the eares of the people, and saye: yf anye man dreade or be afeerde, let him returne, and get him sone from mounte Galaad / and there departed and returned of the people .xxij. thousande, and there abode ten thousande.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon the people are yet to many, bringe them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto the there. And of whome I saye vnto the, this shall goo with the, the same shall goo with the. And who so euer I saye vnto the, this shal not go with the / the same shall not goo. And when he hadde broughte downe the people vnto the water. The Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: as manye as lappe the water with their tonges, as dogges do, them put by them selues / and so do them that kneele downe vpon their knees to drynke. And the nombre of them that put their handes to their mouthes and lapped, were thre hundred men / and all the remnaunt of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to drynke water. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon, with the thre hundred men that lapped water wyl I saue you, and deliuer the Madianites in to thyne hande / and all the other people shall goo euery man to his owne home.

And they take victayles with them for the folke, and their trompettes / and he sente all the reste of Jsrael, euery man vnto his tente, and kept the thre hundred with him / and the hoste of Madian was benethe him in a valey. And the same nyght the Lorde sayd vnto him vp, and goo downe vnto the hoste, for I haue deliuered it in to thyne handes. But & yf thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe vnto the hoste, and Pharah thy lad, and herke what they saye, and so shall thyne handes be stronge, and then thou shalte safely go downe vnto the hoste.

Then he went downe with Pharah his lad euen hard vnto the watche me of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalechites, and all they of the East, laye alonge in the valeye lyke vnto grashoppers in multitude, and their camels were without nombre, euen as the sande by the see syde. And when Gedeon was come. Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and sayd on this maner. Beholde I dreamed a dreame, and me thoughte that an barlyshake lofe of barleye breed tombled in to the host of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it that it fel, and ouerturned it, that the tent lay alonge. And his felowe answered and sayde, this is nothing els saue the swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Jsrael, in to whose hande the Lorde hathe deliuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedeon herde the tellynge of the dreame, and the meanynge therof, he bowed him selfe to the erthe, and returned vnto the hoste of Jsrael, and sayde: vp, for the Lorde hathe deliuered in to youre handes the hoste of the Madianites. And he deuyded the thre hundred men in to thre companyes, and gaue euerye man a trompet in his hande, with an emptye pytcher, and lampes therin, and sayde vnto them: loke on me, and doo lykewyse / and beholde, when I come to the syde of the hoste / euen as I doo, so doo you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes also on euerye syde the hoste and saye: here be the Lorde and Gedeon.

And so Gedeon and the thre hundred men that were with him, came vnto the syde of the hoste in the begynnyng of the myddell watche and raysed vp the watche men. And they blew with their trompettes, and brake the pitchers that were in their handes. And all three companyes blewe with trompettes and brake the pytchers, and held the lampes in their lefte handes, and the trompettes in their ryght, to blowe with all. And they cryed, the swerde of the Lorde and of Gedeon. And they stode styll euerye man in his place rounde about the hoste: and all the hoste ranne and cryed and fledde.

And as the thre hundred blewe with trompettes, the Lorde sent his swerde thorow all the hoste, so that euerye one slewe other. And the hoste fled, vntyll they came to Bethsittah, to Zererath, and to the edge of Abelmeholah besyde Tabath. And the men of Israel gathered togyther of the tribe of Nephthalim, of Aser, and of all Manasses, and followed after the Madianites. For Gedeon had sent messengers thorowe out all mount Ephraim, sayeng: come downe a-gaynst the Madianites, and take from them the waters bothe of Bethbarath and also of Jordan.

Then all the men of Ephraim gathered togyther, and came downe and toke the waters bothe of Bethbarath, and also of Jordan. And they toke two capitaynes of the Madianites, Horeb, and Zeb, and slewe Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and Zeb at the presse Zeb, and followed after Madian, and brought the heades of Oreb and Zeb to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

¶ Ephraim maketh insurrection agaynst Gedeon, but is sone pacyfyed. The inhabiters of Soceth refuseth gyue Gedeon and his armye breed. The towne Phanuel is destroyed. Gedeon is constitute ruler ouer the Israelites. He hathe thre score and ten sonnes. He dyeth.

CAPI. VIII.

AND the men of Ephraim sayd vnto him. Why hast thou serued vs thus? that thou calledst vs not when thou wentest to fight with the Madianites? and they chode with him a good, and were welnygh at daggers drawyng. And he said vnto them: What dede haue I doone lyke vnto you? are not the cluster of Ephraim better then the wyne harueste of Abiezer? God hathe deliuered in to your handes the Lordes of Madian, Oreb, & Zeb. And what was I able to doo lyke as you haue doone? And then their spirites were pacified, and they were content with him, whe he had sayd that. And then Gedeon came to Jordan and passed ouer bothe he and the thre hundred men that were with hym very fayne and yet folowed the chace.

And he sayd vnto the men of Soceth: giue I praye you cakes of breede vnto the people that folowe me: for they be faynty, that I may followe after Zebah and Zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Soceth sayd, are the handes of Zebah and Zalmona now in thyne handes that we shulde gyue breed vnto thy companye? And Gedeon sayde, therfore when the Lorde hath deliuered Zebah and Zalmona in to myne handes, I will teare the fleshe of you with the thornes of the wyldernesse and with briers. And he went thence to Phanuel, and spake vnto them lykewise. And the men of Phanuel answered, as dyd the men of Soceth. And he sayde also vnto the men of Phanuel, when I come agayne in peace I will breake down this towre. Zebah and Zalmona were in Karkar, and their hooستes with them, vpon a fyftene thousande, whiche were all that were lefte of all the hoostes of them of the East. And they that were slayne, were a hundred and twentye thousande men that drewe swerde.

And Gedeon went thorow them that dwell in tabernacles on the East syde of Nobah and Jebahah, and smote the hoste: for the had no feare. Zebah and Zalmona fled. But he followed after them, and toke the two kynges of the Madianites, Zebah and Zalmona, and discomforted all the hoste.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas returned fro the battayle, the sonne beynge yet vp, and caught a lad of the men of Soceth, and enquyred of him the names of the chefe lordes and elders of Soceth. And he wrote the lordes and elders of Soceth, thre score and seuentene men. Then he came vnto the men of Soceth and sayde: Beholde Zebah and Zalmona, with whiche he caste me in the fethe, sayeng: are the handes of Zebah, and Zalmona alreadye in thyne hande, that we shulde gyue breed vnto thy fayntye men? And he toke the elders of the cyte, and thornes of the wyldernesse and briers, and all to rent them therwith. And he brake downe the towre of Phanuel, and slewe the men of the cyte.

And then sayd vnto Zebah and Zalmona, what manor men were they which ye slewe at Thabor? & they answered: they were moche lyke the in fauoure, and one of them ranne as he were a kynges sonne. And he sayde: They were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren, and as truly as the Lorde lyueth, yf ye had saued their lyues, I wolde not slee you. And he sayd vnto Jether his eldest sonne, vp and slee them, but the ladde drewe not his swerde, for he feared, because he was yet ponge. Then Zebah and Zalmona sayd. Ryse thou, and fall vpon vs, for as the man is, so is his strengthe. and Gedeon arose and slewe them: & he toke awaye the trappery and chaynes that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Gedeon. Raygne ouer vs, bothe thou, thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne, for thou hast deliuered vs oute of the handes of the Madianites. And Gedeon sayde vnto them, I will not raygne ouer you, neyther shall my chyldren raygne ouer you, but the Lorde shall raigne ouer you.

Neuertheles Gedeon sayde vnto them, I wolde desire a certayne request of you, euen that that you wolde gyue me euery mā the earrynges of his praye. For they had golden earringes, because they were Ismaelites. And they sayde we will wt. And they spred a mantell and dyd cast there into euery man the earrynges of his praye. And the weyght of the golden earrynges was a thousand and seuen hundred syclers of golde, beside broches, ouches and garmentes of scarlet that were of ye kynges of Madian, and beside the chaynes, that were about their camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, and put it in his cytte Ephrah. And all Israel went a hoorynge after him there, which thinge was the ruyne of Gedeons house. Thus were the Madianites brought lowe before the children of Israell, so that they lyft vp their heddes no more. And the countrey was in quyetnesse fourty yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

G And Jerobaal the sonne of Joas went and dwelte in his owne house. And Gedeon had. lxx. sonnes of his body begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubyne that dwelt in Sichē bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, when he was of a good age, & was buryed in the burial of Joas his father, euen in Ephrah that pertayned vnto the father of the Ezrites.

But as sone as Gedeon was dead, ye children of Israell turned awaye and went a hoorynge after Baal, and made Baal a promyse that he shulde be their God, and thought not on the Lorde their God which had deliuered them out of the handes of all their enemyes on euery syde. Neyther shewed they mercy on the house of Jerobaal, otherwyse called Gedeon, accordynge to all the goodnesse whiche he shewed them.

¶ Abimelech is ordeyned a kynge after he had kylled his xxiiii. brethren. He him selfe was after killed of a woman when he besieged Thebes. The parables of Joatham concernynge his brother Abimelech.

CAPI. IX.

A FOr Abimelech the sonne of Jerobaal went to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethren, & communed with them and with al the hole kynred both of his fathers syde and mothers side, sayenge: saye I praye you, in the eares of all the enhabitoures of Sichem: whether is better for you that all the sonnes of Jerobaal whiche are. lxx. personnes raygne ouer you, eyther that one raygne ouer you. And remember therto, that I am your bones & your flesshe. And his mothers brethren rehersed of him in the audience of all the Cytezens of Sichem, all these wordes, and moued their hertes to folowe Abimelech, in that they sayde how he was their brother. And they gaue him lxx. peces of syluer out of the temple of Baal Berith, with which Abimelech hyred lewde & lyght personnes whiche went with him. And they went vnto his fathers house at Ephrah and slewe all his brethren, the sonnes of Jerobaal, euen. lxx. personnes vpon one stone.

Notwithstandinge yet Joatham the yongest sonne of Jerobaal escaped, for he hyd him selfe. And all the cytezens of Sichem gathered togither with all the house of Mello, & went and made Abimelech kynge * at a certen oke that was by Sichem. * Some in the playne.

And when it was tolde Joatham, he went and stode in the toppe of mount Garizim, and lyfte vp his voyce and called, and sayde vnto them: Herken vnto me you cytezens of Sichem, that God maye herken vnto you. The trees went to annoynt a kynge ouer them, & sayde vnto the olyue tree, raygne ouer vs. But the olyue tree sayde vnto them: Wolde I leaue my fatnesse whiche both God and man prayseth in me, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the figge tree, come thou and be kynge ouer vs. And the figge tree answered them, Wolde I forsake my swetnes and my good frute, & shulde go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayd the trees vnto the vyne, come thou & be kynge ouer vs. And the vyne answered, Wolde I leaue my wyne that cheereth both God & man and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde all the trees vnto the * thorne bushe: come thou and raygne ouer vs. And the thorn bushe sayde vnto the trees: yf it be true that ye will annoynt me kynge ouer you, the come and rest vnder my shawdwe, and yf ye wyl not ye shall se that a fyre shall came out of the thorne bushe and waste the Cyper trees of Libanon. * In some copies it is called Gosil.

And euen so now, yf ye haue wrought truly and vncorruptlye to make Abimelech kynge. And yf ye haue dealt well with Jerobaal and his house, and haue wrought vnto him accordinge to the deseruynge of his handes, for as moche as my father fought for you, and aduentured his lyfe, And rydd you out of the handes of the Madianites. And ye are risen vp against my fathers house this daye. And haue slayne his children, euen. lxx. personnes * with one stone and haue made Abimelech the sonne of his mayde seruaunt kynge ouer the cytezens of Sichem, because he is youre brother, yf then ye haue dealt dewe and truely with Jerobaal & with his house this daye: then reioyse ye in Abimelech, and let him also reioyse in you. But yf you haue not dealt truly, then I praye God a fyre maye come out of Abimelech and consume the lordes of Sichem and the house of Mello. And that there come a fyre oute of the cytezens of Sichem, and out of the house of Mello and consume Abimelech. And Joatham when he had sayde thus, ran away and fled and wente to Beer and dwelte there, for feare of Abimelech his brother. When Abimelech had raygned thre yere, God sent a spirituall malyce betwene Abimelech and the cytezens of Sichem. And the cytezens of Sichē began to dele Abimelech, and wylled that the wickednes wrought to the. lxx. sonnes of Jerobaal myght come on him, and layde the bloude of them vnto Abimelech their brother which slewe them, and vnto the other cytezens of Sichem which ayded him in the reioyse of his brethren. And the cytezens of Sichem * Some in the playne.

them set men to laye awayte for him in the toppe of the mountaynes and whiles they awayted his commynge they robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

And Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren went and gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem put their confidence in him. And they went oute in to the felde and gathered in their grapes and treade them, and made merye: and went in to the house of their God, and dyd eat and drynke and cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Obed sayd: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichem? y we shulde serue him, is he not the sonne of Jerobaal? and Zebul is his officer? serue suche as came of Hemor the father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shulde serue hym? wolde God this people were under my hande then I wolde put downe Abimelech. And one sayde vnto Abimelech, make thyne hoste greater and goo out. And when Zebul the ruler of the cytie herde the wordes of Gaal the son of Obed, he was wroth and sent messengers vnto Abimelech priuelye, sayenge: Beholde Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde they set the cytie against the. Now therfore aryse by nyght both thou and all the people that is with the and lye in wayte in the felde. And ryse early in the mornynge as sone as the sonne is vp, & come vpon the cytie. And when he and the people that is with him come forth against the, do to him what thyne handes shalbe able. And Abimelech rose vp, and all the people with him, by nyght. And they layde awayte to the cytie in foure companyes. And Gaal the son of Obed went out and stode in the entrye of the gate of the cytie. And Abimelech rose vp, and the folke that were with him, frome lyenge awayte. Now when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to Zebul: Beholde, there come people wynde fromthe toppe of the mountaynes. And Zebul sayde vnto him: the shawe of the hylles seme men vnto the, and so thou arte deceyued. And Gaal answered agayn and sayd: Se, there come folcke downe by the myddle of the lande and an other companye come a longe by the Witchoke. Then sayde Zebul vnto him: Where is nowe thy mouthe that sayde, what felow is Abimelech that we shulde serue him? These are the people that thou so despysedest. Go out now and fight with them. And Gaal went forthe before the citezens of Sichem, and fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him so that he fled before him, and many were ouerthrowen and slayne, euen vntyll they came vnto the entrynge of the gate. And then Abimelech wente and dwelte at Arumah. And then Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren, and wolde not suffre them to dwell in Sichem.

And on the morowe the people went forth in to the felde. And it was tolde Abimelech. And he toke his people & diuyded them into three companies, and laye awayte in the felde. And when he sawe that the people were come out of the cytie, he rose vpon them and layde vpon them.

And Abimelech & the companyes that were with him, ran and stode in the entringe of the gate of the cytie. And the two other companyes ran vpon all the people that were in the felde and slue them. And then Abimelech fought against the cytie all that daye, & toke it, and slewe the people that was therin, and destroyed the cytie & sowed salt in the place. And when all the men of the towre of Sichem herde that, they entered in to a stronge holde of the house of their God Baal Berith, when they made a conuenaunt to him and the place had Berythes name and was strongly knitch.

And when it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of the towre of Sichem, were gathered together, he gat him to mount Zelmon, bothe he and all that were with him, & toke axes with him and cut downe an arme of a tree, and toke it vp, & put it on his shoulder, and sayde vnto the folche that were with him, what so euer ye se me do: spede your selues and do lykewyse. And all the people cut downe also euery man a bough, and folowed Abimelech, and put them into the holde, and set the holde a fyre vpon them: so that all the men of the towre of Sichem were slayne, about a thousand personnes what of men and women.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez and besieged it, and toke it. But there was a stroug towre in the myddes of the cytie, and thither ran all the men and women, and all the citezens of the cytie, and shut it to them, and got them vpon the toppe of the towre, and stode vpon the battelmentes. Then came Abimelech vnto the towre and fought againste it, & went harde vnto the entringe of the gate, to set it on fire. But a woman cast a pece of a mil stone vpō his heed and al to brake his brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the younge man that bare his harneys, and sayd vnto him: drawe thy swerde and slē me, that men saye not of me, a woman slewe him. And his lad thrust him thorow and he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe that Abimelech was dead, they departed, euery man vnto his owne house. And thus all the wyckednesse of Abimelech which he dyd vnto his father, in slayenge his. lxx. brethren, & therto all the wyckednes of the men of Sichem, god dyd brynge vpon their heedes: And vpon them came the curse of Joathan the sonne of Jerobaal.

¶ Thola and Jair Judges of Israel. Israel sinneth and after cryeth on God for remission.

CAPI. X.

After Abimelech, arose to defende Israel one Thola, the sonne of Phuah, the sonne of Dodo, a man of Issahar, whiche dwelt in Samir, in mount Ephraim, who iudged Israel. xxiij. yere, and then dyed and was buryed in Samir. And after him arose Jair a Galaadite, who iudged Israell. xxij. yere yere. And he had thirtye sonnes that ✠ rode on thirtye Asse colers, and hadde thirtye cities for thē, which are called the townes of Iaur vnto this daye, and are in the lande of Galaad. And Iaur dyed, & was buryed in Kamon.

✠ And the childzen of Israel wroughte wickednesse yet agayne, in the syght of the Lorde and serued Baalim and Astaroth, and the goddes of Syria, and the goddes of Sidon, the goddes of Moab, the goddes of the childzen of Ammō, and the goddes of the Philistines, & forsoke the Lord and serued him not, wherefore the Lorde was wroth with Israel, and gaue them vp into the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the childzen of Ammon: whiche pylled and oppressed the childzen of Israell in those dayes. xviii. yere, all that were on thother syde Iordan in the land of the Amorites in Galaad. Moreouer the childzen of Ammon went ouer Iordan to fyghte against Iuda, Ben Iamin, and the house of Ephraim: so that Israel was sore encombred. Then the childzen of Israell, cryed vnto the Lorde, sayenge: We haue synned against the: for we haue forsaken our owne God, & haue serued Baalim. And the Lorde sayde vnto the childzen of Israel: dyd not the Egyptias, the Amorites, the childzen of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, and the Maonites, oppresse you? And ye cryed to me, and I deliuered you forth of their handes And this notwithstandinge ye haue forsaken me, and serue straunge goddes, wherefore I will helpe you no more. But go and crye vnto the goddes which ye haue chosen, and let them saue you in the tyme of your affliction. But the childzen of Israel sayde vnto the Lord we haue synned: w thou vnto vs whatsoeuer pleaseth the, and deliuer vs onely at this tyme. And they put awaye the straunge goddes fro them, and serued the Lorde. And he was sorowfull for the mysery of Israel.

Then the childzen of Ammon assembled & pytched in Galaad. And the childzen of Israel gathered them together and pytched in Maspha. And the company of the Lordes of Galaad sayde one to an other, who so euer will begynne the battel against the childzen of Ammon, shalbe hed ouer all the inhabitaunts of Galaad.

¶ Iephthah the sonne of a harlot deliuereth Israel from the Ammonites after they asked forgyuenes, of the powre of Iephthah.

CAPL. XI.

AND there was one Iephthah a Galaadite, a stronge man, who was the son of an harlot: Now he it Galaad begat Iephthah. But Galaades wyfe bare him sonnes, which wha they were come to age, thrust out Iephthah, & sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not enherete in our fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straunge woman. Then Iephthah fled frome his brethren and dwelt in the lande of Tob. And vile people and robbars assembled them selues to Iephthah, and went out with him. But it chaunced in processe of tyme, that the childzē of Ammon made warre against Israel, then the elders of Galaad wēt and fet Iephthah out of the lande of Tob, & sayde vnto him: come and be our capitayne, & let vs fight with the childzen of Ammon. And Iephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad. Dyd not ye hate me, and chasen me oute of my fathers house? howe happeneth it then that you come vnto me now in tyme of youre tribulacion? And the elders of Galaad answered Iephthah. Therfore we turne agayne to the now, that thou go with vs, and fyghte against the childzen of Ammon, and be our hed ouer all the enhabitaunces of Galaad. And Iephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad: If ye bringe me home agayne, to fyght with the childzen of Ammon, then yf the Lord deliuer them before me, I shalbe your hed. And the elders of Galaad sayde to Iephthah, the Lorde that heareth these wordes be witnesse betwene vs, yf we w not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Iephthah went with the elders of Galaad. And the people made him hed and ruler ouer them. And Iephthah rehersed all his wordes before the Lorde, in Maspha.

Then Iephthah sent messengers vnto the kynge of the childzen of Ammon, sayenge: What aylech the with me, that thou comest vpon me to fyght against thy lande? And the kynge of the childzen of Ammon answered the messengers of Iephthah, because Israel toke awaye my lande, when they came forthe of Egypte: euen frome Arnon vnto Jaboc, & frome thence vnto Iordan: Now therfore restore these landes agayne by fayre meanes. And Iephthah sent messengers agayne vnto the childzen of Ammon, and sayde vnto hym: thus sayth Iephthah. Israel toke not awaye the lande of Moab, nor the lande of the childzen of Ammon. But when Israel came forth of Egypte, they walked thorow the wyldernesse, euen vnto the red see, and came to Cades, and sent messengers vnto the kynge of Edom, sayenge: let vs (we praye the) go thorow thy lande. But the kynge of Edom wold not assent therto. And in lyke maner they sent vnto the kynge of Moab, but he wold not consent. And so Israell abode styll in Cades. And then they went a longe thorow the wyldernesse, and compased the lande of Edom, & the lande of Moab, and came a longe by the East syde of the lande of Moab, and pytched their tentes on thother syde the ryuer of Arnon, and came not within the coastes of the Moabites: for Arnon was their furthest border. And then Israel sent messengers vnto the kynge of the Amorites, and kyng of Hesbon, and sayd vnto him: Let vs haue passage thorow thy lande vnto our countreye. But Sehon trusted not Israel, to go thorowe his costes: but gathered all his people together & pytched in Jasan, and fought with Israel. But the Lorde God of Israel deliuered Sehon and all his folke into the handes of Israel. And so Israel smote them, and conquered all the lande of the Amorites, the inhabi-

taūtes of the sayde contrey. And they conquered all the coostes of the Amorites, frome Arnō vnto Jabok, & fro the wyldernes vnto Jordā. So now forasmoche as the Lorde God of Israel hath caste out the Amorites before his people, shuldest thou entoye the lande? Naye, but what people Camos thy God dispatch out, that lande possesse thou. But whatsoeuer nations the Lorde oure God chaseth oute, ꝑ lande oughte we to entoye. And therto, arte thou better then Balack the sonne of Zephor kynge of Moabor? cauſt thou shewe vs, that he dyd stryue with Israel, or fyghte agaynste them? all the whyle Israel dwelt in Hesbon and her townes, and in Aroer and her townes and in all the cityes that be a longe by the coostes of Arnon three hundred yeres? why dyddest thou not recouer them in al that space? wherfore I haue not offended against the, but thou wolt me wronge, to warre vpon me. The Lorde therfore be iudge this daye, betweene the children of Israell, and the children of Ammon. Neuertheles the kynge of ꝑ children of Ammon hatkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah which he sent him.

Then the spirite of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer Galaad & Manasses, and came to Maspha, that lyeth in Galaad, and frome thence vnto the children of Ammon. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Yf thou shalt deliuer the children of Ammon into my handes, then that thynge that commeth out of the dores of my house against me, whē I come home in peace, frome the children of Ammon, shalbe the Lordes, and I will offer it vp for a burnt offrynge. And so Jephthah went vnto the children of Ammon to fight with them. And the Lorde deliuered them into his handes. And he smoote them frome Aroer vntil Menith, twenty cytes. And so forthe to the playne of the vynyardes, and made an exceadinge great slaughter. And thus the children of Ammon were brought vnder, before the children of Israell.

Then Jephthah came to Maspha vnto his house. And beholde his doughter came out against him, with tymbrels and daunses, whiche was his onely childe: so that beside her, he had neyther sonne nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes & sayde: Alas my doughter, thou hast made me stoupe and art one of them that vexe me: for I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, and can not go backe. And she sayde vnto him: my father, yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto ꝑ Lord, then do with me accordynge to that proceded out of thy mouth, for as moche as the Lorde hath auenged the of thyne ennemyes ꝑ children of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father, do this moche for me: let me alone for the space of two monethes, that I maye goo downe to the mountaynes, and bewayle my virginite with my felowes. And he sayd: go, and so she sent her awaye for two monethes. And she went with her companyons and lamented her maydenhed vpō the mountaynes. And after the twoo monethes, she turned a-gayne vnto her father, which dyd vnto her accordyng to his vow which he had vowed, & so she knewe no man. And it became a custome in Israel yere by yere, that the doughters of Israell shuld goo, and lamente the doughter of Jephthah, the Galaadyte, foure dayes in a yere.

¶ The battayle of Jephthah against Ephraim. After the death of Jephthah succedeth Elon. After Elon Abdon.

CAPI. XII.

And the men of Ephraim made an insurrection, and went Northwarde, & sayd vnto Jephthah: Wherfore wentest thou to fight with the children of Ammon, & dyddest not call vs to goo with the? we will therfore burne thyn house vpon the, with fire. And Jephthah sayde vnto them: I and my people were at great stryfe with the children of Ammon. And I called you to haue ayded me, but ye wolde not come. And when I sawe that ye deliuered me not, I put my lyfe in my handes, and wente vpon the children of Ammon. And the Lorde deliuered them into my handes. Wherfore then are ye come vpon me to fyght with me?

And Jephthah gathered togither all ꝑ men of Galaad, and fought with the Ephraites. And the men of Galaad smote the Ephraites because they sayde: Ye Galaadites are but runagates of Ephraim amonges the Ephraites and the Manassites. Moreouer the men of Galaad toke the passages of Jordan where the Ephraites shulde come homewarde. And when these Ephraites that were escaped, sayd let vs go ouer: then the men of Galaad sayd vnto them: Ye are Ephraites, and they sayd, naye. Then sayde they vnto him: Say Schiboleth. And there was a man in Zarah of the kynrede of the Dannites, named Manoah, whose wife was barre and bare not. And the Aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto his wyfe, and sayde vnto her: Beholde, thou art barren and bearest not: But thou shalt conceyue and beare a sonne. And now beware, and drynke no wyne, ne stronge drynke, neyther eate any vncleane thinge: for lo, thou shalt conceyue, and beare a sonne. Then Manoah made intercession to the Lorde, and sayde: I praye the (my Lorde) let the man of God which thou sendest come ones more vnto vs, and teache vs what we shall do vnto the childe, whe he is borne. And God herde the voyce of Manoah, and the aungell of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as she sat in the felde: But Manoah her husband was not with her. Then the wyfe made haste, and ran and shewed her husband and sayd to him: Beholde, the man hathe appeared vnto me, that came the other daye vnto me.

Then Manoah arose, and wente after his wyfe and came to the man and sayd vnto him Art thou the man that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayde, yea. Then Manoah sayd, now when thy worde is come to passe: what shall be the maner of the childe, and what shall he do? CAPL. XIIII.

SAmson went downe to Thamnath, and sawe a woman in Thamnath of the doughters of the Philistines, and came & tolde his father and mother, and sayd: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the doughters of the Philistines. And now gyue her me to wyfe Then his father and mother sayde vnto him, is there neuer a woman of the doughters of thy brethren, amonge all my people: but that thou must go and fet a wyfe of the vncircumcysed Philistines? And Samson sayde vnto his father, gyue me this woman, for she pleaseth me well. Now his father & mother wist not that it was the Lordes worckynge, & that he sought an occasion vpon the Philistines, which at that tyme raygned ouer Israel. The wente Samson, and his father and mother, downe to Thamnath. So when they came to the vyneyardes of Thamnath: Beholde, a younge Lyon rored vpon him. And the spirite of the Lord came vpon Samson. And he tare him, as a man wolde rent a kyd, and yet had nothinge in his hande. Neuertheles he told not his father and mother what he had done, but went downe and talked with the woma whiche semed beautyful in the syght of Samson.

And within short space after, as he retyred thether agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to se the carkasse of the Lyon. And beholde, there was a swarme of bees in the carkasse of the Lyon, and hony: & he

he tokt of the honye in his handes, and went eatynge, and came to his father and mother & gaue them of the same. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honye forth of the carkaile of the Lyon. And when his father was come vnto the woman: Samson made there a feast, for so vsed the young men to do. And when her frendes saw him, they brought thirtye companyons to beare him companye. And Samson sayde vnto them: I wyll put forth a ryddle vnto you. And yf ye can declare it within seuen dayes of the feaste and fynde it oute, I wyll gyue you thyrtye shertes and thirtye chaunge of garmentes. But yf ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye gyue me thyrtye shertes and thirtye chaunge of garmentes. And they answered him, put forth thy ryddle and let vs heare it. And he sayde vnto them. Oute of the eater came meate: and out of the strong came swetnesse. And they couldc not in three dayes expounde the ryddle. So when the seuenth day was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe. Flatter thyne husbande, that he maye declare vs thy ryddle, or elles we wyll burne the and thy fathers house with fyre, haue ye called vs to make vs beggers? Then Samsons wyfe wept vnto him and sayd, it cā not be but that thou hatest me and louest me not, seyng thou hast purpoled a ryddle vnto the children of my folke and wylt not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father ne yet my mother, and shulde I tell it the? And she wepte vnto him seuen dayes, whyle the feaste lasted. So the seuenth daye he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon him. And she agayn tolde it to the children of her folke. And then the men of the cyte sayde vnto him the seuenth daye before the sonne went downe. What is sweter then honye, and what is stronger then a Lyon? the sayde he vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed wt my heifer, ye had not founde out my ryddle.

Then the spyrite of the Lorde came vpon him. And he went downe to Aschalon, and slewe xxx men of them, and tulpoyled theym, and gaue their garmentes vnto them which expounded the ryddle. And he was wrothe, and wente vp to his fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was geuen in maryage to one of his companyons that accompanyed him.

CAPL. XV.

BVt it chaunced within a whyle after, in the tyme of wheate haruest, that Samson visited his wyfe with a kydde. And whē he thought to haue gone in vnto his wyfe into the chamber, her father wolde not suffre him to go in: But sayde: I thought thou had deadly hated her, and therfore gaue I her to one of thy companyons. Nowe be it, her younger sister is fayrer then she. Take her in stede of the other. Then sayde Samson vnto them: Now I am blameles concernynge the Philistines, though I wo them displeasures. And Samson went forth and caught three hundred Foxes, and toke firebrandes, & fastened tayle to tayle, and put a fyre brande in the myddes betwene two tayles. And he set the fire brandes on fyre, and put them into the corne of the Philistines, & burnt vp bothe the eared corne and also the standinge, with vynes and olyues. Then the Philistines asked, who hadde wrought that dede. And it was tolde them that Samson the sonne in lawe of the Thamnite, because he had betrued him of his wyfe & geuen her to one of his companyons. And the Philistines came and burnt bothe her and her father with fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Wolde ye so? I will surely be auenged of you, & then I will ceasse. And he smote them legge & thygh with a mygthy plage. And then he went and dwelt in the toppe of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp and pitched against Juda and laye in Lehi. And the men of Juda sayde. Why are ye come against vs? And they answered to bynde Samson are we come, euen to w vnto him, as he hathe wrought to vs. Then thre thousande men of Juda went vp to the toppe of the rocke Etam, and sayde to Samson: wotteth thou not, that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore the hast thou handled vs thus? And he answered the, as they serued me, so haue I serued them.

Then sayde they vnto him, we are come to bynde the, and to deliuer the into the handes of the Philistines. And Samson sayde vnto them: Swere vnto me, that ye shall not hurte me your selues. And they sayde, we will not hurte the, saue onely bynde the, and deliuer the vnto their handes: But we will not kyll the. And so they bounde him with two newe cordes and brought him downe from the rocke. And whē he cam to Lehi, the Philistins shouted against him. And the spryte of the Lorde came vpon him, and the cordes that were vpō his armes, became as flaxe that was burnt in fire, and the bandes lowsed from his handes. And he founde a Jawe bone of a rotten asse, & put forth his hande and caught it, and slewe a thousande men therwith. And Samson sayde: with the Jawe of an asse, haue I put them backe: with the Jaw of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And when he had left shewynge, he cast awaye the Jaw out of his hād and called the place Ramath Lehi. But he was sore a thirste, and called on the Lorde, & sayde. Thou Lorde hast gyuen this great victory, thorow the hande of thy seruaunt. And now I must dye for thirst, and fall into the handes of the vncircumcysed. But God dyde a great tothe that was in the Jawe, and there came water forth of it. And when he had dronken, his spirite came agayne, and he was refreshed, wherfore the name therof was called, the well of the caller on, whiche is in Lehi, vnto this daye. And he iudged Israell in the dayes of the Philistines twenty yeres.

¶ Samson lyeth vp the gates of Gaza and caryeth them vp in to the mountayne. He was betrayed by Dalilah and made blynde. He pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines and dyeth with them.

CAPI. XVI.

THen went Samson to Gaza, and sawe there an harlot & lay ther. And it was tolde the Gaziten, that Samson was come thither. And they went about, and layd awayt for him all nyght in the gate of the cytye, and were still abydynge for him all the nyght sayinge: tarye tyll the morynge that it be daye, and then let vs kyll hym as he cometh forth of the cytye. And Samson toke his rest tyll midnight, and arose at mydnight and toke the dores of the gate of the cytye, and the two syde postes, and rent them of, barres and all, and put them vpon his shoulders, and caryed them vp to the toppe of an hyll that lyeth before Hebron.

And after that, he loued a woman, vpon ‡ ryuer of Sorek, called Dalilah, vnto whom came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto her. ‡ latter him and se wherin his great strength lyeth, and by what meanes we may haue power ouer him, that we may bynde him and bynge hym vnder, and eche of vs shall gyue the .xi. hundred syluerlynges.

And Dalilah sayde to Samson. Oh, tell me where thy great strength lyeth, and what it is wherwith men myght bynde the and beate the. And Samson sayde vnto her. Yf men bounde me, with seuen grene withyes, that were neuer dryed, I shulde be weake, and as an other man. And the the Lordes of the Philistines brought her seuē withyes that were yet grene and neuer dryed, and she bound him with them. Notwithstandinge she had men lyenge in wayte with her in the chambre. And she sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he brake the cordes as a threde of towe breaketh, when it feleth fyre. And so it was not knowen wherin his stregth laye.

Then sayde Dalilah to Samson: Se, thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes. Now yet tell me I praye the, wherwith thou myghtest be bounde. And he sayde: Yf I were bounde with newe ropes, that neuer were occupyed, then shulde I be weake, and as an other mā. And Dalilah toke newe ropes and bounde him therwith, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers awayte in the chamber, and he brake them from of his armes, as they hadde bene but a threde. And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson, hytherto thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherewith men mayst bynde the. And he sayde vnto her. Yf thou bynde seuen lockes of my heed with an hearre lace and fasten them with a nayle, I shall be weake. And Dalila dyd so, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. But he awaked out of his slepe, & pluckes and went away with the nayle that was in the plattynge, and with the hearre lace. Then he sayde vnto him: Howe canste thou saye thou louest me, when thyne herte is not with me: for thou hast mocked me this thrice tymes, and hast not tolde wherein thy chefe strength lyeth. And as she lay vpon him with her wordes continually vexinge of him, his soule was encombred euen vnto the deathe. And he tolde her all his herte, and sayde vnto her: there neuer came rasor vpon myne heed, for I haue bene a Nazare to God euen from my mothers wombe. Yf myne heatre were cut of, my strength wolde go frō me, and I shuld become, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalilah sawe he had vttered vnto her all his hert, she sent for the Philistines, sayenge: come vp yet this ones, for he hath shewed me all his hert.

Then the lordes of the Philistines came & brought the moneye in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her lappe, and sente for a barber, & cut of the seuen lockes of his heed and began to vexe him, and to thrust him frō her, for by and by his strength was gone from him. And she sayde, the Philistines vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, and thought to go out as at other tymes before & shake him selfe, and wiste not that the Lorde was departed from him. Then the Philistines toke him and put out his eyen, & brought him downe to Gaza and bounde him with fetters. And he was made to grynde in the prison house, all be it the hearre of his hed began to growe agayne after that he was shorne. The the lordes of the Philistines gathered them together, to offer a solemne offeringe vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyse: for they sayde our God hath deliuered Samson our enemy into our handes. And when the people sawe him, they magnified their God: for they sayd, our god hath geuen into our handes our enemy, which destroyed our countrey and slewe many of vs. And when their hertes were merry, they sayde: sende for Samson and let him playe before vs. So they let Samson out of the prysonhouse, who played before them, & they set him betwene the pyllers. And Samson sayde vnto the laade that led him by the hande: set me that I may touche the pyllers that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to the. And the house was full furnished with men and women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines, and vpon the rouffe there were about thre thousand men and women, that beheld how Samson played.

Then Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayde my Lorde almyghty thinke on me, and restore me myne olde strength, at this tyme O God, that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my two eyen. Then the lordes of the Philistines came & brought the moneye in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her lappe, and sente for a barber, & cut of the seuen lockes of his heed and began to vexe him, and to thrust him frō her, for by and by his strength was gone from him. And she sayde, the Philistines vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, and thought to go out as at other tymes before & shake him selfe, and wiste not that the Lorde was departed from him. Then the Philistines toke him and put out his eyen, & brought him downe to Gaza and bounde him with fetters. And he was made to grynde in the prison house, all be it the heaere of his hed began to growe agayne after that he was shorne. Samson is taken.

Then the lordes of the Philistines gathered them together, to offer a solemne offringe vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyse: for they sayde our God hath betaken Samson our enemy into our handes. And when the people sawe him, they magnified their God: for they sayd, our god hath geuen into our handes our enemy, which destroyed our countrey and slewe many of vs. And when their hertes were merry, they sayde: fetche for Samson and let him playe before vs. So they set Samson out of the prisonhouse, who played before them, & they set him betwene the pyllers. And Samson sayde vnto the ladde that led him by the hande: set me that I may touche the pyllers that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to the. And the house was ful furnished with men and women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines, and vpon the rouffe there were about thre thousand men and women, that beheld how Samson played.

Then Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayde my Lorde almyghty thinke on me, and restore me myne olde strength, at this tyme O God, that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my two eyen. And Samson caught the two myddell pyllers on whiche the house stode, the one in his right hande, and the other in his lefte, and sayde: my lyfe perishe with the Philistines, and bowed them with myght. And the house fell vpon the lordes, & vpō all the people that were therein. And so the dead which he slewe at his death, were mo then they which he slewe in his life. And then his brethre & all the house of his father came downe, & tooke him vp, & brought, and buryed him, betwene Zarah and Eſthaol, in the buryenge place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Iſrael twenty yeres.

¶ Of Michas whoſe mother made him an Idoll of ſyluer. Of the younge preeſt of the lynage of Leui of Bethlehem.

CAPI. XVII.

THere was a man in mounte Ephraim, named Michas, whiche ſayde vnto his mother: the .xi. hundred ſyluerlynges that were taken from the, about which thou curſedſt in myne eares: Beholde the ſyluer is with me, for I toke it awaye. Then ſayd his mother, bleſſed be thou my ſon in the Lorde. And ſo he reſtored the .xi. hundred ſyluerlynges to his mother agayne. And his mother ſayde: I vowed the ſyluer vnto the Lorde that my ſonne ſhulde take it, of myne hande: to make a grauen Image and an Image of metall. Nowe therfore I render it the agayne. And he reſtored the moneye agayne vnto his mother. Then his mother toke two hundred ſyluerlynges and put them to a goldſmith, to make therof a grauen ymage and a molten ymage, which remayned in the houſe of Michas, who alſo made a chapell of gods, and made an Ephod and ymages, and hilled the hand of one of his ſonnes which became his preeſt. For in thoſe dayes there was no kynge in Iſrael, but euery man dyd as he thought beſt.

Ephod is a veſtyre apperteyll.

Iudic. 18. a

And there was alſo an other a younge man of Bethlehem Juda, amonges the kynredes of Juda: and he was a Leuite and ſoiourned there. And the yonge man departed out of the cyte of Bethlehem Juda, to go dwell where myght be moſt commodyous for him. And he came to mount Ephraim, and to the houſe of Michas as he iourneyed. And Michas ſayde vnto him, Whence comeſt thou? and the Leuite anſwered him: I am of Bethlehe Juda and go to dwell where I maye fynde a mooſte mete place. And Michas ſayde vnto him: dwell with me, and be vnto me a father and a preeſt. And I will gyue the ten ſiluerlynges by yere and double apparell and meat and drinke.

So the Leuite went and dwelled with the man, and was vnto him as dere as one of his owne ſonnes. And Michas fylled the hande of the Leuite, and the younge man became his preeſte, and contynued in his houſe, and ſayde now I am ſure that the Lorde will be good vnto me, ſythens I haue a Leuite to my preeſt.

¶ The children of Dan take the goddes & the preeſt of Michas awaye. They deſtroye Lais, and buylde it agayne, and name it Dan.

CAPI. XVIII.

Dan.

IN thoſe dayes there was no kynge in Iſrael. And in thoſe dayes the tribe of Dan ſought them an enheritaunce to dwell in, for yll that tyme there fell none enheritaūce vnto them amonges the tribe of Iſrael. And the children of Dan ſent forthe of their kynredes fyue men of actiuite, out of their coaſtes euen out of Zarah and Eſthaol, to eſpye & ſearche it out, and ſayde vnto the go and ſearche out the lande. And they came to moūt Ephraim, vnto the houſe of Michas and lodged there. And when they were come vnto his houſe, they knewe the voyce of the younge man the Leuite, whoſe lodgyng they vſed, and ſayde vnto him: Who brought the hyther? what makeſt thou in this place? why arte thou come hyther? And he ſayd vnto the, thus and thus dealeth Michas with me, and hath hyred me to be his preeſt. And they ſayd vnto him: Aſke of God we praye the, that we maye knowe whether the waye we goo, ſhalbe proſperous, & whether the thinge ſhall take effecte. And the preeſt ſayde vnto them: go in peace, the Lorde regardeth your waye & the iourney whiche ye go.

Then the fyue men departed and came to Lais, and ſawe the people there dwellynge carelleſſe, and after the maner of the Sidons, ſtille, and without caſtinge of parelles, & that no man made any trouble in the lande or vſurped any dominion, and howe they were farre from the Sidons and had no medlynge with any nacion. And they came vnto their brethre to Zarah, and Eſthaol. And their brethren ſayde vnto them: what tydinges bring you?

And they ſayde, aryſe and let vs goo vnto them, for we haue ſene the lande, and it is verye good. Haſten you therfore, and be not ſlouthfull to departe, and to come & conquere the lande: ye ſhall come vnto a people that careth no parels, and vnto a large countrey: for God hath gyue vnto your hādes a place where is no lacke of any thinge in the worlde.

Then departed thence of the kynred of the Dannites, out of Zarah and Eſthaol .vi. hundred men appointed w habilimētes of warre. And they went and pytched in Kariath Jarim in Juda. Wherfore the place is called Mahanah Dan vnto this daye, which is on the backſyde of Kariath Jarim. So they wente thence vnto mounte Ephraim, and came to Michas houſe. Then anſwered the fyue men that wēt to eſpye out the countrey of Lais, and ſayde vnto their brethren: wot ye not that there is in theſe houſes an Ephod and Images, and a grauen Image, and a molten Image? Now therfore conſydre, what ye haue to do.

And they turned thyderward and came to the houſe of the young man the Leuite in the houſe of Michas, and ſalued him peaſably. And the .vi. hundred men wel fenced with weapons of warre which were of the children of Dan, ſtode in the entreinge of the gate. And the fyue men that went to eſpye out the land went in thyther and toke the kerued Image, & the Ephod, and the molten Image. And the preeſt ſtode in the entreynge of the gate with the fyue hundred men, that were armed vnto battayle, whyle the other went to Michas houſe, and fet the kerued Image, the Ephod the kerued Image, and the Image of metall. Then ſayde the preeſt vnto them: what doo ye? and they anſwered him, kepe ſylence, & put thyne hande vpon thy mouthe, and come come with vs, and be vnto vs a father and a preast. whether is it better for the to be a preast vnto the house of one man, or to be preast vnto a tribe or kynred in Israell? And the preast was glad and toke the Ephod and the Images, and the grauen Image, and went with the people. And they turned and departed, & put the children, the cattell and their coslye thinges before them.

When they were a good waye frome the house of Michas, the men that were in the houses that were by Michas house, made an outcrye, and pursued after the children of Dā and called vnto theym. And they turned their faces, and sayde vnto Michas, what apieth the, that thou makeste this outcrye? And he sayde, ye haue taken awaye my goddes which I made and also the preast, and go your wayes with theym: And what haue I more, howe then saye ye vnto me, what apieth the? And the children of Dan sayde vnto him, let not thy voyce be herde amonges vs, lest angry felowes run vpon the, and thou lose thy lyfe, with the lyues of all thyne housholde also. And so the children of Dan wet their wayes. And when Michas sawe they were to strong for him, he returned vnto his house agayne. And they toke the thinges which Michas had made, and the preast which he had, and went vnto Lais, euen vnto a people that were at rest and without mystrust, and smote them w the edge of the swerde, & burnt the cytie with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because it was farre frome Sidon, and they had none affaires with any other nacyon. And the cytie stode in the valleye that lyeth by Bethrehob. And they buylt the cytie and dwelt therin.

And called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father which was sonne vnto Israell. Howbe it in dede the name of the cytie was Lais at the begynnynge.

And the children of Dan set theym vp the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and his sonnes were the preistes vnto the tribe of the Danites, tyll they were caried awaye out of the lande pysonners. And they set theym vp the kerued Image whiche Michas made, all the whyle that the house of God was in Silo. In those dayes was no kynge in Israell.

¶ Of the Leuite whose wyfe was vyllanously kylled in Gabaah. She is diuyded in to xii. parces and of her sent to euery tribe of Israel a pece.

CAPI. XIX.

ANd a certen Leuyte dwellynge on the syde of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubyne out of Bethlehem Juda: which concubine played the hore in his house and went awaye frome him, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there contynued fowre monethes. And her husband arose and went after her, to speke frendly vnto her and to bringe her home agayne, and his ladde with him & a couple of Asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe him, he reioyced of his comminge. And the Leuite abode with his father in lawe thre dayes and so they ate and dranke and lodged there.

The fourth daye the younge man arose early in the morning, and wolde haue departed. But the damoselles father sayd vnto his son in lawe, comforte thyne herte with a morsell of breed, and then goo youre waye. And they sate wone and dyd eate and drinke both of them together. Then sayde the damoselles father vnto the man, goo to, I praye the and tary all nyght and let thyne hert be merry. Howe be it the man stode vp to departe: but his father in lawe compelled him to turne agayne and to tarye all nyght there. And he arose vp early the fyfth daye to departe. Then sayde the damoselles father, comforte thyne herte: and so made them tarye tyll after mydday: & they dyd eate both of theym together.

And then the mā arose to departe with his wyfe and his ladde. But his father in lawe the damoselles father sayde vnto him, behold the daye goeth fast awaye and drawech towarde nyght, tary all nyght: at least tarye this daye here, and let thyne hert be merry. And to morowe get you early on your waye and get ye to thy tent. Neuertheles the man wolde not tary, but arose and departed, and came as fyrst as Jebus, which is Jerusalem and his two asses laden, and his concubyne, and his lad with him. And when they were fall by Jebus, the daye was sore spent and the younge man sayde vnto his master, come I praye the and let vs turne into this cytie of the Jebusytes and lodge all nyght there. But his master sayde vnto him, we will not turne into a straunge cytie that are not of the children of Israell: we wyll go forth to Gabaah, and we shall come to one place or other, and shall lodge all nyght in Gabaah or in Ramah. And they went forth on their iourney, and the Sonne went wone vpon theym when they were fall by Gabaah which is in Ben Jamin. So they turned thitherward to go and lodge all nyght in Gabaah. And when they came in they sat them wone in a strete of the cytie, for no man wolde take theym in, to lodge. But behalde, there came an olde man frome his worke, out of the felde at euen whiche was also of mount Ephraim, and but a straunger in Gabaah, for the men of the place, were of the children of Jemini. And when he had lift vp his eyen, and sawe a wayefaringe man in the stretes of the cytie, he sayd: whether goest thou? And whence commeste thou? And the other answered him, we come frome Bethlehem Juda towarde the syde of mount Ephraim: frome thence am I, and went to Bethell Juda, and go now to the house of God. But there is no man that receyueth me to house: yet I haue strawe and prouender for our asses and bred and wyne for me and thy handmayd and thy lad that are with thy seruaunte, and lacke nothinge but lodgynge.

The olde man sayde, peace be with the, all that thou lackest shalte thou fynde with me: only

F only remayne not in ꝑ ſtreates all nyght, and he brought him into his houſe, and gaue fo-der vnto his aſſes, And they waſhed their feete, and dyd eate and drynke. And as they were makynge good chere, the men of the cytye whiche were wycked, ſet the houſe rounde aboute, and thruſt at the doze, and ſpake to the good man of the houſe, ſaynge: bryng forthe the man that came in to thyne houſe, that we maye playe buggery with him.

But the man of the houſe went out to the,
Gene.xix.d and ſayde vnto them: Oh, naye my brethren be not ſo wyckedly, ſeyng this man is come into myne houſe: do not this abhominacion.
Beholde, my doughter a mayden and this mās concubyne, them I wyll bynge out vnto you, and thowe them downe, and take your plea-ſure of them, but vnto this man, do not this folye againſt nature, I beſeche you. But the men wolde not herken to him. Neuertheleſſe the man toke his concubyne and brought her forth vnto them, and they had to do with her and entreated her ſhamefully, all the nyght euen vnto the morninge. And when the daye began to ſpringe, they let her go.

G And then came the woman in the dawning of the daye, and fell downe at the doze of the mans houſe, where her Lorde was. And her
The ſcripture ſaieth the husband the wyues Lorde Lorde aroſe vp in the mornynge and opened the dores of the houſe, and came forthe to go his waye. And beholde, his concubyne laye a-longe before the doze of the houſe, & her hand vpon the threſholde. And he ſayde vnto her:
aryſe and let vs be goynge. But ſhe anſwered not. Then he toke her vp vpon an aſſe & rode vp, and gat him vnto his owne home And when he was come vnto his houſe, he toke a thyſſinge knyfe, and caught his concubine & departed her thorowe the bones into twelue peces, and ſent her into all quarters of Iſrael.
And all that ſawe it ſayde: there was no ſuche deede done or ſene ſythens the children of Iſra ell came out of Egypte vnto this daye, conſider the matter, gyue counſell and ſaye youre aduyſe.

¶ The battayle of all the Iſraelites againſte the tribe of Beniamin for the Leuites wyfe ſlayne.

CAP. XX.

1 THen all the children of Iſraell went out, and there gathered a company to-Mem.x gether, as it had ben but one man, euen frome Dan to Berſeba, and oute of the lande of Galaad, vnto the lande of Maſpha / and there rode folke oute of all quarters of all the tribes of Iſraell in the aſſemble of the people of God, four hundred thou ſande foote men that drewe ſwerdes. And the children of Beniamin herde that the children of Iſrael were gone vp to Maſpha.
Then ſayd the children of Iſrael, tell vs how this wickednelle happened. And the Leuyte the ſlayne womans husbande anſwered and ſayd: I came in to Gabaah in Beniamin wt my concubyne to lodge all nyght. And the cityzens of Gabaah aroſe againſt me, and beſet the houſe rounde about me by nyght, & thought to haue ſlayne me: but they caught my concu bine and forced her, that ſhe dyed. Wherfore I toke my concubine and cut her in peces, and ſent her thorow out all the landes of the en-heritaunce of Iſrael. For they haue done abominacion and folly in Iſrael. Beholde, ye are all children of Iſrael. Conſyder therfore, and gyue youre aduyſe in the caſe. Then all the people aroſe, as it had bene one man, ſay-enge: there ſhall not one of vs go to his tent, ne turne in to his houſe. And now this is it ꝑ we will do to Gabaah and caſt lottes againſt
it. And we will take ten men of the hundred thorow out all the tribes of Iſrael, and an B hundred of the thouſande, and a thouſande of the ten thouſande, to fet vitayle for the people, to make that they maye goo againſt Gabaah Ben Jamin, accordinge to all the folye, that they haue wrought in Iſrael. And ſo all the men of Iſrael aſſembled vnto Gabaah, as it had bene but one man. And the tribes of Iſrael ſent men thorow al the tribe of Ben Jamin, ſayenge: What wyckednelle is this, that is happened amonges you? Now therefore deliuer vs the men, thoſe wycked wretches of Gabaah to thintent we maye ſley the and put awaye euell frome Iſrael.

Neuertheleſſe the children of Ben Jamin wolde not herken vnto the voyce of their bre thren the children of Iſrael: but muſtered out of the cyties vnto Gabaah, to come oute in batayle againſt the children of Iſrael. And the children of Ben Jamin were recounted at that tyme, oute of the cyties, xxvi. thouſande men that drewe ſwerdes beſyde the inhabi-taunces of Gabaah, which were nombred ſeuen hundred pyked men. And amonges all theſe folkes were ſeuen hundred nymble han ded men, which euery one could ſlynge ſtones at an heare breadth, and not myſſe. And the children of Iſrael beſyde the children of Ben C Jamin, were nombred at foure hundred thou ſande men that drew ſwerdes, and all men of warre.

And the children of Iſrael aroſe and went vp to Bethell, and aſked of God, who ſhuld begyn the battell againſt the children of Ben Jamin, and the Lorde ſayd Juda ſhalbe your capitayne. And the children of Iſrael rode vp early and beſeged Gabaah. And the me of Iſrael went out to battell againſt Ben Jamin, and put therym ſelues in araye againſte them, to fight againſt Gabaah. And the children of Ben Jamin came out of Gabaah and deſtroyed in Iſrael that daye, xxii. thouſande men, and brought them to the grounde. And the folke of the children of Iſrael pluckes vp them better, and yet eftſones made battell in the ſame place where they dyd the firſt daye:
but they went firſte vp and wepte before the Lorde vnto euen, and aſked of the Lorde, ſay- D
enge: ſhall we go agayne to battell againſt ꝑ children of Ben Jamin our brethren? And the Lorde ſayde: go vp vnto them, when the chil dren of Iſrael were come to the children of Ben Jamin the ſeconde daye, the children of D Beniamin went agaynſte therym out of Gabaah.

baah, the seconde day, and destroyed to the erth of the chyldren of Israel ones agayne, xviij. thousande men that drewe swerdes euery man of theym.

Then the chyldren of Israel and all the people went vp and came vnto goddes house and wept and sat there before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye vnto euen, and offred burnt offerynges and peax offerynges before the Lord. And they asked the Lord: for there was the arcke of the apoyntment of God, in those dayes. And Phinches the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron attendinge vpon it at that tyme: and they sayde, shall we go out any more to battel against the chyldren of Ben Jamin our brethren, or shall we cease? And the Lorde sayde go: for to morowe I wyll deliuer them into your handes. And Israell set a pryuy watche against Gabaah roundabout And the chyldren of Israell went against the chyldren of Ben Jamin the thirde tyme, and put them selues in araye against Gabaah, as they had done twyse before. Then came the chyldren of Ben Jamin against the people of Israell, tyll they were drawen a great waye from the cytie. And they began to smyte of the people and wounded theym (as they dyd twyse before, so that Israell fled by two dyuers wayes of which one goeth vp to Bethell and the other to Gabaah thorowe the felde) and slewe vpon a thirtye men of Israell. For the chyldre of Ben Jamin thought that the other had bene beaten before theym, as at the firste tyme. But the chyldren of Israell sayde, let vs flee and pluche theym away from the cytie, vnto the byghe wayes.

And then all the men of Israel rose vp out of their standynge, and put them selues in araye at Baal Thamar. And lykewyse the lyers in awayte of Israel came forth oute of their places, out of the medowes of Gabaah, and came before Gabaah: ten thousande chosen men out of al Israel, & there was a strong battayle. But the other wyst not that euyll was so nygh theym. And the Lorde plaged Ben Jamin before Israel, so that the chyldren of Israel destroyed in Beniamin the same daye xxv. thousande and a hundred men, that drew swerdes euery one of theym. The chyldren of Beniamin when they did se that they shulde be beaten downe began to flee. And the men of Israel gaue rome to Ben Jamen, because they trusted vnto the layers in wayte whiche they had layd against Gabaah. And the layers in wayte hasted and ran out of their holes vpon Gabaah, and went and smote al the cytye with the edge of the swerde. And they of Israel gaue the preuye watche theyr watchewerde that as sone as they habde taken the cytye they shulde fyre it, that by the smoke they shulde shew that the cytye was wonne. And the men of Israel fled in the battayle. And Ben Jamin began to smyte deed of the chyldren of Israell, aboute thirtye personnes, for they supposed that the other had ben put to flyght before them, as in the firste battell. The began to arryse out of the cytie a pyller of smoke And the Ben Jamites looked backe: & beholde the wallynge of the hole cytye began to ascende to heuen.

Then the men of Israel turned agayne, and the men of Ben Jamin were abashed/ for they sawe that euyl approched them. And they fled before the men of Israel vnto the way that leadeth to the wylderne, the other folowing the at the harde heles. And beside that they pertakers of their cities aboute them were slayne in the same place. And they compassed Ben Jamin and chased them to Menuah/ and ouerranne them before Gabaah on the east side/ and there were slayne of Ben Jamin xviij. thousande, and all men of myght. And they turned and fledde towardes the wylderneffe, and vnto the rocke of pomegarnettes. And the other slewe by the waye of the feste of them, fyue thousande men/ and fleshed vnto them vntyll they came to Gadaam, and slewe two thousande moo of them/ so that al that were slayne that same daye of Ben Jamin, were xxv. thousande men that drewe swerdes/ and all men of myghte: onely fyue hundred men tourned and fledde to the wylderneffe, vnto the rocke of pomegarnettes, and abode there foure monethes. And then the men of Israel tourned backe agayne vnto the chyldren of Ben Jamin/ and smote them with the edge of the swerde in the cities bothe man and beaste, and all that came to hande/ and moreouer sette all the cityes they coulde come by on fire.

¶ The tribe of Ben Jamin whiche was destroyed for their tornament with the Israelites wyfe is restored agayne.

CAPI. XXI.

AND the men of Israell swore in Maspah, saying/ there shal none of vs giue his daughter vnto any of Ben Jamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel & abode there tyll euen before God/ and lyfte vp their voyces, and wepte sore, and sayd. O Lord God of Israel, why is this chaunced in Israel, that there shulde be this daye one tribe lackynge in Israell? And on the morowe the people arose early, and made there an aulter, & offred burnt offerynges and peaxofferinges.

And the chyldren of Israel asked who are they amonges al the tribes of Israel that came not with the congregacion vnto the Lord/ for they had made a great othe concernynge them that came not vp to the Lord to Maspha, sayinge they shulde surely dye. And the chyldren of Israel had pitye on Ben Jamin their brethrē, and sayd/ there is one tribe cut of from Israel this day: what shal we do vnto the rest of them, to get the wiues, for as moch as we haue swoone by the Lorde, that we will not gyue them any of our doughters to wyues. Then they sayde/ what are they of the tribes of Israel that came not vp to Maspha to the Lord? And beholde there came none of the inhabitants of Jabes Galaad vnto the congregacion. So when the people were perused, beholde there were none of the inhabitantes of Jabes Galaad there. And the congregacion sent thyther xij. thousande men of the strongest of them, and commaunded them, sayenge: Go and smyte the enhabitauntes of Jabes Galaad, with the edge of the swerde as well women as chyldren. * And this is that ye shall do: vtterlye destroye all the males and al the women that haue lyen by men. And they founde amonge the inhabitantes of Jabes Galaad foure hundred damselles virgynes that hadde knowen no man by lyinge with any male. And they brought them vnto the host to Silob which is in the lande of Canaan. And the hole congregacion sent & spake with the childzen of Ben Jamin that were in the rocke of Pomgarnettes, and called peasably vnto them, and Ben Jamin came agayne at that tyme, and they gaue them the wemen which they had saued a lyue of the wemen of Jabes Galaad. But they so sufficed them not. And the people had compassion on Ben Jamin because that God had made a gappe in the tybes of Jsraell. And then the elders of the congregacion sayde: What shall we do to the remnaunt of them, to get them wyues, seing all the wyues of Ben Jamin are destroyed? And they sayde there must be an enheritaunce for them that be escaped of Ben Jamin that a tybe be not destroyed oute of Jsraell: howbe it, we maye not gyue theym wyues of our doughters. For the childzen of Jsraell hadde made an abiuracion, sayeng: cursed be he that gyueth a wyfe to Ben Jamin. Then they said Beholde, there is a feaste of the Lorde yerely in Silob which is on the northsyde of Bethel and on the eastsyde of the waye that goeth frome Bethel to Sichem, and south frome Libanon. And they commaunded the childre of Ben Jamin, sayenge: go and lye in awayte in the vyneyardes. And when ye se the doughters of Silob come forth to daunce in a rewe, then come ye out of the vyneyardes, & catche you euery man a wyfe of the doughters of Silob, and get you vnto the land of Ben Jamin. And yf their fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complayne, we will saye vnto them, haue pytie on them, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre, & moreouer because ye gaue them none in due tyme, ye were to blame. And the childzen of Ben Jamin dyd accordyngly: and toke them wyues after the nombre of the daunsers whiche they caught. And that done they went and returned vnto their enheritaunce, and buylte there cyties and dwelt in them.

THE BOOKE OF RVTH.

¶ Elimelec goth with his wyfe and thyldren in to the lande of Moab. After his death his wyfe Noemi returneth agayn in to her countrey, and with her Ruth her daughter in lawe.

CAPI. I.

A IN the tyme when the Judges iudged, there felle a derth in the lande. Wherfore a certayne man of Bethlehem Juda went to soiourne in the countrye of Moab with his wyfe and two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelec, and his wyfe Noemi / and the names of his two sonnes were Mahalon and Chilion, and were Ephratites of Bethlehem Juda. And when they came in to the lande of Moab, they abode there. And Elimelec Noemies husbande dyed, and she remayned with her two sonnes, whiche toke them wyues of the nacions of the Moabites: the ones name Orphah, and thothers Ruth. And when they had dwelled there aboute the space of ten yeres, Mahalon and Chilion dyed, so that the wyfe was bereued of her two sonnes, and of her husbande also. Then she rose vp with her B doughters in lawe, and returned frome the countrey of Moab / for she had herde saye, beyng in the countrey of Moab, how the Lorde had visited his people, and gyuen them fode. Wherfore she departed forthe of the place where she was and her two doughters together with her. And as they wente by the waye returnynge vnto the lande of Juda, Noemi sayd vnto her two doughters in lawe: Goo and returne eyther of you vnto your mothers house, the Lorde deale as kyndlye with you, as ye haue dealte with the ded, and with me. And the Lorde graunte you maye fynde reste eyther of you in the house of youre husbande: and so she kyssed them.

Then they cryed and wepte, and sayd vnto her, we wyll go with the vnto thy folke. But Noemi sayd, turne agayne my doughters / for what cause wolde ye goo with me? thynke you there be any more children in my bowels C to be your husbandes? Tourne agayne (my doughters) and go: for I am to olde to haue an husbande / also yf I toke a man this nyght: yea, thoughe I hadde alredye borne sonnes / wolde ye tarye for them, tyll they were of age? or wolde ye for them so longe refrayne frome takynge of husbandes? Not so, my doughters: for then ye shoulde be to olde to marye; and it grieueth me moche for youre sakes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone oute agaynste me.

Therewith they cryed and wepte agayne / how be it, Orphah kyssed her mother in lawe and departed / but Ruth abode stylle by her. Then she sayde / se, thy syster in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people, and vnto her God: returne thou after her. But Ruth sayde: entreate me not to leaue the, and to returne frome the / for whyther thou goest, I wyll goo / and where thou dwellest, there I wyll dwell: thy people are my people, and thy God is my God. Where thou dyest, I will dye, and there wyll be buryed. The Lorde do so and so to me / excepte that deathe onely departe the and me alonder.

When the sawe she wolde nedes goo with D her, she lefte speakynge vnto her / and so they went bothe togyther, tyll they came to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was noysed thoroow all the cite, and the women sayde: is not this Noemi? But she sayd vnto them / call me not ✠ Noemi / call ✠ Noemi is me ✠ Mara, for the almyghtye hath made me sayde. verye bytter. I wente oute full, but the Lorde ✠ Mara bytter. hathe brought me home emptye. Why holde ye then call me Noemi, seinge the Lorde hath brought me low, & the almighty hath brought me vnto aduersitie. And the tyme when Noemi with Ruth the Moabitesse her doughter Tobye.a. in lawe returned oute of the countrey of Moab and came to Bethlehem, was in the begynnynge of barley haruest.

CAPI. II.

AND Noemi had a kynsman of her husbandes, a man of myghte, of the kynred E of Elimelec, named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitesse sayd vnto Noemi / let me goo to the felde and seale and gather eares, after whome so euer I fynde grace in his syghte. And she sayde vnto her: goo my doughter. And she wente, and came and gathered after the haruest men, and her chaunce was to gather in the felde that pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelec. And beholde, Booz came from Bethlehem and sayde vnto the haruest men, the Lorde be with you. And they answered him, the Lorde bleste the. Then sayd Booz vnto the yong man that had the ouersyght of the haruest men. Whose damosell is this? And the yonge man that was set to ouerse the haruest men answered & sayd: It is the Moabityth damosel that came with F Noemi oute of the countreye of Moab / and she sayde: lette me I praye the, seale and gather after the haruest men the eares that remayne. And so she came and hathe continued euen from the morynge vnto nowe / & wente not once home.

Then sayd Booz vnto Ruth: hearest thou my doughter: goo to none other fride to gather, neyther go frome hence, but abyde by my maydes. Thyne eyes are on a felde that shall be reped: goo after the maydens therfore / for I haue charged the younge men that they touche the not. Moreouer when thou arte a thyrst, go vnto thy vessels and drynke of that whiche the ladies haue drawen. Then she fell on her face, and ✠ bowed her selfe to ✠ ground Gene.xxviii.a and and sayde vnto hym: howe is it that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, to knowe me, seynge I am an alien.

And Booz answered and sayd vnto her: all is tolde me that thou hast done to thy mother in lawe, sence the deathe of thyne husbande, howe thou hast lefte thy father and thy mother, and the land where thou wast borne, and arte come vnto a nation whiche thou knewest not in tyme paste. The Lorde reacquite thy worke, and a full rewarde be geuen the of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto whome thou arte come, to trust vnder his wynges. Then she sayde vnto hym: lette me fynde fauoure in thy syght (my Lorde) for thou hast comforted me, and hast spoken beetely vnto thy mayde, whiche yet can not be lyke vnto one of thy maydes. And Booz when tyme of repaste was come, sayde vnto her: come hyther and eate of the breed, and dyppe thy soppe in the vynegre. And she sate downe by the reapers, and he raught her * parched corne. And so dyd eate and was fylled, and lefte parte. And when she was ryssen vp to gather, Booz sayde to the ponge men, sayenge: let her gather the eares that remayne, and do her no iniurye.
And therto pull out of the sheues for her, and let it lye, that she may gather it vp, and rebuke her not. And so she gathered tyll euen, and then threshed that she had gathered, and it was vpon an Epha of barleye. And she toke it vp and went to the cyte, and shewed her mother in lawe what she had gathered. And therto she plucked oute and gaue to her that she had reserued when she had eaten ynough.
Then sayd her mother in lawe vnto her, where gatherest thou to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that knewe the. And she shewed her mother in lawe with whome
she had wrought, and sayde: the mans name with whome I wrought to daye, is Booz.
Then sayd Noemi vnto her doughter in law, blessed be he, for he ceaseth not to do the same goodnesse to the lyue, that he did to the lyuing.
And Noemi sayd vnto her: the man is nye vn to vs, euen of our nexte kynne. And Ruth the Moabyte said: he bad me also * I shold continue with his ponge men, vntyl they had ended all the haruest he hath. Then sayd Noemi vnto Ruth her doughter in lawe, it is best my doughter that thou goo oute with his may-dens, and that no man mete the in anyeother felde. And so she kepte her by the maydens of Booz, to gather vnto the ende of barleye haruest and of whete harueste also, and retourned to her mother in lawe.

¶ Ruth sleapeth at Booz fete, and is knowen his kynswoman.

CAPI. III.

Then Noemi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: my doughter I wyll seke reste for the, that thou mayste be in better state. For nowe this Booz our kynman, with whose maydens thou waste, wynoweth his barleye to nyghte in the threshynge floure; washe thy selfe therfore and anoynte the, and put thy rayment vpon the, and get the to the threshynge floure. But lette not the man be ware of the, tyll he haue ieten eatynge and drynkynge. And when he goeth to slepe, marke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then goo and lyfte vp the clothes that are on his fete, and laye the downe, and so shal he tel
the what thou shalt do. And she answered her:
all that thou byddest me, I wyll doo. So she went vnto the floure, and dyd all that her mo ther in lawe bad her. And when Booz hadde eaten and dronken, and made hym merye, he went and lay downe by the syde of the heape, and she came softlye and lyfte vp the clothes of his fete, and layde her downe; and at midnyght the man was afrayde and groped, and beholde, a woman laye at his feete. Then he sayd, what art thou? and she answered, I am Ruth thyne handmayde; spreade thy mantell ouer thyne handmayde, for thou arte the nexte of the kynne. And then he sayd, blessed be thou in the Lorde (my doughter) for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the latter ende, then at the begynnynge, in as moche as thou folowedst not ponge men, whether they were poore or ryche. And nowe (my doughter) feare not, I wyll do to the all that thou requyrest, for al within the gates of this cyte knowe that thou arte a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy nexte kynne, yet be it, there is one nexe then I. Tarye all nyght, and when morning is come, yf he wil marye the, wel and good, let him do. But if he wil not haue the, as sure as the Lord lyueth, I wil haue the, lye styl tyl
the morninge, and so she laye at his fete tyll the morning. And she arose vp before one could know an other. And he said, let no man know that there came any woman in to the threshing floure. And he sayd bringe the mantell that hast vpon the, and holde it vp, and she helde it vp. And he met in sixe measures of barleye and layde it on her. And she gat her in to the cyte, and came to her mother in lawe whiche sayd:
what tydynges, my doughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And said moreouer, these sixe measures of barleye gaue he me, and sayd: thou shalt not go emptye vn to thy mother in law. The said she, my dough-ter sit styll, vntyll thou knowe how the mater wyl procede. For the man wil not be in rest tyl he haue ended the mater this same daye.

¶ Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whome he begetteth Obed.

CAPI. IIII.

Then wente Booz vnto the gate, and sat him downe there: and beholde, the kinsman of whiche Booz spake came by. Vn to whome he sayd: come and sit downe here, and called him by his name. And he turned in and sate downe. Then he toke tenne men of the elders of the cyte, and sayd: sit ye downe here. And they sat downe. Then he sayd vnto the kynsman: Noemi that is come ageyn out of the countreye of Moab, wyll sell a parcell

of lande whiche was our brother Elimeleck. And I thought to doo the to wete, and bydde the bye it before the inhabytoures and elders of my people / yf thou be disposed to calenge it, for thou arte nexte of kynred: but yf thou wylt not purchase it, then tell me, that I may wete it. For there is none to calenge it, saue thou, and I nexte the. And the other answered I wyll purchase it.

Then sayd Booz / what daye thou byest the felde of the hande of Noemi, thou muste take also Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of the deed, to stere vp the name of thy deed kynsman vpon his inherytaunce. Then sayd the kynsman / I can not purchase it for mayntenyng of my owne name: take thou my ryghte to the, for I am content to lese my ryght here. Now this was the maner of olde tyme in Israel concernynge Deut. xxv. purches and chaungynge, for to stablysshe all thynge: that a man muste plucke of his shoo and gyue it his neyghboure, and this was a wytnesse in Israel.

And the kynsman sayd to Booz / bye it thou: and so dyewe of his shoo. Then sayd Booz vn to the elders, and vnto all the people, ye are wytnesses this daye, that I haue boughte all that was Elimelecks, and all that was Chilions and Maheions, of the hande of Noemi. And moreouer Ruth the Moabyte the wyfe of Maheion, doo I take vnto me to wyfe, to stere vp the name of the deed vpon his inherytaunce, that his name be not put forth among his brethren, and frome the gate of his cyte: ye are wytnesses this daye.

And all the people that were in the gate, & the elders sayd, we are wytnesses: the Lorde make ꝑ woman that is come in to thyne house lyke Rachel & Lea, whiche twayne dyd buylde the house of Israel, that the maye wo dertuously in Ephrathah, and be famous in Bethlehem, and that thyne house be lyke the house of Phares, whome Thamar bare vnto Juda, euen of the seed whiche the Lorde shall gyue the of this ponge woman. And so Booz toke Ruth, and she was his wyfe. And he lay with her, and the Lord gaue that she conceyued and bare a sonne. And the women sayd vnto Noemi: blessed be the Lorde, whiche hath not lefte the without an heyre this daye, that shal haue a name in Israel, and that shall bryng thy lyfe agayne, and cherysshe thyne olde age. For thy doughter in law which louyth the, hath borne him that is better to the then seuen sonnes. And Noemi toke the chylde and layde it in her lappe, and became nourse vnto it. And her neyghboures gaue her a name, sayenge / there is a chylde borne to Noemi, & called it Obed: he is the father of Jsai, the father of Dauid. Gene. xxxviii

¶ Thus endeth the boke of Ruth.

THE FIRST BOKE OF SAMVEL CALLED THE FIRST BOKE OF THE KYNGES.

¶ Elkanah hath two wiues, Hannah and Phenennah. Phenennah vpbraydeth Hannah because she is chyldelesse. Hannah after prayer made to God, bryngeth forth Samuel.

CAPI. I.

a

THere was a man of Ramathaim Zophim, of mount Ephraim named Elkanah, the son of Ieroham, the sonne of Elihu, the sonne of Thohu, the sonne of Zuph an Ephrathyte, which had two wiues, the one called Hannah, the other Phenennah. And Phenennah had childre but Hannah had none.

1 Paral. vi. d

And the sayd man went out of his cyte euery yeare daye, to praye and to offre vnto the Lord of hostes: where the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni and Phinehes, were the Lordes Preestes. And it fell on a daye as Elkanah had offered that he gaue to Phenennah his wyfe, and to all her sonnes and doughters portions. But vnto Hannah he gaue an honourable portion with a brode there, for he loued her, neuerthelesse the Lorde had made her barayn. And ther to her enemye Phenennah vexed her sore, casting her in the teethe how the Lorde had made her barayn. And so dyd she pere by pere as ofte as she went vp to the house of the Lorde. And so chafed her, wherfore Hannah wept, and ate not. Then sayd Elkanah her husbande to her.

Hannah, why wepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thyne hert so troubled? am not I better to the then ten sonnes?

Then Hannah rose vp after that they had eate, and dronke in Silo. And Eli the Preest sate vpon a stole by one of the side postes of the temple of the Lorde. And she was troubled in her spirites, and prayed vnto the Lorde & wept sore, and vowed a vowe and sayd. Lorde of hostes yf thou wylt loke on the wretchednesse of thyne handmayde, and thynke remembre me and not forget thyne handmayde, and thynke gyue vnto thyne handmayde a man chylde, I wyl giue him vnto the Lorde all the dayes of his lyfe, and there shall neyther rasor nor sheres come vpon his heed. And she continued prayinge before the Lorde, Eli marked her mouthe.

Dedi eum a Numer. vi. d

For Hannah she spake in her herte, and her lyppes dyd but moue only, but her voyce was not herde. And therfore Eli toke her for dronken and sayd vnto her, howe longe wylte thou be dronken? put away frome the, the wyne that thou haste. Hannah answered and sayde: not so my Lorde, I am a woman sorowfull in

c

myne herte, and haue dronke neyther wyne nor ayre stronge drynke, but I haue powred out my soule before the Lorde. Counte not thyne handmayde to be lyke a daughter of Belyall, for out of the abundaunce of my meditacion and grefe haue I spoken hytherto.

Polli. vii. c

Eli answered and sayde: go in peace, the God of Israel shall graunt the thy petition that thou hast asked of him. Then she sayde, let the thyne handmayde fynde grace in thy syght. And so the woman went her waye, and dyd eat and loked no more so sadde. And they rose vp erly and bowed them selues before the Lord, and then returned and went to their house to Ramath. And Elkanah laye by his wyfe Hannah, and the Lorde remembred her.

d

And in procese of time she conceyued and bare a son, and called his name * Samuel: because she hadde asked him of the Lorde. And Elkanah and all his house wente vp to offer vnto the Lorde yerely the offeryngs due for the feaste and also his vowes: but Hannah went not vp for she sayde vnto her husbande: I wyll tarye vntyll the chylde be wened, and then I wyll bringe him, that he may appeare before the Lorde, and there abyde for euer.

* Dicitur ad q

And Elkanah her husbande sayd to her: do what semeth the best vnto thy self thou hast wened him, onely the Lorde make good his sayinge. And so the women abode and gaue her sonne suck, tyll she wened hym. And then she toke hym with her, when she had wened him, with thre bullockes and an Epha of floure and a bottel of wyne, and brought him vnto the house of the Lorde in Silo, howbeit the chylde was yet younge. And they slewe the bullockes and broughte in the chylde to Eli, & then she sayd: Oh my Lorde: as truelye as thy soule lyueth my Lorde: I am the woman that stode by the here, prayinge vnto the Lorde and for this chylde I prayed, and the Lorde hath gyue me my desyre whiche I asked of hym: and therfore I also lend him the Lorde, as long as he maye be lent the Lorde. And so they prayed there vnto the Lorde.

¶ The songe of Hannah. The offences of the sonnes of Eli. Eli is rebuked for the vnmesurable lycence of his chyldren.

CAPI. II.

ANd Hannah prayed and sayde: myne hert reioyseth in the Lord, myne horne is hyghe in the Lorde, and my mouthe is wyde open ouer myne enemyes, for I reioyse in that thou hast deliuered me. There is none so holye as the Lorde: no there is none saue thou. Neither is there any strengthe like vnto our God. Talke not so moche proudlye, let olde thynges depart out of your mouthes, for the Lorde is a God of knowlege, and by him are all thinges tryed. The bowes of the stronge are broken: and the weake are endued with strengthe. They that were full haue ben glad to serue for bread, and they that were hongry be satisfied, in so moche that the barreyn hathe borne seuen, and she that hadde many children is waxed feble. The Lorde kylleth and maketh alyue, bryngeth downe to helle, and fetcheth vp agayne. The Lorde maketh poore, and maketh ryche, bryngeth lowe, and

heaueth vp on hye. He rayseth vp the poore out of the dust, and lyfteth vp the begger from the donge hylle, to set them amonge pynces, and to enherite them with the seate of glory. For the pylles of the erthe are the Lordes, & he hathe sette the rounde worlde vpon them. He wyll kepe the feete of his holye, but the wycked shall kepe silence in darknesse. For in his owne myghte shall no man be stronge. The Lordes aduersaryes shall be make to feare him / and oute of heuen he shall thunder vpon them. The Lorde shall iudge the borders of the worlde, and shall gyue myght vnto his kyng, and exalte the horne of his anoynted. And Elkanah wente to Ramath to his house, & the chylde did mynister vnto the Lord before Ely the preest.

L But the sonnes of Ely were the sonnes of Belial, and knewe not the Lorde. For the maner of the preestes with the people was / when so euer anye man offered anye offeringes, the preestes lad came whyle the flesh was sething, and a fleshe hoke with thre teethe in his hande, and thrust it in to the panne, kettle, caldron, or potte. And all that the fleshe hoke brought vp, the preest toke awaye. And so they dyd vnto all Israel that came thyther to Silo. Yea and moreouer before they had offered the fat, the preestes lad came and sayd to the man that offered: gyue fleshe to rost for the preest / for he wyl not haue sodden flesh of the but rawe. And yf any man sayd vnto hym, let the fat be D offered accordynge to the custome of the daye, and then take as moche as thyne herte desyreth. The lad wolde answere hym, thou shalte gyue it me now, or els I wil take it perforce. And the synne of the yonge men was verye greate before the Lorde. For they hyndred the peoples deuocion from offeryng vnto the Lorde.

But the chyld Samuel mynistred before the Lorde gyrded about with a lynnen Ephod. Moreouer his mother made him a lytle cote, and brought it to him fromе feaste to feaste when she came vp with her husbande to offre the offeryng of the sayde feast. And Eli blessed Elkanah and his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde gyue the seed of this woman, for that she hathe lente the Lorde. And they went vnto their owne house. And the Lorde visyted Hannah, so that she conceyued and bare thre sonnes and two doughters. But the chylde Samuel grewe, dwellynge styll with the Lorde.

Eli was verye olde and herde all that his sonnes dyd vnto al Israel, and how they slept with the women that wayted in the doze of ꝑ tabernacle of witnesse, & sayd vnto them / why do ye suche thynges? For I heare youre wycked deades of al these people. Oh naye my sonnes, for it is no good reapporte that I heare, howe ye make the Lordes people to trespace. E If one man synne agaynst an other, haysemen maye make his peax: but yf a man synne agaynste the Lorde, who can be his hayseman? Notwythstandynge they herkened not vnto the voyce of their father, bycause the Lorde wolde slee them. The chylde Samuel profited and grewe, and was in fauour both the with the Lorde, and also with men.

And there came a man of God vnto Eli, and sayd vnto hym / thus sayth the Lorde. I appeared vnto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypte in Pharaos house. And I chose thy father for the of all the trybes of Israel, to be my preest for to offre vpon myne aulter, and to burne incense, and to weare an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto the house of thy father all the offeringes of the children of Israel. Wherfore kycke ye agaynst my sacrifice and agaynst myne offeryng whyche I commaunde in the tabernacle, and honourest thy children aboue me / and make youre selues fatte of the fyrste frutes of all the offeringes of Israel my people? Wherfore the Lord God of Israel sayth: I sayd that thyne house and the house of thy father shulde haue walked before me for euer. But nowe the Lorde sayth he be farre from me / for them that worshyppe me, I wyll worshyp / and they that despyse me, shall be despysed. * Beholde the dayes wyll come that I wyll cut of thyne arme, and the arme of thy fathers house / that there shall not be an elder in thyne house. And thou shalte se thyne enemye in the tabernacle, in all that shall please Israel / and there shall not be an elder in thyne house whyle the worlde standeth. Neuertheles I wyll not destroye all thy males from my aulter, to dase thy syght with all, and to make thyne herte melte. And all the multitude of thyne house shall dye yonge.

And this shall be a synge vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes, Hophni and Phinehes: euen in one daye eyther of them shall dye. And I wyll stere me vp a faythfull preest, that shall do after myne herte, and in my mynde / and I wyll buylde hym a sure house / and he shall walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they that are lefte in thyne house, shall come and crouche to hym for a lytle pece of syluer, and a cake of breed / and shal saye: put me I praye the in one office or other amonge the preestes, that I maye eate a morsell of breed.

¶ After the Lord had left to appeare by open vision in Silo for a longe seaso the yet called Samuel and tymes, and therwith him what shulde befall on Heli.

CAPI. III.

AND the chylde Samuel mynistred vnto the Lorde before Hely / and the worde of the Lorde was derye in those dayes, for there was none open vision. And it chaunced at that tyme that Hely laye in his place, and his eyen begaane to waxe dymme that he coulde not se. And er the lampe of God went out, Samuel sayde hym downe to slepe in the temple of the Lorde, where the arcke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel / and he sayd, here am I / and he ran vnto Hely & sayd / here am I, for thou calledst me. But he sayde I called the not: go agayne and slepe. And he went and laydе him downe to slepe. And the B Lorde called ones agayne Samuel / and Samuel

Samuel arose and went to Heli and sayd: I am here, thou diddest call me. And he answered I called the not, my sonne, go agayn and take thy rest. But as yet Samuel knew not ꝑ Lorde neither was the worde of the Lorde opened vnto him. And the Lorde proceeded and called Samuel the third time. And he arose and went to Heli and saide: I am here, for thou hast called me. Then Heli perceyued that the Lorde had called the childe, and sayd vnto him, go & lye downe, and yf he call the agayne, then say speake on Lorde, for thy seruaunt heareth. And Samuel went & layd him downe in his place. And the Lorde came and stode and called as afore, Samuel Samuel. And Samuel sayde, speke on, for thy seruaunt heareth the. And the Lorde sayd to Samuel: beholde, I will do a thyng in Israel, that the eares of as many as heareth it, shall tingle. In that daye I will performe to Heli all that I haue spoken concernynge his house: I will begynne it and ende it. For I haue tolde him that I will iudge his house for euer. For the wyckednes whiche he knoweth howe his sonnes are vngracyous, and he chastised theym not. And therfore I haue swoorne vnto the house of Heli, that the wyckednelle of his house shall not be purged with sacrifyce nor offerynge, whyle the worlde standeth. And Samuel laye tyll the mornynge, and then opened the wozes of the house of the Lorde.

But Samuel feared to shewe Heli the vysyon. Then Heli called Samuel and sayde: Samuel my sonne. And he answered, here I am. And he sayd what is it that the Lord hath sayd vnto the? Se thou hyde it not from me. The Lorde wo so and so to the, yf thou hyde anye thyng fro me of all that he sayd vnto the. And Samuel tolde him euery whyt, and hyd it not from him. And he answered: it is the Lord, let him do what semeth him good.

And Samuel grewe, and the Lorde was with him, and left none of his wordes vnperformed. And all Israel from Dan to Berlabe wyst that the fayethfull Samuel was truely made the Lordes Prophete. And the Lorde appeared agayne in Silo, for the Lorde opened him selfe to Samuel in Silo, thorow the worde of the Lorde.

¶ The battel of the Philistines. Israel fleeth. The Arcke of the Lorde is taken. Elies children dye and he them self also.

CAPL IIII.

AND Samuel spake vnto al Israel. And Israel wente out agaynst the Philistines to battayle, and pytched beside the helpe stone. But the Philistines pytched in Aphek, and put them selues in aray agaynst Israel. And in the battayle Israel was put to the worse before the Philistines. For the Philistines slewe alonge by the fyldes, about foure thousande men.

And when the people were come in to their tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherfore hath the Lorde beaten vs this daye before the Philistines? let vs fetche the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde out of Silo vnto vs, and let it come amonge vs and save vs out of the handes of our enemyes. And ꝑ people sent to Silo, and fet from thence the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lord of hoostes which dwelleth betwene the Cherubyns. And there were the two sonnes of Heli, Hophni & Phinehes, by the arcke of the appoyntmẽt of God. And when the arcke of the appoyntmẽt of the Lord came in to the hoste, all Israel shouted a mighty shout, so that the erth rang agayne.

When the Philistines herde the noyse of the shout, they sayd: What meaneth the lowd of this mighty shout in the hoste of the Hebrues? And they vnderstode that the arcke of the Lorde was come in to the hoste. And the Philistines were afrayde, when it was tolde that God was come in to the hoste, and sayde. Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before thys. Wo vnto vs, who shall deliuer vs out of the handes of this myghtye God? this is the God that smote the Egyptians with all maner plages in the wylderneslle. Be stronge and quyte your selues lyke men ye Philistines, that ye be not seruantes vnto the Hebrues, as they haue bene to you. Be men therfore and fyght. And the Philistines foughte, and Israel was put to the worse and fled euerye man in to his tent. And there was a mighty great slaughter, so that there were ouerthrowē of Israel thyrtye thousande fotemen. And the arcke of God was taken, & the two sonnes of Heli, Hophni and Phinehes were ded. And there ran a man of Ben Jamin out of the araye and came to Silo the same daye, with his clothes rente and erthe vpon his heed. And when the man came in, Heli sate vpon a stole by the wayes syde lokynge: for his herte feared for the arcke of God. And the man came in and tolde it in the cittye. And all the city cryed.

When Heli herd the noyse of the crying, he asked what the noyse of ꝑ rumoure ment. And the man hasted, and came in and tolde Heli. Heli was fowre score and eyghteene yere olde, & his sight fayled him that he could not se. And the man said vnto Heli, I am he that ran forth from the araye, and fled out of the hoste this day. And he said, how is it forturned my sonne? And the messenger answered and sayd: Israel is fledde before the Philistines, and there is a great slaughter chaunsed among the people, and thy two sonnes, Hophni and Phinehes are ded, and therto the arcke of God is take. And when he hadde ones named the arcke of God, Heli fell frome his stole backwarde towarde the gate, and his necke brake, and he dyed, for he was olde and vnweldye, and he iudged Israel fourtye yeres.

And his doughter in lawe Phinehes wyfe was with childe, and nye the tyme. And when she herde these tidynges of the takynge of the arcke of God, and that her father in lawe and her husbande were ded, she bowed her selfe and trauayled, for her paynes came vpon her. And aboute the tyme of her deathe, the women that stode aboute her, sayd vnto her, feare not, for thou hast borne a sonne. But she answerd swered not, nor regarded it. And she named the chylde Ichabod, sayinge: honoure is departed from Israel. Because the arche of God was taken, and her father in lawe and her husbande were dead. And therfore she sayd: Israel hathe lost his honour, because the arche of God was taken.

¶ Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast flat before the arche. The Philistines are plagued in the sixte places. The inhabitauntes of Azaron refuse to receyue the arche.

CAPI. V.

1 AND the Philistines toke ꝑ arke of God and caryed it from the helpe stone vnto Asdod, and broughte it in to the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. And whē they of Asdod were risen in the morninge, beholde Dagon laye groueling vpon the erthe before the arche of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon and set him in his place agayne. And whē they rose vp erlye in the next morninge, beholde Dagon laye groueling vpon the grounde before the arche of the Lorde, and his hed & his two handes cut of vpon the threshold, that ꝑ body onely was left on him. Wherfore neither the b preestes of Dagon, ne any man that commeth in to Dagons house might treade on ꝑ threshold of Dagon in Asdod, vnto this daye.

But the hand of the Lorde was heuy vpon them of Asdod, and he destroyed them & smote them with Emerodes, both Asdod and al the coastes therof. And when the men of Asdod saw that so, they sayd: the arke of the God of Israel shal not abyde here with vs, for his hand is sore vpon vs, & vpon Dagon our God. And c so they sente and gathered all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them and said: what shal we do with ꝑ arche of the God of Israel. Then sayd they of Geth, let the arche of the God of Israel be caryed about. And they caryed ꝑ arch of the God of Israel about. And when they had caryed it about, the hande of the Lorde was in the citye with a mighty great plage, & he smote the men of the citye both smal and d great, and they were smytten in their secrete places with the Emerodes. Then they sent the arche of God to Akaron. And as soone as the arke of God came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed out, sayinge: they have broughte the arche of the God of Israel to vs: to slee vs and our people.

Then they sente and set all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them and sayde: sende awaye the arche of the God of Israel, and let it go home agayne vnto his owne place, that it slee vs not with our people. For there was a plage of deth throwe out all the citye, and the hande of God was exceding sore there, in so moche that they which died not, were smitten with the Emerodes: so that the crye of the citye stacked vp to hewen.

¶ The heythen bringe home the arche with the rewarden. The Bethshamites were plagued after they had sene the arche.

CAPI. VI.

A AND so when the arche of the Lorde had ben in the countreye of the Philistines seuen monethes, the Philistines called for the preestes and the sothe sayers, sayinge: what shall we do with the arche of the Lorde? tell vs wherwith we shall sende it home agayne. They answered, yf you send the arche of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not emptye: But rewarde it with a trespace offeryng, and then ye shall be hole, and it shall be knowen to you why his hande departeth not from you.

Then sayd they, what shall be the trespace offeryng, whiche we shall rewarde him with? And they answered: fyue golden arses with Emerodes, and fyue golden myce, accordynge to the nombre of ꝑ Lordes of the Philistines. For it was one maner of plage ꝑ was on you all, and on your Lordes to. Wherfore ye shall make ymages lyke to youre arses with Emerodes, and ymages like to youre myce that destroyed your lande, and shall gyue glorye vnto the God of Israel: that he may take his hand from you, and from youre goddes, and from your lande. Wherfore holde ye harden youre hertes, as the Egyptians and Pharao hardened their hertes, whiche for all that (when he was well scourged) was layne to let the people goo and depart.

Now therfore make a newe carte and take two myche kyne, on whose necke neuer came yoke. And tye the kyne in the carte, and kepe their calues at home home from them. Then take the arche of the Lorde, and put it in the carte, and put the Iewels of golde (which ye rewarde him with, for a trespace offeryng) in a coffer by the syde therof, and sende it awaye and let it go. And marke, yf he goeth vp by the waye that leadeth vnto his own coste to Bethshames, then it is he that hath done vs this great euyll. But yf he do not, then it is not his hand that smote vs, but it was a chaūce that happened vs. And the men did euen so: they toke two kyne that gaue myke and tied them in the carte, & kepte the calues at home, and they layde the arche of the Lorde vpon the carte, and the coffer with the myce of golde, & the ymages of their arses
e with Emerodes. And the kyne toke ꝑ streyght waye to Bethshames, both one waye, and as they went, cryed, turnyng neyther to the right hande ne to the lefte. And the Lordes of the Philistines went after them, tyll they came to the borders of Bethshames.

And they of Bethshames were reapynge their whete in the valey. And they lyft vp their eyes and espied the arche, and reioyced when they saw it. And the cart came into the grounde of one Josua a Bethshamite, and stode stil there. There was there also a greate stone. And they cleue the wodde of the carte, and offered the kyne a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde. And the Lewites take downe the arche of the Lorde, & the coffer that was therby, wherin the Iewels of golde were, and put them on the greate stone. And the men of Bethshames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, and offered offeryngs that same daye vnto the Lorde. And when the fyue Lordes of the Philistines had sene it, they returned to Akaron the same daye. These are the golden ardes with Emerodes, whiche the Philistines gaue to amendes for a trespace offeryng, to the Lorde / for Asdod one / for Gaza one / for Askalon one / for Geth one / and for Akaron one. And the golden myce were accordyng to the nombre of all the cityes of the Philistines thorowe the hole lordshyppes / bothe of walled townes, and of townes vnwalled, euen vnto the great stone whereon they sette downe the arcke of the Lorde: whiche remaineth vn to this daye in the fylde of Iosua the Bethsamyte. And the Lorde plaged the men of Bethsames, because they had sene the iewels that were in the arcke of the Lorde. And he slewe of the people fifty thousande, and thre score & ten persons. And the people lamented because the Lord had made so great a slaughter of the. And the men of Bethsames said, who is able to stande before the Lorde so holy a God, and to whom shall he go from vs? And they sente messengers to the inhabitantes of Kariath Iarim, sayinge: The Philistines haue brought home agayne the arcke of the Lorde: come downe and fet it vp to you.

¶ The arcke is brought to kariathiarim. The people wepe, for whome Samuel maketh intercession to the Lorde. & the Philistines are ouercom.

CAPI. VII.

A Nd the men of Kariathiarim came and fet vp ℣ arcke of the Lorde, & * brought it in to the house of Abinadab in Gabaah, and sanctified Eleazar his sonne to attende vpon the arcke of the Lorde. And while the arcke abode in Kariathiarim, the dayes grewe so, that it was twenty yeres, and all Israel lamented after the Lorde.

* 2. Reg. 6. a

And Samuel spake vnto all Israel, sayinge yf ye be come agayne vnto the Lorde with all your hertes, then * put away the straunge godes from you, Baalim, and Astaroth / and prepare your hertes vnto the Lord, and serue him alone, and so shall he ryd you out of the handes of the Philistines. And then the children of Israel did put away ℣ Baalim and Astaroth, and serued the Lord onely. Then said Samuel / gather all Israel to Maspha, that I may pray for you vnto the Lord. And they assembled at Maspha, and drewe water and poured it out before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye, and sayd there: we haue synned against the Lord. And Samuel iudged the caules of the children of Israel in Maspha. When the Philistines herde that the children of Israel were assembled at Maspha, the Lordes of the Philistines went vp agaynst Israel, which when the children of Israel herde, they were afrayde of the Philistines, and sayd to Samuel / ceasse not to crye vnto the Lorde ours God for vs, that he maye helpe vs out of the handes of the Philistines. And Samuel toke a sucking lambe and offered it hole for a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde, and cryed vnto the Lorde for Israel: & the Lorde herde him. And as Samuel offered the burnt offeryng / the Philistines came to fyght agaynst Israel. But the Lorde thondered a greate thunder that same daye vpon the Philistines, and turmoyled them, that they were beaten before Israel. And the men of Israel issued oute of Maspha, and pursued the Philistines, and slewe them tyl they came vnder Bethcar. And then Samuel toke a stone, & pitched it betwene Maspha and Sen, and called the name therof * the stone of help, saying / thus farre hath the Lord holpe vp. And so the Philistines were broughte vnder ℣ they came no more in to the coastes of Israel / for the hand of the Lorde was vpon the Philistines all the dayes of Samuel. Then the cityes whiche the Philistines had taken frome Israel, came agayne to Israel, from Akaron to Geth, with the coastes of the same, whiche Israel plucked out of the handes of the Philistines. For there was peace betwene Israel and the Amorites. And Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and went about yere by yere to Bethel, Galgal, and Maspha, and iudged Israel in all those places / and came agayne to Ramath, for there was his house / and there he iudged Israel / and there he buylte an aulter vnto the Lorde.

¶ Because Samuelles sonnes dyd mynyster euyll, the people requyre a kynge: and to them is declared the maner of a kynge.

CAPI. VIII.

When Samuel was olde, he made his sonnes Iudges ouer Israell. The name of his eldest sonne was Joel, and the name of the seconde Abiath, whiche were Iudges in Berlabe. Neuertheles his sonnes followed not his steppes / but toumed afyde after lucre, and * toke rewardes, and peruerted iudgement. Then all the elders of Israel gathered them togyther and came to Samuel vnto Ramath, and sayd vnto hym / beholde, thou art olde, and thy sonnes followe not thy wayes. Now therfore * make vs a kynge to iudge vs, as all other nacions haue. But that thyng displeased Samuel, when they sayde: Gyue vs a kyng to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayd vnto Samuel, heare the voyce of the people in all that they saye vnto the. For they haue not cast the away, but me: that I shulde not raygne ouer them. And as they haue euer doone sithens I brought them out of Egypt vnto this daye, & haue forsaken me and serued other godes, euen so do they vnto the. Now therfore harken vnto they voyce / howbe it yet testifye vnto them, and shewe them the power of the kynge that shal raygne ouer them. And Samuel told all the wordes of the Lorde vnto the people that asked a kynge of hym / and he sayde: this shall be the * power of the kynge that shall raygne ouer you: he shall take your sonnes and put them to his charettes, and make his horsmen of them / and they muste runne before his charet, and shal make him capitaynes of them ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, and wil

And he will take your doughters to make them the dreffers of his oyntmentes, & his cookes & bakers. And he shall take the beft of your feldes / & of your vyneyardes, and of your oliue trees, and gyue them to his feruauntes. And he shall take the tenth of your feed, and of your vines, and giue it to his lordes, and to his feruauntes. And he shall take the beft of your menferuauntes and maydferuauntes, and yonge men, and of your affes, and wo his worke with them. And he shall take the tenth of your fhepe, and ye shall be his feruauntes. And when ye crye oute at that tyme vpon youre kynge whiche ye shall haue chofen vnto you, the Lord shal not heare you at that daye.

Neuertheleffe the people wolde not heare the voyce of Samuel, but byd fayc: naye not fo: But there shall be a kynge ouer vs, and we will be lyke all other nacions. And oure kyng shall iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fight our battayles for vs. And Samuel herd all the wordes of the people, and rehersed them in the eares of the Lorde. And the Lorde fayd to Samuel / hathen vnto their voyce, & make them a kyng. Then fayd Samuel vnto the men of Israel: go euery man vnto his city.

¶ Saul the sonne of Cis seketh his fathers Affes and is chosen kynge.

CAPI. IX.

A NOw there was a man of Ben Jamin named Cis, the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Zeror, the sonne of Bechorah, the sonne of Aphiah, the sonne of a man that was a Jeminite, a man of strength, the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly yonge man, so that among the children of Israel there was none goodlyer then he / and was therto from the shoulders vpwarde hyer then all the other people. And it chaunced the Affes of Cis Sauls father were strayed. Then sayde Cis to Saul his sonne / take one of the seruantes with the, & go thy waye and seke the affes. And they went thorow mount Ephraim, & thorow the lande of Salifa, and founde them not. Then they went thorowe the lande of Salim, and there they were not. Then they went also thorowe the land of Jemini, and they found them not. Then when they were come to the lande of Zuph, Saul sayd to the yonge man that was with him: come let vs returne, lest my father leaue carynge for the affes, and take thought for vs. And he answered him / beholde, there is in this cirye a worshipfull man of God, and all that he sayth, commeth to passe. Now then let vs go thither / peraduenture he shal shewe vs what waye we may go. Then sayd Saul to his seruaunt, yf we go, what shal we bring the man? for our breed is all spent out of our bumpers, and there is none other present to bringe the man of God, what haue we? And the yonge man answered to Saul agayne and sayde: I haue founde about me the fourthe parte of a sicle, that will we gyue the man of God to tell vs the waye.

Before tyme in Israel when a man went to seke an answere of God, thus wyse he spake / come and let vs go to the Seer. For he that is now called a Prophet, was in the olde time called a Seer. Then sayd Saul to his yong man, well sayd of the / come let vs go. And so they went vnto the city where the man of God was. And as they were going vp in to the city, they met with damoselis that came oute to drawe water, & sayd vnto them: is there here a Seer? And the maydens answered them / yea, beholde he goeth before you. Make haste now, for he came this day to the city, for the people must offre this day in the hye place. When ye be come into the city, incontinent ye shal fynde him, ere he go vp to the hyl to eate / for the people wil not eate vntyll he come, because he must bleffe the offrynge. And then eate they that be bydde to the feaft. Now therfore get you vp, for euen nowe shall ye fynde him. And they went vp in to the cirye / and when they were come in to the myddes of the cirye / behold Samuel came out agaynst the, to go vp to the hye place. But the Lorde had tolde Samuel the daye before Saul came, saynge: to morowe this tyme I will sende the a man out of the lande of Ben Jamin, him shalte thou annoynte captayne ouer my people Israel, that he maye saue my people from the handes of the Philistines / for I haue loked vpon my people / and their crye is come vnto me. When Samuel sawe Saul, the Lorde sayde to him: se, this is the man whom I spake to the of. This same shal raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the middle of the gate, and sayd / tell me I pray the where is the Seers house? And Samuel answered Saul, and sayd: I am the Seer, go vp before me vnto the hyl, for ye shall eate with me to daye. And to morow I wil let the go cirye / and wil tel the all that is in thyne hert / and as concerning thyne asses that were lost thre dayes a go, care not for them, for they are found. And moreouer who shall haue the beautifull thinges of Israel? belonge they not to the, and vn to all thy fathers house? But Saul answered and sayd: am not I the sonne of a Jemimite of the smallest tribe of Israel, and my kinred the leest of all the kinredes of the tribe of Ben Jamin? wherfore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel toke Saul and his seruaunt and brought them in to the parlour and made them sytte in the chefe place amonges them that were bydden / whiche were vpon a thirtye personnes. Then sayde Samuel vnto the cooke: Bringe for the that meate whiche I gaue the, and of whiche I sayde, reserue this to an other tyme. And the cooke toke vp the shoulder and brought it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel sayd: Behold, that is left set it before the, and eate / for I kepte it for the vnto this tyme, when I called the people. And so Saul did eate with Samuel that daye. And whe they were come downe from the hyll in to the cirye, Samuel communed with Saul in the galleryc: and they arose erly. And about the sprynge of the daye Samuel called Saul in the galerye, sayinge / aryse that I may sende the awaye. And Saul arose. And they went out at the wyes, both he and Samuel. And when they were come almost to the townes ende / Samuel sayd to Saul: byd thy seruaunt go before vs, and he went / but stande thou styll a lytle space, that I maye shewe the what God sayeth.

¶ Saul is anoynted kynge, and Prophecieth. Samuel declareth the people theyr faute, in that they asked a kynge. God sendeth the kynge lyte.

CAPI. X.

A Nd then Samuel toke a horne of oyle, and poured it vpon his heed, and kyssed hym and sayd: the Lorde hath anoynted the to be ruler ouer his inheritaunce. And now when thou arte departed fromme me, thou shalte mete two men by * Rachels sepulchre in the borders of Ben Jamin / euen at Zalesah. And they shal saye vnto the, the asses whiche thou wentest to seke, are founde / but beholde thy father hathe lefte the care of the asses, and soroweth for you, sayinge: what shal I do for my sonne? Then shalt go forth thence and come to the oke of Thabor. And there shalt thou mete thre men going to God to Bethel / one carynge thre lambes, another thre loues of breed / and the thyrde a bottel of wyne. And they shall greete the, and giue the two loues of breed whiche thou shalte receyue of theyr handes. After this thou shalte come to the hylle of God, where the Philistines kepe theyr watche. And when thou arte come thyther to the cyte, thou shalte mete a companye of Prophetes commynge downe fromme the hylle, with a plaiter, a tymbrell, a pype, and a harpe before them / and they prophesienge. And the sprytе of the Lorde shall fall vpon the, and thou shalte prophesie with theym, and shalte be tourned in to an other man. And when these signes are chaunced the, then do what thou hast to do / for God is with the. And thou shalte also go before me to Galgal. And beholde I will come vnto the / for thou shalte sacrifyce burnt sacrifyce and peas offeringes. * Tarye for me seuen dayes, tyll I come and shew the what thou shalt do. And as sone as he had tourned his shoulder to goo from Samuel, God gaue him an other manner of herte, and all those tokens came effecte that same day. When they came to the hyl, beholde the companye of Prophetes met him, and the * sprite of God came vpon him, and he prophesied amonges them. And al that knew him before, when they sawe he prophesied among the prophetes, sayd eche to other: what is happened vnto the sonne of Cis? Is Saul also amonge the Prophetes? And one of the same place answered and sayde: who is theyr father? And therof sprange a prouerbe: is Saul also among the Prophetes? And whe he had made an ende of prophesienge, he came to the hyll. Saules uncle sayd vnto him and his seruaunt: whyther went ye? And he answered: to seke the asses, and when we sawe them no where, we went to Samuel. Then sayd Saules uncle: tell me what Samuel sayde vnto you. And Saul answered his uncle: he tolde vs the asses were founde. But of the kyngdome whereof Samuel spake, tolde he him not. After that Samuel called the people together vnto the Lorde to Maspha, and sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: I brought you out of Egypt, and deliuered you forth of the handes of the Egyptians, and forth of the handes of all kingdomes & oppressed you. And ye haue this daye cast awaye your Lorde God that by him self holpe you out of al your aduersities and tribulacions / and ye haue sayd vnto him: * make a kyng ouer vs. Now therfore stande before the Lorde by youre tribes and youre houses. And when Samuel had brought all the trybes of Israel, the tribe of Ben Jamin was take forth by lot. When he had brought the tribe of Ben Jamin by them kinredes, the lot fel vpon & kinrede of Matri / and so went & lot thorow vnto it came to Saul & son of Cis. And they sought him, but he could not be found. Then they asked the Lorde further, whether the man shold come thither or no. And the Lorde answered / beholde, he hath hid him self among the stuffe. And they ran and fet him thence. And when he stode among the people, he was hyer then any of the people, fromme the shoulders vpwarde. And Samuel sayde to all the people: se ye, whome the Lorde hathe chosen, and howe there is none lyke hym among all the companye. And the people shouted and sayde: God sende the kynge lyfe.

Then Samuel tolde the people the law of the realme, and wrote it in a boke / and layd it vp before the Lorde / and so sent all the people awaye, euery man to his house. And Saul also went home to Gabaah. And there went with him an hoste, suche as God had touched their hertes. But the chyldren of vnthryfte sayde: how shall he saue vs? and despysed hym, and broughte hym not presentes. And he made as though he had not herde it.

¶ The people beinge deliuered fromme the tyranny of Nahas, reneweth the kyngdome of Saul.

CAPI. XI.

Then Nahas the Ammonyte came and besieged Jabes in Galaad. And all the people of Jabes sayde vnto Nahas: make a couenaunt with vs, and we wyll be thy seruauntes. And Nahas the Ammonyte sayde: to this wyll I make a couenaunt with you, euen to thruste oute all your ryght eyes, that I maye make all Israel ashamed of you. Then sayde the elders of Jabes: Gyue vs seuen dayes respyte, that we maye sende messengers vnto all the costes of Israel. And then yf there come no man to helpe vs, we wyll come oute to the. Then came the messengers to Gabaah where Saul dwelte, and tolde this thynges in the eares of the people. And all the people lyfte vp their voyces and wept.

And

And beholde Saul came folowynge his oxen from the felde, and asked what ayled the people to wepe. And they tolde him the tidynges of the men of Jabes. Then came the spirite of God vpon Saul, when he herde thole tydynges, and he was exceedyng angry. And toke a yoke of oxen and hewed them in peces, and sent them thorowe oute all the coostes of Israel by the handes of messengers, saying: who so euer commeth not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall his oxen be serued. Then the feare of the Lorde fell on the people, and they came out as it had ben but one man. And when they were nombred in Bezek, the children of Israel were thre hundred thousande/ and the men of Juda thirtye thousande. And they sayde vnto the messengers that came: so saye vnto the men of Jabes in Galaad: to morowe by that tyme the sonne be hoote, ye shal haue helpe. And the messengers came and shewed the men of Jabes, and they were glad. And then the men of Jabes said/ to morowe we wil come out vnto you, that ye may doo with vs al ꝑ pleaseth you. And on the morow Saul put the people in thre partes. And they came in vpon the hoste in the morning watche, & slewe the Ammonites tyll the heat of the daye. And they that remayned, scattered: so that two of them were not lefte together. Then sayde the people to Samuel: what are they that sayde, shall Saul raygne ouer vs? bringe them that we maye slee them. But Saul sayd there shal no man dye this daye/ for to daye the Lorde hath saued Israel.

Then sayd Samuel vnto his people: come and lette vs goo to Galgall, and renewe the kyngdome there. And the people went to Galgall, and made Saul kynge there before the Lorde in Galgall. And there they offered peace offeringes before the Lorde. And there Saul and all the people reioysed highly.

¶ Samuel being an innocent Judge/ the people them selues to witnesse/ argueth the people of vnkyndnes because they demaunded a kynge. Yet whan repenteth and beleueth, God forgiueth, because of his promyse.

CAPI. XII.

Then sayd Samuel vnto all Israel/ beholde, I haue obeyed youre voyce in all ye sayd vnto me, and haue made you a kynge. And loo, youre kynge goeth before you. But I am olde and grete headed: and behold, my sonnes are with you, and I haue lyued amonges you from my chyldhode vnto this daye. Behold, here I am: answere me before the Lorde, and before his annoynted/ whose oxe haue I taken? or whose asse haue I taken? whome haue I wrong to? or whome haue I pylled? And of whose hande haue I receyued anye bryde to blynde myne eyes therwith? and I wyll restore it you ayayne. And they sayde, thou hast wrong vs no wrong, nor pylled vs/ neither hast thou taken aught of any mannes hande. Then sayde he to them: the Lorde is wytnesse vnto you, and his annoynted is wytnesse this daye, that ye haue founde nought in my handes. And they answered: we are witnesses. Then sayde Samuel vnto the people/ it is the Lorde ꝑ that made Moses and Aaron, whiche brought youre fathers oute of Egypte. Now therefore stande styl/ and lette me reason with you before the Lorde, of all the mercyes of the Lorde, which he shewed bothe vnto you and youre fathers. After that Jacob was come in to Egypt, youre fathers cryed vnto the Lorde, and the Lorde sent Moses and Aaron, and brought youre fathers oute of Egypte, and made them dwell in this place. Neuertheles they forgate the Lorde theyr God. And he solde them in to the hande of Sisara chefe captayne of Jabin kynge of Hazor, and in to the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the kynge of Moab whiche fought agaynst them. Then they cryed vnto the Lorde and sayd: we haue synned, because we haue forsaken the Lorde, and haue serued Baalim and Astharoth. But nowe delyuer vs oute of the handes of oure ennemyes, and we wyll serue the. And the Lorde sente Jerobaal ꝑ Baban, Jephthah, and Samuel, and deliuered you oute of the handes of youre ennemyes on euery syde, so that ye dwelled without feare. And for all this when you sawe that Nahas the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon came agaynst you, ye said vnto me: not so, a kynge shal raygne ouer vs, when yet the Lord your God was your kyng. Now therefore beholde the kyng whom ye haue chosen, and whome ye haue desyred: se/ the Lorde hathe gyuen you a kynge. Oh that he wolde feare the Lorde and serue him, & heare his voyce, and not disobeye the mouthe of the Lorde: and that bothe ye and the kynge that raygneth ouer you wolde folowe the Lorde youre God. For yf ye shall not harken vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but shall disobeye the Lordes mouthe/ then shall the handes of the Lorde be vpon you, and on your fathers. Now also stande and se this greate thynge whiche the Lorde wyll do before youre eyes: is it not nowe whete harueste? And yet for all that, I wil call vnto the Lorde, and he shal sende thunder and rayne. Wherby perceyue and vnderstande, how that youre wyckednesse is greate, whiche ye haue done in the sight of the Lorde, in askynge you a kynge. And when Samuel called vnto the Lorde, the Lorde sente thunder and rayne the same daye. And all the people feared the Lorde and Samuel exceedyngly. Then sayd all the people vnto Samuel: praye for thy seruauntes vnto the Lorde thy God, that we dye not: for we haue synned in askynge vs a kynge, besyde all the synnes that euer we dyd.

Then sayd Samuel vnto the people: feare not. And thoughe ye haue wrought all this wyckednesse, yet depart not from the Lorde in any case: But serue hym with all youre hertes. Neyther turne ye after vayne thynges whiche shall not profyte you nor be able to deliuer you, for they are but vanities. And the Lorde wyll not forsake his people, because of his greate names sake: because the Lorde hathe begonne to make you his people. Moreouer God toyned that I holde synne agaynste the Lorde in leauynge prayinge for you, and to shewe you the good and ryghte waye. Onely feare you the Lorde and serue hym truly with all your hertes: for lo, he hathe wone greate thynges for you. But yf ye shall wo wicked lye, then shall both ye and youre kynge perysshe.

¶ The Philistines are smytten of Saul and Jonathas. Saul brynge disobedient to Godes commaundement is shewed of Samuel that he shall not raygne.

CAPI. XIII.

IT was nowe an hole yere after that Saul had begon to raygne. And when he hadde raygned two yeres ouer Israel, he chose him thre thousande men out of Israel. Two thousande were with Saul in Machmas & mount Bethell / and a thousande with Jonathas in Gabaah / Ben Jamin. And the rest of the people he sente home, euerye man to his house. So Jonathas slew the Philistines in an hold that they had in Gabaah / and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul caused the trompet to be blowen thorowe oute all the lande, saying let the Ebrues heare. And all Israel herd saye how that Saul had destroyed an holde of the Philistines, and that Israel stanke afore the Philistines. And all the people cryed after Saul to Galgal.

Then the Philistines gathered them selues togyther to fyghte with Israel, thyrtye thousande charettes, and sixe thousande horsemen, with other people lyke the * sand by the sees syde in multitude / and came vp and pitched in Machmas eastwarde from Bethauen. And when the men of Israel saw them selues in a straite, and that the people were discomforted, they hyd them selues in caues, in preuye holes, in rockes, dennes, and pyttes. And the Ebrues went ouer Jordan vnto the lande of Gad and Galaad. But Saul was yet in Galgal / and all the people that followed him were dismayed. And he taryed seuen dayes, as Samuel had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Galgal / and the people scattered from hym. Wherfore Saul sayd, bryngе me burnte sacrifyce, and peas offrynges. And he offered burnt sacrifyce. And as soone as he had ended his burnt offrynges / beholde Samuel came. And Saul wente agaynste him to grete hym. Then sayde Samuel to Saul: what haste thou wone? And Saul sayde, bycause I sawe that the people scattered from me / and that thou camest not within the dayes appoynted / and that the Philistines gathered them selues togyther to Machmas: then sayd I, the Philistines shal come down vpon me to Galgal er I haue made my prayer vnto the Lord. And therfore when they enforced me, I offerd burnte offrynges. Then sayde Samuel to Saul / thou haste wone folyshly, and hast not kepte the commaundement of the Lorde thy God, whiche he commaunded the / whiche thynge yf thou haddest not wone at this time wolde the Lorde haue stablysshed thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. But nowe thy kyngdome shall neuer stonde agayne. The Lorde hath sought him a man after his owne hert, and hath commaunded him to be a capitayne ouer his people / bycause thou haste not kepte that the Lorde commaunded the. And Samuel arose and gat him frome Galgal to Gabaah Ben Jamin. And Saul nombred the people that were founde with him, aboute a hundred men. And Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and the people that were founde with them, bade tary abydynge in Gabaah Ben Jamin. But the Philistines had pytched in Machmas. And there came out of the hoste of the Philistines thre companyes, to destroy / one company turned vnto the waye that leadeth to Ephrah vnto the lande of Saul / an other company turned the way to Bethoron / and the thyrde companye turned to the waye of the coste that turneth to the valeye of Zeboim towarde the wildernesse. But there was no smyth thorowe out all the lande of Israel. For the Philistines were ware that § Ebrues sholde not make them selues neither swerdes nor speres. And therfore muste all Israel goo downe to the Philistines to mende euerye man his share, his mattocke, his axe, or his sickle / as ofte as the edges of the sickles, mattockes, dongforkes, and axes were blunt, and muste we had vnto the sethye to be amended. And so in tyme of battayle, there was neyther swerde nor spere founde in the handes of anye of the people that were with Saul and Jonathas: saue for Saul and Jonathas his sonne was there somwhat found. And the armye of the Philistines came out and stode on the other syde before Machmas.

¶ Jonathas companyed with his esquyre putteth the Philistines to flight. He tasteth the hony whyb his father vnknowing to him, had forbidden the hole host, for which he shulde haue dene slayne, but the people deliuered him.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND it fell on a daye that Jonathas the sonne of Saul sayde vnto his younge man that bare his harnesse / come and let vs goo ouer to the watche men of the Philistines that are yonder on the other syde, and tolde not his father. But Saul taryed in the vttermoste parte of Gabaah vnder a pomegarnet tree that was in Magron / and the people that were with him were aboute sixe hundred men. And Ahiah the sonne of Ahitob Jhabodes brother, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Heli was the Lordes preest in Silo and bare an Ephod. But the people wyste not that Jonathas was gone.

And in the way by which Jonathas sought to goo ouer vnto the garrison of the Philistines, were there two sharpe rockes, thone on the one syde, and an other on the other syde: the one called Boses, and § other Seneh. And the one standeth northwarde towarde Mach-mas,

mas, and the other southwarde towarde Gabaab. Then sayde Jonathas to the younge man his harneysbearer: come and let vs go ouer vnto the standyng of these vncircumcised, paraduenture the Lorde wil worke with vs: for the Lord is able to saue eyther with many or with fewe. And his harneysbearer sayd vnto him do all that is in thine herte: let the forwarde: go se, I am with the, as thine herte iusteth. Then sayd Jonathas: beholde, whe we go ouer vnto the men, and shewe our selues vnto them: yf they saye on this wyse to vs: tarye tyll we come to you, then we wyll stand styll where we be and not goo vp vnto them. But yf they so saye vnto vs: come hyther vnto vs, then we will goo vp, for the Lorde hath deliuered them into our handes. And this shall be a signe vnto vs. And when they had both shewed theym selues vnto the garrison of the Philistines, the Philistines sayde: se, the Hebrewes come out of the holes were they had hyd them selues in. And the men of the garrison answered Jonathas and his harneisbearer and sayde: come vp to vs, & we will shewe you a thinge. Then sayde Jonathas vnto his harneisbearer: come after me, for the Lorde hath deliuered them into ꝑ handes of Israell. And Jonathas clame vpon his handes and fete, and his harneisbearer after him. Then they fell before Jonathas: and his harneisbearer slewe them after him. And the firste slaughter which Jonathas and his harneisbearer made, was vpon a twenty men, within ꝑ compasse as it were aboute an halfe aker of lande. And there was a feare in the hoste that was in the felde, and amonge all the people: in so moche that they that kept the holde, and they that were gone to robbe, were afrayd also: and the earth trembled, and there was a feare sente of God. And the watche men of Saul in Gabaab Ben Jamin, sawe. And beholde, the people scattered and ran hyther and thyther. Then sayde Saul vnto the people ꝑ was with him: nombre & se who is gone away from vs. And when they had tolde: behold, Jonathas & his harneisbearer were not there. And then Saul sayde vnto Ahia: bringe hyther the Arche of God. For the arche of God was at that tyme with the children of Israel. And whyle Saul talked vnto the preste, a lowde shrimysshe beganne in the hoste of the Philistines, and it encreased and was harde with a great noyse. And Saul sayde vnto the preest: withdrawe thyne hande. And Saul assembled all the people that were with him, and went to the holde. And se, euery mannes swerde was against his felowe, & there was great slaughter wrought. Moreouer the Hebrewes that were with the Philistines before ꝑ tyme, and were come with them in all partes of the hoste, turned to the children of Israell that were with Saul and Jonathas. And they also which had hyd them selues in mount Ephraim, hearinge that the Philistines were fled, put them selues in prease with Saules men, & pursued the Philistines, and so God holpe Israell that daye. And the battayle continued tyll they came to Bethauen. And the men of Israell ioyned them selues together that day: and Saul adiured the people sayeng: Cursed be he that eateth any fode vntyll nyght, that I maye be auenged of myne enemyes. And so there was none of the people that tasted any fode. And all the land came to a wood, where hony laye vpon the grounde. And when the people were come into the wod: Beholde, ꝑ hony dropped. Howbeit there was no man that moued his hande to his mouth, because that the people feared the curse. But Jonathas herde not when his father adiured the people, wherfore he put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hand and dypte it in an hony combe, and put his hande to his mouth and forthwith his eyen receyued their old vertue and courage. Then spake one of the people and sayde: thy father adiured the people, sayenge: Cursed be the man that eateth any fode this daye, and yet the people were fayne. Then sayde Jonathas: my father hath troubled the lande: for beholde my eyen haue recouered their power and strength, because I tasted a lytle of this hony: how then yf all ꝑ people had eaten of the spoyle of their enemyes which they founde, had there not bene then a moche greatter slaughter amonge the Philistines? And they layde on the Philistines that daye, frome Machmas to Aialon. But the people were exceadynge fayntie.

Then the people gat them to the spoyle, & toke shepe oxen and calues, and slewe them on the grounde, and dyd eate with the bloud. Then men tolde Saul, sayenge: Beholde ꝑ people synne against the Lorde, in that they eate with the bloude. And he sayde: ye haue trespased, But rolle a greate stone vnto me now, and go abrode amonge the people and byd them bringe euery man his ore, and euery man his shepe, and slay them here, & synne not against the Lorde, in eatynge with the bloude. And the people brought euery man his ore in his hande by nyght and slewe them there. And Saul made an aultare vnto the Lorde, And that was the first aultare that he made vnto the Lorde. And Saul sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistines by nyght, and let vs make hauocke amonge them tyll it be daye in the mornyng, and let vs not leaue one of them. And the people answered, do whatsoeuer than thinketh best. Then sayde ꝑ preste: Let vs come hyther vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shall I goo downe after the Philistines? and wylt thou geue them into myne handes? But he answered him not at that tyme. Then sayde Saul, let the people come hyther out of all quarters, & knowe and se, in whome this synne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as the Lorde liueth, whiche hath saued Israell, thoughe it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye for it. But no man answered him of all the people.

Then he sayde vnto all Israell: Be ye on one syde, and I and Jonathas my sonne wyll be on an other. And the people sayde vnto Saul: What thou thinkest best that do. And Saul sayde vnto the Lorde God of Israell: geue perfect knowledge. And Saul and Jonathas nathas were apprehended by the lotte, and the people escaped free. Then sayde Saul: caste lottes betweene me and Jonathas my sonne: Jonathas was taken by the lot. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas: tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathas told him and sayd: I tasted a lytle honye vpon the ende of my staffe: that was in myne hande, and lo, I must dye.

Then sayde Saul God deale so and so with me, but yt thou dye Jonathas. But the people sayde vnto Saul: shall Jonathas dye whiche hath so mygtely holpe Israel? God forbyd. As truthe as the Lorde lyueth, there shal not one heare of his hed fal to the grounde: for he hathe wrought with God this daye. And so the people delyuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saul ceased from followynge the Philistines. And the Philistines retourned to their owne place. And so Saul toke the kyngdome ouer Israell, and foughte against all his enemyes on euery syde: against the Moabites: against the childeren of Ammon: against the Edomites: against the kynges of Zobah, and against the Philistines. And whether so euer he turned him self, there he wanne, and tormented him self valiauntly, and slewe the Amalechites, and dyd Israell ouer of the handes of them that spoyled them. The sonnes of Saul were Jonathas, Jesui, and Melchisua. And his two doughters were thus named: the elder Merob, and the younger Michol. And the name of Saules wyfe was Ahinoam, the doughter of Ahimaas. And the name of his chefe capitayne was Abner the sonne of Ner Saules vncle. And Cis was Saules father. And Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel. And there was sore warre with the Philistines, all the dayes of Saul. For where so euer Saul sawe a stronge man, and an actiue, he toke him vnto him.

The people delyuer Jonathas that he dye not.

1. Reg. 9. 2. Para. viii.

¶ Saul is commaunded to slay Amalech. He is disobedient to the voyce of God, and taketh the spoyle for whiche the Lorde forsaketh him. Samuel mourneth for Saul.

CAPI. XV.

THen sayde Samuel vnto Saul: the Lord sent me to annoynte the, kynge ouer his people Israell. Howe therfore obeye thou the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I haue taken to remembraunce all that euer Amalech hath wrought to Israel, how they laye in wayte for them in the waye, as they came out of Egypte. Now therfore go and smyte the Amalechites, and destroye ye only all that pertayneth vnto them, and se thou haue no compassion on them, but slay man and woman, infant and suckelinge, oxe, sheepe, camell, & asse. And Saul assembled the people, and nombred them in Telaim two hundred thousande foote men, and ten thousande men of Juda. And Saul came vnto a cytie of the Amalechites, & fought in a valey. But Saul sayd vnto the Kenites: go & departe & get ye away from the Amalechites, lest I destroy you with them for ye shewed mercy to Israell when they came out of Egypte. And the Kenites departed frome the Amalechites. And Saul slewe the Amalechites frome Heuila to Sur that lyeth before Egypte, and toke Agag the kynge of the Amalechites a lyue, and vtterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the swerde. But Saul and the people spared Agag, and they left of the sheepe and of the oxen and fat thinges and the lambes and all that was good, & wolde not destroye them. But all that was nought worth and laggye, that they destroyed vtterly. Then came the worde of the Lord vnto Samuel, sayeng: it forthinketh me that I haue made Saul kynge. For he is turned frome me and hath not fulfilled my commaundementes, wherfore Samuel was euyl apayd and cryed vnto the Lorde all nyght. And Samuel arose early, to mete Saul in the morninge. And it was tolde Samuel that Saul was come to Carmel, and hadde set him vp a pyller of triumphe. And was turned and departed and gone to Galgal.

And when Samuel was come to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue wrought the commaundement of the Lorde. And Samuel answered: What meaneth then the bleatinge of the sheepe in myne eares, and the noyse of the oxe which I heare? And Saul sayde: they haue brought them frome the Amalechites. For the people spared the best of the sheepe and of the oxen, to sacrifice vnto the Lorde thy God. And the rest we haue destroyed. But Samuel sayde to Saul: cease, and let me tell the what the Lord hath sayde to me this nyghte. And he sayde vnto him: saye on. And Samuel sayd, when thou were lytle in thyne own sight, wert thou not made the hed of the tribes of Israell? And the Lorde annoynted the, kyng ouer Israel. And then the Lorde sent the on a viage, and sayde vnto the, se thou vtterlye destroye those synners the Amalechites and fight against them, tyll ye haue vtterly destroyed them, wherfore then hast thou nowe not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: But bydest turne to the praye and hast wrought wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde?

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: I haue obeyed the voyce of the Lorde, and wente the waye which the Lord sent me, & haue brought Agag the kynge of the Amalechites. And haue vtterlye destroyed the Amalechites. And the people toke of the spoyle, sheepe, oxen, and the cheefe of the thinges which shuld haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lorde thy God in Galgal. Then sayde Samuel, requireth the Lorde burnt sacrifices and offeringes, and not rather that thou shuldest obaye his voyce? Beholde, to obaye is better then offering, and to gyue hede, is better, then the fat of Rammes. For rebellyousnesse is as the synne of witchecraft: and stubburnesse is wickednesse and Idolatrye. Because therfore thou hast cast awaye the worde of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also / frome beynge kynge. Then sayde Saul to Samuel: I haue synned, synned, for I haue offended the mouthe of the Lorde, and thy wordes, because I feared the people and they obayed their voyce. But now take awaye my synne, and turne againe with me, that I maye worshype the Lorde. Then sayd Samuel vnto Saul: I wyl not returne with the: for thou hast cast awaye the commaundement of God, and therfore the Lorde hath cast awaye the also, that thou shalte not be kynge ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned to goo awaye, he caught the lappe of his coote, and it rente. Then Samuel sayde, the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome of Israel fro this daye, and hath geuen it to a neyghboure of thyne that is better then thou. And therto, he that geueth victorye to Israell, will not beguyle nor repent, for he is not a man, that can repente. Then he sayde: I haue synned. But yet honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israell, and turne againe with me, that I maye praye vnto the Lorde thy God. And Samuel turned again & followed Saul. And Saul prayd vnto ℣ Lord. The sayde Samuel: Bringe ye hyther to me Agag the kyng of the Amalechites. And Agag came vnto him likeatly. And Agag sayde: truely ℣ bytternesse of death commeth on. And Samuel sayde: As thy sweorde hath made wemē childelesse, so shall thy mother be childelesse amonge other wemen. And so Samuel hewed Agag in peces before the Lorde in Galgal. And the Samuel departed to Ramath. And Saul went home to his house to Gabaah Saul. But Samuel came no more to se Saul tyll the day of his deathe. Neuertheles Samuel mouened for Saul, because the Lorde repented that he had made him kynge ouer Israell.

¶ Dauid is anoynted kinge: and receyueth the holy ghost. An euyll spirite commeth vpon Saul whe the departeth when Dauid playeth.

CAPI. XVI.

AND then the Lorde sayd vnto Samuel: How longe wilt thou mourne for Saul seyng I haue caste hym awaye from raygnynge ouer Israel? fyll an horne with oyntmente, and come: I will sende the to Iesse the Bethlehemite, for I haue espyed me a kynge amonge his sonnes. But Samuel answered: how shall I go? For Saul shal heare it and will kyll me. And the Lord sayd: Take an heyfer with the, and say, thou goest to offer to the Lorde. And call Iesse to the offringe, and I wil shewe the what thou shalte do: And thou shalte annoynte him, whome I shall assigne the. And Samuel dyd as ℣ Lord bad him. And when he came to Bethlehem, ℣ elders of the towne were astonyed at his comynge, and sayd: Betokeneth thy comming peace? and he sayde yea, for I am come to offer vnto the Lorde. ✠ Clense your selues and come with me to the offringe. And he purified Iesse and his sonnes, and bad them to the offring. And when they were come he loked on Eliab and sayd: the Lordes annointed is before him. But the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel Loke not on his fayrenesse nor on the heyght of his stature, for I haue refused him. Because it is not as man seeth. For man loketh on the outwarde appearaunce: but the Lorde beholdeth the herte. Then Iesse called Abinadab, & made him come before Samuel. And he sayd: Neyther hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then Iesse made Samah come, and he sayde: neyther yet hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then made Iesse seuen of his sonnes come before Samuel. And Samuel sayd, the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

Then sayde Samuel to Iesse: Are here all thy children? And he sayde: The youngest is yet beyonde: Beholde, he keepeth the sheepe. Then Samuel sayde vnto Iesse: sende and fet him for we will not sit downe to meat tyll he be come hyther. And he sent and brought him in. And he was ruddy and a goodly creature of maheade, and of a pleasaunt countenaunce. And then the Lorde sayde aryse and annoynt him: for this is he. And Samuel toke ℣ horne with the oyntement and annoynted him in ℣ presens of his brethren. And the spyrite of ℣ Lorde came vpon Dauid, from that daye forwarde. Then Samuel arose vp and went to Ramath. But the spirite of the Lorde departed frome Saul, and an euyll spyrite sent of ℣ Lorde, vexed him. Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: Behold, an euyll spyrite sent of God vexeth the, let our Lorde therfore cōmaunde his seruauntes to seke a mā that is a cunning player with an harpe. And then when the euil spirite sent of God, cōmeth vpon the, he may playe with his hand, and thou shalt be eased. And Saul sayde vnto his seruauntes: seke me a man that can well playe, and bringe him to me. Then answered one of his seruauntes & sayde: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Iesse the Bethlehemite, that can playe vpon swete instrumentes, and is an actiue knowe, and a man of warre, and wyse, and well made, & the Lord is with him, wherupon Saul sent messengers vnto Iesse, and sayde: Sende me Dauid thy sonne which is with the sheepe. And Iesse toke an asse laden with breed, and a flacket of wyne and a kydde, and sente them by Dauid his sonne vnto Saul. And Dauid went to Saul, and came before him, and he loued him very well, so that he was made his page. And Saul sente to Iesse, sayenge: Let Dauid remayne with me, for he hath founde fauour in my sight. And when the spirite of God came vpon Saul, Dauid toke an harpe and played with his hande, and so Saul was refreshed, and dyd amende, and the euyll spirite departed frome him.

¶ The battayle of the Philistines agaynste Israel. Dauid ouercommeth great Goliath.

CAPI. XVII.

THE Philistines gathered their hoste to battayle, and assembled at Socoh in Iuda, and pytched betwene Socoh and Azekah, in the ende of Dommim. And Saul and the men of Israell came and pytched in Ochedaig dale, and put them selues in araye, to fyghte agaynste the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyl on the one syde, and Israel on an hyl on the other syde, and a valey betwene them. And there came a man and stode in the myddes, out of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth, fyre cubites and an handbreeth long, and had an helmet of brasse vpon his heed, and a coote of mayle about him. And the weyght of his coote of mayle was fyue thousande sycles of brasse. And he hadde harnesse of brasse vpon his legges, and a shylde of brasse vpon his shoulders. And the staff of his spere was lyke a weuers beame. And his spere heed waged fyre hundred sycles of yron. And one bearynge a shylde went before him.

Goliath.

And he stode and called vnto the hoste of Israel, and sayde vnto them: what meaneth that ye shuld come out in araye to battayle? am not I a Philistine, and you seruauntes to Saule? chose you a man, and lett him come downe to me, yf he be able to fyght with me and to beate me, then we wyll be youre seruantes. But if I can ouercom him and beate him: ye shall be our seruantes and serue vs. And the Philistine sayde: I haue defyed the hoste of Israel this daye, gyue me a man and let vs fyght to gyther. When Saul and al Israel herd those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged and greately afrayed. Now Dauid was the sonne of an Ephrathite of Bethlehem Juda, named Isai, whiche Isai hadde eyghte sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saule amonge the people. And the thre eldeste sonnes of Isai were gone and folowed Saul to battayle. And the names of his thre sonnes that went to battayle, were: Eliab the eldest, and the myddemost Abinadab, and the thyrde Samah, and Dauid was the youngest. And when the thre eldest were gone after Saul, Dauid went and departed from Saul, to kepe his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forthe euery morynge and euenynge, and continued thus fourtye dayes.

And Isai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne: take for thy brethren this Epha of parched corne, and these ten loues, and ren to the host to thy brethren, and carye these ten fresshe cheses vnto the captayne, and loke how thy brethren fare, and fet out them pledges. And Saul and they and al the men of Israel were in the valeye fyghtyng with the Philistines. And Dauid arose vp early in the morynge, and lefte the shepe with a kepar, and toke and went as Isai had commaunded him, and came where the hoste laye. And the hoste was goynge out in araye, & shouted in the battayle, for Israel & the Philistines had put them selues in araye, the one agaynst the other. Then Dauid put his parnel from him, vnto the handes of the keper of the vessels, and ranne in to the host & came and greted his brethre. And as he talked with them. Beholde, there stode a man in the middes Goliath the Philistyne, by name, of Geth, whiche came out of the araye of the Philistines, and spake in the maner afore rehersed, that Dauid herde it. And all the men of Israel when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from him, and were sore afrayde. And euery man of Israel sayd: Se ye this man that is come forth, surely to reuyle Israel is he come. And to him that beateth him wyll the kyng gyue great riches, and wil gyue him his daughter therto: yea and make his fathers house free in Israel. Then spake Dauid to the men that stode by and sayde: What shall the man haue that beateth this Philistine and taketh awaye the shame from Israel? for what is this vncircumcysed Philistine, that he shuld reuyle the hoste of the lyuynge God? And the people answered as is rehersed, sayenge: thus shall he be rewarded that canne vanquysshe him. Eliab his eldeste brother herde when he spake vnto the men, and was angry with Dauid & sayde: Why camest thou awaye? and with whome hast thou left those fewe shepe in the wildernesse? I knowe thy pryde and the malice of thyne herte, that thou arte come to se the battel. And Dauid answered, what haue I now done? is there any more cause a worde? And departed from him into an other frome, and spake in the same maner, and the people answered him agayne, as before. And they that herde the wordes which Dauid spake, rehersed them before Saul, whiche caused him to be fet. And Dauid sayde to Saul: Let no mans herte fayne, for dread of him. Thy seruaunt will go and fight with this Philistine. And Saul sayde to Dauid agayne, thou art not able to go vnto this Philistine, to fight with him. For thou arte but a childe, and he hath bene a man of warre euer from his youth. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul, as thy seruaunt kept his fathers shepe, there came a Lyon, & lykewyse a Beare, and toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him, and smote him and toke it out of his mouth. And when he arose against me, I caught him by his beard and smote him, and slewe him. For both a Lyon and also a Beare hathe thy seruaunte slayne. And this vncircumcysed Philistine shalbe as one of them, for his taryinge on the hoste of the lyuynge God. And Dauid spake moreouer, the Lorde that deliuered me out of the handes of the Lyon and out of the handes of the Beare, shall deliuer me also out of the handes of the Philistine.

Then sayde Saul to Dauid goo, and the Lorde be with the. And Saul put his rayment vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpō his heed, and put a coote of mayle vpon him, and gyrded Dauid with his owne swerde vpō his rayment. And he assayed howe he couthe go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul: I can not go in these, for I haue not bene vsed therto, and put them of him. & toke his staffe in his hand, and chose him fyue smothe stones out of a broke, and put them in a shepeherdes bagge whiche he hadde, and toke his slynge in his hande, and went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and drue nere to Dauid, with the man that bare a shylde before hym. And when the Philistine loked and sawe Dauid: he disdayned him, for he was but a younglynge, roudye and goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayde vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou commest to me with a staffe? and he cursed Dauid in the name of his Goddes. And he sayd to Dauid: come to me & I wyll gyue thy fleshe vnto the fowles of ‡ ayre, and to the beastes of the feld. Then sayd Dauid to the Philistine: thou commest to me with a sweerde a speare and a thilde: But I come to the, in the name of the Lorde of hoostes, the God of the hoost of Israel on whom thou hast cayled. This daye shall the Lorde gyue the into my handes, and I shall smyte the and take thyne hed from the, and I wil giue the carkases of the hoost of the Philistines this daye vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the earth, and all the worlde shall knowe, that there is a God in Israel. And all this companye shall knowe, that the Lorde saueth not with the sworde and speare. For the battaple is the Lordes, and he shall gyue you in to our handes.

for

And when the Philistine arose and came and drewe nygh vnto Dauid, Dauid hasted & came to fyght agaynste the Philistine. And Dauid put his hand in his poke and toke out a stone and slange it, and smote the Philistine in his forhed that the stone sonke in to his forhed, and he fell grouelynge to the earth. And so Dauid ouercam the Philistine with a sling and a stone, and smote the Philistine and slew him. And because Dauid had no sweerde in his handē, he ran and stode vpon the Philistine, & toke his sweerde and drewe it out of his sheathe and slewe him and cut of his hed therwith.

And when the Philistines sawe their champion dead, they fled. And the men of Israel and of Juda arose and shouted and followed after the Philistines, tyll they came to the valeye and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe dead by the waye to Saarayim euen vnto Geth and Akaron. And then the children of Israel returned from chasinge after the Philistines, and spoyled their tentes. And Dauid toke the hed of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem: But he put his armoure in his tent. But when Saul saw Dauid ryse forth against the Philistine, he sayd vnto Abner the capitayne of his hoost: Abner, whose sonne is this ponge man? And Abner answered, as truely as thy soule lyueth, O kynge, I can not tell. Then sayde ‖ kynge: Enquire thou, yf he be some noble mans sonne. And so when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke him and brought him before Saul, with the hed of the Philistine in his hande. And Saul sayde vnto him: Whose sonne arte thou, thou ponge man? And Dauid answered the sonne of thy seruaunte Jsai the Bethlehemite.

¶ The bonde betweene Dauid and Jonathas. Saul goeth about to slee Dauid. Dauid marieth Michol the daughter of Saul.

CAPI. XVIII.

And so when he had made an ende of spekynge vnto Saul, the soule of Jonathas was knyt with the soule of Dauid. In so moche, that he loued him, as his owne soule. And Saul toke him that daye & wold let him go no more home to his fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid bounde them selues the one to the other, for Jonathas loued him as his owne lyfe. And Jonathas put of his owne cote that was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, and therto his mantle, his sweerde, his bowe, and his gyrdle. And Dauid went out to all that Saul sent him, and behaued him selfe wysely. And whē Saul had set him ouer his men of warre, he pleased all the people, and especyally them that were Sauls seruauntes. A Jonathas. B

And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned frome the slaughter of the Philistine, that women came out of all cyties of Israel synginge & daunsynge, againste Saul, with tymbrelles, with ioye, and with fydelles. And the women that played, sange thereto, and sayde: Saul hath slayne his thousandē, and Dauid his ten thousandes. Then was Saul exceadynge wrothe and the saynge displeased him, and he sayd: They haue alred bed vnto Dauid ten thousandes, and to me but a thousande, and what can he more haue saue the kyngdome? wherfore Saul loked a wry on Dauid frome that daye forwarde. And it happened on the morowe, that the euyl spyrite sent of God came vpon Saul, so that he prophesyed in the myddes of the house. And Dauid played on the instrument with his handē, as he was dayly wōt. And Saul had a speare in his handē, and hurlde it, mendinge to haue nayled Dauid to the wall. But Dauid auoyded out of his presence two tymes. For Saul was afeardē of Dauid, because ‖ Lorde was with him, and was departed from Saul. And then Saul put Dauid frome hym & made him a capitayne ouer a thousande, and he went out and in before the people. And Dauid was wyse in all his wynges, and the Lorde was with him. Wherfore when Saul saw he was so exceadynge wyse, he was afeardē of him. But all Israel & Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before them. Then sayde Saul to Dauid. Beholde my eldest daughter Merob, her I will gyue the to wyfe: Onely play the man and fight the Lordes battayles. For Saul thought myne handē shall not be vpon him, but the handē of the Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul: ‡ what am I? and what is my lyfe or the kynred of my father in Israel, that I shulde be sonne in lawe to the kynge? But when the tyme was come that Merob Sauls daughter shulde haue ben gyuen to Dauid, she was gyuen vnto Adriel a Meholathite, to wyfe. Now de it Michol an other of Sauls daughters loued Dauid. And when it was shewed Saul: the thinge pleased him well. And he sayde: I will gyue hir her, that she maye be a snare to him, to bring the handē of the Philistines vpon him. And Saul C 1. Reg. 17. Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalte this daye be my sonne in law agayne. And Saule commaunded his seruauntes, to comen with Dauid secretelye and saye: Beholde the kynge hath a fauoure to the, and all his seruauntes loue the, be therfore the kynges sonne in lawe.

F And Sauls seruauntes spake those wordes in the eares of Dauid. But Dauid answered: semeth it to you a lyght thynge to be the kinges sonne in lawe, when I am a poore man and of small reputacion? And Sauls seruauntes tolde him agayne, saying: in this maner answered Dauid. Then sayd Saul: this wise saye to Dauid: the kynge careth for no nother dowrye but for an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines to be auenged of the kynges enemyes. For Saul thought to make Dauid fall in to the handes of the Philistines. Then his seruauntes tolde Dauid those wordes, and it pleased Dauid well to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And shortly after Dauid arose with his men, and went and slewe of the Philistines, two hundred men, and broughte their foreskynnes, and nombred them vnto the kynge for to become his sonne in lawe.

1. Reg. iii. c. And so Saul gaue him Michol his doughter to wyfe. And when Saul sawe and vnderstode, that the Lorde was with Dauid, & that Michol his doughter loued him, he was the more afrayde of Dauid, and became Dauids enemye for euer, and when the Philistines went out to warre, Dauid behaued him selfe more wyselye then all the seruauntes of Saul: so that his name was moche set by.

¶ Saul commaundeth to slee Dauid. Michol his wyfe saueth him by a proper feat, and excuseth her father. Saul is also amonge the Prophetes.

CAPI. XIX.

H Then Saul communed with Jonathas his sonne, and with all his seruauntes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. & But Jo-

1. Reg. xx. a nathas Sauls sonne had a great fauoure to Dauid, and tolde Dauid sayenge: Saul my father goeth about to slee the. Now therfore take hede to thy selfe in season, and abyde in some secret place and hyde thy self. And I will go out and stande by my father in the felde where thou art, and will comen with my father of the, and yf I can perceyue ought, I will tell the.

And Jonathas spake good of Dauid vnto Saul his father and sayde vnto him: let not the kynge synne against his seruaunt Dauid, for he hath not trespased against the, and his workes are towardes the very good. For he dyd put his lyfe in his hande and slewe y Philistine, and the Lorde gaue a great victory to Judicum. xi all Israell. And thou sawest it, and thou reioycedest, wherfore then shuldest thou synne against innocent bloude, and slee Dauid for nought? And Saul hardened vnto the voyce of Jonathas and sware: as truly as y Lorde lyueth, he shall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid and shewed him all those wordes, and brought him to Saul. And he was in his presence as in tymes paste. And the warre began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought with the Philistines and made a great slaughter, and put them to flyght. And the euyl spirite of the Lorde was vpon Saul as he sat in his house hauinge a Jauelynge in his hande, and Dauid played with his hande. And Saul entended to nayle Dauid to the wall with the Jauelynge: But Dauid eyd him selfe oute of Sauls presence, and so he smote the speare in to the wall. But Dauid fled and saued him selfe that nyght. Then Saul sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to lye in awayte of him and to slee him in the morninge. But Michol his wyfe tolde it him, sayenge: Yf thou saue L not thy selfe this nyght, to morow thou arte a dede man. And so Michol let Dauid downe thorow a wyndow, and he went and fled and saued him selfe. And then she toke an Jmage and layde it in the bed, and put a pyllow ther fled with goates heares vnder the heed of it, & couered it with a cloth. And when Saul sent messengers to fetche Dauid, she sayde that he was sicke: Then Saul sent the messengers to se Dauid, sayenge: bringe him to me, bed and all, that he maye be slayne. And when y messengers were come in: Beholde, there lay an Jmage in the bed, with a pyllowe of goates heares vnder the heed of it. Then sayd Saul to Michol: Why haste thou mocked me so, and sent awaye myne enemy that he is escaped? And Michol answered Saul: He sayde vnto me, let me go, or els I will kyll the. And so Dauid fled and escaped and went to Samuel to Ramath and told him al that Saul had done to him. And he, and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth.

And it was tolde Saul sayenge: Beholde, D Dauid is at Naioth in Ramath, then Saul sent messengers to fet Dauid. And when they saw a companye of Prophetes prophesyenge, and Samuel teachinge theym, the spyrite of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, & they prophesyed to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesyed lykewyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thirde tyme whiche prophesyed also. Then went he him selfe to Ramath, and when he came to a greate well that is in Socoh, he asked and sayde: Where are Samuel and Dauid? And they sayde: Se they be at Naioth in Ramath, and as he wente thither to Naioth in Ramath the spyrite of God came vpon hym also, and he wente Prophesyenge, tyll he came to Naioth in Ramath. And he stripte of his clothes and prophesyed before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all y 1. Reg. daye and all that nyght, wherfore it is a comen sayenge: Is Saul also amonges y Prophetes?

¶ Dauid beynge in greate dyspleasure complayneth vnto Jonathas. Jonathas delyuereth him. A policy deuised betweene them: by which Dauid shulde know the intent of Saul.

CAPI. XX.

And

A Nd Dauid fled frome Naioth in Ramath and went before Jonathas, and sayd: What haue I done? wherin am I faultye? what is the synne that I haue committed agaynste thy father that he seketh my lyfe? And Jonathas answered hym: God forbyd, thou shalte not dye. For se, my father wyll do nothynge neyther great ne small, but that he wyll shewe me. For why shulde my father hyde this thynge frome me? I knowe not. And Dauid swart agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes and therfore he thynketh, Jonathas shal not knowe it, lest he be sory. For in dede, as truly as the Lorde lyueth, and as truely as thy soule lyueth, there is but a step betweme me and death. Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid, what so euer thy soule desyreth, I will do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde, to morowe be the Kalendes, and I shulde sit with the kynge at meat. But let me goo that I maye hyde my selfe in the felde vnto this daye thre dayes at euen.

If thy father mysse me, saye: Dauid asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Bethlehem to his own cytie, for there is holden a yeerly feast for all his kynne. And yf thy father say thus: It is well sone, then thy seruaunt shall haue peace. But yf he be angrye: be sure, wyckednesse is vtterlye concluded of him. And then thou shalt shewe mercy vnto thy seruaũt, for thou hast made with me thy seruaunt a bonde in the Lorde. Notwithstandinge yf there be in me any trespace, slee me thy selfe, for what needest thou to bringe me to thy father? And Jonathas answered: God kepe frome the, that I shulde knowe, that wyckednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the: and shulde not tell it the. Then sayde Dauid, who shall tell me, yf thy father answer cruelly? Jonathas sayde to Dauid: Come and let vs go forth into the felde. And they wet both of them into the felde. The Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: O Lorde God of Israell, when I haue groped my fathers mynde, at one tyme or other, within this three dayes, that it stande well with Dauid: and I then sende not vnto the, and shewe it the, the Lorde do so and so vnto Jonathas. And in lyke maner, yf euyll towardes the be appointed of my father, I will shewe the, and sende the away, that thou mayst go in peace. And the Lorde be with the, as he hath bene with my father. And thou shalte performe vnto me the mercy of the Lorde, not onely whyle I lyue, but also when I am dede, plucke not thy mercye awaye frome my house for euer: No, not whe the Lorde harde destroyed the enemyes of Dauid euery one frome the face of the earth. And so Jonathas made a bonde with the house of Dauid, desyringe that the Lorde shoulde aske out of the handes of Dauids enemyes their wyckednesse. And with other wordes Jonathas adiured Dauid, because he loued hym. For as his owne soule he loued hym.

Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid: to morowe shall be the Kalendes. And thou shalt be myssed, because the place shall appeare empty.

But on the thyrde daye come in any wyse vnto the place where thou shalt hyde thy selfe, when it is workedaye: ryen by the stone Ezel. And I will shote three arowes by the one syde therof, as thoughe I shoote at a marke, and will sende after a lad, and byd him gaa seke the arowes. If I saye vnto the lad: Se the arowes are on this syde the, bryng them: then come thou: for it is peace, and nothinge to the, as sure as the Lorde lyueth. But yf I saye thus vnto the ladde, Beholde, the arowes are beyounde the, then flee, for the Lord hath sent the awaye. And of this which thou and I haue spoken / beholde, the Lorde is witnesse betwene the and me for euer. And so Dauid hyd him selfe in the felde. And when the Kalendes came, the kyng sat hym downe at meate, to thintent to eate. And the kynge sat hym downe after the accustomed maner, vpon his seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose, & Abner sate by Hauis syde, and Dauids place was emptye, but yet Saul sayde not a worde at all that daye. For he thoughte, some thynge hadde chaunced him, whereby he was not clean. But on the morowe after the Kalendes, when Dauids place appeared emptye, Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sonne, wherfore commeth not the sonne of Jsai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor to day. And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked leaue of me to go to Bethlehem sayenge / let me go I praye the, for our kynrede holde an offring in the cytie, and my brother hath sent for me. Nowe therfore yf I haue founde fauoure in thyne eyes, let me go, and se my brethren. And for this cause he cometh not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saul angrye with Jonathas and sayde vnto him: O frowarde and rebellious childe, thinkest thou I knowe not how thou hast chosen the sonne of Jsai vnto thyne owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke and shame of thy mother? For as longe as the sonne of Jsai lyueth vpō the erth, thou shalt not be stablyshed, nor yet thy kyngdome, wherfore now sende and fet him vnto me, for he is the childe of death.

But Jonathas answered Saul his father and sayde to him / wherfore shulde he dye? what hath he done? Then Saul cast a speare at him to hyt him, whereby Jonathas wiste well, that it was vtterlye determined of his father, to slee Dauid. Then Jonathas arose frome the table in a great anger, and dyd eate no meate the seconde daye of the Kalendes, for he was sory for Dauid, because his father had done him shame. On the nexte morynge Jonathas went oute into the felde, at the tyme appointed with Dauid, and a lytle lad with hym. And he sayde vnto the boye, runne and fynde oute myne arowes which I shote. And as the boye ranne, he shote an arowe beyounde him. And when the ladde was come to the place whether Jonathas hadde shoote the arowe, Jonathas cryed after him, & sayde: the arowe is beyonde the. And he cryed after the lad / haste, make spede and stande not stil. And Jonathas ladde gathered vp the arowe and came to his master. But the lad wiste no

thynge of the matter: Onely Jonathas and Dauid wist it. Then Jonathas gaue his weapons vnto the lad, and sayd vnto him: goo and carye theym to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose oute of a place that was towarde the south and fell on his face to the grounde, and bowed him selfe thre tymes. And they kyssed eyther other and wept togither, but Dauid more aboundantly. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace of suche thinges as we haue swoorne eyther of vs in the name of the Lorde, sayenge: The Lorde be betweene the and me, and betweene thy seede and myne for euer. And he arose and departed. And Jonathas went in to the towne.

¶ Dauid flyeth in to Nob to Achimelech the preest, and getteth thewe breed to satisfye his hunger. After he flyeth to kynge Achis, and there fayneth him selfe mad.

CAPI. XXI.

Then came Dauid to Nob to Achimelech the preest: And Achimelech was aboneed at his comminge and went to mete Dauid and sayde vnto him: Why commeste thou thy selfe alone, and no man with the? And Dauid sayde to Achimelech the preest: The kynge hath commaunded me to do a certayne thyng and sayde vnto me, lette no man knowe wherabout I send the and what I haue commaunded the to do. And therfore I haue appointed my seruauntes to suche and suche places. And nowe what haste thou vnder thyne hande? gyue me fyue loues of breed or what soeuer ye hande. And the preest answered Dauid and sayde: There is no comen breed vnder myne handes, but there is halowed bred, yf the younge men haue abstayned onely from women. And Dauid answered the preest and sayde vnto him: Of a truthe wemen hath ben locked vp from vs about a thre dayes, when we came out: and the vessels of the younge men were holy. How be it yf we haue taken anye vncleanne fle vp the waye this daye, it shall be halowed in the vesselles. And so the preest gaue him halowed breed, for there was none other bred there saue shew bredes, that were taken from before the Lorde, to put fresshe bred there.

And there was the same daye a certen man of the seruauntes of Saul within the tabernacle of the Lorde named Doeg an Edomite, the chiefest of Sauls herde men. And Dauid sayde vnto Achimelech: is not here vnder thyne handes eyther speare or swerde? for I haue neyther brought my swerde nor myne harnes with me, because the kynges busynes requyred hast. Then the preest answered: the swerde of Goliath the Philistine whome thou slewest in Okebale, that is here wrapt in a cloth behynde the Ephod, yf thou wilte take that, take it: for there is none other saue that here. And Dauid sayde: there is none to that, gyue it me.

And Dauid arose and fledde the same daye from the presence of Saul, and went to Achis the kynge of Geth. And the seruauntes of Achis sayde of him: Is not this Dauid the kynge of the lande? dyd they not synge vnto this felowe in daunces, sayenge: Saul hath slayne his thowsandes, and Dauid his x. thousand? And Dauid put those wordes into his hert and was soze afrayde of Achis the kynge of Geth. And he chaunged his countenaunce before theym, and taued in their handes, and scrabled on the wyes of the gate, and let his sputtell fall wyne vpon his bearde. Then sayd Achis vnto his seruaunt. Lo ye saw that this man was beside him selfe, wherfore dyd haue ye brought him to me? lacke I mad men, that ye haue brought this felowe to playe the mad man in my presence? he shal not come into my house.

¶ Dauid flyeth in to the caue Odollam, and then in to Maspha to the kynge of Moab. And thence in to Hareth. Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Achimelech is accused of treason and slayne, and foure score and foure preestes mo with hym: because they receyued Dauid. Nob is destroyed of Saul. Abiathar flyeth to Dauid.

CAP. XXII.

So Dauid departed thence and escaped, & came vnto the caue Odollam, which whe his brethren & all his fathers house herde of, they went thyther to him. And there resorted vnto him all suche as were in distresse and in det and troubled in their herres, & he was made their capitayne, and there were with him aboute foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Maspha in the land of Moab, and sayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and mother (I pray the) haue their abydynge with you, tyll I know what God will do with me. And he brought theym afore the kynge of Moab, and they dwelte with him all the whyle that Dauid kept him selfe in holdes. And the prophete Gad, sayde vnto Dauid: Abyde not in holdes, but departe and go to the lande of Juda. Then Dauid departed and came into the forest Hareth. And Saul herde of it: for Dauid was knowen and all the men that were with him. And as Saul sat in Gabaah vnder a grene vpon an hyghe banche with his speare in his hande, and all his men roundeabout him, he sayde vnto his seruauntes that were about him. Heare me, ye sonnes of Jemini: Wyll the sonne of Jesse also gyue euerye one of you feldes and vynyardes, and make you all graunde capitaines and petye capitaines, that ye haue all conspired against me, so that there is none that wil shewe me any thinge, in so moche that my sonne hath made a confederacie with the sonne of Jesse? There is none of you that bewayleth my chaunce or sheweth it in myne eare: because my sonne hath set vp my seruaunt to lye in awayte agaynste me, as appeareth this daye.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite, whe he was chiefe of the seruauntes of Saul and sayde: I sawe the sonne of Jesse, when he came came to Nob, to Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, whiche sought counsell of the Lord for him, and gaue him victayles, & the swerde of Goliath ℔ Philistine also. Then the kinge sent to call Achimelech the preaste the sonne of Achitob, and all his fathers house: that is to sayt, the preastes that were in Nob. And they came all to the kynge. Then Saul sayd: heare thou sonne of Achitob. And he sayde: here I am my Lord. Then sayd Saul to him: why haue ye conspired against me, thou and the sonne of Jsai, in so moche that thou hast gyue him victayle and a swerde, & hast sought counsell of God for him, that he should aryse agaynst me, and lye awaye as appeareth this daye? And Achimelech answered the kynge & sayd: who is amonge all thy seruauntes as the faythfull Dauid and the kynges sonne in lawe, and goeth at thy byddynge, and is had in honour in thyne house? haue I this daye begone lyst to aske counsell of God for him? be this farre fro me: lette not the kynge suspect agaynst his seruaunt any suche thinge in all the house of my father. For thy seruaunt knoweth nothynge of all this, eyther lytle or moche.

But the kynge sayde: thou shalt surely dye Achimelech, bothe thou and all thy fathers house. Then sayde the kynge vnto his footemē that stode about him: turne and slay the preastes of the Lord, bothe because their hande is with Dauid, and because they knewe when Dauid fled and shewed it not to me. But the seruauntes of the kyng wolde not sette their handes, to run vpon the preastes of the Lord. Then sayde the kynge to Doeg: tourne thou and smyte the preastes. And * Doeg the Edomite turned and ranne vpon the preastes and slewe that same daye foure skore and fyue persones that dyd weare eche man a lynnen Ephod. And Nob the cytie of the preastes he smote with the edge of the swerde, both man and woman, chylde and sucklynge, with oxe asse and sheepe. Yet one of the sonnes of Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, named Abiathar escaped and fled to Dauid, and shewed hym that Saul had slayn the Lordes preastes. The Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist it ℔ same daye, that whē Doeg the Edomite was there, he wolde surely tell it Saul. I am cause of ℔ death of all the soules of thy fathers house. Abyde with me and feare not: he that seketh thy soule, shall seke myne, and with me thou shalt be in sauegarde.

* 1. Reg. xxii. a.

¶ Dauid deliuereth Keilah, and flyeth in to the wildernesse of Ziph. He is comforted of Jonathas. The Ziphims wolde haue betrayed him.

CAPI. XXIII.

Then they tolde Dauid, sayenge: Beholde, the Philistines fight against Keilah, and spoyle the barnes. Dauid therfore asked the Lorde aduyse, sayenge: Shall I goo and smyte the Philistines? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid: Go and smyte the Philistines, and saue Keilah. Then sayd Dauids men vnto him: Se, we be afrayde here in Juda. What shall we then be, when we come to Keilah, to the host of the Philistines? Then Dauid asked the Lorde agayne. And ℔ Lorde answered him and sayde, aryse, and go to Keilah, for I will gyue the Philistines into thyne handes. So Dauid and his men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines, and draue awaye their catel and made a great slaughter of theym. And so Dauid saued the inhabitauntes of Keilah. Howe it chaunced, when Abiathar the sonne of Achimelech, had fled to Dauid to Keilah, that he broughte an Ephod in his hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keilah. Then sayd Saul: God hath gyuen him into myne hande. For he is shut in sythe he is come into a towne where he hathe gates and barres. And Saul called all ℔ people to warre, for to goo to Keilah, to besyege Dauid and his men. But Dauid had knowledge that Saul priuely imagined mischiefe against him, and sayde to Abiathar the preast: * Bringe the Ephod. Then sayde Dauid, O Lorde God of Jsrael, thy seruaunt heareth, that Saul is about to come to Keilah to destroye the cytie for my sake: wyll the elders of Keilah deliuer me into his hande? or will Saul come as thy seruaunte heareth saye? Lorde God of Jsrael tell thy seruaunt. And ℔ Lorde sayde: He will come. Then sayde Dauid: Will the men of Keilah deliuer me and my men into the hande of Saul? & the Lord sayd: they will deliuer you.

* 1. Reg. xxx. b.

Then Dauid and his men which were bpō a fyue hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went here and there; they knew not whether. And when it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was fled fro me Keilah, and so in sauegarde, he let the iourneye alone. And Dauid abode in the wyldernesse in stronge holdes, & in a mountayne in the wyldernesse of Ziph. And Saul sought him all his lyfe, but God deliuered him not into his hande. And Dauid saw that Saul was come out, to seke his lyfe but Dauid was in the wyldernesse of Ziph in a couert. And Jonathas Sauls sonne arose & went to Dauid to the couert, and strengthed him in God, and sayde vnto him: Feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shal not fynde the, but thou shalt be kynge ouer Jsrael, and I muste be next vnto the. Yea, and Saul my father knoweth that it shall be so. And they made * a bonde together before the Lorde, & Dauid taryed styl in the wood, but Jonathas went to his house.

* 1. Reg. xviii. a. and xx. b.

Then came the Ziphites to Saul vnto Gabaah, sayenge: Dauid hydeth him selfe fast by vs in stronge holdes that are in a couert in the hyll of Hachilah on the ryght syde of the wildernesse. Nowe therfore ly kynge, come nowe with all the lust that thy soule hath to come. And it shalbe our partes to deliuer him into the handes of ℔ kynge. Then sayd Saul: Blessed are ye in the Lorde: for ye haue compassion on me. Goo, I praye you, and marke more narowly, and knowe and se his haunte,

D where his fote hath bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me he is very wyly. Se therfore and knowe all the lorkynge places where he lourketh, and come agayne to me with the certentye, And I will goo with you. Yea and if he will vyde him self in the grounde, yet I will hunt him out, with all the thousandes of Juda. And they arose and went to Zyph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wildernesse of Maon, in the wylde fryse, on the ryght hande of the wyldernesse. For when Saul was gone with his men to seke, it was tolde Dauid. And therfore he went vnto a rocke and dwelt in the wildernesse of Maon, whiche when Saul herde, he pursued after Dauid in to the wildernesse of Maon. But Sauls and his men went one the one syde of the mountayne, and Dauid and his men on the other. And Dauid as a man amased, made haste to gette frome Saul. For Saul and his men had compassed Dauid & his men round about, to take them. Then there came a messenger to Saul, sayenge: Haste the and come, for the Philistines haue inuaded & do dispoyle the lande. Wherfore Saul returned frome pursueynge Dauid, and made agaynste the Philistines. And therfore the place is called a Sela Maheleroth. And then Dauid went thence and dwelt in stronge holdes at Engaddi.

a That is the rock of gresi

¶ Dauid spareth into Engaddi and there hideth him. Saul cometh in thyther to do his easment and Dauid cutteth of the bordet of his mātel. Dauid goeth out of the caue after Saul and speaketh to him.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A When Saul was come agayne frome the Philistines, there were that tolde him, sayenge: beholde, Dauid is in the wyldernesse of Engaddi. Then Saul toke thre thousande chosen men oute of all Israel, and went to seke Dauid and his men in the rockes, where nothinge haunted but wylde gootes. And he came to the flockes of shepe, by a wayes syde where was a caue. And Saul wet in couer his fete. And Dauid and his men sat a longe by the syes of the caue. And the men of Dauid sayde vnto him: se, the daye is come of which the Lorde sayde vnto the: Beholde, I will deliuer thyne enemye into thyne hād, and thou shalt do with him what it pleaseth the. Then Dauid arose and cut of a lappe of Sauls cote priuely. And sodenly Dauids hert smote him, because he had cut of a lappe of Sauls cote. And he sayde vnto his men: þ Lorde kepe me frome wronge that thinge vnto B my master that is the Lordes annointed, to laye myne hande vpon him, seyng he is þ Lordes annointed. And so Dauid kept of his seruauntes with wordes, and suffred theym not to set vpon Saul. And when Saul was ryssen out of the caue, and went forward on his iourneye, Dauid arose and went out of þ caue and cryed after Saul, sayeng: My lord kyng. And Saul loked behynde him. And Dauid stouped to the earth and bowed him self, and sayd to Saul: Wherfore gyuest thou an eare to mens wordes, that saye, Dauid seketh the euyll? Beholde, this daye thyne eyes haue sene, that the Lorde had delyuered the, into myne hande in the caue. And when they bad kyll the, myne eye had compassion on the: and I sayde: I will not lay my handes on my master, for he is þ Lordes annointed, but rather my father, se yet and acknowledge this the lap of thy coote in my hande. And in whyche as I kylled the not also, when I cut of þ lap of thy coote, vnderstande and se, that there is neyther euyll ne rebellion in me, and that I haue not synned against the. And yet thou hūtest after my soule to destroye it. The Lorde be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lorde auenge me of the. But myne hand be not vpō the. Accordynge to the olde Prouerbe: Wyckednesse shall proceede out of the wycked: but myne hande shall not be vpon the. After whō arte thou come out, thou kynge of Israel? what is he whome thou chasest? certes euen a dead dogge, and a flee. The Lorde be iudge, and let him deme betwene the and me, and se and iudge my cause, and deliuer me oute of thyne hande. When Dauid had made ende of speakynge all these wordes to Saul, Saul sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and he lyfte vp his voyce and wepte, and sayde to Dauid: Thou arte eyghteouser then I, for thou haste rewarded me with good, & I haue acquyted the with euyll. And thou haste shewed this daye how lowyngly thou hast dealt with me, that when the Lorde had locked me in thyne hāde, thou slewest me not. For who when he shall fynde his enemy will let him departe in a good waye? Wherfore the Lord rewarde the with good, for that thou haste done vnto me this daye. And now forasmoch as I know assuredly that thou shalt be kynge and that the kyngdome of Israel shalbe stablysshed in thyne hande: Swere vnto me by the Lord, that thou shalt not destroy my ide after me, and that thou shalt not destroy my name out of my fathers house: & Dauid swarē vnto Saul. So Saul went home. But Dauid and his men gat them vp vnto an holde.

¶ Samuel dyeth. Dauid fleeth to the wildernesse of Pharan. He is angry with Nabal: but is pacyfyed by the wysdome of Abigail. Nabal dyeth, and Dauid marieth Abigail.

CAPI. XXV.

THen Samuel dyed, and al Israel assembled and lamented him and buryed him in his owne house at Ramath. But Dauid arose & gat him to the wildernesse of Pharan. And there was a man in Maon / whose catell was in Carmell, & the man was exceadinge mighty, & had thre thousande shepe & a thousand gotes. And he was shering his shepe in Carmell. The name of the man was Nabal, & the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and was a woman of good wyt & bewtyfull. But the man was churlysshe & of shrewde condicions, & was a Caleubite. And when Dauid herde herde in the wildernesse, that Nabal shere his shepe, he sent out ten of his younge men, and sayd vnto them: get you vp to Carmel and go to Nabal and greete him in my name. And thus wish saye vnto my frinde: peace be to the, peace be to thine house, and peace be vnto all that thou hast. I haue herde saye thou hast sheepe. Now, thy shepeherdes were with vs, & we did them no despite ne villanye, neyther was there ought missinge vnto them, all the whyle they were with vs in Carmel: aske thy seruauntes, & they will shewe the. Wherefore let these yong men finde fauour in thine eyes (for we come in a good season) & geue (I praye the) whatsoeuer commeth to thine hande, vnto thy seruauntes and to thy sonne Dauid. So Dauids younge men came and tolde Nabal all those wordes in the behalfe of Dauid and then stopped. Then Nabal answered Dauids seruauntes and sayde: what is Dauid? and what is the sonne of Iesai? there is plentye of seruauntes nowe a dayes, that breake away from their maisters. Shuld I take my breed, my water and my flesh that I haue killed for my sheepe, and geue it vnto men which I wote not whence they be? The Dauids seruauntes turned their waye / and went agayne, and came and tolde him accordinge to al those sayenges. Then Dauid sayd vnto his men: gyrde euery man his sworde aboute him. And they gyrded euerye man his sworde on him, and Dauid therto gyrde on his sworde. And so there folowed Dauid aboute foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the stuffe. But one of the seruauntes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, sayenge: Se Dauid sent messengers vnto our maister oute of the wyldernesse to salute him, & he rayled them. And yet the men were very good vnto vs and dyd vs no displeasure, neyther myssed we any thinge, as longe as we were conuersaunt w them, when we were in the feldes. Yea they were a wall of defence vnto vs, both by nyght and by daye, all the whyle we were with the kepinge shepe. Nowe take heede and se, what thou hast to do, for mischiefe is concluded to be done vnto our maister and to all his housholde. And he is vngracious to speake to. Then Abigail made hast and take two hundred loues and two bottelles of wyne and fyue shepe redye dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred bonches of resings, & two hundred trayles of fygges, and layed them on asses, and sayde vnto her young men: go before me, and lo I come after you, & tolde her husbande Nabal nothinge therof. And as she rode on her asse, & was comminge w̄ne in a slade of the hyll, Dauid and his men came wyne against her, and she met them. And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felowe hadde in the wyldernesse: so that nought was myssed that pertayned vnto him, for he hathe acquited me with euyll for good. So and so God do vnto the ennemyes of Dauid, as I will not leaue of all that pertayne to him, by the dawninge of the daye, ought that pisseth against the wall. When Abigail sawe Dauid, she lighted and dyd a-lyte of her asse, and fell before Dauid on her face, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and fell at his fete and sayde: Let this vnhappye dede be accompted myne, my Lorde, and let thyne handemayde speake in thyne audience, and heare the wordes of thy handemayde. Let not my Lorde regarde this vnthrifty man Nabal, for as his name is, so is he. Nabal is his name, and folly is with him. But I thyne handemayde sawe not the younge men of my Lorde which thou sendest. And now my Lord as truely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, the Lorde hath withholden the from commynge to shede bloude, and from auengynge thy selfe with thyne owne hande. Furthermore I praye God that thyne ennemyes and they that intende to do my Lorde euyll, maye be as Nabal. And now take this blessinge, which thyne handemayde hathe brought to the my Lorde, let it be geuen vnto the younge men that folowe my Lorde. Forgeue the trespace of thyne handemayde that the Lorde maye make my Lorde a sure house because my Lorde fighteth the battelles of the Lorde, and there could none euyll be founde in the, in all thy lyfe. And yf any man aryse to persecute the, and to take thy soule, the soule of my Lorde mought be preserued as it were in a bondell of lyuynge creatures, with the Lorde thy God. And the soules of thy ennemyes be slonge in the myddle of a slynge. And when the Lorde shall haue wrought to my Lorde all the good that he hathe promysed the, and shall haue made the, ruler ouer Israell: then shall it be no grudge of conscience vnto the or discouragе of herte vnto my Lorde, that thou shedest bloude causelesse, and auengest thy selfe. And when the Lorde shall haue dealt well with my Lorde, thinke on thyne handemayde. Then sayde Dauid to Abigail: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel which sent the this day to mete me. And blessed be thy behauour, and blessed be thou which hast kept me this daye from bloudshedinge, and from auengynge my selfe with myne owne hande. For in very dede as surely as the Lorde God of Israel lyueth, who hath kept me backe from hurting the, excepte thou haddest hasted and met me, there hadde not bene left vnto Nabal by the dawninge of the daye, a pisser against the wall. And so Dauid receyued of her hande that she brought, and sayd to her: go in peace to thyne house. Lo I haue obeyed thy voyce and haue receyued the to grace.

And when Abigail returned to Nabal: beholde, he helde a feast in his house lyke the feast of a kynge, and Nabals herte was merry with in him, for he was well dronke. Wherefore she tolde him nought neyther lytle nor muche tyll the morowe. But in the morynge, when Nabal hadde dygested the wyne, his wyfe tolde him these wordes, and his herte dyed within him, and he became as a stone, and vpon a ten dayes after the Lorde smote Nabal, that he dyed. Which when Dauid herde that Nabal was dede, sayde: Blessed be the Lord that hath iuged the cause of my rebuke of the hande of Nabal, and hath kept his seruaunt from euyll, and hathe turned the wickednesse of Naball vpon his owne heed. So Dauid sent to commen with Abigail, to thintent to take her to his wife. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her, sayinge: Dauid sent vs vnto the, to take the to his wyfe. And she arose and fell on her face to the erthe and sayde: Beholde, thy hand mayde be a seruaunt to wasshe the fete of the seruauntes of my Lorde. And Abigail hasted and arose and gat her vp vpon an Asse, with .v. damoselles of hers that went at her fete, and went after the messengers of Dauid and was his wyfe. Dauid also take Achinoan of Jezrahel, and they were both his wiues. But Saul gaue Michol his daughter Dauids wife to Phalti the sonne of Lais of Gallim.

¶ Saul sleapeth in his tent, And Dauid taketh away his speare and a cruse of water, that stode at his heade.

CAPL. XXVI.

2 After that came ꝑ Ziphites vnto Saul to Gabaah, saying: Dauid hydeth hym self in ꝑ hill of Hachilah before ꝑ wildernesse. Then Saule arose and went to the wyldernesse of Ziph and .iii. thousande chosen men of Israel with him, to seke Dauid in the wildernesse of Ziph. And Saul pytched in the hill of Hachilah whiche lyeth before the wyldernesse, by the wayes syde. But Dauid dwelt in the wyldernesse. And when he sawe that Saul pursued him into the wilderneſſe, he sent forth espyes and vnderstode that Saul was come in dede.

Wherfore Dauid arose and went to the place where Saul had pytched, and beheld the place where Saul lay with Abner the son of Ner, his chiefe capitayne. For Saul laye within a rounde banke, and the people pytched roundabout him. Then answered Dauid and spake to Ahimelech the Hethite and to Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah and brother to Joab, sayenge: Who will go downe with me to Saul to the hoste? and Abisai sayde: I will goo downe with the. And so Dauid and Abisai came to the people by nyght. And beholde, Saul laye slepinge within a rounde banckt, and his speare pytched in the ground at his heed, Abner & the people lyenge round about him. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath inclosed thyne enemy vnto thyne hand this daye. Now therfore let me smyte him I pray the with my speare to the earth, but one strobe, and it shall nede no more. But Dauid sayde to Abisai: destroy him not, for who can laye his hande on the Lordes annoynted and be giltlesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: as truely as the Lorde lyueth, onelesse ꝑ Lord shall smyte him, or his daye shall come to dye or he shall descende into battell and there perysshe: the Lorde kepe me from layeng myne hande vpon the Lordes annoynted. Now the take the speare that is at his heed, and the crewse of water, and let vs goo. And Dauid toke the speare and the crewse of water that was at Sauls heed, and they gat them away and no man saw or wist it or awoke. For they were all a slepe, because the Lorde had sent a slomber vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer to thother syde and stode on the toppe of an hyll a farre of (a great space beynge betweene theym) and cryed to the people and to Abner the sonne of Ner, sayeng: Answerest thou not Abner? and Abner answered and sayd: What art thou that cryest to the kynge? and Dauid sayde to Abner: art not thou a man, and who is lyke the in Israel? But wherfore hast thou not kept thy Lorde the kyng? For there came one of the folke to destroy the kyng thy Lord. It is not good that thou hast wrot. As truely as the Lorde lyueth ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue no better kepte the Lordes annoynted. And now se where the kynges speare is, and the crewse of water, that was at his heed.

Then Saul knewe Dauids voyce & sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and Dauid sayde: it is my voyce my Lorde kynge. And he sayd further wherfore werth my Lord pursue his seruaunt? for what haue I wonne? or what euyll is in myne hande? Nowe heare therfore (my Lorde kynge) the wordes of thy seruaunte. If the Lorde haue stered the vp against me, let him smell the sacrifice. But yf they be the children of men, cursed be they before the Lorde. For they haue cast me out so that I can not dwell in the enheritaunce of ꝑ Lord, sayeng: hence & go serue other Gods. And yet I hope my bloude shall not fal to the earth before the face of the Lorde, though the kynge of Israell be come out to hunt one flee, as men hunt the partrege in the mountaynes Then sayd Saul: I haue synned: come againe my sonne Dauid for I will wo the no more harme, because my soule was precious in thyne eyes this daye. Beholde, I haue played the fole and haue erred exceadinge moche. And Dauid answered and sayde: Beholde the kynges speare, let one of the younge men come ouer and fet it. The Lord rewarde euery mans righteousnesse and faith: for the Lorde deliuered the into my hand this day, but I wold not laye myne hande vpon the Lordes anoynted. And as thy lyfe was moche set bye this tyme in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lorde, that he deliuer me out of all tribulacions. And Saul sayde to Dauid: Blessed arte thou my sonne Dauid, for thou shalt be a wer and also able to bringe to an ende. And so Dauid went his way, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

¶ Dauid fleeth to Achis kynge of Geth, which geueth him rowme to dwell in the hilleth the Philistines. And when Achis demaunded agaynste whome he had roued, he cyueth him a subtyll answere and deceyueth hym properlye.

CAP. XXVII.

Then thought Dauid in his hert: I may 1 perish at one daye or other by the hades of Saul. There is no better thyng for me then then to flee in to the lande of the Philistines, that Saul of verye dispayre to fynde me, may cease seking me any more in all the coostes of Israel: for so I may escape his hand. And David arose, and he and the fire hundred men that were with him went vnto Achis the sonne of Maoch kynge of Geth. And David dwelte with Achis at Geth, both he & his men, every man with his household, and David with his two wyues: Ahinoam the Jesrahelitie and Abigail Nabals wife of Carmell. So whē it was told Saul þ David was fled to Geth, he sought no more for him. And David sayd vnto Achis: If I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, let me haue a place in some towne in the feldes, that I maye dwell there. For what holde thy seruaunt dwell in the heed citye of the kingdome with the? Then Achis gaue him Ziklag the same daye for which cause Ziklag pertayneth vnto the kynges of Juda vnto this daye. And the tyme that David dwelte in the countrey of the Philistines, was a yere and foure monethes. And David and his men went and rane vpon the Gesurites, the Gerzites, and the Amalekites, whiche nations were from the begynnynge the inhabitantes of the lande, as men go to Sur, and so forth to Egypt. And David smote the lande, and lefte neither man ne woman alyue, and toke the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camels, and clothes, and semoued & came to Achis. And Achis sayde: haue ye not bene a rouyng this daye? And David answered: yes in the southe of Juda, and in the southe of the Jesrahelites, and in the south of the Kenites. And David saued neither man nor woman alyue to bryng to Geth, saying: lest they shold speake agaynst vs: Thus dyd David, and so was his maner all the whyle he dwelte in the countrey of the Philistines. And Achis beleued David, saying: he hath wrought moche mischefe agaynst his people Israel, and therfore he shall be my seruaunt for euer.

¶ The Philistines moue warre agaynste Saul and the Israelites. Saul requyreth counsell of God but hath no answere: and then goeth after an enchaunter, who raiseth vp the spirite of Samuel.

CAPL XXVIIII.

IT chaunced in thole dayes that the Philistines gathered their holl togyther to warre, intendynge to fight with Israel. And Achis sayd to David: Be sure thou shalte goo out with me in the hoil, and thy men also. And David said agayn to Achis: then thou shalt know what thy seruaunt can do. And Achis sayde to David: Then I will make the keper of my heed for euer. Samuel was then dede, and all Israel had lamented him, and buryed hym in Ramath his owne city. And he vi had put the women that had spirites of prophesye and the sorcerers out of the lande. And the Philistines gathered togyther, and came & pitched in Sunam, and Saul and all Israel gathered togyther and pitched in Gelboe. When Saul saw the hoste of the Philistines, he was afrayde, & his herte was sore astonyed. And Saul asked counsel of the Lord: But the Lord answered him not, neither by dreame, nor by prestes, nor yet by the Prophetes.

Then sayd Saul vnto his seruantes: seke me a woman hauing a spirite of pro, beyre, that I maye goo to her and aske of her. And his seruauntes sayd to hym: se, there is a wyfe that hath a spirite of prophesie at Endor. And Saul chaunged his clothes, and put on other rayment, and then went he & two men with him, and they came to the wyfe by nyghte, and he sayde: prophesye vnto me by the spirite, and bring me him vp whom I shal name vnto the. And the wyfe sayde vnto him: Beholde thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed the women that had prophesinge spirites, & the sorcerers out of the land. Wherfore then layest thou a net for my soule to kyll me? And Saul swore to her by the Lord, sayinge: as surely as the Lorde liueth, there shal no harme chaunce the for this thynge. Then sayd the wyfe: whome shall I fetche vp vnto the? and he sayd: bring me vp Samuel. When the woman sawe Samuel, she cryed with a loude voyce and spake to Saul, sayinge: why hast thou mocked me? for thou arte Saul. And the kyng said vnto her, be not afrayde: but what seest thou? And the wyfe sayd vnto Saul: I se a God ascendyng vp out of the erth. and he sayde: what facion is he of? And the woman sayde: there commeth vp an olde man with a mantel vpon him. And Saul perceyued that it was Samuel, and stouped with his face to þ grounde and bowed hym selfe. And Samuel said to Saul: why hast thou vnquieted me, to make me brought vp? And Saul answered: I am sore encombred. For the Philistines make warre agaynst me, and God is departed from me, and answered me no more, neyther by prophetes, neyther by dreames, & therfore I haue called the, to tell me what I shall doo. Then said Samuel: wherfore axest thou aske of me? seyng the Lorde is gone from the, & is thyne enemye, the Lorde wyll do to the as he sayde by my hand. For the Lord wil rent the kyngdome oute of thyne hande, and gyue it thy neighbour David, b, cause thou obeyedst not the voyce of the Lord, nor executedst his fearce wrath vpō the Amalekites. Therfore hath the Lord wrought thus vnto the this daye. And further the Lorde wyll deliuer Israel with the in to the handes of þ Philistines, & to morow shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me, and þ Lord shall gyue the hoste of Israel in to the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell forthwith flatte on the erth, and was sore a dreddē of the wordes of Samuel.

And there to there was no strength in him, for he had not eaten all the daye before. And the woman came vnto Saul, & sawe he was sore troubled, and sayd vnto him. Se, thyne handmayde hath obeyed thy voice, and haue put my soule in my hande, & haue harkened vnto thy wordes, whiche thou layedst vnto me. Lowe therfore harken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne handmayde, and let me set a morsell of breed before the, and eate and get the strength to go thy iourneye. But he refused it and sayd: I wil not eate. But his seruauntes & the wyfe together togyther compelled him, that he herde theyr voyce. And so he arose from the erthe and sate him on a bed. The woma had a fat calfe in the house, and that she hasted and killed, and toke flour & knede it, and did bake him swete cakes, and brought them before Saul, and before his seruantes: and when they had eaten, they rose vp, and went awaye the same nyght.

¶ David goynge with kyng Achis to fyght agaynst Saul is sent agayne by the meanes of the Lordes of the Philistines.

CAPI. XXIX.

A THe Philistines gathered al theyr hostes togither vnto Aphek, and Israel pitched by a fountayn in Jezrahel. And the lordes of the Philistines went forth by hundredes and by thousandes. But David and his men came behynde with Achis. Then sayd the lordes of the Philistines: what wyl ponder Hebrues? And Achis said vnto the lordes of the Philistines. Is not this David the seruaunt of Saul the king of Israel, which hath ben with me dayes or yeres, and I haue found no fault B in him sythens he fled vnto me vnto this daye. Neuertheles the lordes of Philistines were wrothe with him and sayde vnto him: Make this fellow returne, & let him go agayn to his place whiche thou hast apoynted him. For he shall not goo with vs to battayle, lest he be an aduersarye to vs in the battayle, when we begyn to fyghte. For wherwith coulde he better obtayne the fauour of his master, then vpon the heades of our men? Is this not David to whome they sange in daunces: & Saul slew in thousandes, but David his ten thousandes? Then Achis called David and said vn to him: As truely as the Lorde lyueth thou arte honest, and it pleaseth me well that thou sholdest accompany me in the hoste, for I haue found nane euyl with the from the tyme thou camest to me vnto this day. Neuertheles the C Lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not: wherfore returne and goo in peace, that thou displeasest not the Lordes of the Philistines. And David said agayn to Achis: Why, what haue I done? and what hast thou founde in thy seruaunt as longe as I haue ben with the vnto this daye? that I maye not go fyght agaynst the enemyes of my Lorde the kynge?

Achis answered and sayd to David: I wot D well, thou pleasest me, as it were an aungell of God. Notwithstandynge the lordes of the Philistines haue sayde, that thou shalte not go with them to battayle. Wherfore aryse vp erly in the mornyng with thy masters seruauntes that are come with the. And when ye be vp erlye, as soone it begyn to be daye, departe. And so David and his men arose erlye to departe in the mornyng, and to returne in to the lande of the Philistines. And the Philistines went vp to Jezrahell.

¶ David returnynge from kynge Achis fyndeth Siceleg burnte. He pursueth after the burners therof and sleeth them and recouereth the praye.

CAPI. XXX.

BVt er Dauid and his men were come to Siceleg the thirde daye, the Amalekites had made assault in the south part vpon Siceleg, and had smytten Siceleg & burnt it with fyre, and had taken the women there prisoners, both smal & great, but slew not a man, but caryed them with them & departed. When Dauid and his men came to the cite, beholde it was burnt with fire, and their wiues, theyr sonnes and theyr doughters were taken prisoners. Then Dauid and the people that was with hym lyfte vp theyr voyces and wept tyl they coulde wepe no more. And Dauids two wyues were taken prisoners also, Ahinoam the Jezrahelite, and Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And Dauid was sore troubled, for the people intended to stone him, because the hertes of all the people were vexed for theyr sonnes and their doughters. But Dauid toke a good herte to him in the Lorde his God, and sayd to Abiathar the preest Achimeleches sonne: bynge me the Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to Dauid. And Dauid asked the Lorde, sayinge: shall I pursue this company? and shal I ouertake them? And he sayd to him: folowe, for thou shalte ouertake them and recouer the praye. So he went and C the fyue hundred men that were with him, and they came to the ryuer Besor, where a parte of them abode. Neuertheles Dauid and foure hundred men folowed, but two hundred abode behynde, being to weyre to go ouer the ryuer Besor. Then they founde an Egyptian in the felde, and brought him to Dauid and gaue him breed to eate, and water to drynke, & gaue him a fewe figges, and two clusters of reysynges, and when he hadde eaten, his spirites came agayne to him, for he had eaten no breed, nor dronke no water in thre dayes and thre nyghtes. Then Dauid sayde vnto him: to whome belongest thou, and whence art thou? And the lad answered: I am an Egyptian, and seruant to an Amalekite: & my master lefte me behynde because it is thre dayes a goue that I fell sicke we came a rouing vpon the south of Cerethi, and vpon them of Juda, and on the southe of Caleb. And we burnt Siceleg with fyre. And Dauid sayd to him: canste thou bringe me to this company? And he said: sweare vnto me by God, that thou wylt neyther kyll me, nor deliuer me in to the handes of my master, and I wyll bringe the vnto them. And when he had brought him: sir, they laye scattered all abrode vpon the erth, eatynge and drynkynge and triumphynge ouer all the greate praye that they had caryed awaye out of the lande of the Philistines, and out of the lande of Juda.

And Dauid layde vpon them from the twylyght, vntyll the euen of the next daye, so that there escaped not a man, saue foure hundred yonge men, which rode awaye vpon camels and fled. And Dauid recouered all that the Amalekites had caried awaye, and his two wyues, so that there was no person lackynge, small or great, sonne or doughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had taken awaye, but Dauid brought all agayne. And Dauid toke all the shepe and the oxen. And they dryue the cattell before & sayde:

this to Dauids praye. And then Dauid came to the two hundred men that were ouer wery to folowe Dauid, whiche they made to abyde at the riuer Besor. And they came to mete Dauid and the people that were with him. And when Dauid came to the people, he gaued the peaceably. Then answered all the wycked and 4 vnthryftes of the men that went with Dauid, and sayd: because they went not with vs, therfore shall none of the praye that we haue recouered be gyuen vnto them, saue to euerye man his wyfe & his chyldren: whyche let them carye awaye and be walynge.

Then sayd Dauid: ye shall not doo so (my 17 brethren) with that the Lorde hath gyuen vs, and hath preserued vs, and betrayed the company that came agaynst vs in to our handes. For who sholde herken vnto you in this matter? But as his parte is that goeth and fyghteth, so good shal his parte be that tarryeth by the stuffe: they shal parte alyke. And so from that day forwarde, was that made a law and a custome in Israel, and dureth yet this daye.
When Dauid came to Ziklag, he sent of his 5 praye vnto the elders of Iuda, and to his frendes, sayinge: Se there a gyfte for you, of the spoyle of the enemies of the Lorde. He sent to them of Bethel, to them of south Ramath: to them of Gether: to them of Aroer: to the of Siphamoth, to them of Esthama, to them of Rachal, to them of the cytyes of the Iahamelytes: to them of the cytyes of the Kenites, to them of Haramah, to them of Bozasan, to them of Athach, to them of Hebron, and to all places where Dauid and his men were wonte to haunte.

¶ The battayle betwene the Philistines and Israel. Saul kylleth him self, and his children are slayne in the battayle.

CAPI. XXXI.

5 Ad as the Philistines fought agaynst Israel, the men of Israel fled before the Philistines, & fell downe dead in mount Gelboe. And the Philistines made after Saul and his sonnes, and slew Jonathas, Abinadab and Melchisua, Sauls sonnes. And the battell went sore agaynst Saul, in so moche that the men with bowes had founde him, and he was sore wounded of the shoters. Then sayd Saul
B vnto his harnes bearer * drawe out thy swerd and thrust me thorow therwith, lest these vncircumcised come thrust me thorow, and make a mockynge stocke of me. But his harnes bearer would not, for he was sore afrayde. Wherfore Saul tooke a swerde and fell vpon it. And when his harnes bearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewyse vpon his swerde & dyed with him. And so Saul dyed and his three sonnes, and his harnes bearer, & all his men that same daye together. When the men of Israel
C that were of the other syde the baleye, & they of the other syde Jordan herde that the men of Israel were put to flyght, and that Saul & his sonnes were dead, they lefte the cytyes and ran awaye, and the Philistines came & dwelte in them. ¶ On the morow when the Philistines were come to spoyle them that were slayn, they founde Saul and his three sonnes lyinge in mount Gelboe. And they cut of his head, & strypped him out of his harnesse, and sent in to the land of the Philistines euery where, to publysshe in the houses of their goddes, and to the people. And they hanged vp his harnesse in the house of Astaroth, but they hanged vp his carkasse on the walles of Bethsan. When the D inhabitantes of Jabes in Galaad herd what the Philistines had doone to Saul, they arose as many as were men of warre, and went all nyght and toke the corps of Saul, and the corpses of his sonnes from the walles of Bethsan and broughte them to Jabes, and * burnet them there, and toke their bones and buryed them vnder a tree at Jabes, and fasted seuen dayes.

¶ David commaundeth to slee the messenger, that sayde he hadde killed Saul. The Lamentation of David for Saul and Jonathas.

CAPI. I.

fter the deathe of Saul, whē David was returned from ꝑ slaughter of the Amalechites, and had ben two dayes in Ziceleg: Beholde, there came a man the thirde daye oute of the hoste frome Saul with his clothes rent, and erthe vpon his heed. And when he came to David, he fell to the erthe and did obeysaunce. To whom David said, whēce commest thou? And the other answered hym: Out of the hoste of Israel am I escaped. And David sayd to him agayne. How hath it chaūced? tell me. And he sayd: the people fled from the battell/ and many of the people are ouerthrowen and ded/ and Saul and Jonathas his sonne are ded therto. And David sayd vn
D to the yonge man that tolde him/ how knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas his sonne be ded? And the yonge man that tolde him sayd: I was by chaunce in mounte Gelboe. And se, Saul leaned vpon his speare/ and the charets and horsemen followed him at the heles. And Saul lokyd backe and called me: And I answered: here am I. And he said vnto me: what are thou? And I sayd vnto him: I am an Amalekite. And he sayde vnto me: come on me and slee me. For anguisshe is come vpon me, and my lyfe is yet all in me. And I wente on him and slewe him: for I was sure that he couldē not lyue after that he was fallen. And I toke the crowne that was vpon his heed, and the bracelet that was on his arme, and haue brought them vnto ꝑ my Lorde hither. Then David toke his clothes and rent them, and so dyd all the men that were with him/ and they mourned, wepte, and fasted tyl euen, for Saul and Jonathas his sonne/ and for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israel, because they were ouerthrowē with the swerde.
E Then sayde David vnto the yonge man that brought him tidynges. Whence arte thou? And he sayde: I am the sonne of a straunger, Psalm.cxiii. b an Amalechite. And David sayde vnto hym. How is it that thou wast not afrayde to laye thyne hande on the Lordes annoynted to destroye him? And David called one of his yonge men, and sayd: Go and runne vpon him. And he smote him that he dyed. Then sayde David ☞ vnto hym: Thy bloude be vpon thyne owne heed. For thyne owne mouth hathe witnessed agaynst the, saying: I haue slayne the Lordes annoynted. And David sang this song of mourning ouer Saul, and ouer Jonathas his sonne, and bad to teache the children of Israell the ☞ vse thereof. And beholde it is written in the boke of the ryghteous. The glorye of Israel is slayn vpon the hyed hylles. Oh how were the myghty ouerthrowen? Tell it not in Geth, nor publysshe it in the stretes of Askalon/ lest the doughters of the Philistines reioyce, and that the doughters of the vncircumcised triumphe therof: Ye mountaynes of Gelboe, vpon you be neyther dewe nor rayne, ne fieldes whence heaue offerynges come. For there the shyldes of the myghtye were caste from them: the shylde of Saul, as though he had not ben annoynted with oyle. The bowe of Jonathas, and the swerde of Saul tourned neuer backe agayne emptye, from the bloude of the wounded, and from the fatte of the myghtye warriours.

Saul and Jonathas louely and pleasaunte in theyr lyues, were in theyr dethes not diuided/ men swifter then egles, and stronger then Lyons. Ye doughters of Israel wepe ouer Saul, whiche clothed you in purple and gaymentes of pleasure/ and bordered youre rayment with ornamentes of golde. Howe were the myghtye slayne in battayle? Jonathas on the hye hilles was wounded to deth. Woo is me for the, my brother Jonathas: wrecklable to me wast thou excedynge. Thy loue to me was wonderfull passing the loue of women. Howe were thy mighty ouerthrowen, and howe were the weapons of warre forlorne.

¶ David is anoynted in Hebron. The battayle of the seruantes of David and Isboseth.

CAPI. II.

Fter this David asked the Lorde, saynge: shall I go vp in to anye of the cytyes of Juda? And the Lorde sayd vn: and David answered: whyther shal I go? he answered, vnto Hebron. And so David went thyther with his two wyues also/ Ahinoam the Jezrahelyte, and Abigail Nabals wyfe the Carmelite. And the men that were with him, dyd David carye vp also, euerye man with his house. And they dwelte in the townes of He-
B bron. And the men of Juda came & there they annoynted David kynge ouer the house of Juda. When it was tolde David how the men of Jabes in Galaad had buryed Saul, he sent messengres vnto them, and sayde vnto them: blessed are ye vnto the Lorde, that ye haue shewed suche kyndnesse vnto youre Lorde Saul, and haue buryed hym. Wherfore the Lorde shewe you mercy and truthe agayn. And I wil do you good also, because ye haue doone this thynge. And nowe let youre handes steare them and playe ye the men, thoughe youre master Saul be ded. And finally ye vnderstande that the house of Juda haue annoynted me kynge ouer them. But Abner the sonne of Ner that C was capitayne of Saules hoste toke Isboseth the sonne of Saul, and brought him to Mahannim and made him kyng ouer Galaad and ouer the Assurites, and ouer Jezrahel/ and ouer Ephraim and Benjamin, and ouer al Israel.

And

And Jbosheth Saules sonne was fourtye yeres olde when he began to raigne ouer Israel and raigned two yeres. But the house of Juda only folowed Dauid. * And the tyme which Dauid raygned in Hebron ouer the house of Juda, was .vij. yere and fyue monethes. And Abner the sonne of Ner and the seruauntes of Jbosheth the sonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim to Gabaon. And Joab the sonne of Zaruiah and the seruauntes of Dauid went oute and met them by the pole of Gabaō. And they sate downe, the one parte on the one syde the pole, and the other on the other syde. And Abner sayd to Joab/ let the yonge men aryse and playe before vs. And Joab answered: Be it. Then there aroste & went ouer twelue of Ben Jamin by nombre, whiche pertayned to Jbosheth the sonne of Saul/ and twelue of the seruauntes of Dauid. And they caught eche his felowe that came against him by the herd/ and thruste his swerde in his syde, and so fell downe all atonce. Wherfore the place was called ✠ Helath Zurim whiche is in Gabaon. And there began an excedynge cruell battayle that same daye. But Abner and the men of Israel were put to the worse of the seruauntes of Dauid.

And there was thre sonnes of Zaruiah: Joab, Abisai, and Asahel / whiche Asahel was as swyfte of fote as a wylde Roe, and folowed after Abner/ and tourned neyther to the ryght hande nor to the lefte from Abner. Then Abner loked behynde him, and sayd: art thou Asahel? And he sayd, yea. Then sayd Abner/ turne the eyther to the ryght hande or to the lefte/ and catche one of the yonge men, and take the his spoyle. But Asahel wolde not depart from hym, but pursued hym. And Abner said agayne to Asahel: tourne frome me, and folowe not me/ for I were lothe to smyte the to ✠ ground. For then howe shulde I holde vp my face before Joab thy brother? Holde be it he wolde in no wyse departe.

* Then Abner with the hynder ende of the spere smote hym vnder the fyfte rybbe, that the spere came out behynde hym, that he fell downe in the same place and dyed there. And as many as came to the place where Asahell lay downe and dyed, stode styll. But Joab and Abisai folowed Abner tyll the sonne wente downe. And when they were come to the hyll Amah, that lyeth before Giah, in the waye that goeth thorowe the wylderneſs of Gabaon the chyldren of Beniamin assembled after Abner on a plumpe, and stode styll on the top of an hyll. Then Abner called to Joab, & sayd/ shal the swerd deuoure without ende? knowest thou not ✠ bytternesse is wont to come in the later ende? how longe shall it be er thou byd the people returne from folowyng their brethren? And Joab answered: as truly as God lyueth yf thou haddest so sayde, then euen in the morynge hadde the people departed eche frome folowynge his brother. And therwith * Joab blewe a trompet/ and all the people stode styll and pursued after Israel no more, nor fought no more. And Abner and his men walked all that nyght by the wylde fyldes, and went ouer Jordan, and paſt thorow all Bethhoron, and came to Mahanaim.

And Joab retourned frome Abner and assembled all the people. And there lacked of Dauid seruauntes nyneteene personnes and Asahel. But the seruauntes of Dauid hadde slayne of Ben Jamin and of Abners men, thre hundred and thre score men. And they take vp Asahel, and buryed hym in the sepulchre of his father in Bethlehem. And Joab and his men wente all nyght, and came in the dawnynge to Hebron.

¶ Abner commeth to Dauid and bryngeth him his wife Michol. Joab killeth Abner. Dauid bewayleth his death, and curseth Joab.

CAPI. III.

THere was longe stryfe betwene ✠ house of Saul and the house of Dauid. But Dauid waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker. * And Dauid hadde thyldren borne hym in Hebron. His eldest sonne was Amnon of Achinoam the Jesrahelite/ the secunde Chileab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite/ the thyrde Absalom the sonne of Maachah the doughter of Tholmai the kynge of Gesur/ the fourthe Adonias the sonne of Haggith/ the fyfte Saphatiah the sonne of Abital/ the sixte, Jethraam by Egla Dauids wyfe. These were borne to Dauid in Hebron. And as longe as there was battayle betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid, Abner the sonne of Ner helde vp the house of Saul. And Saul hadde a concubyne named Rispah, the doughter of Aiah. And Jbosheth sayd to Abner. Wherfore spredst thou with my fathers concubyne? Then was Abner verye wrothe for the wordes of Jbosheth, and sayd: Am I not a * dogges heed, whiche agaynste Juda haue shewed mercye this daye vnto the house of Saul thy father, and to his brethren and frendes / and haue not delyuered them in to the hande of Dauid: seyenge thou fyndest a fault in me this daye for a woman? * So me God to Abner/ and so onelesse as the Lorde hath sworne to Dauid, I so wo to hym/ and bryng the kyngdome from the house of Saul, and sette vp the seate of Dauid ouer Israell and ouer Juda, frome Dan to Berlade. And he couldē gyue Abner not one worde to answeret, bycause he feared hym. Then Abner sente messengers to Dauid forthwith, sayenge: Whose is the lande? And he sayd moreouer: Make a bonde with me / and se, my hande is with the, to bryngē all Israell vnto the. And Dauid answered/ well sayde/ I will make a bonde with the. But one thynge I requyre the, that thou se not my face, onelesse thou fyrste bryngē Michol Saules doughter, when thou commest to se me. And Dauid sent messengers to Jbosheth Saules sonne, sayenge: delyuer me my wyfe Michol, whiche I maryed with an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistiers. And Jbosheth sent and take her frome her husbande Phaltiel the sonne of Lais. And her her husbande folowed her, and came weepynge behynde her, tyl they came to Bahurim. Then sayde Abner vnto hym, goo and returne. And he returned. And Abner had communycacion with the elders of Israell, sayinge: Ye haue longe gone about that Dauid shoulde be kynge ouer you. Nowe then wo it: for the Lorde hathe sayde of Dauid, by the hande of my seruaunte Dauid, I wyll saue my people Israel oute of the handes of the Philistines, and oute of the hande of all theyr enemyes. And semblably wordes had he with Benjamin. And then wente to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebron all that Israell was content with, and the hole house of Beniamin. So when Abner was come to Dauid to Hebron, and twentye men with hym, Dauid made hym, and the men that were with him a feast. Then Abner sayd vnto Dauid, I wyll aryse and goo gather all Israel vnto my lorde the kynge, that they maye make a bonde with the, that thou mayste be a kynge oute al that thyne herte desyreth. And so Dauid let Abner departe, and he wente in peace. And loo, the seruauntes of Dauid and Joab came from chasynge robbers, and broughte a greate botye with them. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebron: for he had sente him awaye to departe in peace. When Joab and all the hoste with him were come, men tolde Joab sayinge: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kynge, and he hathe sent hym awaye that he is gone in peace. Then Joab wente to the kynge, and sayd: What hast thou wonne? Se Abner came vnto the, why hast thou sent him awaye that he shulde escape free? Thou mygheste knowe Abner the sonne of Ner that he came to flatter the, and knowe thy conuersacion and hauour, and to knowe all thy doynges. And when Joab was come oute from the kynge, he sente messengers after Abner, whiche broughte hym agayne from the well of Sirah vnwetynge to Dauid. So when Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab toke hym aside in the gate to speake with hym gylefully, and there smote hym vnder the sholder rybbes that he dyed, for the bloude of Asahel his brother. And when it afterward came to Dauids eare, he sayd: I and my kyngdome are gyltlesse before the Lorde for euer, concernyng the bloud of Abner the sonne of Ner, It fall therfore on the head of Joab, and on al his fathers house: that the house of Joab be neuer without one or other that hathe runnynge issues or without leperes and goers on crouches, and that fall on the swerde, and that lacke breed. And the cause why Joab and Abisai slewe Abner, was that Abner had slayne their brother Asahel at Gibaon in battayle. And Dauid sayde to Joab, and to all the people that were with him, rent your clothes, and put on sacke cloth and mourne before Abner. And kynge Dauid him selfe folowed the bere. And when they had buryed Abner in Hebron, the kynge lyft vp his voyce and wepte ouer the graue of Abner, and so dyd all the people. And the kynge bewayled Abner and sayde: Abner dyed not as a wretche dyeth. Thy handes were not manacled, ne thy fete sacked with fetters but as men falle before wycked children, so fellest thou. And all the people wepte yet more ouer him.

And wt en all the people came to eate meet with Dauid, whyle it was yet daye, Dauid swore, sayinge: so do God to me and so, yf I taste breed or oughte elles, tyll the sonne be downe. And the people wyste it, and it pleased them, as wel as all other good thinges which the kynge dyd in the syght of the people. And all the people, and all Israel vnderstode that daye how it was not the kynges mynde, to slee Abner the sonne of Ner. And the kynge of layd vnto his seruauntes: knowe ye not, there is a Lorde, and that a greate, fallen this daye in Israell? And I am this daye tender, thoughe I be annoynted kyng. And these men the sonnes of Zeruiah be to good for me to rule? But the Lorde rewarde the doer of euyll accordyng to his wickednesse.

¶ Baanah and Rechab slee Isboseth the sonne of Saul.

CAPI. IIII.

When Sauls sonne herd that Abner was deed in Hebron, his handes faynted and all Israell was troubled. Nowe, this Sauls sonne had two men that were become capitaynes ouer the souldyers, the one called Baanah, and the other Rechab the sonnes of Remon a Berothite, and of the children of Benjamin: for Beroth was reckened to appertayne to Beniamin. And these Berothites fledde to Gethaim, and sojourned there tyll the same tyme. And Jonathas Sauls sonne had a sonne lame on his fete: frue yeres olde was he, when tydynges came of Saul and Jonathas oute of Jezrahel. And his nource toke him vp, and fledde awaye. And as she made haste to flee and was amased, the childe fell and became halte and was called Mephiboseth. And these sonnes of Remon the Berothite, Rechab and Baanah went and came in the heate of the daye to the house of Isboseth, as he slepte on a bedde at none. And beholde, they came in to the house as though they wolde haue bought whete, and smote hym vnder his sporte rybbes, and fledde. For they came into the house as he slepte on his bedde in his retynge chamber, and smote him and slewe him and beheded hym, and toke his head and gat them awaye towarde the Easte all nyghte. And they broughte the head of Isboseth vnto Dauid to Hebron, and sayde to the kynge: Beholde here the head of Isboseth Sauls sonne thyne enemy, which sought thy soule. But the Lorde hathe auenged my Lorde the kynge this daye, of Saul and of his seede. Then Dauid answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sonnes of Remon the Berothite, and sayde vnto them: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, who hathe delyuered my soule oute of all aduersities: hym that told me that Saul was deed, thynkynge to haue broughte me good tydynges, I caughte and slewe in Ziklag, to gyue hym a rewarde for his tydinges bryngyng. And how moche more ought I to deale with wycked men that haue slayne a ryghteous person in his owne house vpon his bedde. Now therfore thynke ye that I will not requyre his bloude of youre handes, and take you from the earthe? And Dauid gaue in commaundement to his seruauntes, and they slewe them and cut of their handes and their feet, & hanged them vp by the pole in Hebron. And they toke the heed of Isboseth, and buryed it in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

¶ Dauid is yet agayne anoynted kyng: and taketh the Arche from Gaon. He calleth out the Ebrywe and the Lame. He marieth moo wyues and getteth moo children. He slayeth the Philistines.

CAPI. V.

THen came all the kynredes of Israel to Dauid to Hebron and sayde: se, we are thy bones and thy fleshe. And further in tymes paste when Saul was kynge ouer vs, thou ledest Israel in and out. And the Lorde hath sayde: thou shalte fede my people Israel, and thou shalte be a captayne ouer Israell. And so all the elders of Israel came to the kynge to Hebron. And kynge Dauid made a couenaunt with them in Hebron before the Lorde / and they annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israell. Dauid was thyrtye yere olde what tyme he began to raygne, and he raygned fourty yeres. In Hebron he raygned ouer Juda, seuen yere, and sixe monethes / and in Jerusalem thyrtye and thre yeres ouer all Israel and Juda.

Then went the kynge and his men to Jerusalem, vnto the Jebusites thinhabytaunces of the lande. And they sayde vnto Dauid: onles thou take away the blynde and the lame, thou shalt not come in hether, meaning therby that Dauid sholde not haue come in thyther. Neuertheles Dauid toke the holde of Sion, whiche is in the cirye of Dauid. Then sayd Dauid the same daye. Who so euer fleeth the Jebusite, and wynneth the toures of his house / and destroyeth the lame and the blynde ennemyes vnto Dauides soule. Wherfore it is a prouerbe: the blynde and the lame shal not come in to the house. And Dauid dwelt in the toure, and called it the cirye of Dauid. And he buylte rounde about fro Millo inwarde. Dauid waxed greate, and the Lorde God of hostes was with hym. And Hyram kynge of Tire sent messengers to Dauid with Cedar trees and carpenters and masons, to buylde Dauid an house. Wherby Dauid perceyued how the Lorde hath stablished hym kynge ouer Israel, and hath auaunced his kyngdome for his people Israels sake. And Dauid toke him mo concubynes and wyues out of Jerusalem, after he was come home Hebron, and mo sonnes and doughters were borne to Dauid. These be the names of the sonnes that were borne hym in Jerusalem: Samua, Sobab, Nathan, Salomon, Jebahar, Elisua, Nepheg, Japhia, Elisama, Eliada, and Elphalet.

But when the Philistines herde that they had annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israel, they came all vp to seke Dauid. And as soone as Dauid herde of it, he gat him to an holde. And the Philistines came and layde them along in the valeye of Raphaim. And Dauid asked of the Lord, saying: Shal I go to the Philistines? and wilt thou gyue them in to my handes? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid: goo, for I will helpe the Philistines in to thy handes. And Dauid came to Baal Perasim and smote them there and sayd: the Lorde hathe scatered myne ennemyes afore me, as a man wolde driue water, and therfore he called the name of the sayde place Baal Perasim. And there they lefte theyr ymages, and Dauid and his men toke them vp. And the Philistines came yet agayne, and layde them in the valeye Raphaim. But Dauid asked the Lorde, and he sayde, goo not. But compasse therm on the backeparte, and come vpon them from the mulberye trees. And when thou hearest the noyse of a thynge goynge in the toppes of the trees, then moue. For then the Lorde is gone out before the, to smyte the hoste of the Philistines. And Dauid dyd as the Lorde commaunded, and smote the Philistines from Gabaah to Gezer.

¶ The arche is brought forth of the house of Abinadab. Ozah is stryken and dyeth because he touched the arche. The arche is brought in to the house of Obed Edom, and from thence in to Jerusalem. Dauid daunceth before it, and is therfore despysed of his wyfe Michol.

CAPI. VI.

AFter this, Dauid chose out all the chefe younge men in Israell to the nombre of xxx. thousande, and arose and went, and all the folke that were with hym of the men of Juda, to fet awaye the arche of God, vpon which is called the name of the Lorde of hostes, that dwelleth betwene the cherubyns. And they put the arche of God on a new cart, & brought it forth of the house of Abinadab that dwelte at Gabaah. And Ozah and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab dryue the new cart. And when they brought it out of the house of Abinadab that dwelt at Gabaah with the arche of God, Ahio went before the arche / and Dauid and all the house of Israel playde before the Lorde with all maner instrumentes of fyrre wodde, with harpes, plaiterayes, tymbrelles, shrylles and cymbals.

And when they came to Nachons threshynge floure, Ozah put his hand to the arche of God and held it, for the oxen stombled. And the Lorde was wrothe with Ozah, and God smote him in the same place for his fault, and there he dyed by the arche of God. And Dauid was displeased because the Lorde had smit Ozah. And the name of the place was called Peres Ozah tyll this daye. And Dauid was then afrayde of the Lord, and sayd: how shold the arche of the Lorde come to my house? And so Dauid wold not bryng the arche of the Lorde with hym in to the cyte of Dauid, but caried it in to the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the arcke of the Lorde continued in the house of Obed Edom the Gethyte thre monethes / and the Lorde blessed Obed Edom, and all his housholde. And when it was tolde kynge Dauid that the Lorde hadde blessed the house of Obed Edom, and al that belonged vnto hym, bycause of the arcke of God, he went and brought the arcke of God fromthe house of Obed Edom, vnto the cyte of Dauid with gladnesse. And euer when they that bare the arcke of the Lorde hadde gone sixe pases, he offered an ox and a fatte shepe. And Dauid daunced before the Lorde with all his myghte in a lynnen Ephod gyrde vnto hym. And Dauid and all the house of Israel brought the arcke of the Lorde with shoutyng and trompet blowynge.

And as the arcke of the Lorde came in to the cyte of Dauid, Michol Sauls doughter lokes thorowe a wyndowe and sawe kynge Dauid springe and daunce before the Lorde, and therfore despysed hym in her herte. And when they hadde brought in the arcke of the Lorde, and had set it in his place, euen in the tabernacle that Dauid had prepared for it; Dauid offred burntesacrynges and prosperitie offrynges before the Lorde, and as soone as Dauid had made an ende of offrynge burntesacrynges and prosperitie offrynges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde of hoostes, and gaue amonge all the folke, euen amonge the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men euery one a cake of breed, and a pece of flesshe and a flacket of wyne. And so the people departed euery man to his house. Then Dauid returned to salute his housholde. And Michol the doughter of Saul came out agaynste hym and sayde. Oh how glorious was the kynge of Israel to daye, whiche stripte hym selfe this daye before the eyen of the maydens of his seruauntes, as a lyghte bayarde felowe is wont to stryppe hym selfe. But Dauid sayde agayne to Michol, I will make sporte before the Lorde, whiche chose me before thy father, and before all his house, commaundynge me to be ruler ouer all his people Israel. And I wyl be yet more vile then so, and wil be make in myne owne syghte: and shall neuertheles of the selfe same mayde seruauntes whiche thou speakest of, be hadde in honoure. But the sayde Michol doughter to Saul, hadde no chylde vnto the daye of her deth.

Dauid of a good purpose entendynge to buylde an house vnto the Lorde, is forbidden of God. He prayeth that the promyses of God may be fulfylled.

CAPI. VII.

AND in processe as the kynge dweite in his house after that the Lorde had gyuen hym reste rounde about fromme all his enemyes, he sayd vnto Nathan the prophet: beholde, I dwell in an house of Cedar trees; but the arcke of God dwelleth in the myddes of curtaynes. Then sayd Nathan vnto the kynge: go and doo all that is in thyne herte, for the Lorde is with the.

But that same nyght the woorde of the Lorde came vnto Nathan, saynge: goo and tell my seruaunt Dauid, thus sayth the Lorde, Shalte thou go buylde me an house to dwell in? For I haue not dwelte in anye house sithens the tyme I brought the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte, vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent and in a tabernacle. In any way where I went amonge all the chyldren of Israel, spake I one woorde with anye of the kynredes of Israel, whiche I commaunded to fede my people Israel, saynge: why buylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therfore so saye vnto my seruaunte Dauid: Thus sayth the Lorde of hoostes, I take the out of a shepe cote from folowynge shepe, to be a ruler ouer my people Israell. And I was with the in all thou wentest to, and haue destroyed all thyne enemyes oute of thy syghte, and haue made the a greate name, lyke vnto the renowme of the greate men of the worlde. And I wyll appoynt a place for my people Israel, and wyll plante it, and they shall continue in one place and shall moue no more, neyther shall wycked people trouble them any more as they dyd at the begynnynge, and sithens the tyme I commaunded Iudges to be ouer my people Israel, and I wyll gyue the rest from all thyne enemyes. And the Lorde telleth the that he wyll buylde the an housholde.

And when the dayes be fulfylled, and thou layde to reste with thy fathers, then I wyll set vp thy seed after the, whiche shall proceede out of thy body, and wyll stablysshe his kyngdome, he shall buylde an house for my name, and I wyll stablysshe the state of his kyngdome for euer: I wyll be his father, and he shal be my sonne: in so moche that yf he synne I wyll but rebuke hym with suche a rod as men be rebuked with, and with suche plages as the chyldren of men be plaged with. But my mercye wyll I not take awaye fromme hym, as I toke it from Saul, whom I put downe before the and thyne house, and thy kyngdom shall endure without ende after the, and thy state shall be stablysshed for euer. When Nathan hadde tolde Dauid all these woordes, and all this vision, then went Dauid and set him downe before the Lorde and sayde: what am I Lorde almyghtye, and what is my kynne, that thou hast hytherto brought me this farre forth? And is this a small thynge in my syghte Lorde almyghtye, but that thou shouldest speake also of thy seruaunts house for a great whyle to come? Is this a lawe amonge men Lorde almyghtye? And what can Dauid saye more vnto the, sithe thou knowest thy seruaunt Lorde almyghtye? Euen for thy woorde, and accordynge to thyne owne herte hast thou wrought all these great thinges to make them knowen vnto thy seruaunt.

Wherfore thou art great, o Lord God, and there is none lyke the, neither is there any God saue thou, according to all that we haue herde with oure eares. And what one people in the euerthe is lyke vnto thy people Israel, whiche God delyuered to be his people/and to make him a name/ and to shew them great and terrible thynges in the earthe, before thy people whiche thou redemedst to the, out of Egypte/ euen from the people and from theyr goddes. And thou hast ordeyned thy people Israell to be thy people for euer/ and thou Lorde arte their God. And nowe, Lorde God, the thyng thou hast sayd of thy seruaunt & of his house, make it good for euer, and do as thou haste sayde. And lette thy name be great for euer/ that men maye saye: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel: and lette the house of thy seruaunte Dauid be stablished before the. For thou Lorde of hostes, God of Israel hast told in the eare of thy seruaunt, sayinge: I wyll buylde the an house. And therfore hath thy seruaunt founde in his herte to praye this prayer vnto the. And now Lorde almyghty thou art the God, & thy wordes muste be true/ for thou haste holde this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Now therfore go to, and bleesse the housholde of thy seruaunt, that it may continue for euer before the. For thou Lorde almighty hast said that of thy blessynge, the house of thy seruaunt shall be blessed for euer.

¶ Dauid ouercommeth the Philistines and maketh the tribut apes. He ordayneth and appoynteth his officers.

CAPI. VIII.

AFter that, Dauid beat the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke the bridle of bondage out of their handes. And he beat the Moabytes, and measured them w a lyne, makynge them lye alonge on the erth/ and then measyng the length of two lynes to slee, and the length of one lyne to saue a lyue. And so became the Moabites Dauids seruauntes, and payde tribute. Dauid smote also Adadezer the sonne of Rehob kynge of Zobah, as he went to make the ende of his costes at the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke a thousand and seuen hundred horsemen of his, & twenty thousande fote men, and destroyed all his chariottes, reseruynge one hundred of them. Then came the Syrians of Damascon to succoure Adadezer kynge of Zobah. And Dauid slewe of them .xxii. thousande men, and put soudyours in Syra Damascon. And the Syrians became seruauntes to Dauid, payinge tribute. And thus the Lorde saued Dauid in all that he went to. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that were vpon the seruauntes of Adadezer, and broughte them to Jerusalem. And thus out of Betah and Berothai cityes of Adadezer, he broughte exceadynge great aboundaunce of brasse.

When Thoi kynge of Hemath hadde herde howe Dauid hadde discomfyted all the hoste of Hadezer, he sente Joram his sonne vnto kynge Dauid, to salute him with peax, and to bleesse hym because he hadde fought agaynste Hadezer, and beaten him: For Thoi kepte warre with Hadezer, whiche sonne broughte vessellles of syluer, golde, and of brasse with him. And them also kynge Dauid dyd present vnto the Lorde the syluer and golde that he halowed seuerally of all nations whiche he subdued: of the Syrians: the Moabites, the chyldren of Ammon, the Philistines, the Amalekites, and of the spoyle of Hadezer son of Rehob kynge of Zobah. And Dauid made him a name after he returned from the slaughter of the Syrians in the valeye of salt where he slewe eyghtene thousande men. And he put keepers in Edom, euen throwe oute all Edom put he soudyours/ and all Edom became his subiectes. And the Lorde kepte Dauid what so euer he toke in hande. And Dauid raygned ouer all Israel, and executed ryghte and iustice vnto all his people. And * Joab the sonne of Zaruiah was ouer the hoste/ and Josaphat, the sonne of Ahilud was recorder. And Sadoch the sonne of Ahitob and Achimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the preestes/ and Saraiah was the scribe. And Banaiah the sun of Jehoiada was ouer the Cerethites and the Pheliethites, but Dauids sonnes were chiefe rulers.

* 2. Regum. 8

¶ Dauid restoreth al the landes of Saul, to Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas.

CAPI. IX.

THen sayd Dauid: is there yet any man leefte of the house of Saul, that I maye shewe hym mercye/ for Jonathas sake? And there was of the houshold of Saul a seruaunt named Ziba, who was called vnto Dauid. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: art thou Ziba? And he sayd: thy seruaunt is he. Then sayde the kynge: remayneth yet anye man of the kynrede of Saul, whome I maye shewe the mercye of God vpon? And Ziba sayde vnto the kynge: Jonathas hathe yet a sonne whiche is lame on bothe feete. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: where is he? And Ziba sayd vnto the kynge: beholde he is in the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel in Lodaber. Then kinge Dauid sent and fet him out of the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel out of Lodaber. Now, when Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul was come to Dauid, he bowed hym selfe, and fell on his face. Then sayde Dauid: Miphiboseth? And he answered. Beholde thy seruaunt. And Dauid sayde: feare not, for I wyll surely shewe the kyndnesse for Jonathas sake/ and wyll restore the all the landes of Saul thy father/ and thou shalte eate meate on myne owne table alwaye. And the other bowed him selfe and sayde: what is thy seruaunt, that thou wolt vouchesafe to loke vpon suche a dead dog as I am? Then the kinge called Ziba Sauls younge man, sayinge vnto hym: I gyue vnto thy masters sonne all that pertayned to Saul and to all his kynne. Be therefore thou and thy sonnes and thy seruauntes tylle the lande for him, and bringe in, that thy masters sonne maye haue foode to eate. For Miphiboseth thy masters sonne shall eate meate alwaye vpon my table. For this Ziba had fyftene sonnes, and twentye seruauntes. Then sayde Ziba vnto the kyng: All that my lorde hath sayde vnto his seruaunte, thy seruaunte shall doo. For (sayde the kynge) Miphibosheth muste eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. This Miphibosheth hadde a sonne that was yonge, named Micha / and all that dwelled in the house of Ziba, were seruauntes vnto Miphibosheth. So Miphibosheth dwelte in Jerusalem / for he ate euer at the kynges table / and was thrito haulte on bothe legges.

T.6. vpon

¶ The messengers of David are spytefully entreated of the kynge of Moab: which kynge David auengeth.

CAPI. X.

A IT happened after this, that the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed / and Hanon his sonne raygned in his stede: Then sayde David: I wyl shewe kyndnesse vnto Hanon the son of Nahas, as his father shewed kindnesse vnto me. And therupon David sente to comforte him by the hande of his seruauntes ouer the deth of his father. Nowe, when Dauids seruauntes were come in to the lande of the chyldren of Ammon, the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayd vnto Hanon their lorde / thynkest thou that David bothe honour thy father, bycause he hathe sent to comforte the? Haue he not rather sente his seruauntes vnto the to serche the cite and to spye out, to thintent to ouerthrowe it. Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes, and shaued of the one halfe of euery mans berde, and cut of their garmentes euen in the myddle harde by the buttockes of them, & sent them away. Which thyng when it was told David, he sent against them (for they were men exceedingly ashamed) and sayd: tarye at Jericho tyll your berdes be growen, and then returne. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that they wronged David, they sent and hyred the sonnes of Bethrehob, and of the Syrians of Zobah xx. thousande foote men, and of kyng Maacah a thousande men / & of Jsrob twelue thousande men and when David herd of it, he sent Joab and all the hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out and gaue battayle before the gate / and the Syrians of Zobah, of Rehob, Jsrob, and Maacah, were them selues in the felde. When Joab sawe that the front of the battayle was before and after, he chose of all the best of Jsrael and put them in araye against the Syrians. And the rest of the people he deliuered in to the hande of Abisai his brother, which put them in araye against the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayd: yf the Syrians ouercome me, then succour me. But yf the chyldren of Ammon be to good for me, I wil come and succour the / quyte the lyke a man, and let vs fyght manfully for our people, and for the cyties of our God. And the Lorde do what seemeth best in his eyes. And forthwith Joab procedes and the people that was with him in to battayle against the Syrians, which fled before him. Whiche when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, and entred in to the cite. And so Joab returned from the chyldren of Ammon, and came to Jerusalem. And when the Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse before Jsrael, they gathered them together. And Hadadezer sente and brought oute the Syrians that were beyonde the ryuer. And the hoste of them came, and Sobah capitayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them.

And when it was shewed David, he gathered all Jsrael and passed ouer Jordan & came to Helam: where the Syrians put them selues in araye against David, and fought with him: how be it the Syrians fledde before Jsrael. And David destroyed seuen hundred charettes of them, and fourtye thousande horsemen / and smote Sobah the capitayne of his hoste, so that he there dyed. And when all the kynges that were seruauntes to Hadadezer sawe they were put to the worse before Jsrael, they made peace with them and serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon any further.

¶ The aduoutry of David with Bethsabe the wife of Urias. Urias is grieuously slayne. After that David taketh Bethsabe to wyfe.

CAPI. XI.

A IT came to passe in the begynnynge of a newe yere, in the tymes when kynges are wont to go forthe to battayle, that David sent Joab and his seruauntes with hym and all Jsrael. And they destroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and besieged Rabah. But David tarved styll at Jerusalem. And it chaunced in an euentyde, that David arose from his couche and walked vpon the roufe of the kynges palace, and frome the roufe sawe a very beautifull woman washyng her selfe. And he sente enquyre what woman it shold be. And it was answered againe, that she was Bethsabe the doughter of Eliam, and wife to Urias the Hethite. And David sent messengers and fet her, and she came vnto him, and he laye with her. And she was forthwith clensed frome her vncleannesse, & returned vnto her house. And when the woman had perceyued that she had conceyued, she sent and tolde David, and sayd: I am with chyld. Then David sent to Joab to send vnto hym Urias the Hethite. And Joab sente Urias to David. So when Urias was come to hym, he demaunded howe Joab dyd / and how the people fared, and how the warre prospered. And David sayde moreouer to Urias: go downe to thyne house, and washe thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace and there folowed him a seruice from the kinges table. But Urias slepte at the wore of the kynges palace with all the seruauntes of his Lorde, and wet not downe to his house. Then they tolde David sayinge: Urias went not in to his house. Then sayd David vnto Urias: forasmoche as thou art come from tourneying,

why doest thou not goo downe vnto thyne house? And Vrias sayd vnto Dauid: the arche and Israel and Juda, dwell in pauylyons: and my lorde Joab and the seruauntes of my lorde lye in tentes vpon the flatte earth/and shulde I goo in to myne house, to eate and drynke and to lye with my wyfe? + By thy lyfe, and as sure as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not do that thynge. Then sayd Dauid vnto Vrias: tarye here this daye also, and to morowe I wyl let the departe. And so Vrias abode in Jerusalem that daye and on the morow. And Dauid called hym, and he ate and dranke before hym/ and he made hym dronke. And at euen he wente oute to lye on his couche with the seruauntes of his lorde, and wente not downe to his house. Wherefore on the morowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab, and sente it by Vrias. And he wrote in the letter, sayinge: put Vrias in the fore ffronte of the battayle where it is moost stronge, and come backe from hym, that he maye be smytten to deth. So when Joab beseged the cite, he appoynted Vrias to a place, where he wist that strong men were. And the men of the cite came out and foughte with Joab. And there were certayne ouerthrowen of the people, and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Vrias the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sente and tolde Dauid all the proceedinges of the warre, and charged the messengers, sayinge: When thou hast made an ende of tellynge the thynges of the warre vnto the kynge yf he begyn to fume and saye vnto the: wherfore approched ye so nye vnto the cite to fyghte? wyste ye not that men wolde D shoote and moote from the walles? Who smote Abimelech sonne of Jerobeseth? Dyd not a woman caste a pece of a mylstone vpon him from of the walles, that he dyed in Thebes? why then went ye nye the walles? Then saye thou, thy seruaunt Vrias the Hethite is dede also.

And the messengers wente, and came and shewed Dauid all that Joab hadde sente hym with/ and sayde vnto Dauid: the men preuayle agaynste vs, and came forth vnto vs in to the felde, and we slacke vnto them vnto the entringe of the gate, and shoters shot from the walles, and some of the seruauntes of the kynge be dede. And thy seruaunte Vrias the Hethite is dede also. Then sayd Dauid vnto the messenger: thus wyle saye vnto Joab/let not the thynge trouble the. For the swerde deuoureth one as well as an other: make thy battayle more stronge agaynste the cite, and destroye it/and se thou encourage Joab. And when the wyfe of Vrias herde that her husbande was dede, she mourned for hym/and as soone as the mournynge was ended, Dauid sente and fette her to his house, and she was his wyfe and bare hym a sonne. But the dede that Dauid hadde committed, displesed the Lorde.

¶ Dauid is reproued for ỹ slaughter of Urias, and forthepenteth. The chylde begotten in aduoutrye dyeth. After it, is Salomon borne.

CAPI. XII.

AND the Lorde sente Nathan vnto Dauid. And he came vnto hym and sayd vnto hym: there were two men in one cyte, a ryche and a poore. And the ryche had exceedynge greate aboundance of shepe and oxen. But the poore hadde nothynge saue one lytle lambe, whiche he bought and nourysshed vp. And it grewe vp with him and his children, and dyd eat of his owne meat and dranke of his owne cuppe, and slept in his bosome, and was as dere vnto him as his daughter. And there came a straunger vnto the ryche man. And he couldē not fynde in his herte to take of his owne shepe nor of his beestes to prepare for the straunger that was come vnto hym. But toke the poore mannes lambe, and dressed it for the man that was come to hym. And Dauid was exceedynge wroth with the man, and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lorde lyueth the felowe that hathe done this thynge is worthye of deathe and shall restore ỹ lambe foure folde, because he dyd this thing and had no pity. Then Nathan sayd to Dauid: thou art the selfe man. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: I annoynted the kynge ouer Israel and dyd the out of the handes of Saul: And I gaue the thy masters house, and thy masters wyues in to thy bosome, and gaue the the house of Israel and of Juda, and wolde yt that hadde bene to lytle: haue gyuen the twyse so moche more. Wherfore hast thou despysed the commaundement of the Lorde, to do wickednesse in his syght? thou hast kylled Vrias the Hethite with the swerde and hast taken his wyfe to thy wyfe, ỹ hast slayne hym with the swearde of the children of Ammon. Nowe therfore the swerde shall neuer depart from thyne house, because (sayeth the Lord) thou hast despysed me and taken the wyfe of Vrias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe. Thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde I wyll stere vp euyll agaynste the owne of thyne owne house and wyll take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and gyue them vnto thy neyghbour, whiche shall slepe with them in the syght of the sonne. And thou dyddest it secretly, yet wil I do this thynge before all Israel and in the open sonne syghte.

Then sayde Dauid vnto Nathan: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde. And Nathan sayde agayne to Dauid: the Lorde hath put awaye thy synne, thou shalte not dye. Now be it because in doynge this dede thou hast gyuen the enemyes of the Lord a cause to raile, the chylde that is borne the, shall surely dye. And Nathan departed vnto his house. Then the Lorde strake the chylde that Vrias wyfe bare Dauid, and it sickened. Dauid besoughte God for the chylde, and fasted and went and lay all night vpō the erth: And the elders of his house arose and wente to him, to take him vp from ỹ erth. But he wold not, neyther yet eate meat with them. It happened the seuenth day that the chylde dyed. But the seruauntes of Dauid durst not tel him the chylde was dede. For they sayde: se, whyle the chylde was yet alyue, we spake vnto him, and he wolde not herken vnto eate beyre. Howe moche more wyll he beare hym selfe, yf we tell hym the chyld is deed? But Dauid sawe his seruauntes whysperynge, and therbye perceyued that the chylde was ded, and sayde vnto his seruauntes: is the chylde deed? And they sayde, yea. Then Dauid arose from the erthe, and washed, and annoynted hym selfe, and chaunged his apparell / and went in to the house of the Lord, and prayed / and after came to his owne house, and badde they sholde set meate before hym, and he dyd eate. Then sayde his seruauntes vnto hym: what is this that thou hast doone? Thou fastedest and wepest for thy chyld whyle it was alyue, but as soone as it was deed, thou diddest ryse vp and eate meate. And he answered: whyle the chylde was alyue, I fasted & wepte. For I this thoughte: who can tell whether God wyll haue mercye on me that the chylde maye lyue? But nowe sithe it is deed, wherfore sholde I faste? can I bringe him agayne anye more? I shall goo to hym, but he shall not come agayne to me. And Dauid comforted Bethsabe his wyfe / and wente in vnto her and laye with her, and she bare a sonne whose name was called a Salomon / and the Lorde loued hym. And he sent by the hande of Nathan the prophete, and called his name Jedian, on the Lordes behalfe.

a Hebr. Salomoh. 2 Sam. 1.

And as Joab fought agaynste Rabah, the citye of the chyldren of Amnon, he toke the kynges Toure and sente messengers to Dauid, sayinge: I haue made assaute to Rabah / and also haue taken the castell from whence they badde theyr water. Now therfore gather the reste of the people / and come and besiege the citye, and take it / lest yf I take it, the victorye be ascryued to me. And Dauid gathered all the people togyther, and went to Rabah and assauted it, and gate it. * And he toke the kynges crowne from of his heed, whiche wayed an hundred wayght of golde, and was sette with precious stones / and Dauid ware it on his heed. And he broughte out the spoyle of the citye in exceedynge greate aboundance. And he broughte oute the people that was therin, and sawed them, and drewe harowes of yron vpon them, and hedde some of them with sheedynge knyues of yron, and thruste some in to fornaces. And so he serued all the cityes of the chyldren of Amnon. And then Dauid and all the people retourned vnto Jerusalem.

¶ Amnon Dauids sonne defyleth his syster Thamar. Absalom therfore kylleth Amnon and after flyeth for feare of his father.

CAPL XIII.

Amnon.

AND it chaunced that Absalom Dauids sonne hadde a fayre syster named Thamar, whome afterwarde Amnon an other sonne of Dauid loued. And this Amnon was so vexed that he fell sycke for the loue of his syster Thamar: for it thoughte him harde to come by his purpose of her, sithe she was yet a virgyn. But Amnon hadde a companion called Jonadab the sonne of Samah the brother of Dauid: whiche Jonadab was a verye wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym, howe commeth it, that thou being the kynges sonne art thus consumed euerye morynge? wylt thou not tell it me? And Amnon answered him: I loue Thamar my brother Absalos syster. Then sayd Jonadab vnto him: lye on thye bedde and fayne thy selfe sicke / and when thy father is come to se the / saye vnto hym: let my syster Thamar come and gyue me meate, and dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it, and eate it of her hande. So Amnon laye downe and made him selfe sicke / and when the kynge was come to se hym / Amnon sayde vnto hym: let Thamar my syster come and make me a couple of fritters in my syght, & I may eate of her hand. Then Dauid sente home to Thamer, sayinge: goo to thy brother Amnons house, and dresse hym meate. When Thamar came to her brother Amnons house, he laye / & she toke flowre and made paste, and made fritters in his sight and dyd bake them / and toke a platter and powred them oute before hym. And Amnon wolde not eate, but commaunded to haue out all men from hym / and they wente all oute from hym. Then sayd Amnon vnto Thamar: bringe the meate in to the chamber, that I maye eate of thyne hande: And Thamar toke the fritters which she had made, and broughte them in to the chambre to Amnon her brother, and set them before hym to eate. And he toke her and sayd vnto her: Come lye with me my syster. And she answered hym: nay my brother doo not inforce me / for it ought not to be so in Israel / doo not this folly. * For whyther shal I goo with my shame? And thou shalte be as one of the fooles in Israell. But speake vnto the kynge, and he shal not denye me vnto the. Howbeit he wold not harken vnto her voice but was to strong for her, and * forced her and laye with her. And then Amnon hated her exceedyngly: so that the hate wherwith he hated her, was greater then the loue with whiche he before loued her. And he sayd vnto her, aryse and awaye. Then she sayde vnto hym / this great cruelte that thou puttest me awaye, passeth the other that thou diddest vnto me. Neuertheles he wolde not heare her, but called his ladde that wayted vpon him and sayde: put her out at the doores from me, and bolte the doore after her. And she hadde a kyrtell of diuers colours vpon her: for with such were the kynges doughters that were virgyns apparyled, made strayte vnto them. Then his seruaunt brought her oute at the doores, and locked the doores after her. And Thamar put asshes on her heed, and rente her gaye kyrtell that was on her, and put her hand on her heed and so went / and as she went, cryed. Then Absalom her brother sayd vnto her: hath Amnon thy brother ben with the? Nowe then be styll my syster, for he is thy brother / and set not this thynge greatly in thy herte. And so Thamar remayned desolated in her brother Absolons house. And kynge Dauid herde of all these thynges, and was very wrothe. And Absalom sayde vnto his brother Amnon, neyther good ne hadde. How be it Absalom hated Amnon because he had lored his syster Thamar.

And it happened two yere after that, Absalom hadde a shepesherynge in Baal Hasor besyde the tryde of Ephraim, and had all the kynges sonnes and he came to the kynge and sayde: beholde thy seruaunt hathe a shepesheryuge, let the kynge and his seruauntes come with thy seruaunt. And the kynge sayde vnto Absalom. Oh nay my sonne, lette vs not goo euery one of vs, that we be not chargeable vnto the. And Absalom laye sore vpon him, howbe it he wolde not goo, but blessed him. Then sayd Absalom, then let my brother Amnon go with vs. And the kyng answered, what neadyth it that he goo with the? But Absalom made suche instaunce, that he let Amnon goo with him, and all the kynges chyldren.

Then Absalom commaunded his younge men, sayynge: marke when Amnons herte is merye with wyne, and when I bid you smyte Amnon, then kyll him: feare not, for it is I that bydd you, be bolde therfore and playe the lusty bloudes. And the yonge men of Absalom serued Amnon euen as Absalom commaunded the. And all the kynges sonnes arose and toke eche man his mule and fledde. And whyle they were yet in the waye, tidinges came to David that Absalom hadde slayne all the kynges sonnes, so that none was lefte alyue. Then the kynge arose and rent his garmentes, and laye alonge on the earthe / and all his seruauntes stode by, with their clothes rente. Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Dauids brother answered and sayd: let not my lorde suppose, that they haue slayne all the younge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon onely is dead, for that hathe ben euer in Absaloms mouthe, sythens he lored his sister Thamar. Nowe therfore lette not my lorde the kynge take the thynge so greuously, to thynke that all the kynges sonnes be dead, when Amnon only is dead. But Absalom fled / and the yong man that kepte the watche lyfte vp his eyen and loked aboute / and beholde, there came moche people by awaye that was behynde his backe alonge by an hylles syde. Then sayd Jonadab vnto the kynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes are come / and as thy seruaunt sayd, so it is. And as sone as he had lefte speakyng: beholde the kynges sonnes came and lyfte vp their voyces and wepte. And therto the kyng and all his seruauntes wepte exceadyngly. But Absalom escaped and went to Tholmai the sonne of Ammihud kynge of Gesur. And the kynge mourned for his sonne continually. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gesur, and was there thre yeres. And by that tyme the kynge turned his mynde from pursuynge Absalom. For he had lefte mourynge for the dethe of Amnon.

¶ By the wysdome of the woman of Thekoa Absalom is called. The compynelle and boldde of Absalom, Absalom tryeth Joabs cosyn. His father hyderly hym.

When Joab the sonne of Zaruiah perceyued that the kynges herte was turned agayne to Absalom, he sente to Thekoa, and let thence a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: feyn thy selfe to be mourner, and put on mournyge apparell. And anoynt not thy selfe with oyle. But be as a woman that hadde longe tyme mourned for the dethe of some body. And go to the kyng and speake on this maner vnto him. And Joab taughte her what she shulde saye. Nowe when the wyfe of Thekoa was come to speake with the kynge, she fell on her face to the ground and dyd obeysaunce and sayde: helpe me O kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto her, what ayleth the? She answered. I am a wyddowe, and myne husbande is dead. And thy handmayde hadde two sonnes whiche fought together in the felde where was no man to go betwene them, & the one slewe the other. And beholde, the hole kynrede arose agaynste thy handmayde, and sayde: deliuer vs him that slewe his brother: that we maye kyll him for the soule of his brother whome he slewe, for we wyll destroye the heyre also. And so they shall quenche my sparkle whiche is lefte, tyll there remayne neither name ne tilue vpon the earth vnto my husbande. The kynge sayde vnto the wyfe: goo home to thyne house, and I wyll gyue a charge for the. Then the woman of Thekoa sayde vnto the kynge. My lorde kynge, the trespace be on me and on my fathers house, and the kynge and his seate be giltlesse. And then sayd the kyng: yf any man saye ought vnto the, brynge him to me / and he shall no more trouble the. Then sayde she, let the kynge remembre his Lorde God, that the nexte of the blonde gather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they slee not my sonne. And he sayd: as truly as the Lorde liueth, there shall not one heere of thy sonnes heed fall to therthe.

Then the woman sayde: let thyne handmayde speake one worde more to my lorde the kynge, and he sayd, saye on. And the woman sayde, wherfore then hast thou determined on this same maner agaynst the people of God? that the kynge sholde speake this thyng and be faultye therin, so that the kynge sholde not fet home agayne his banished? For we must nedes dye and perysshe, as water spylt on the grounde, whiche can not be gathered vp agayne / and God wyl not take awaye the life, but fynde the meanes that the banysshed be not vtterly expelled from hym. And now concernynge that I am come to speake of this thynge vnto the kynge my lorde / for I stode in feare of the people. thy handmayde thought surely I wyll speake vnto the kynge / peraduenture the kynge wyll heare the request of his handemayde. And the kynge shall heare his handemayde and deliuer her fourth of the hande of the man that wolde haue destroyed me and my sonne also, oute of the enheritaunce of God. Then thyne handmayde sayd: I praye God that the worde of my lorde the kynge maye be vnchaungable. For my lorde the kynge is an aungell of God in hearyng of good good or badde: and therfore the Lorde thy God be with the.

Then the kynge answered and sayde to the woman: hyde not frome me I praye the: the thynge that I shall aske the. And the woman sayde: let my Lorde the kynge saye on. Then sayde the kynge. Is not the hande of Joab with the in all this matter? And the woman answered and sayde: as surely as thy soule lyueth, my Lorde kynge, it is neyther on the right hande nor on the lefte, that my Lorde the kynge hathe spoken. For thy seruaunt Joab bad me, & he put all these wordes in the mouth of thyne handmayde. And that I shulde thus turne my talke an other waye, wylled me thy seruaunt Joab. And so I se that my Lorde is wyse, euen as an Aungell of God, to vnderstande all thinges that are in the earth. Then sayde the kynge to Joab, beholde, I am content to do this thynge. Go therfore fet home the yongeman Absalom. And Joab fell to the grounde on his face, and bowed him selfe, & blessed the kynge, and sayde: now thy seruaunt knoweth that I haue founde grace in thy sight of my Lorde the kynge in that he hath fulfilled the request of his [illegible] arose and went to Gesur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. Then sayde the kynge: let him turne to his owne house, and se he come not in my presence. And so Absalom went to his owne house, but came not in the kynges presence. Moreouer in all Israell there was not so goodly a man as Absalom, of so great lyp praysed, from the sole of his fote to the top of his head, was no blemysh in him. And whē he shaued his head (for at euery yeres ende he shaued it because it was heuy on him, & therfore he shaued it) the heare therof wayed two hundred sycles weyght of the kynges weyght. And there Absalom had three sonnes borne him and one daughter named Thamar, whiche was a fayre woman to looke vpon. When Absalom had dwelt two yere in Jerusalem without commynge into the kynges presence, he sent for Joab, to thintent, to haue sent him to the kynge. But he wolde not come to him. And he sent agayne, & yet he wolde not come. Then he sayde vnto his seruauntes: beholde, Joab hath a parcell of lande fast by myne, & hath barley therin. Go and set it on fyre. And Absaloms seruauntes went and set it on fyre.

Then Joab arose and came to Absalom vnto his house, and sayde vnto him: Wherfore haue thy seruauntes burnt my felde with fyre? And Absalom sayde to Joab: beholde, I sent for the, desyring the to come, because I wolde haue sent the to the kynge, for to say: wherfore am I come frome Gesur? It had bene as good for me to haue byden there still. Nowe therfore let me come to the kynges presence, or elles yf there be any trespace in me, kill me. And Joab went to the kynge and tolde him. And he sent for Absalō: which whan he was come, fell vp the grounde on his face before the kynge. And the kynge kyssed him.

¶ Absalom maketh insurrection against his father. Dauid is fayne to flee for feare of him.

CAPI. XV.

After this, Absalom gat him charettes and horses, and fyfty men to run before him. And therto he dyd to aryse vp early in the mornynges, and to stande by the wayes syde that led to the gate of the cytie. And all the men of Israel that had complaintes and came to the kynge for iudgement, he called vnto him and sayde: of what cite arte thou? And when the other answerd: thy seruaunt is of suche a tryb of Israel. Then sayd Absalom vnto him: se, me thinketh thy matter is good and ryghteous, and yet no man is appointed of the kynge, to heare the. Then Absalom sayde further: Oh, that I were a iudge in the lande, and that all men whiche haue suites and matters in the lawe, shuld come to me. For I wolde do them iustice. And also when any man came nyghe to him to do hym obeysaunce, he put forth his hande and toke him to him, and kyssed him. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Israel that came to the kynge for iudgement, and thus he wanne the [illegible] of Israel. And at fourtye [illegible] kynge: Let I haue vowed, vnto [illegible]de: for thy seruaunt vowed a vowe when I was in Gesur in the lande of Syria, sayynge: yf the Lorde shall bringe me agayne to Jerusalem, I will serue the Lorde. And the kynge sayde / goo in peace. And so he arose and went to Hebron. Then Absalom sent spyes throwe out all the trybes of Israel, sayynge / as sone as ye heare the voyce of the trompe blowe, saye / Absalō raygneth kynge in Hebron. And with Absalō went two hundred men forth of Jerusalem / were called. And they went with pure hertes knowinge nothynge of the matter. Absalom sent also for Achitophel the Gyonite Dauids counceilour, and let him out of his cytie Silo, when he sacrifyced sacrifices, where was wrought strong treason. And the people drue to Absalom in great thronges. And there cam a messenger to Dauid and sayde / The hertes of the men of Israel are to folow Absalom. Then sayde Dauid to all his seruauntes that were with him at Jerusalem / aryse and let vs flee, for we shall not otherwyse escape fro Absalom. Make spede to depart / lest he come sodenly and catche vs, and bringe some myschef vpon vs, & smyte the cytie with the edge of the swerde. And the kynges seruauntes sayd to him / beholde, thy seruauntes are redy to whatsoeuer my Lord the kynge shall appointe. Then the kynge & all his houshold departed a fote. And he left behynde him ten women / were his concubynes, to kepe the house. And so the kynge & al the people went forth a fote & taryed farre frome the house, & all his seruauntes went by his syde. And all the Cerethites & all the Pelethites, & all the Gethites euen. vi. hundred men which were come a fote frome Geth, went before the kynge. Then sayde the kyng to Ethai the Gethite, wherfore shuldest thou go with vs also? Returne and abyde with the kynge, for thou art a straūger and and art remoued frome thyne owne place. Thou camest but yesterdaye, and shoulde I vnquiet the to daye to go with vs? I will go whether I go. But returne thou and cary agayne thy brethren. Mercy & truthe be with the. And Ethai answered the kynge and sayd: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as surely as my Lorde the kynge lyueth, in what place my Lorde the kynge shalbe, whether in death or lyfe, there will thy seruaut be. Then sayd the kynge to Ethai, come and go forwarde. And Ethai the Gethite went forth, and all his men, and all the children that were with him. And all the countrey wept with a loude voyce. And all the people went forwarde the straight waye to the wildernesse. And behold Sadoch and all the Leuites were with him, and bare the arcke of the testament of God. And when they hadde set wowne the arcke of God, Abiathar came vp, vntyll the people were all come ouer, out of the cytie. Thē sayd the kynge vnto Sadoch. Caye the arcke of God agayne into the cytie. If I shall fynde fauoure in the eyes of the Lord, he will bring me agayne, and shewe me both it and the tabernacle therof also. But yf the Lorde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the. Beholde, here am I, let him do with me what semeth good in his eyes. The kynge sayde also vnto Sadoch the prieste, thou arte a Seer. Returne therfore into the cytie in peace. And take your two sonnes with you: Ahimaaz thy sonne, & Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar. And se, I will hyde me in the fieldes of the wyldernesse tyll there come some worde frome you to be tolde me. And so Sadoch and Abiathar caryed the Arcke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and they tarryed there. And Dauid wente vp on mount Oliuet and wept as he went, and had his head couered, and went barefote. And all the people that was with him, had euery mā his head couered, and as they went wept also. And one tolde Dauid, sayenge: Achitophel is one of them that haue conspired with Absalom. Then sayde Dauid: O Lorde, turne the counsell of Achitophel in to foolishnes. Whē Dauid was come to the toppe of the mount and had bowed him selfe vnto God: behold, Husai & Arachite came against him with his coate torne & earth vpon his head. Vnto whō Dauid sayd: yf thou go with me, thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. But yf thou returne to the cytie: then shalt thou saye vnto Absalom I will be thy seruaut O kynge: thus longe haue I bene thy fathers seruaunte, and nowe I am thyne. And thalt dissolue the counsell of Achitophel. And thou hast therewith the Sadoch and Abiathar the priestes, to whom thou shalte shewe all thou canste heare oute of the kynges house. And behold, ye haue with you there two sonnes: Ahimaaz Sadoches sonne, and Jonathas Abiathars sonne, by whome ye shall sende me all ye can heare. And so Husai Dauids frende gat him to the cytie. And Absalom also entered into Jerusalem.

¶ Ziba bringynge presentes to Dauid, doth falsyfye accuse Miphiboseth. Semei curseth Dauid and hourleth stones at him. Absalom by the helpe of Achitophel lyeth with his fathers Concubynes.

CAPI. XVI.

When Dauid was a lytle passe the toppe of the hyll: beholde Ziba the seruaunt of Miphiboseth came against him with a couple of Asses sadeled, and vpon them two hundred loues, and one hundred bonches of resinges, and an hundred knopies of dryen figges, and a bottell of wyne. Then sayde the kynge to Ziba: What hast thou there? And Ziba sayde: Asses for the kynges houshold to ryde on, and breed and fruite for the young men to eate, and wyne to drinke, yf any man faynt in the wyldernesse. Then sayde & kynge: Where is thy masters sonne? and Ziba sayd vnto the kynge: beholde, he tarryeth still at Jerusalem. For he sayde: This daye shal the house of Israell restore me & kyngdome of my father. Then sayd the kynge to Ziba: beholde thyne are all that pertayned vnto Miphiboseth. And Ziba answered: I beseche & that I may fynde grace in thy sight my Lorde kyng.

And when kyng Dauid came to Bahurim: beholde, there came out a man of the kynrede of the house of Saul named Semei the sonne of Gera, and he came out cursyng. And threwe he caste stones at Dauid and all the seruauntes of kynge of Dauid, all the people and all the men of warre goynge part on his right hande, and part on his lefte. And thus sayde this Semei, when he cursed the kynge, walke, walke, thou bloudeshedder, and thou vnthryfty man. The Lord hath brought vpō the, al the bloud of & house of Saul, in whose place thou hast raygned, and he hath deliuered the kyngdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And thou art wrapped about with thyn owne mischefe, because thou art a bloud sheder.

Then sayde Abisai the son of Zaruiah vnto the kynge: Why wold this dead dogge curse my Lorde the kynge? let me go and stryke of his head. And the kynge sayd: What haue I to do with you, ye sonnes of Zaruiah? Let him curse, for the Lord hath bydden him curse Dauid. And who dare presume to saye wherfore wilt he so? And Dauid sayde to Abisai, & to all his seruauntes / behold, my sonne which came out of myne owne bowelles seketh my lyfe. How moche more then may this son of Jemini do it? Suffre him therfore to curse for the Lorde hath bydden him / happely the Lorde will loke on my wretchednesse, and do me good for his cursinge this daye. And thus as Dauid and his men went by the way, Semei wente alonge on the hylles syde, ouer against him, and rayled as he went, and threwe stones at him, and cast dust. And the kynge & all that were with him came dry vnto, and refreshed them selues there.

And Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem and Achitophel with him. And as soone as he was come / Husai the Arachite Dauides frende wente vnto Absa-

Absalom and sayde vnto him: God saue the kynge, God saue the kyng. And Absalom sayd
D agayne to Husai: is this thy kindnesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not with hym? And Husai sayde vnto Absalom: nay not so, but whome the Lorde and this people and all the men of Israel chose, his will I be, and with hym will I dwell. And furthermore, vnto whome shall I do seruice but to his sonne? And as I was seruaunte before with thy father, so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Achitophel, giue counsell what is best for vs to do. Achitophel sayde to Absalom: get the vnto thy fathers concubines whiche he hath lefte to kepe the house. For when all Israel shall heare that thou hast forced thy father, then shall ye handes of all that are with the, be stronge. And so they pytched Absalom a tent vpon the top of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concubynes in the sight of all Israel. And the counsell of Achitophel whiche he counselled in those dayes, was as a man had asked counsell of God: so was all the counsell of Achitophel, both vnto David and also vnto Absalom.

¶ Achitophel approuyng his counsell disalowed of Husai and forsaken, hangeth him selfe.

CAP. XVII.

MOreouer Achitophel sayd vnto Absalom: let me chose out twelue thousand men. And I will forwarde and folow after David by night, and come vpon him whyle he is wery and weake handed, and will fray him, that all the people that are with him shall flee. And so will I smyte the kynge inconuenable, & will bringe agayne all the people vnto the, for thou seekest but after one man, and all the people shall haue rest. And the sayenge pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: call also Husai the Archite and let vs heare his aduise. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto him, sayeng: Achitophel hath geuen suche counsel, whether it be best we folow his sayenge or not, tell thou. Then sayde Husai to Absalom: the counsell that Achitophel hath geuen is not good at this tyme. For (sayde Husai) thou knowest thy father and the men
B that are with him, how they be stronge men. And they be chafed in their myndes, as a Beare robbed of her whelpes. And moreouer thy father is a man practised in warre, and will not lye a nyghtes amongest the commen people. Perchaunce he nowe lyeth in some caue or in some other place. And though some of his men be ouerthrowe at the first brunt, yet they that heare it will thinke the people that followeth Absalom, be put to the worse. By reason wherof euē the best men thou hast whose hertes are as the hertes of Lyons, shal shrink therat. For all Israel knowe that thy father
C is a valyant man, and that they which be with him be valyaunt men. But my counsel is that all Israel be gathered vnto the, from Dan to Berseba, as the sande of the see in nombre, and that thou goo to battayle in thyne owne personne. And we shall come vpon him in one place or other, where we shall fynde him, and we shall pytche a felde against him, euen as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And there shall not one of them be lefte, neyther he ne anye of all that were with him. Moreouer yf he take a towne, then shall all the men of Israel cōpasse that cytie rounde about with ropes, and we shall drawe it into the ryuer, vntyl there be not one stone found vpon an other. And Absalom and all the men of Israel sayde: that the counsel of Husai the Arachite was better then the counsell of Achitophel. For it was euen the Lordes intent to destroye the counsell of Achitophel: which was good, that the Lorde myght bringe euil vpon Absalom. Then sayd Husai vnto Sadoch and Abiathar the preastes: on this & that maner dyd Achitophel and the elders of Israel counsel Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counseled. Now therfore sende quyckely and shewe Dauid, sayenge: tary not all nyght in the felde of the wildernes, but get the ouer lest the kynge be deuoured, and all the people that are with him. Now Jonathas and Thimaas abode by the well Rogel, for they might not be sene to come into the cytie. And a wenche went and tolde them. And they to goo & shewed kynge Dauid. Neuertheles there was a lad sawe them whiche tolde it to Absalom.
But they went both of them awaye quickly, and came to a mans house in Bahurim, who E he had a well in his yarde, into whiche they went wyne. And the wyfe toke and spred a couerlet on the top of the well, and strawed theron stamped barleye to dryе. And the thyng was not espyed. So when Absaloms seruantes came to the wyfe, to the house and asked where one Thimaas and Jonathas were, the wyfe sayde vnto them: they be gone ouer the lytle brooke of water. And when they hadde sought them and couldе not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as soone as they were departed, the other came out of the well and went and tolde kynge Dauid, and sayde vnto him: aryse and get you quyckely ouer the water, for suche counsell hath Achitophel geuen. The Dauid arose and all the people that F were with him, and they were come ouer Jordan by day lyght so that there lacked not one of them that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Achitophel sawe his counsell was not folowed, he sadelled his asse, and arose, and G got him home, to his owne cytie, and set his houshold in order and hanged him selfe and dyed, and was buryed in the buryall of his father. Then Dauid came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordan, both he and all the men of Israell with him. Then Absalom made Amasa captayne of the hoste in stede of Joab whych Amasa was a mās sonne named Jethra a Jesraelyte that went in to Abigail the doughter of Naas, sister to Zaruiah Joabs mother. And Israel and Absalom pytched in the lande of Galaad. And whē Dauid was come to Mahanaim, Nobi the sonne of Nahash of ab of Kabath the cytye of the chyldren of Ammon, and Machir the sonne of Amiel of Lodaber, and Berzelai the Galaadite of Rogelim, brought beddes, basens and erthen vesselles: and also corne, barley, flour, and parched corne, beanes, and tier, hony, butter, sheepe and cheese of kyne, for David and all the people that were with him to eate. For they supposed that the people shuld be hongrye, faynte, and thurstye in the wyldernesse.

¶ Absalom is overcomme in battayle. He hangeth by the heare on an Oke. He is kylled and putte in a dyche. David is so sorowfull for the death of Absalom that he weyeth.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND the kyng nombred the people that were with him, and set graund captaynes and petty cappytaines ouer them.

And he sent one part of them with Joab, and an other parte with Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah Joabs brother, and the thirde part with Ethai the Gethite. And the kynge sayde to the people: shall I go with you? And the people answered: naye, for yf we flie, our aduersaries will not care for vs: neyther thoughe half of vs were slayne, shall they regarde vs. But thou were worth ten thousande of vs. And further more it is best that thou be redy to succur vs out of the cytie. Then sayde the kynge: what semeth you best, that will I do. And the kynge stode by the gates syde, and all the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab, Abisai, and Ethai sayenge: se that ye saue my sonne Absalom. And all the people herde when the kynge gaue all the captaynes charge vpon Absalom. And the people went out into the felde against Israel, and the battell was in the wodde of Ephraim. Where the people of Israel were put to the worse before the seruauntes of David and there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twenty thousande men. And the felde was sought in diuerse places, all about vpō the earth. And the woodde deuoured more people that day, than dyd the swerde. And it chaūced Absalom to come before the seruauntes of David ryding vpon a Mule which caryed him vnder the thicke bowes of a great Oke. And his heed caught in the Oke, so that he honge betweene heauen and earthe, and the Mule that was vnder him went awaye. And one that sawe it tolde Joab sayenge: behold, I sawe Absalom hange in an Oke: and Joab sayd vnto him that tolde him: lo, sawest thou him? and why dydest not thou there smyte him to the groūde, that I shoulde haue geuen the ten pyeces of syluer and a fayre girdle.

And the man answered Joab: thoughe I hadde a thousand pyeces of syluer tolde in my hande, yet would I not stretche out myne hād against the kynges sonne. For we herde with our eares when the kynge charged the, Abisai, and Ethai, sayenge: se that ye laye no handes vpon my sonne Absalom. Moreouer thoughe I had iouparded my life, and were falsly, yet coulde nought of al the matter haue bene hyd from the kynge: yea and thou thy selfe wouldst be against me. Then sayde Joab I may not flatte tarye wyth the, I will dyd him before thy face.

And therwith he toke three speares in his handē and thrust them into the hert of Absalō whyle he was yet alyue on the body of the tree. And ten seruauntes that bare Joabs weapōs, turned and smote Absalom and slue him. The Joab blewe a trompet, and the people returned from pursuynge Israel: for Joab spared the people. And they tooke Absalom, and caste him into a great pyt that was in the wood, & cast a myghty great heape of stones vpon him. Then all Israel fled euery man to his tent. And this Absalom yet in his lyfe tyme, reared vp a pyller, which is yet in kynges dale. For he sayde: I haue no male childe. And therfore to kepe my name in remembraunce haue I it. And he called the pyller after his owne name. And it is called vnto this daye, Absaloms pyller.

Then sayde Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoch: let me runne and beare the kynge tydynges, how the Lorde hath gyuē him ouerlode of the handes of his enemyes. Joab sayde to him: thou arte no man to beare tydynges to day: thou shalt beare tydynges another tyme but to daye thou shalt beare none, because the kynges sonne is ded. The sayd Joab to Chusi go and tell the kynge what thou hast sene. And Chusi bowed him selfe vnto Joab and ranne. Then sayde Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoch agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me runne I praye the after Chusi. And Joab sayde: Wherfore shouldest thou runne my sonne? for al be it thou runne thou getteste no rewarde: but he sayde, Well, come what will let me runne. And he sayde vnto him: runne. Then Ahimaas ranne by the playne and ouer ranne Chusi.

Dauid sat betweene the two gates. And the watchman went vp to the roufe ouer the gate vnto the wall, and lyfte vp his eyen and sawe: and beholde, there came a man runnynge alone. And the watcheman called and tolde the kynge. And the kynge sayde, yf he come alone, there is tydynges in his mouth. And he came and drue nye. And the watchman sawe another man runnynge, and called vnto the porter and sayde: beholde, there commeth another runnynge alone. And the kynge answered, he is also a tydynges bringer. And the watchman sayde: me thinketh the runnynge of the formost is lyke the runnynge of Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoch. And the kynge sayde: he is a good man, and commeth with good tydynges. And Ahimaas called and sayde to the kynge: good tydynges, and bowed him selfe to the erth vpon his face before the kyng and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God which hath shut vp al the men that lyft vp their handes against my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge sayde, is the lad Absalom safe? And Ahimaas answered, I saw a great buruer buruer when the kynges seruaunt Joab sent me thy seruaunt. But I wotte not what it was. And the kynge sayde: turne and stande here. And he turned and stode. And beholde Chusi came and sayde, Good tydynges my liege sir kyng, the Lorde hathe quytte the this daye out of the handes of all that arose agaynste the. And the kynge sayd to Chusi, is the lad Absalom safe? And Chusi answered, the ennemyes of my Lorde the kyng and all that rise agaynste the, to haue the, be as thy sonne is. And the kynge was moued and went vp to a chamber ouer the gate and wepte, and as he went thus he sayde: my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde to God I. hadde dyed for the Absalom, my sonne, my sonne.

¶ David is restored to his kyngdome, and brought agayne to Jerusalem.

CAPI. XIX.

IT was tolde Joab, that the kynge wepte and mourned for Absalom. And the victorye was turned that daye in to mourning vnto al the people. For the people herde that daye, howe the kynge sorowed for his sonne, and the people went stealynge in to the cyty, euen as people ashamed do steale awaye, when they flee in battell. And the kynge hyd his face and cryed with a loude voyce: my sonne Absalom Absalom my sonne my sonne. Joab therfore went into the house to the kynge & sayd: thou hast shamed this daye the faces of all thy seruauntes, whiche this daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes & doughters, and the lyues of thy wyues & concubynes, in that thou louest thyne ennemyes and hatest thy frendes. Thou hast declared this daye that thou carest nother for thy capytaynes nor seruauntes. For now I vnderstande perceyue, yf Absalom had lyued, and all we dyed this daye, then it had pleased the well. Now therfore aryse and come abrode, & speke kyndly vnto thy seruauntes, I sweare by the Lorde onelesse thou come oute, there will not tarye one man with the this nyghte, whiche thinge will be worsse vnto the, then all the euyll that fell on the frome thy youthe vnto this houre. Then the kynge arose & sat downe in the Gate. And it was tolde vnto all the people, how the kynge sat in the Gate. And then all the people came before the kynge. But Israel fled euery man to his tente. And all the people were at stryfe throwe out all the kynredes of Israell, sayenge: the kynge deliuered vs out of the hande of our ennemyes, and he deliuered vs oute of the hande of the Philistines. And now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. And Absalom whome we annoynted ouer vs is dead in battell. Nowe therfore why are ye so styll, that ye bringe not the kynge agayne? And kynge David sent to Sadoch & Abiathar the preastes, sayenge: Speake vnto the elders of Juda and saye: why shuld ye be the last that shulde bringe agayne the kynge to his house, seyng suche tydinges is come to all Israel vnto the kynge euen to his house? ye are my brethren, my bones and my flesshe: wherfore then shuld ye be the last that shuld come to bringe the kynge home agayne? And saye to Amasa: art thou not my bone and my flesh? And God do so to me and so, onles thou be capitayne of the hoste to me for euer in the rowme of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Juda, as a man wolde bowe the hert of one man: so that they sent worde to the kynge, that he shulde returne with all his seruauntes. And the kynge returned and came to Jordan. And Juda came to Galgal to mete the kyng and conuey him ouer Jordan. And Semei + the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini whiche was of Bahurim, hasted and came with the men of Juda to mete kynge David, and a thousande men of Benjamin with him, and + Siba the seruaunt of the house of Saul, and his .xv. sonnes, and thyrtye seruauntes with him. And they whypte ouer Jordan before the kynge. And there went ouer a Bote to cary ouer the kynges houshold, and to do him pleasure. And Semei the sonne of Gera fell before the kynge, as he was come ouer Jordan, & sayde to him: let not my lorde accompt wickednes vnto me, ne let him not remember the wyckednesse that thy seruaunt dyd, when my lord the kynge departed forthe of Jerusalem that the kynge shulde take it to herte. For thy seruaunt doth knowe his offence. And therfore beholde, I am the fyrste this daye of all the house of Joseph that am come to mete my lorde the kynge. But Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah answered and sayde: shall Semei not dye for these wordes that he cursed the Lordes annoynted? And the kynge sayde / What matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of Zeruiah, that ye shulde this daye be aduersaries vnto me? There shall no man dye this daye in Israel / for I knowe I am made this daye kynge ouer Israell. And the kynge sayd vnto Semei / thou shalte not dye, and sware vnto him.

And Miphibosheth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kynge, and had neyther dressed his fete, ne shaued his bearde, ne washed his clothes, fro me the tyme the kynge departed, tyll he came agayne in peace. And whe he was come to Jerusalem towarde the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him / Wherfore wentest not thou with me Miphibosheth? And he sayd, My Lorde kynge, my seruaunt deceyued me. For thy seruaunte sayde / that I wolde haue myne asse sadled to ryde theron, for to go to the kynge, because thy seruaunt is lame. And he hath therto complayned on thy seruaunte vnto my Lorde the kynge. But my lorde the kynge is as an aungell of God / doo therfore what semeth best in thyne eyes. For all my fathers house were but dedmen vnto my lorde the kynge / & yet dydest thou put me among them that eate at thyne owne table. What righte therfore haue I yet, to crye anye more vnto the kynge? And the kynge sayde / it needeth the not to speake anye more, for I haue sayde / that thou and Siba shall deuide the landes betwene you. And Miphibosheth sayd vnto the kyng / yee let him take all / for so moch as my es my lorde the kynge to come in peax to his owne houfe.

I And Berzelai the Galaadite came from Roglelim, and went ouer Jordan with the kynge, to accompanye him ouer Jordan: whyche Berzelai was a very aged man, and foure score yeres olde, and had prouyded the kynge of fuftenaunce whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of very great substaunce.

And the kyng sayde vnto Berzelai: come thou with me, that I maye fede the with me in Jerusalem. But Berzelai sayde vnto the kynge, Of what age am I, that I shulde go with the kynge into Jerusalem? I am this daye foure score yeres olde: and therefore can not discerne fawery from vnfawery, neyther hath thy seruaunte pleasure in that he eateth or drynketh: or yet delectation in the songes of men or women. Jt is no nede that thy seruaunte be a burthen vnto my Lorde the kynge: let thy seruaunte goo a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kynge, for why shulde the kynge yelde me suche a rewarde? But let thy seruaunte turne backe agayne, that I may dye in myne owne cite, and be buryed by the grave of my father and mother. But loo, here is thy seruaunte Chamaam, let him goo with my Lorde the kynge, and do to him, what shall please the.

6 And the kynge answered, Chemeam shall goo with me. And I will do to hym that thou shalt be content with. Yea and whatsoeuer thou wilte requyre of me, that same will I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan. And when the kynge was come ouer Jordan, he kyssed Berzelai and blessed hym, and he went backe agayne vnto his owne place. And then the kyng went to Galgal, and Chemam went with hym. Howe, all the men of Juda were at the dyrygyng ouer of the kinge, and but halfe the men of Jsrael.

Wherefore all the men of Jsrael came to the kyng and sayde vnto him: why haue our brethren the men of Juda stolen the awaye, and haue brought the kyng and his houshold and all Dauids men with hym ouer Jordan?

And all the men of Juda answered the men of Jsrael: for the kynge is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angry for that matter? thynke ye that we eate of the kynges coste, or that the kynge giueth vs any gyftes? And the men of Jsrael answered the men of Juda and sayde: we haue ten parres in the king and haue therto more right to Dauid then ye. Why then dyd ye despyse vs, that our aduyse had not bene fyrste had in reuerence ouer kynge agayne? And the wordes of the men of Juda were fearcer then the wordes of the men of Jsrael.

Sheba the sonne of Bochri rayseth Jsrael against Dauid. Joab kylleth Amasa traytorously here. The head of Sheba is throwen to Joab. Dauids secretaries are nombred.

CAPL. XX.

1 There happened also to be an vnthryfty person named Seba, the sonne of Bochri, a man of Semini, wyche blew a trompet and sayde: we haue no part in Dauid, nor inheritaunce in the sonne of Jsai, O Jsrael, let vs depart therfore euery man to his tent. And al Jsrael went from Dauid and followed Seba the sonne of Bochri. But the men of Juda claue fast vnto the kynge, from Jordan to Jerusalem. And when Dauid was come to his house to Jerusalem, he toke the .x. women his concubynes that he had left behynde him to kepe the house, and put them in warde and mynystred all thynges vnto them: but laye no more with them. And so they were closed vnto the daye of the death of them, and lyued a wydowes lyfe. Seba

Then sayde the kynge to Amasa: assemble me the men of Juda within thre dayes & present thy selfe here. And Amasa went to assemble the men of Juda: but tarryed longer then the tyme appointed him. Wherfore the kyng sayde to Abisai: now shal Seba the sonne of Bochri do more ille to vs then Absalom. Take thou therfore thy maisters seruauntes and folow after him: lest he get him walled cyties and escape vs. And there went out after him Joabs men and the Cerethites and the Phelethites and men of strength. And they departed out of Jerusalem to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochri. And when they were come to the great stone in Gabaon, Amasa met them. And Joab had on his garment that he had about him, gyrte vnto him, and vpon gyrte theron a knyfe layed fast to his loynes in a sheathe out of whyche it myght easily come forthe. And Joab sayde to Amasa: are al thinges in rest and peax my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chynne with the right hande, as thoughe he wolde haue kyssed him. And Amasa toke no heed to the knyfe that was in Joabs hande, with whyche Joab smote him in the short ribbes, and shed out his bowelles to the grounde, and smote him but one stroke, and he dyed. And then Joab and Abisai his brother pursued Seba the sonne of Bochri. And one of Joabs men that stode by the dede corps of Amasa sayde: What is he that he wolde be as Joab, and what is he that wolde be vnto Dauid in stede of Joab? And Amasa laye wallowynge in blonde in the middes of the waye. And there was a man that saw how all the people stode stil to gaze vpon him, and he rowled Amasa out of the way into the fielde, and cast a clothe vpon him. And as soone as he was tombled out of the waye all the people went after Joab, to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochri. Joab kylleth Amasa. 2. Regum. 3.

And he went thorow al the tribes of Jsrael vnto Abel Bethmaacah and all Barim. And the people gathered vnto him and went also after him. And they came & besieged him in Abel Bethmaacah. And they cast vp a bulk against the cyte. And it was besieged. All the people that was with Joab labored busely to ouerthrowe the wall. Then cryed a wyse woman out of the cyte, harken, harken, bydde Joab that he come hyther, to whome I maye speake with him. When Joab was come, the woman sayde: arte thou Joab? And Joab answered, I am. And she sayd to him: heare the wordes of thy handmayde. And he sayd: I am A wyse woman.

redy to heare. And she sayde: it hathe bene a common sayinge in olde tyme / men muste aske in Abel, & the it come to good passe. Abel is one of the quyetest and fayethfullest cities that are in Israel. And thou goest about to destroye a cytye that is a mother in Israell. Why deuourest thou the inheritaunce of the Lorde? And Joab answered and sayde: God forbydde, God forbydde it me, that I shulde eyther deuoure or destroye it. The thynge is not so: But there is a man of mount Ephraim, Seba the sonne of Bochri by name, who hath lyft vp his hande agaynst kynge David. Delyuer hym only, and I wyll depart fromme the cytye. And the woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heed shall be throwen ouer the wall to the. And then the woma went vnto all the people in her wyssdome. And they smote of the heed of Seba the sonne of Bochri, and cast it to Joab. And he blewe the trompe, and they shattered from the cytye euery man to his tent. So Joab returned to Jerusalem vnto the kynge.

And Joab was the graund capitayne ouer all the hoost of Israel, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Cerethites & the Pelethites. Aduram was officer ouer the tribute And Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was recorder. Sheua was scribe. Sadoch and Abiathar were the preastes. But Jra the Jairite was counsellour euen to David selfe.

¶ The deare yeres. The reuengaunce of the lynnes of Saul vpgroeth on his seuen sonnes, whiche are hanged. Foure great battelles, which David fought agaynst the Philistines.

CAPI. XXI.

THen there fell an hongre in the dayes of David three yeres tale wyngelye, and David enquired of the Lorde. And the Lorde answered: it is for Sauls sake and the house of bloude, because he slewe the Gabaonites. And the kynge called the Gabaonites, and sayde vnto them. (Nowe these Gabaonites were not of the children of Israel, but a remnaunt of the Ammorites, for the children of Israel had swore vnto them, & yet Saul sought to slay them, of a zele he had to the children of Israel and of Juda) David therfore sayd vnto the Gabaonites: What shall I do for you? and wher with shall I content you, that ye may bleste the enheritaūce of the Lord? The Gabaonites sayde vnto him: Our matter is not vpon syluer & gold but against Saul and against his house: neyther haue we any man that we wolde kyl in Israel. Then he sayd What then will ye I do for you? And they sayde vnto the kynge: the man that consumed and imagyned to bringe vs to nought, hym we ought to destroy, that not one of his stock be left in all the coostes of Israel, let the seuē men of his sonnes be delyuered vnto vs, that we may hange them vp vnto the Lord, in Gabaah, of Saul sometyme the Loyes cheste. And David sayde: I will geue them you.

But the kynge had compassion on Mephibosheth the sonne of Jonathas, the son of Saul, because of the Lordes oth that was betwene David and Jonathas the son of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Respha the daughter of Aiah which she bare vnto Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth, and the fyue sonnes of Michol the daughter of Saul which she bare to Adriel the son of Berzelai the Molathite, & delyuered them vnto the handes of the Gabaonites, and they hanged them in the hill before the Lorde. These seuen were all slayne at once in the first dayes of heruest: euen in the begynninge of Barley heruest.

And Respha the daughter of Aiah toke sackclothe and spred it vnder her vpon the Rocke, euen fromme the beginninge of heruest, vntyll rayne dropped vpon them out of heauen and suffered neyther the byrdes of the ayre to fall on them by daye, nor beastes of the felde by nyght. When it was tolde David what Respha the daughter of Aiah the concubyne of Saul had wone, he went and toke the bones of Saul & of Jonathas his sonne, of the men of Jabes in Galaad, whiche they had stolen fromme the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged them in the dayes when the Philistines had slayne Saul in Gelboe. And brought thence the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathas his son, and they fet awaye the bones of them that were hanged, and buryed them with the bones of Saul and Jonathas his sonne in the countrey of Ben Jamin, in Zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they hadde perfourmed all that the kynge commaunded, God was appeased vnto the lande. And the Philistines had yet agame warre vnto Israel. David therfore went with and his seruantes with him, and fought with the Philistines. And David waxed fayntye, & Jesbi of Nob one of the sonnes of Haraphah whose speare had waged thre hundred sycles of Brasse, and was gyrde with a new swerde thought to haue slayne David. But Abisai sonne of Zeruiah succoured him and smote the Philistiae and kylled him. Then the seruauntes of David swore vnto him sayenge. Thou shalt go no more forth with vs to battel, that the yght of Israell be not put out. And there was yet after this, battel with the Philistines at Nob, in whiche Sobechai the Husathite slew Saph of the sonnes of Haraphah. And there was yet the thirde battel in Gob, with the Philistines, where Elhanan the son of the Jaere Oygim, a Bethlehemite, slew one Goliath a Gethite: & staffe of whose speare was as great as a wewers cloth beame. And there was yet battell in Geth, where was a man of a great heyght, who had on euery hande fyue fingers, and on euery fote fyue toes. xxiij. in all. And was also of the kynred of Haraphah, and defyed Israel. And Jonathas the sonne of Samach the brother of David slew him. These foure were of the sonnes of Haraphah in Geth, and were ouerthrowē by the hande of David and his seruauntes.

¶ The songe of David for his delyuerye fromme his enemyes.

CAP. XXII.

And

And Dauid spake the wordes of this balade vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had deliuered hym oute of the handes of all his enemyes, and out of the handes of Saul. And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke, my castell and my sauyour. God is my strength, and in hym will I trust: my shylde & the horne that defendeth me: myne hyghe holde and refuge, my sauour, saue me frome wyckednesse.

I will praise and call on the Lorde and so shall be saued frome myne enemyes. For the stormes of death haue closed me about, and the floudes of Belial haue feared me. The cordes of hell haue enuironned me, and the snares of death haue ouertake me. In my tribulacion I called to the Lorde, and cryed to my God. And he herde my voyce out of his temple, and my crye entred into his eares. The earth trembled and quoke, and the foundacions of heauen moued and shoke, because he was angry.

Smoke went out of his nostrelles, and deuowre fyre oute of his mouth, that it kyndled coles. He bowed heauen & came downe, and darkenesse vnder neithe his feete. And he rode vpon Cherubim and flew: and appeared vpon the wynges of the wynde. And he made darkenesse a tabernacle rounde about him, vi water congeled in thicke cloudes. Of the bright nesse that was before him, coles were set on fyre. The Lorde thundred frome heauen, and the most hyghe put out his voyce. He shotte arowes and scattered them, and hurled lyghtnynge and tormoyled them. And the bottome of the see appeared, and the foundacions of the worlde were sene, by reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and thorow the blastinge of the breeth of his nostrelles. He sent fromthe about and set me, & pluckes me out of myghty waters. He kepte me from my mighty enemy, and frome them that hated me, and were to stronge for me. When they had betegea me in the daye of my affliction, the Lorde kepte me vp. And he brought me out at large and kepte me, because he kepte in me. The Lorde rewarded me after my righteousnesse, and according to the puerenesse of my handes he requited me. For I kept the wayes of the Lorde, and committed no wickednesse by forsakinge my God. But I had all his lawes in my sight, neyther I tourned my face frome any of his ordinaunces. But was pure vnto him warde, and kept my selfe frome vngodlynesse.

And the Lorde dyd to me againe, according to my righteousnesse, and after my puerenesse that I had in his sight. With the holy thou shalt be holy, and with the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure, & with the frowarde thou shalte be frowarde also. And the people that are in aduersitie, thou shalt helpe. And on the proude shalt thou cast thyne eyes, to pull the downe. Thou art my light (O Lorde,) and the Lorde shall lyghte my darkenesse. With thy helpe I will run thorowe an hoste of men, and by the ayde of my God will skynge ouer a wall. The wayes of God is vndefyled, and the worde of the Lorde fyned as golde, and he a shilde to all that trust in him.

Who is a God saue the Lorde? who mighty saue our God? God is my strength in warre, and ordereth the waye clearé before me. And maketh my feete as swyfte as rayndes, and setteth me fast vpon my hyghe holdes.

And teacheth my handes to fight, that a bowe of brasse is to weake for myne armes.

And thou hast saued me with thy shylde, & thy gentyinesse hath multiplyed me. Thou madest me rowme to walke in, that my feete shulde not slagger. I followed myne enemyes and destroyed them, and turned not agayne vntil I had consumed them. I wasted them & so throwled them, that they coulde not aryse: but fell vnder my feete.

And thou hyddest compasse me about with myght to battell, and madest them that rose against me, to stoupe vnder me. Thou madest myne enemyes to turne their backes to me, & them that hated me, & I destroyed the. They loked for helpe: but none came to saue them. Vnto the Lorde they cryed, but he herde the not. I will beate them as small as the dust of the earthe, and will stampe them as the dyrte of the streate, and will spreade them abrode.

Thou delyuerest me frome the diuisions of my people, and kepest me to be an hed ouer nations, for the people which I knew not became my seruauntes.

And the straungers shall make resistence against me, and shall obeye me at a worde.

And the aliens that shall take awaye, shall trembie for feare in their defenced places.

The Lorde lyue, and blessed be he that is my strength: and exalted be God the strength that saueth me. It is God that auengeth me, and bringeth vnder me the people vnder me. And delyuereth me from myne enemyes, thou lyftest me vp on hyghe frome them that aryse against me, and deliuerest me from the wycked men.

And therfore I will praise the (O Lorde) amonge the Heythen, and will synge vnto thy name. For thy great and many folde louinge of thy kynge, and shewinge mercy vnto thyne annoynted, euen to Dauid, and his sede for euer.

¶ The laste communicacion of Dauid, and the description of the mighty men to hym belongynge.

CAPI. XXIII.

These be the last sayenges of Dauid the sonne of Jsai. The man which is made the hyghe annoynted of the God of Jacob and pleasaunt Psalmist of Jsrael sayde: The spirite of the Lord spake in me, & his worde were on my tonge. The God of Jsrael spake vnto me, and the strength of Jsrael sayde: he that beareth rule ouer men, he that ruleth iustlye in the feare of God, shall be as the morninge lighte when the sonne shyneth in a morninge in whiche are no cloudes to letter the brightnesse, and as the grasse of the erth

by vertu of the cayne. And is not myne house so with God? in that he hath made with me an euerlastynge couenaunt perfect in all poyntes: and in that he shall fulfyll all that is healthsome vnto me, & all my delyres thereto. Where as the vnthryfty men are al as thornes taken forth of their places, whiche cannot be taken with handes: but the man that shall touche them, must be armed with yron on a longe helue. And then shal they be burnt with fyre, to sit therby.

These be the names of the myghtye men ℔ were aboute Dauid: Iosleb of Hebeth the Thachmonite, first of thre, otherwyse called Adino the Asonite, which slew. viii. hundred at one tyme. And next to him Eleazar the son of Dodi the sonne of Ahohi, one of the thre principal that were with Dauid, which whē they brayed the Philistines that were there gathered in battell, and the men of Israel were gone vp, arose and layd on the Philistines tyl his handes ached and claue vnto the swerd. And the Lorde made a great victory the same daye. And the people returned and went after hym onely to spoyle. After him was Sema ℔ sonne of Agee the Hararite (which when the Philistines were gathered in Lahaia where was a parcell of lande full of eares, and the people were fled for feare of the Philistines) stode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it & slew the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue him a great victory.

And these thre of the thirtye of the lordes went downe and came to Dauid in ℔ haruest tyme vnto the caue Odollam. And the host of the Philistines had pitched their pauilions in the valey of giaunctes. And Dauid was then in a stronge holde. And the souldioures of the Philistines were then in Bethlehem. And Dauid longed and sayde: Oh, that I had of the water that is in the wel in the gate of Bethlehem to drinke. And anone the thre myghty brake throughe the host of the Philistines and fet water out of the Wel of Bethlehem that was in the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid: neuertheles he wolde not drink therof, but offred it vnto the Lorde, and sayd: the Lorde forbyd that I shuld so do, shuld I drink the bloude of men that were in iopardye of their lyues? and so he wolde not drinke it. These thinges dyd these thre mighty me. The Abisai the brother of Joab, the sonne of Saruiah: he was capitayne ouer thre, and he lyft vp his speare against three hundred and slewe them, and was named with the thre. For he was nobler man then the thre and was their capitayne. Howe be it he attayned not vnto those thre in actes. Then Banaiah the sonne of Joiada the sonne of a lusty man valyaunt in actes of Kabzeel, he slewe two Lyons of Moab. He went downe and slew a Lyon in a pyt in tyme of snow. And he slew an Egyptian a goodly man, which hadde a speare in his handt. And Banaiah went down to him with a staffe, and pluckede the speare out of the Egyptians handt and slewe him with his owne speare: These thinges dyd Banaiah the son of Joiada and was the noblest of thirty. But not lyke to any of the thre in feates of warre. And Dauid made him of his counsell. Asahel the brother of Joab was one of the thirtye. Then Elehanan the sonne of Dodo of Bethlehem: Semah the Harodite: Elika the Harodite: Helez the Paltite: Ira the sonne of Ikes the Thekoite: Abiezer of Anatoth: Sobonai the Husathite: Zelmon an Ahohite: Maharai the Netophathite: Heled the sonne of Baanah an Netophathite: Ithai the sonne of Ribai of Gibeah a cytie of the children of Benjamin: Banaiah the Pharathonite: Hedai of the ryuer of Gaas: Abialbon the Arbathite: Asmaueth a Berhomite: Eliahba a Shaalbonite: Of the sonnes of Jasen Jonathas: Semah the Hararite, Ahiam the sonne of Sarar an Hararite, Eliphelet the sonne of Ahasbai the sonne of a Maachathite, Eliam the sonne of Ahitophel the Gilonite, Hezrai the Carmelite, Phaarai the Arbite, Igaal the sonne of Nathan of Zobah, Bani the Gadite, Zelec an Amonite, Naharai a Berothite the harnesbearer of Joab the sonne of Zeruiah, Ira the Ithrite, Gareb the Ithrite, Urias the Hethite, in all thirty and seuen.

¶ Because Dauid caused the people to be nombred, Israel is plaged with pestilence: so that in thre dayes dyed lxx. thousande.

CAPI. XXIIII.

AND the Lorde was wrothe eftsoones against Israel, & stered vp Dauid against them, sayenge, Go and nombre bothe Israel and Juda. And forthwith the kyng sayd to Joab the capitayne of his host, goo about I praye the, thorow out all the tribes of Israel, euen frome Dan to Berlabe & nombre the people ℔ I maye knowe the nombre of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge, I beseche ℔ the Lorde thy God make the people as many mo as they be, yea and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lorde the kynge maye se them. But howe is it that my Lorde the kynge hath a lust in this thinge? Notwithstanding the kynges wordes preuayled against Joab and against al the capitaynes of the host. Then Joab and the capitaynes of the host went out from the kynge, to nombre ℔ people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jorda and pytched in Aroer on the right syde of the cytie that lyeth in the myddes of the valeye of Gad and so forth to Jazer. And then they went to Galaad & to the nether lande of Hodsi, and frome thence to Dan Jaan, & about to Sidon, and came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to all the cyties of the Heuites, & of the Canaanites, and then went out to the south of Juda, euen to Berlabe. And so when they had bene aboute thorow out al the lande, they returned to Jerusalem at the ende of nyne monethes and twenty dayes. And then Joab deliuered vp the ordenynge of the nombre of the people vnto the kynge. And there were found in Israel nyne hundred thousand men of might that drew swerdes. And ℔ men of Juda were fyue hundred thousand men.

And

And Dauids hert smote him after that he had nombred the people. And he sayde vnto ꝯ Lorde: I haue synned exceadingly in that I haue wrought. And now Lord take away the trespace of thy seruant: for I haue wrought foolishly. And when Dauid was risen in a morninge, ꝯ worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete God. Gad Dauids Seer, sayenge: Go and say to Dauid, this sayth the Lorde. I offer the thre thynges, chose which of them I shall do to ꝯ. And Gad came to Dauid and shewed him, & 13. sayde vnto him: whether wilt thou haue. vij. yeres hunger in thy lande, or that thou flee thre monethes before thyne enemyes and they to lowynge the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy land. Now auise the and se, what worde I shall bringe agayne to him that sent me. Then sayde Dauid vnto Gad: I am in a ℣ right great feare. But better it is to fal into ꝯ hade of the Lorde, for moch is his mercy, then to fall in to the handes of men. And the Lord sent a pestilence in Israel vnto the morninge vnto the time of the tyme appointed. And there dyed of the people betweene Dan and Berlieba. lxx. thousande men. And when the angell stretched out his hande vnto Jerusalē to haue destroyed it, the Lorde repented vpon ꝯ scourge and sayde to the angell that destroyed ꝯ people / It is sufficient, let thyne hand cease. And the angell was at the threshinge place of Araunah the Jebusite. Then spake Dauid vnto the Lorde when he saw the angel that smote the people, and sayde / Loo, it is I that haue synned, and I that haue done wickedly. But these sheepe what haue they done? let I praye ꝯ thine hand be on me & on my fathers house. And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him / Go vp an reare an alter vnto the Lorde in the threshinge flour of Araunah the Jebusite, And Dauid according to ꝯ sayenge of God, wente vp as the Lorde commaunded. And when Araunah loked and saw the kynge and his seruauntes commynge towarde him, he went out: and bowed him self to the kynge flat on his face to the ground, & sayde: Wherfore is my Lorde the kynge come to his seruaunt? And Dauid sayd: to bye the threshynge flour of the, to make an aultare vnto the Lorde that the plage may ceasse from the people. And Araunah sayde vnto the kyng: Let my Lorde the kynge take and offer what semeth him good in his eyes / Beholde, oxen for sacrifice, and sledges and the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. And Araunah the kynges seruāt gaue all to the kynge, and sayd moreouer vnto the kyng / the Lord/ the Lorde thy God accept the. But the kyng sayde vnto Araunah / not so, but I will bye it of the at a price, and will not offer sacrifice vnto the Lord my God that shal cost me nought. And so Dauid bought the threshinge flour, and the oxen, for fyftye sycles of syluer.

And Dauid buylt there an aultare vnto the Lorde, and offered burntsacrifices and peax offringes. And so the Lord was appeased vnto the lande. And the plage ceased from Israell.

¶ The ende of the seconde boke of Samuel: commenly called the seconde of the Kynges.

THE THYRDE BOKE OF KYNGES, BVT AFTER THE HEBRVES, THE FYRST OF THE KYNGES.

¶ The younge virgin Abisag keyeth Dauid in his extreme age. Adonias enuyeth the realme vnto the kynge to his father. Salomon is annoynted kynge and then Adonias fleeth.

CAPI. I.

¶ When Kynge Dauid was waxen olde & ftryken in yeres, thought they couered hym with clothes, yet he caught no heate. Wherfore his seruauntes sayde vnto hym: let there be sought for my Lorde the kynge, a younge mayden to stande before hym and to cherysh hym. And let her lye in thy bosome, that my Lorde the kynge may get heate. And so they sought for a fayre damosell thorow out all the coostes of Israel and founde one Abisag, a Sunamite, and brought her to the kynge. And the Damosell was exceedinge fayre, and cherysshed the kynge and ministred to him: But the kynge had not to do with her.

Adonias. But Adonias the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe sayenge: I wyll be kynge. And he gat him a charett, and horsmen, and fyfty men to runne before him. And his father rebuked him not at any tyme nor sayd so much to him as why dest thou so. And he was therto a goodly man and his mother bare him next after Absalom. And he communed with Joab ꝑ sonne of Zaruiah, & with Abiathar the preest. And they holpe Adonias. But Sadoch ꝑ preest Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, Nathan the prophet, Semei and Rei & the men of mighte which were with Dauid feared not Adonias And Adonias sacrificed sheepe and oxen and fat lynges at the stone of Zoheleth, which is fast by the well of Rogel, and bad tyther all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and all the men of Juda the kynges seruantes. But Nathan the prophete and Banaiah and the myghtye men and Salomon his brother he had not.

Nathan. Wherupon Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayenge: hast thou not herde how Adonias the sonne of Hagith hath raigne ouerwinge vnto our master Dauid? Nowe therfore come that I maye gyue the counsel, how to saue thyne owne lyfe, and ꝑ lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. Hence and get ꝑ vnto kynge Dauid, and saye vnto him: bydest not thou my Lord kynge swere vnto thy handmayde, sayenge? Salomon thy sonne shal raygne after me, and he shall sytte vpon my seate, why is then Adonias made kynge? And se, whyle thou yet talkest there with the kyng I will come in after the / and will ende thy wordes.

¶ So Bethsabe entred vnto the kynge into the chambre. And the kynge was very olde & Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto him. And Bethsabe stouped and made obeysaunce vnto the kynge. And the kynge sayde: what is thy matter? She answered and sayde: my lorde, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, and shall sytte vpon my seate. But nowe se, Adonias is kynge and thou my Lorde kynge wotest it not, & he hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and sheepe abundantly, and hath called all the sonnes of the kyng and Abiathar the preest, and Joab the Capitayne of the host. But Salomon thy seruaut hath he not bydden. And now (my lord kyng) the eyes of all Israell wayte on the, to tell them who shall syt on the seate of my Lorde the kynge after hym. For elles when my Lorde the kynge is layde to rest with his fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shalbe synners.

And beholde, whyle she yet talked with the kynge, Nathan the prophete was come. And they tolde the kynge, sayenge: here commeth Nathan ꝑ Prophete. And when he was come before the kynge, he made obeysaunce vnto ꝑ kynge vpon his face vnto the ground, & sayd: My lorde kyng, hast thou sayde, Adonias shal raygne after me, and he shall sytte vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this day and hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and sheepe plenteously and hath called al the kynges sonnes and the capitaynes of the host, and Abiathar ꝑ preest. And se, they eate and drynke before him & say. God saue kyng Adonias. But me thy seruāt & Sadoch the preest and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and thy seruaunt Salomon he hath not called. Is this thynge doone of my Lorde the kynge and yet wouldst not shewe me thy seruaunt, who shulde sitte on the seate of my lorde the kynge after him?

Then kynge Dauid answered and sayde: Call me Bethsabe. And she came in and stode before him. And the kynge sware, sayenge. As surely as the Lorde (that hathe ryade my soule oute of all aduersitie) lyueth: euen as I swere vnto the by the Lorde God of Israell, sayenge: Salomon shall raygne after me, and he shall syt vpon my seate for me, so will I doo this daye. And Bethsabe bowed on her face to the earthe, and dyd obeysaunce vnto the kynge, and sayde: I praye God my lorde kynge Dauid maye lyue euer. Then sayde kynge Dauid call me Sadoch the preest and Nathan the Prophete, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada. And when they came before the kynge / The kynge sayde vnto them / Take with you the seruauntes of your lorde, and set Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne Mule, and carye hym downe to Gihon. And lette Sadoch the preeste, and Nathan the prophete annoynte hym there / to be Kynge ouer Israell. And then blowe ye with a trompette, and saye: God saue kynge Salomon. And then come vp after hym, and let hym come come and sytte vpon my seate. For he shall be kynge in my steede. And hym I haue commaunded to be leader ouer Israell and Juda. And Banaiah the sonne of Joiada answerd the kynge, and sayd: Amen. And so I prayse God that the Lorde God of my Lorde the kynge saye so to. And as the Lorde hathe ben with my Lorde the kynge: so I prayse God he may be with Salomon, and that he make his seate more glorious then the seat of my Lorde kyng David. So Sadock the preest, and Nathan the Prophete, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and the Cerethytes and Phelethytes wente downe, and sette Salomon vpon kynge Dauids Mule, and ledde him to Sthon. And Sadock the Preest toke an horne of oyle oute of the tabernacle, and annoynted Salomon. And they blewe a trompet/and all they sayd: God saue kyng Salomon. And all the people came vp after hym pypynge with pypes, and triumphynge greatly, so that the erth range with the soundes of them.

And Adonias and all the gestes that were with hym herde it, euen as they hadde made an ende of eatynge. And when Joab herde the soundes of the trompet, he sayd: how happenethe it that there is suche a noyse in the cyte? And as he yet spake: lo, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar the Preest came. And Adonias sayde: come for thou arte a lusty blonde, and bringest good tydynges. And Jonathas answered and sayde to Adonias: Verily oure Lorde kynge David hathe made Salomon kynge. And the kynge sente with hym Sadock the Preeste, and Nathan the Prophete: and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and the Cerethites and the Phelethites, and they haue set hym vpon the kynges Mule. And Sadock the Preeste, and Nathan the Prophete haue annoynted hym kynge in Sthon. And as they came vp agayne; they reioysed that the cyte dyd sounde agayne. And that is the noyse that ye haue herde. And therto Salomon sytteth on the seate of the kyngdome. And moreouer the kynges seruauntes wente in to bielle oure Lorde kynge David, sayenge: thy God make the name of Salomon more full of fauoure then thyne/and his seate more glorious then thyne. And the kynge bowed hym selfe vpon the bedde. And also of all thus sayde the kynge: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, who hathe made one to sytte on my seate this daye, myne eyes seynge it. Then all the gestes that were with Adonias were afrayde, and rose vp and wente euerye man his waye. But Adonias fearyng Salomon, arose, and went and caught holde on the hornes of the aulter. And it was tolde Salomon that Adonias for feare of kynge Salomon, hath caught holde by the hornes of the aulter, sayenge: let kynge Salomon sweare vnto me this day, that he wil not slee his seruaunt with the swerde. And Salomon sayd: yf he wyll be a good man, there shal not an heere of hym fall to the erth. But yf wyckednesse shall be founde in hym, he shall dye for it. And therupon kynge Salomon sent and set him downe from the aulter. And he came and dyd obeysaunce vnto kynge Salomon. And Salomon sayde vnto hym: get the to thyne house.

¶ Dauid dyeth. Adonias requyreth to haue Abisag to his concubine, and therfore Salomon commaundeth to slee hym. Abiathar is put from his Priesthode. Semei and Joab are slayne.

CAPI. II.

When the dayes of Dauid were drawen nyer that he sholde dye, he charged Salomon his sonne, sayenge: I muste walke by the waye of all the worlde, neuertheles be stronge, and quyte thy selfe manfully. And se thou kepe the appoyntment of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, ordinaunces, lawes and testimonyes/ as it is written in the lawe of Moyses, that thou mayste vnderstande all that thou oughtest to do/and al that thou shouldest medle with, that the Lorde maye make good his promesse, whiche he hath promysed me, sayenge: yf thy children shall take hede to their wayes, that they walke before me in trueth with all their hertes, and with all their soules: ✠ then thou shalte neuer be without one sytteynge on the seate of Israel. ✠ iii. Reg. ix. b

✠ Moreouer thou woteste howe Joab the sonne of Saruiah hathe serued me, and what he hathe wonne to the two capitaynes of thoste of Israel: vnto Abner the sonne of Ner, and vnto Amasa the sonne of Jether/ how he slewe them, and shedde the blonde of warre in tyme of peace, and put the blonde of warre vpon his gyrdle that was about his loynes, and in his shoes that were on his feete. Deale with hym therfore according to thy wysdom and se thou brynge not his graye heed downe to the graue in peace. ✠ And shewe kyndnesse vnto the sonnes of Berzelai the Galaadyte, and let them be amonge them that eate at thy table, because they so came to me when I fled from Absalom thy brother. ✠ And lo thou hast with the, Semei the sonne of Gera the sonne of Gemini of Bahurim, which cursed me with a bytter curse, what tyme I went to Mahanaim. But he came agayne vnto me to Jordan/ and I sware to hym by the Lorde, sayenge. I wyl not slee the with the swerde. But pardon thou hym not. Thou art a man of wysdome, and shalte knowe what to do to hym/ se therfore thou brynge his graye heed to the graue with blonde. And so Dauid rested with his fathers, and was buryed in the cyte of Dauid. And the dayes which he Dauid raygned vpon Israel were fourtye yeres/ seuen yeres in Hebron, and thyrtye and thre yere in Jerusalem. ✠ So Salomon sate vpon the seate of Dauid his father. And his kyngdom was stablished myghtyly. ✠ i. Reg. xxii. b ✠ i. Reg. xix. b ✠ i. Reg. xvi. c ✠ i. Reg. xvi. f

After this, Adonias the sonne of Haggith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And she sayd: betokeneth thy comming peace? And he sayde it betokeneth peace. Then sayde he, I haue a matter to shewe the. And she sayd: saye on. And he sayde: thou knowest that the kyngdom ✠ i. Reg. xvi. d kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel set they? eyes on me that I sholde raygne, how be it the kyngdome was turned away and gi-uen to my brother, for it was appointed him of the Lorde: and nowe I aske a peticyon of the, wherof denye me not. And she sayde vnto him: tell what it is. Then he sayde: speake I praye the, vnto Salomon the kynge (for he will not saye the naye) that he gyue me Abi-sag the Sunamyte to wyfe: And Bethsabe sayde: well, I will speake for the vnto the kynge. And therupon Bethsabe wente vnto kynge Salomon to speake vnto him for Adōnias. And the kynge rose vp agaynste her and bowed him selfe vnto her, and sat him downe on his seate. And there was a seate set for the kynges mother, and she sat on his ryght syde.

Then she sayde: I make bolde a lytell peticion of the: saye me not naye. And the kynge sayd vnto her. Aske on my mother: for I will not saye the naye. And she sayd: let Abisag the Sunamite be gyuen to Adonias thy brother to wyfe. And kynge Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why doest thou aske Abisag the Sunamite for Adonias? Naye, rather aske for hym the kyngdome, (for he is myne elder brother: euen for him also it, and for Abiathar the Preest, and for Joab the sonne of Zaruiah. Then kynge Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayinge: God do so to me and so, yf Adonias haue not spoken this worde a-gaynste his selfe. Now therfore as surely as the Lorde liueth, who hathe stablished me and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and who hathe made me an house as he promysed me, Adonias shall dye this daye. And kynge Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and smote him so that he dyed. And vnto Abiathar the Preest sayde the kyng: get the to Anathoth vnto thyne owne feldes, for thou arte worthy deth: but I will not at this tyme kyll the, bycause thou barest the arcke of the Lorde God before Da-uid my father, and bycause thou sufferedst in my father in all his afflictions. And so Salomon put awaye Abiathar from beinge preest vnto the Lorde: to fulfyll the wordes of the Lorde which he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. 3. Regum. 2. Then tidynges came to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonias, but not after Salomon. Wherupon he fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde and caught holde on the hornes of the aulter. And it was told king Salomon how Joab was fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and lo, he by the aulter.
Then Salomon sente Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, sayinge: go and smyte him. And when Banaiah was come to the tabernacle of the Lorde he sayd vnto him: thus sayth the king, come out. And he sayde nay. But I will dye here. And Banaiah brought it the kynge worde, sayinge: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me. Then the kynge sayde: do euen as he hathe sayde: smyte him and burye him, and take awaye the bloude which Joab shedde causeles from me, and from the house of my father, and the Lord. brynge his bloude vpon his owne heed, for he smote two men ryghtewyser and better then he, and slew them with

of the hoste of Juda, and they? bloude returne vpon the heed of Joab, and on the heed of his seed for euer. And prosperite be vnto Da-uid, and vnto his seed, and vnto his house, and vnto his seate of the Lorde for euer. And Ba-naiah the sonne of Joiada went vp and smote him, and slewe him, & buryed him in his owne house in the wyldernesse. And the kynge put Banaiah the sonne of Joiada in his rowme ouer the hoste, and put Sadoch the preest in the rowme of Abiather. Then the kynge sent and called Semei, and sayd to him: buylde the an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, & se thou go not thence any whither. For be thou sure of it, the daye thou goest oute and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalte dye for it, and thy bloude shall be on thyne owne heed. Semei sayd vnto the kynge: it is well sayde, as my Lorde the kynge hathe sayde, so will thy seruaunt do. And Semei dwelte in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chaunced at the ende of thre yere, that two of the seruaunttes of Semei ranne awaye vnto Achis sonne of Ma-acah kyng of Geth. And one told Semei saynge:
thy seruaunttes be in Geth. And Semei rose vp and sadled his asse, and gat him to Geth to Achis to seke his seruaunttes, & came and brought them agayne from Geth. But it was told Salomon how Semei hadde gone from Jerusalem to Geth, and was come a-gayne. And the kynge sente and called Semei and sayd vnto him: Dyd I not sweare by the Lorde, and protested vnto the sayinge: be sure whe so euer thou goest out and walkest abroe any whither, thou shalte dye? And thou an-swerdst me, it is good tydynges that I haue herd. Why then hast thou not kept the oth of the Lorde, and the commaundement that I commaunded the? And then the kynge sayd to Semei: * thou remembrest all the wyched- * 3. Reg.
nesse whiche thyne herte knoweth that thou dydst to Dauid my father. The Lorde therfore render agayne thy wychednesse vpon thyne owne heed: and kyng Salomō be blessed, and the seate of Dauid be settled before the Lorde for euer. And the kynge commaunded Banaiah the sonne of Joiada: which wente oute and smote him that he dyed. And so was the kyngdome settled in the handes of Salomon.

¶ Salomon taketh Pharaos daughter to wyfe. The Lorde appeareth to hym, and gyueth hym wyssome. The pleadinge of the two harlots who bothe owe the kynge chylde: and Salomons iudgment therin.

and the walles of Jerusalem rounde aboute. Onely the people sacrifyced in aulters made on hylles, bycause there was no house buylte for the name of the Lorde, tyll those dayes. Salomon doubtlesse lourd the Lorde, & walked in the ordinaunces of Dauid his father, saue onely that he sacrificed and offered incense vpon aulters in hylles.

And the kynge wente to Gabaon to offre there/for that was a greate offerynge place. And there Salomon offered a thousand burnt offerynges vpon that aulter. And in Gabaon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God sayde: Aske what I shall gyue the. And Salomon sayde: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunt Dauid my father great mercye/ bycause that he walked before the in truthe and in ryghteousnesse and playnesse of herte with the. And thou hast kepte for hym this greate mercye, that thou hast gyuen hym a sonne to sytte on his seate: as it is come to passe this daye. ✠ And now Lorde my God, it is thou, that hast made thy seruaunt kynge in the rowme of Dauid my father. ✠ And I am a yonge ladde, and wot not how to order my selfe. And thy seruaunt is in the myddes of thy people, whiche thou hast chosen, a people that are so manye that they can not be tolde nor nombred for multitude. ✠ Gyue therfore vnto thy seruaunte, an vnderstandynge herte to iudge thy people, & to discerne betwene good and badde. For who is able to iudge this thy so waygthy a people? And it pleased the Lord well, that Salomon had desyred this thyng. Wherfore God sayd vnto him: bycause thou hast asked this thyng, and hast not asked long lyfe, neither hast asked richesse, nor the lyues of thyne enemyes, but hast asked the discretion to vnderstande equite: Lo, I haue wrought accordynge to thy petycyon: and beholde, I haue gyuen the a wyse and an vnderstandynge herte, so that there was none lyke beretofore, neyther after the shall anye aryse lyke vnto the. And therto I haue gyuen the that thou askedst not, bothe ryches and honoure: so that there shall be no kynge lyke the, all thy dayes. And yf thou wylte walke in my wayes to kepe myne ordynaunces and commaundementes, as Dauid thy father dyd walke, I will lengthen thy dayes also. When Salomon awoke, he vnderstode this was his dreame. And he came to Jerusalem and presented hym selfe before the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt, and offered burntofferynges and peaceofferynges, and made a feaste to all his seruauntes.

Then came two women that were harlotes vnto the kynge, and stode before him. And the one of them sayde: O my Lorde, I and this woman dwell in one house. And I was deliuered of a chylde with her in the sayd house. So the thyrde daye after I was deliuered, she was deliuered also: we two beynge together, and no stranger wt vs in the house saue we two alone. And this wymes chylde dyed in a nyght, for she had ouerlayde it. And then she arose at mydnyght, and toke my sonne from my syde, whyle thyne handmayde slepte and layde it in her bosome, and put her deed chylde in my bosome. And when I arose vp in the morninge to gyue my chylde sucke: lo, it was dead. But when I had lokyd more diligentlye vpon it in the morninge: Beholde, it was not my sonne whiche I dyd beare. And the other woman sayde: It is not so: But the lyuynge is my sonne, and the deed thyne. And she layde agayne: thou sayest wronge, for the deed is thy sonne, and the lyuynge myne. And thus they chydded before the kyng. Then sayd the kynge: the one sayth/ this that is alyue is my sonne, and the deed is thyne. And thother sayth naye: But thy sonne is the deed, and the chylde alyue is myne. Then sayde the kynge: bringe me a swerde. And they broughte a swerde before the kynge. And the kynge sayde: Diuyde the lyuynge chylde in two, and gyue the one halfe to the one, and the other to the other.

Then spake the woman that was mother to the chyld alyue vnto the kynge, for her bowelles yerned vpon her sonne) and sayde: I beseche the my Lorde, gyue her the lyuynge chylde, and in no wyse slee it. And the other sayd: it shall be neither thyne nor myne, but diuyde it. Then the kynge answered and sayd: ✠ gyue her the lyuynge chylde and slee it not, for she is the mother therof. And all Israell herde of the iudgement whiche the kynge had gyuen, and feared the kynge/ for they perceyued that the wysdome of God was in him to do iustyce.

¶ The Pryntes and rulers vnder Salomon. The prouision for his vytayles. The nombre of his horses, and of his parasites.

CAPL. IIII.

SO kynge Salomon was kynge ouer all Israel. And these were his lordes: Azarias the sonne of Sadoch the preest. Elihoreph and Ahiah the sonnes of Sisa scribes. Semei the sonne of Ela hadde Benjamin: Gaber the sonne of Uri, hadde the countreye of Galaad and the lande of Seyon kynge of the Amonites / and of Og kynge of Basan / and was alone ouerlyer in the lande. And Juda and Israel were manye / euen as the sande of the see in nombre / eatynge, drynkynge, and makynge merye. And Salomon raygned ouer all kyngdomes fromme the ryuer thorowe oute all the lande of the Philistines, vnto the borders of Egypte / and they broughte presentes, and serued Salomon all dayes of his lyfe.

And Salomons ordynarye of housholde was euery daye thirty quarters of manchet floure, and thre score quarters of mele / tenne fatted oxen / and twentye oute of the pastures / and an hundred sheepe and goottes, beside venyson of harttes, buckes, and bubalies, and fat pultrye. For he ruled in all the regions on the other syde Euphrates, from Thaphsah to Gaza, and alle ouer all the kynges on the other syde the sayde Euphrates. And he hadde peace with all his seruauntes on euerye syde. And Juda and Israel dwelte without feare, euerye man vnder his vyne and vnder his figge tree, fromme Dan to Berlabe, all the dayes of Salomon.

And Salomon hadde fourtye thousande stalles of hosses for chaarettes / and twelue thousande horsemen. And the forsayde generall ordynaryes made purueyaunce for kynge Salomon, and for all that came to kynge Salomons table euerye man his moneth, so that there lacked nothynge. And as for barley and straw for the hosses and mules, they broughte vnto the place where the officers were, euery man vp his office.

And God gaue Salomon wysdome and vnderstandynge exceedynge moche, and a large herte / euen as the sande alonge by the see banche: so that Salomons wysdome exceeded the wysdome of all them of the East countrey, and all the wysdome of the Egyptians. And he surmounted all men in wysdome / bothe Ethan the Ezrahite, Heman, Chalcol, and Darda the sonnes of Mahol. And his name spred abrode amonge all nacions on euery syde. And Salomon wrote thre thousand prouerbes. And his songes were a thousande and fyue. And he disputed of trees, euen fromme the Cedar tree that groweth in Libanon, vnto the Isope that springeth out of the wall. And he disputed of beestes, fowles, wormes, & fishes. And there came of all nacions to heare the wysdome of Salomon, and from all kynges of the erth which had herd of his wysdome.

¶ Hyram Hiram sendeth Cedar tymber to the buyldynge of the temple. The discripcion of the worke.

CAPI. V.

AND Hiram kynge of Tire sent his seruauntes vnto Salomon / for he hadde herd that they had anoynted him kynge in the rowme of his father. And thereto Hiram was euer a louer of David. 4 And Salomon sent agayne to Hiram, saying: thou knowest of David my father, how he could not buylde an house vnto the name of the Lorde his God for warre whiche he had on euery syde, vntyll the Lorde had put them vnder his fote. But now the Lorde my God hath geuen me rest on euerye syde / so that there is neither aduersary nor any euyll plage. And therfore I am disposed to buylde an house vnto the name of the Lord my God, as he promised David my father saying: thy sonne whych I wyll put vpon thy seat for the, he shall buylde an house vnto my name. Nowe then commaunde that they hewe me Cedar trees in Libanon. And let my seruauntes be with thyne / & I wyll gyue the, the hyre of thy seruauntes in all suche thynges as thou shalt require / for thou knowest that there are not amonge vs that can skyll to hewe tymber lyke vnto the Sidonens.

When Hiram herde the wordes of Salomon / he reioyced greatlye and sayde: Blessed be the Lorde this daye, whiche hathe set David a wyse sonne ouer this mygthye people. And Hiram sent agayne to Salomon, saying: I haue allowed the request whyche thou sentest to me / and wyll satisfye all thy lust concernyng tymber of Cedar trees and fyre. My seruauntes shall bringe them fromme Libanon to the see. And I wyl conueye them by fluyte vnto the place that thou shalt assigne me, and wyll cause them to be discharged there, that thou mayst receyue them. And thou shalte do me this pleasure agayn / to gyue me grayne towarde my housekeepynge. And so Hiram gaue Salomon Cedar trees, and fyre trees, as moche as he desyred. And Salomon gaue Hiram twentye thousande quarters of wheate to fede his household with / and twentye buttes of pure oyle. And so moche gaue Salomon to Hiram yerely.

And the Lord gaue Salomon wysdome, as he promised him. And there was peace betwene Hiram & Salomon, and they were in a leage together. And kyng Salomon raysed a tribute thorowe out all Israel. And the tribute was thyrtye thousande men, whiche he sent to Libanon, ten thousande a moneth by course / so that they were one moneth in Libanon, and two monethes at home.

And Adoniram was ruler ouer the tribute. So Salomon hadde thre score and ten thousande that bare burdens, and thre score and ten thousande that hewed in the mountaynes, beside the Lordes he hadde to ouersee the worke, in nombre thre thousand and three hundreth / who gouerned the people that wrought in the worke. And at the commaundement

of the

of the kynge, they brought greate stones, and that fre stoms, and hewed therto, to laye in the foundacion of the house. And Salomons masons, and the masons of Hiram dyd hewe them, with them of the byblers. And so they prepared both tymbre and stone to buylde the house.

¶ The frame and forme of the temple Porche and aulture &c.

CAPL. VI.

AND it came to passe in the foure hundred and foure score yere, after the chyldren of Israell were come oute of the lande of Egypte, and the fourthe yere of the raygne of Salomon vpon Israel, and the seconde moneth called ℣ Zif, that he began to buylde the temple vnto the Lorde. And the house whiche Salomon buylte for the Lorde was thre score cubytes longe, and twentye brode, and thirtye cubytes hye. And the porche that was before the body of the temple, was twentye cubytes longe, after the measure of the brede of the house, and tenne brode/ euen at the verye ende of the house. And he made vnto the house, wyndowes to open and shutte.

And vnder the walles of the house, he made galeryes rounde about, bothe about the temple, and also the quere. And so made sydes rounde about. And the nethermoste galerye was fyue cubytes brode, and the myddle galerye sixe, and the thyrde seuen cubytes brode. For he made the walles without wheron the beames laye, euer thynner and thynner/ so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buylte of stone made perfecte alredye er it was broughte thyther. So that there was neither hammer or axe, eyther anye toole of yron herde in the house, whyle it was in buylduge. And the waye of the myddle galerye was in the ende of the house on the ryghte syde. And men wente vp with wyndyng steares in to the myddle galerye, and oute of the myddle in to the thyrde. And so he buylte the house and finished it, and couered it with beames of Cedar tymbre, matt bolowe and ioyned togyther. Then he buylte chambres oure all the temple of fyue cubytes heyght, and coupled the house togyther with beames of Cedre.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon, sayinge: concernynge the house whiche thou art a buyldynge/ yf thou wylte walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe all my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wyll I make good vnto the, my promes ✠ whiche I promysed Dauid thy father. ✠ And I wyll dwelle among: the chyldren of Israel, and wyll not forsake my people Israel. And so Salomon buylte the house and fynished it, and syled the walles of the house within, with rybbes of Cedar tree/ euen from the pauement vnto the rouffe, and syled it within, and bonred the floore of the house with planches of tyree.

And he syled twentye cubytes in the ende of the temple, bothe floore and walles with Cedar, and dyuided it within to be the quere, and place moste holye. And the fyrste house, that is to saye, the bodye of the temple, was fourtye cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house within, was hewed with knoppes and grauen with flowres, and all was Cedar tymber, so that no stone was sene. And the quere that was within the temple, he prepared to set there the arche of the Lordes testament. And the quere was twentie cubytes long/ and twentye in brede, and twentye in heyght. And he syled it with pure golde, and bonred the aulter with Cedar. And Salomon syled the house within also with pure golde. And he made golden barres ouer alonge the quere, with the he hadde couered with golde. And the hole house he ouerlayde with golde, vntyll he had ended it. And the aulter that was in the quere, he ouerlayde with gold also. And within the quere he made two ✠ Cherubyns of olyue tree, ten cubytes hyghe a pece, and euery wynge fyue cubytes longe/ so that from the vttermoste parte of one wynge, vnto the vttermoste parte of the other, were ten cubytes. And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hyghe also, so that bothe the Cherubes were of one measure and one fyse. The heyght of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the middle of the inner house. ✠ And the Cherubs stretched their wynges, so that the one wynge of the one touched the one wall, and the one wynge of the other touched the other walle. And the other two wynges of them touched one an other in the myddes of the house. And he ouerlayde the Cherubes with golde.

And the walles of the house rounde about he garnyshed with worke of Cherubs and palme trees, and grauen flowres, both within in the quere, and without in the temple. And the floore of the house he couered with golde/ bothe within in the quere, and also without in the temple. And in the entryng of the quere he made two doores of olyue tree, with the vpper and two syde postes, fyue square. And the two wayes of olyue tree, he grauen with grauynges of Cherubes and palme trees, and grauen flowres, an couered them with golde, and layde golde ouer the Cherubes, and also the palme trees. And in lyke maner vnto the waye of the temple, he made postes of olyue tree foure square, and two dores of fyre tree, and either waye with two folding leues, and grauen theron Cherubes, palme trees, & flowres, and couered them with gold made playne by a ruler. And then he buylte the inner court with thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourthe yere of his raygne was the foundacion of the house of the Lorde layde/ euen in the moneth ℣ Zif, and in the eleuenth yere in the moneth ♭ Bul, which the eyghte moneth, it was full fynished in all that pertayned therto, and fashioned as it should be in all poynctes. And so was he seuen yere in buylduge of it.

CVI

¶ The buylding of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos daughter. The toppe of the pylers of Iachin, of the Molten Sea.

CAPI. VII.

AND Salomon buylte his owne house in thyrteene yere space, and full fynished it. And he buylte the house of the wode of Libanon, an hundred cubytes longe, and fyftye brode, and thyrtye hyghe, foure square with rowes of Cedar pylers, and Cedar beames alonge vpon the pylers. And the rouffe was Cedar above an vpghe vpon the beames that laye on vpghe on the pylers, whiche pylers, were fourtye and fyue in nombre / fyftene on a rowe / and the spaces betweene the pylers were one agaynste an other three folde. And all the wozes with the fyde postes were foure square one agaynste an other thre folde.

And he made a porche of pylers fiftye cubytes longe, and thyrtye cubytes brode, and yet a porche before that with pilers and a thicke pyller before that. Then he made a porche to fyt and iudge in, ipseo with Cedar euen fromę the pauementes, vnto the top. And his owne house where he kept residence in an other court without that porche, was of the same worke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharos doughter, whiche he had taken to wyfe, lyke vnto that porche.

B All these thynges were of ryche stones hewed after a measure, and sawed with sawes within and without / euen from the foundacion, vnto the top of the walles / and on the oute syde therto towarde the great court. And the foundacion was of ryche stones, and that mygh̄tye greate stones of ten cubytes, and of eight. And above were ryche stones hewed accordynge to the same cyse / and also with Cedar. And the great courte rounde about was with thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar planches. And likewise was it in the inner courte of the house of the Lorde, and of the porche of the temple. ✠ And kynge Salomon sent and fet one Hiram oute of Tire, a wydowes sonne of the tribe of Nephtalim / his father being of Tire. Which Hiram was a perfyte founderer, and full of wysdome, vnderstandynge, and connyng, to worke all maner of worke in brasse. And he came to kynge Salomon, and wrought all his worke. He cast two pylers of brasse, of eyghteene cubites a pece hyghe / and a strynge of twelue cubytes mygh̄t compasse eyther of them about. And he made two heed peces of molten brasse to sette on the toppes of the pylers, of fyue cubytes long a pece, with garlandes of drapyd worke, and hoopes of chayne worke for the heed peces that were on the pylers, seuen for the one and seuen for the other. And he made the pylers / and for either of the heed peces a garland E with two rowes of pomegranates to couer them with. And the heed peces that were on the toppes of the pylers, were wrought with lylyes in the porche, the space of foure cubites of them. And the pomegranates above and bewethe on the wyethen chaynes that compassed the myddle of the heed peces, were in nombre two hundred on either heed pece. And he set vp the pylers in the porche of the temple / and when he had set vp the vyght pyller, he called the name therof Jachin / and when he set vp the lefte pyller, he called the name therof Boaz. And the toppes of the pylers were thus wrought with lilies, and so was their workemanship fynished. D

Then he cast a see of brasse tenne cubytes wyde from brymme to brymme, and rounde in compasse, and fyue cubytes hyghe. And a strynge of thyrtye cubytes mygh̄te compasse it about / and vnder the brymme of it as it were apples compassed and embraced the see of ten cubytes wyde in two rowes cast with it when it was cast. And it stode on twelue oxen / of whiche, three loked Northe, three West, three South, and three East / and the see on hygh vpō them / & all their hynder partes were inwarde. And it was an handebreedth thycke, and the brym wrought lyke the brymme of a cup with flowres of lylies. And it contayned two thousande Bathes.

And he made ten botomes of brasse, foure cubites longe, and foure cubites brode a pece, and thre hyghe. And the workes of the bottomes was on this maner that the sydes were, as it were flatte bordes betweene the ledges. And on the flatt bordes betweene the ledges were lyons, oxen, and Cherubes. And vpō the ledges that were above and beneth the lyons and oxen, was toyned pendant worke. And euerye bottome had foure brasen wheles / whose axeltrees were also of brasse. And in the foure corners were vndersetters vnder the lauatorye caste eche ouer agaynste his fellowe.

And the stalke of the lauatorye was in the myddle of the bottome one cubyte hyghe / and a cubyte and an half rounde / and it had knoppes theron in the bare places, whiche were foure square, not rounde. And vnder the sydes were foure wheles / and their axeltrees toyned faste to the bottome. And the heyghte of euerye whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the workemanshyp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charet whele. And the axeltrees, the naueiles, spokes, and stalkes were all moulten. And the foure vndersetters in the foure corners, were of the verye bottomes.

And vnder the stalke of the lauatorye in the myddes of the bottome, was there a rounde fote of halfe a cubyte hyghe. And theron playne places and ledges of the selfe. And he graued in the playne, and also on the ledges, Cherubes, lyons, & palme trees, euerye where rounde about. And on this maner he made the ten bottomes cast worke: all of one measure and one syse. Then he made ten lauers of brasse, containyng fourtye Bathes a pece, and they were of foure cubytes a pece for euery one of the bottomes a lauer. And he put fyue of those bottomes on the vyght corner of the temple / and other fiue on the lefte / and put the see on the vyght corner of the temple Eastwarde, and and towarde the Southe. And Hiram made pottes, shouelles, and basons/ and so finished all the worke that he made kynge Salomon for the house of the Lord: that is to saye, two pyllers, and two tulipes of the heedes þ were on the toppes of the two pyllers, and foure hundred pomegrannettes vpon two wreathes/ two rowes on either wreathe, to couer the two tulipes of the heedes, that were on the toppes of the two pyllers: and the ten bottomes of brasse, with ten lauers vpon them/ and a see with twelue oxen vnder it/ and pottes shouels and basons. And all those vessel̄es which Hiram made to kynge Salomon for the house of the Lord, were of bryght brasse. And in the playne of Jordan dyd the kynge caste them: euen in the clay of the erthe betwene Soccod and Zarthan. And Salomon left all the vessel̄es vnwayed, for the exceadinge abundaunce of brasse that was in them.

And Salomō made all the vessels that pertayned vnto the house of the Lord/ the aulter of gold/ and þ table of golde whereon the shewe breed was put. And fyue candelstykes for the right syde/ and as many for the left, before the quere of pure golde: with flowres, lampes, and snoffers of golde/ and bolles, plaitteries, basins, spoones and fire pannes of pure golde, and hinges of golde, bothe for the doores of the quere, the place most holy/ and also for the doores of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke that kyng Salomō made for the house of the Lord. And then * Salomō brought in the thinges which Dauid his father had dedicate in syluer, golde, and other vessels, and put them to the treasure of the house of the Lorde.

¶ The Arche is borne in to the temple. A cloude filleth the temple. The temple is dedicate.

CAPL. VIII.

THen Salomon gathered the elders of Israel, all the heedes of the tribes, and auncient lorde of the children of Israel, vnto him to Jerusalem, to bringe vp the arche of the testament of the Lord out of the city of Dauid, which is Sion. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto kinge Salomō, to the feast that falleth in the moneth Ethanim, whiche is the seuenth moneth. And when all the elders of Israel were come, the preests toke vp þ arche of the Lord/ and brought it and also the tabernacle of witnesse, and all the holy vessels that were therin. And the preestes and the Leuites brought them vp. And kyng Salomon and all the company of Israel that were assembled, þ were with him before the arche, did offer sheepe and oxen that could not be told nor nombred for multitude.

And so the preestes brought the arche of the Lordes testament vnto his place, out in to the quere of the temple, and place most holy, vnder the wynges of the Cherubes. For the Cherubes stretched out their wynges ouer þ arche, and couered both it and also the staues therof a fyre vpō it. How be it the staues were so long that the endes of them appered out of the holy place before the quere/ but on the outer syde were they not seen, and there they be vnto this day. And there was nothing in the arche, saue þ two tables of stone, which Moyses put there at Horeb, when the Lorde made an appoyntment with the chyldren of Israell, after they were come forth of Egypte.

And when the preestes were come out of the holye place/ then a cloude fylled the house of the Lorde, that the preestes coulde not endure to minister by cause of the cloude: for the glorye of the Lorde had fylled the house of the Lorde. Then spake Salomon: the Lorde sayd that he wolde dwelle in darchenesse. I haue buylte the an house to dwelle in, and an habitacion for the to abyde in for euer. And þ kyng turned his face, and blessed all the congregacion of Israel, all the congregation standinge. And he sayd: Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, which hath fulfylled with his hand, that he spake with his mouthe vnto Dauid my father: saynge: fro me the daye I brought my people Israel forthe of Egypte, I chose no cyte amonge anye of the tribes of Israell, to buylde an house that my name myght be there: But I haue chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. But the Lorde God sayd vnto Dauid my father/ in that it was in thyne herte to buylde an house for my name, thou dyddest well, that thou wast so mynded. Neuertheles thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne that shall come out of thy loynes, shall buylde an house for my name. And the Lorde hathe made good his worde that he spake. For I stode vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, and sate on the state of Israel, as the Lorde promised/ and haue buylte an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israell. And I haue prepared therin a place for þ arche wherin the couenaūt of the Lorde is, whiche he made with oure fathers, after he had brought them out of the lande of Egypte. And Salomon stode before the aultre of the Lorde in the sight of all the people of Israel, and stretched out his handes to heuen, and sayd: Lord God of Israel, there is no God lyke the in heuen aboue, or in the earthe beneth/ that kepest appoyntment and mercye with thy seruauntes that walke before the with all theyr hertes/ whiche also hast kept with thy seruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promysedst him. Thou spakest with thy mouthe/ and hast fulfylled with thyne handes, as it is come to passe this day. And now Lorde God of Israell kepe with thy seruaunte Dauid my father, that thou promysedst him, saynge: thou shalte not be without one or other before me, syttynge on the state of Israel: So neuertheles, yf thy children shall take hede to theyr wayes that they walke before me, as thou hast walked before me. Lowe then, O Lorde God of Israel/ let thy worde be stable whiche thou spakest vnto thy seruaunt Dauid my father.

But in dede can God dwelle on the earthe?

Beholde, neyther heuen, nor heuen aboue all heuens are able to conteyn the: how moche lesse then this house ℣ I haue buylte? but loke to the prayer of thy seruaunt and his supplicacion, o Lord my God, to gyue an eare vnto the voyce and prayer which thy seruaunt prayeth before the this daye, that thyne eyes maye be open vpon this house nyght and day, and vpō the place, of whiche thou hast sayd, my name Deuter.xii.b. shall be there: that thou harken vnto ℣ prayer whiche thy seruaunte shall praye in this place. And herke vnto the supplicacion of thy seruaunt and of thy people Israel which they shal pray in this place: And heare thou vp vn to heuen thy dwellyng place, and when thou hearest, haue mercye. And yf any man trespace ℣ agaynst his neyghbour, & his neyghbour take an abiuracion to adiure him withall, and the abiuracion come before thyne auiter at this house, then harken thou vp to heuen, & worke and iudge thy seruauntes, that thou condemne the wicked, to bryng his waye vpon his heed, and iustifie the ryghteous, to gyue him accordyng to his righteousnesse. ¶ If thy people Israel be put to the worse before their enemies, because they haue synned agaynst the, & afterwarde turne agayne to the, & praysе thy name, and praye and make supplicacion vnto the in this house, then heare thou vp to heuen, & be mercyful vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bryng them agayne vnto the land which thou gauest vnto their fathers.

If heuen be shut vp, that there be no rayne, because they haue synned agaynste the: yet yf they praye in this place, and praysе thy name, and turne frō their synnes, whyle thy scourge of them, then heare thou vp to heuen, and be mercyful vnto the synne of thy seruauntes, and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe them a good way to walke in, and gyue rayne vpon thy land that thou hast gyuen vnto thy people to inheryte.

If there chaunce derth in the lande, pestylence, blastyng, or wythering of corne, or that the frutes be deuoured of grashoppers, or caterpillers, or yf their enemyes beseige them in the lande, & in their owne cities, or what so euer plage or sickenesse chaūce, then heare thou vp to heuen thy dwellyng place, all the prayers and supplications that shall be made of al men whose soeuer Israel, whiche shall knowlege euerye man the plage of his owne hert, and stretche forthe his handes vnto this house, and be mercyful and worke, and gyue euery man accordyng to his wayes, (euen as thou onely knowest euerye mannes herte, for thou knowest the hertes of all the chyldren of Adam) that they may feare the as longe as they lyue vpon the erth whiche thou gauest vnto their fathers. And lykewyse yf a ℣ straunger ℣ is not of thy people Israel, come oute of a farre countreye for thy names sake, (for they shall heare of thy great name and of thy myghtye hande, and stretched oute arme) and therfore yf he come & praye at this place, heare thou vp to heuen thy dwellynge place, and doo accordynge to all that the straunger calleth to the for, that all nations of the erth maye knowe thy name, to feare the as do thy people Israel, and that it maye be knowen that thy name is called vpon ouer this house whiche I haue buylte.

And when they go out to battayle agaynst their enemies whither so euer thou shalt send them, and shall praye vnto the Lorde towarde the citye which thou hast chosen, and towarde the house ℣ I haue buylt for thy name: heare thou their prayers and supplicacions, vp to heuen, and iudge their cause.

And finally, when they shal haue synned agaynst the, (for there is no man ℣ synneth not) and thou art angrye with them, and hast deliuered them to their ennemyes, that they be caried awaye prysoners vnto the lande of their ennemyes, whether farre or nere, yet yf they bourne agayne vnto theyr hertes in the lande where they be in captiuitie, and retourne and praye vnto the in the lande of them that hold them captyue, sayinge: we haue synned, and haue done wyckedly, and haue trespaced, and so turne agayn vnto the, with all theyr hertes and all their soules in the lande of theyr ennemies whiche holde them captyue, and praye vnto the, towarde the lande whiche thou gauest vnto theyr fathers, and towarde the citye whiche thou hast chosen, and house which I haue buylte for thy name: then heare thou theyr prayer and supplication vp to heuen thy dwellyng place, and iudge their cause, and be mercyfull vnto thy people ℣ haue synned agaynst the, and vnto all theyr trespace that they haue trespaced agaynst the, and get the fauoure in the syghte of them that holde them captyue, that they may haue compassion on them. For they be thy people, and thyne inheritaunce, whiche thou broughtest oute of Egypte, from the ✻ fornace of yron. And lette thyne eyes be ✻ Deut. i open vnto the prayer of thy seruaūt and vnto the prayer of thy people Israel, to harken vnto them in all they call vnto the for. For thou dydest seuere them to be thyne inheritaunce, aboue all the nations of the earthe, as thou sayedst by the hande of Moses thy seruaunt, when thou broughtest our fathers oute of Egypte, O Lorde almyghtye.

When Salomon had make an ende of prayinge all this prayer and supplicacion vnto the Lorde, he arose from the auiter of the Lorde, and frome kneelynge on his knees, and frome stretchynge his handes vp to heuen, and stode and blessed all the congregacion of Israel with a loude voyce, sayinge: Blessed be the Lorde that hathe gyuen gyuen reste vnto his people Israel accordyng to al ℣ he promised: ✻ so that ✻ Iosu. xxi there is not one worde escaped of all the good promyse whiche he promysed by the hand of Moses his seruaunt. And the Lorde oure God be with vs, as he was with oure fathers: and forsake vs not neither leaue vs, but that he bowe our hertes vnto hym, to walke in al his wayes, and to kepe his commaundements, ordinaunces and rites, whiche he commaunded our fathers. And these my wordes whiche I haue prayed before the Lorde, be nye vnto the Lorde oure God daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruaunte and of his

peopie Israel turnoze, that all nations of the erth maye knowe that the Lorde is God, and none but he. And I praye God that your hertes maye be sounde with the Lorde our God, to walke in his ordinaunces, and to kepe his lawes, as we do this daye.

And the kyng and all Israel with him, offered offrynges before the Lord. * And the peace offrynges that Salomon offred vnto ꝯ Lord were .xxij. thousande oxen, and an hundred and .xx. thousande sheepe. And so the kynge and all the children of Israel halowed the house of the Lord. And the same day the kyng halowed the middle of the court that is before the house of the Lorde/for there he offered burntoffrynges, and meatoffrynges, & the fat of the peace offrynges, because the brasen auiter that was before the Lorde, was to lytle to receyue the burntoffrynges and meatoffrynges, and the fat of the peaceoffrynges.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast, and all Israell with hym, a mightye congregation, euen from the coastes of Hemath, vnto the riuer of Egypt, before the Lorde our God, seuen dayes, and yet seuen dayes, that is fourtene dayes. And the eight daye he sent the people awaye. And they blessed the kynge and wente vnto theyr tentes ioyous and glad in herte, for all the goodnesse that the Lord had shewed vnto Dauid his seruaunt, and to Israel his people.

¶ The Lorde appeareth agayne to Salomon. Salomon giueth townes to Hiram. The Canaanites become tributaryes. He leadeth shippes for gold. And buyldeth many cyties.

CAPL IX.

1 When Salomon had finished the buylynge of the house of the Lorde, and of the kynges palace/and all that his desire and lust was to make: the Lorde appeared vnto him agayne, as he appeared to him at Gabaon. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: I haue herd thy prayer and intercession that thou made before me, and haue halowed this house whiche thou hast buylt to put my name there for euer/and myne eyes and myne hert shal be there perpetually. And if thou wylt walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, in pureness of herte and playnesse, to do all that I haue commaunded the, and shalte kepe myne ordinaunces and lawes: then I wyl stedfast the seate of thy kyngdom vpon Israel for euer, as I promised Dauid thy father, sayeng: * Thou shalte not be without one of other vpon the seate of Israel. But yf ye and your children shall turne awaye from me, and shall not kepe myne ordinaunces whiche I haue sette before you, but shall go and serue other goddes, and bowe youre selues vnto theym: then I wyll weede Israel out of the lande whiche I haue geuen them. And this house whiche I haue halowed for my name, I wyl put out of my sight. And Israel shall be a prouerbe and a fable vnto all nations. And this house whiche is so hye, * all that passe by it shall be astonied, and shal hysse and saye: why hath the Lorde dealte on this maner with this land, & with this house? And it shall be answered them, because they forsoke the Lord their God, which brought their fathers oute of the lande of Egypte, and haue leaned to other goddes, and haue stouped vnto them and serued them: therfore hath the Lord brought vpon them all this euil. Then at the ende of twenty yeres, in which Salomon had buylt the two houses/that is to wit, the house of the Lorde, and the kynges palace: because Hiram the kynge of Tire had supported him with Cedar, fyre, and gold, as moche as he desired, therfore Salomon gaue Hiram .xx. cities in the lande of Galile. And when Hiram was come frō Tire to se the cities which Salomon had geuen him/they pleased him not. Wherfore he sayd: what cities are these which thou hast giuen me, my brother? And he called them the lande of Cabul vnto this daye. This Hiram had sente the kynge fyre score hundred weyght of golde. And this is the somme of the tribute which kyng Salomon raysed to buyld the house of the Lorde and his owne house, & Mello, and the walles of Jerusalem and Hezer and Megedo, and Gazer.

Jerem.xxij.c
2.Para.vij.d

2.Para.viij.

For Pharao kynge of Egypte went vp and toke Gazer and burnt it with fyre / and slewe the Cananites that dwelte in the citye, & gaue it for a preferment vnto his doughter that was Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylt Gazer and Beth Horon the nether, and Baalath and Thamar in the wyldernesse that is in ꝯ land/ and all the store cyties that Salomon had, and cyties for his charettes, and cyties for his horsemen, and all that his hert was to buylde in Jerusalem and Libanon, and in al the land of his kyngdome.

And all the people that were lefte of the Amorytes, Hethites, Pherisytes, Heuites, and Iebusytes, whiche were not of the children of Israel / the children of the sayde nacyons that were lefte in the lande / because the children of Israell were not able to destroye them / Salomon made tributaryes vnto this daye. But of the children of Israell dyd Salomon make no bondemen. But they were men of warre, and his seruauntes, and his Lordes, and Capitaynes and rulers of his charettes, and of his horsemen. And these manye Lordes that ouersawe the worke had Salomon, fyue hundred and fyfty, whiche ruled the people that wroughte in the worke. And Pharaos doughter came vp oute of the cyte of Dauid, vnto the house whiche Salomon had buylt for her. And after that, he buylt Mello. And thryse a yere dyd Salomon offre burnt offrynges and peace offrynges vpon the auiter whiche he hadde buylt vnto the Lorde, to burne the fatte theron: whiche auiter is before the Lorde. So when kynge Salomon hadde made the house perfecte, he made shyppes in Asion Gaber, whyche lye besyde Eloth, on the brincke of the red see, in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sente by shyppe also of his seruauntes, that were shypmen, and experte in the see, with the seruauntes of Salomon. And they wente to Ophir, and fet from thence golde, to the fomme of foure hundred and.xvii. talentes, & brought it to Salomon.

¶ The Quene of Saba commeth from the furtheſt partes of the lande to heare and ſe the wyſdome of Salomon. The yerely reuenues and rentes of Salomon, his throne, veſſelles of golde, Charettes, horſmen, and fafion of cloth.

CAPI. X.

¶ And the quene of Saba herd of the wyſdome of Salomon concernyng the name of the Lorde, and came to proue him with ſydelles. And ſhe came to Jeruſalem with a mighty greate multitude of Camelles that bare ſwete odours and golde exceding moche, and precyous ſtones. And when ſhe was come to Salomon, ſhe talked with him of all that was in her herte. And Salomon expowned her all her queſtions, that there was not one thynge hyd from the kynge, whiche he expowned her not. And when the quene of Saba had ſene all Salomons wyſdome, & the houſe that he had buylte, and the meat of his table, and the lodgynges of his ſeruantes, and the facion of his courte, and their apparell, and his butlers, & his ſacrifice that he offred in the houſe of the Lorde, ſhe was aſtonied. Then ſhe ſayd to the kynge: the worde I herde in myne owne land of thy dedes and wyſdome, is true. How be it I beleued it not, tyll I came and ſawe it with myne eyes. And lo, the one half was not told me, for thy wiſdom and goodneſſe paſſeth the fame whiche I herde. Happye are thy men, and happye are theſe thy ſeruauntes, whiche ſtande euer before the and heare thy wyſdom. And bleſſed be the Lorde thy god whiche had a luſt to the, to ſet the on the ſeate of Iſrael, becauſe the Lorde loued Iſrael for euer, and therfore made the kynge, to doo equitie and ryghteouſnes.

Then ſhe gaue the kyng an hundred and.xx. talentes of golde, and of ſwete odoures exceadyng moche, and precyous ſtones. There came neuer after ſuche abundance of ſwete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomō. And therto the ſhyppes of Hiram that brought golde from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plentye of Almuge trees, and precious ſtones. And kyng Salomō made of the Almuge trees pylers in the houſe of the Lorde, and in the kynges palace, and made harpes and plaiſteres for ſyngers. There came no more Almuge trees nor was any more ſene vnto this daye. And kinge Salomon gaue vnto the quene of Saba all her deſyre that ſhe aſked of hym, beſydes that he gaue her with his own hand. And ſo ſhe returned vnto her owne countrey with her ſeruauntes.

The weight of golde that came to Salomō euery yere, was.vi. hundred thre ſcore and.vi. talentes of golde, beſides that he had of chapmen, and of marchauntes, of potycaries, and of all the kinges of Arabie, and of the lordes of the countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten gold, ſixe hundred ſicles of golde went to a buckler. And he made thre hundred ſhyldes of beaten golde, thre pounde of golde goynge to a pece, and put them in the houſe of the wodde of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great ſeate of Iuorye and couered it with precyous golde. And the ſeate had ſixe ſteppes. And the top of the ſeate was rounde behynde his backe, with pomels on either ſyde on the place where he ſate, and two lyons ſtandynge beſyde the pomelles. And there ſtode twelue lyons on the ſteppes, ſixe on a ſyde. There was none lyke ſeate in any kingdome. And all kyng Salomons drinkynge cuppes were of golde, and all the garnyſhement of the houſe of the wod of Libanon, were of pure golde. And as for ſyluer, it was nothynge worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the ſee ſhyppes whiche the kyng had in the ſee, with the ſhyppes of Hiram, came euery thyrd yere laden with golde, ſyluer, Iuorye, apes, and peacockes. And ſo kynge Salomon paſſed all the kynges of the erth in riches and wyſdome. And all the worlde reſorted to Salomon, to heare his wyſdome whiche God had put in his herte. And broughte him euerye man his preſent, veſſels of ſyluer and of gold, and of rayment, harneſſe, ſwete odoures, horſſes, and Mules, yere by yere. And Salomō gathered togyther charettes and horſemen, ſo that he had a thouſand and foure hundred charettes, and twelue thouſande horſemen, which he beſtowed in the charet cityes, and with the kynge at Jeruſalem.

And the kynge made ſyluer in Jeruſalem as plenteous as ſtones, and Cedar as plenteous as the mulbery trees that grow in the valeyes. And Salomons horſſes came out of Egypt fromc Kewa. The marchauntes fet them from Kewa at a price. A charet came out of Egypt for vi. hundred ſicles of ſiluer, & an horſe for an hundred & fyfty. And euen ſo by the handes of the ſayde marchauntes, horſſes were brought out for al the kinges of the Hethites, and for the kynges of Aſſiria.

¶ Salomon hath ſeuen hundred Quenes and thre hundred Concubynes, whiche bringe him to Idolatrye his adueſaryes rebell agaynſt hym. He dyeth, and Jeroboam his ſonne raygneth in his ſtede.

CAPI. XI.

But kyng Salomon loued many outlandyſhe women: the doughters of Pharao, and of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonites, and Hethites, euen of nacions of which the Lorde ſayd vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, Ye come not at them, nor let them come to you, for ſurely they wyll turne your hertes after their goddes. Neuertheleſſe to ſuche Salomon claue, and fell in loue with them. And he had ſeuen hundred verye quenes, and thre hundred concubynes, whiche turned away his hert. For when Salomon was olde, his wiues turned his hert after other goddes, ſo that his hert was not perfect with the Lorde his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

And Salomon folowed Aſtaroth the God of

of the Zidons, and Milcom the abhominacion of the Ammonites. So Salomō wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde, and continued not after the Lorde as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon buylte an aulter for Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites in the hyll that standeth before Jerusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon. And semblably dyd he for all his outlandyshe wiues which burnt incense and offered vnto theyr Goddes. Then was the Lorde angry with Salomon, because his hert turned from the Lorde God of Israel whiche appeared vnto hym twyse, and gaue him a charge of this thinge that he sholde not folowe other Goddes. But he kepte not that whiche the Lorde commaunded hym: wherupon the Lord sayd to Salomō: for as much as this is done of the, and thou hast not kept myne appoyntement & myne ordinaūces which I haue commaunded the, therfore I will rent the kingdome from the, and will gyue it to thy seruaunt. Notwithstanding in thy dayes I will not do it, because of Dauid thy father: but will take it frō thy sonne. How be it I will not take away al: but will gyue one tribe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruaunt, and because of Jerusalem, whiche I haue chosen.

Then the Lorde stered vp an aduersary vnto Salomon, one Hadad an Edomite, and of the kynges lynage of Edom. For whē Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the capitayne of the hoste was gone vp to burye them that were slayn, & had slayne all the men chyldren in Edom. For sixe monethes dyd Joab remayne there, and al Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And this Hadad fled, & certeyn other Edomites of his fathers seruauntes wt him, to go to Egypt, Hadad beinge yet a litle lad. And they arose out of Madian, and went to Pharan, and toke men with them oute of Pharan, & came to Egypt vnto Pharao kyng therof, which gaue him an house, and appointed him victayles, and gaue him landes. And Hadad gat great fauour in the sight of Pharao, so that he gaue him to wyfe the sister of his owne wyfe, the sister of Thahaphnes the quene. And the sister of Thahaphnes bare him Genubath his sonne. And Thahaphnes weaned him in Pharaos house. And he was i Pharaos house among the sonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad herde saye in Egypte that Dauid was layde to slepe with his fathers, and that Joab the capitayne of the hoste was ded also, he sayd to Pharao: let me departe, that I maye go to myne owne countrey. Then sayde Pharao vnto hym: what lacketh thou heare with me, that thou woldest go to thyne owne countreye? And he sayd, nothynge: how be it let me go. And God stered vp an other aduersarye, one Rason the sonne of Eliada, whiche fled from Hadadeser kyng of Zobah his master. This Rason gathered men vnto him, and became capitayne ouer an armye, when Dauid slewe them. And they went to Damasco, & dwelte therin, and raygned in Damasco. And he was an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomon, with the euill that Hadad dyd, which abhorred Israel, and raygned in Syria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephrathite of Zareuah, whose mother was called Zeruah, and was a widowe, and he Salomons seruaunt, lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kyng, and herein gaue it, that he lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kynge. Salomon buylt Mello, and mended broken places in the cite of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was an actiue man. And when Salomō sawe the yong man that he wrought so iustely in the worke, he made him ruler ouer all the charges of the house of Joseph. And it chaūced at that season, as Jeroboam was gone out of Jerusalem, that the Prophete Ahiah the Silonite met him by the waye, hauyng a new mantell on him, & they two alone in the felde. And Ahiah caught the newe mantel that was on him, and rent it in twelue peces, and sayd to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: beholde I wil rent the kingdome out of the handes of Salomon, and wil gyue ten tribes to the, & he shall haue one, for my seruaunt Dauids sake, and for Jerusalem, the cite whiche I haue chosen oute of all the tribes of Israell, because they haue forsaken me, and haue bowed them selues vnto Astaroth the God of the Zidons, and to Chamos the God of the Moabites, and to Milcom, the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to do that pleaseth me, and myne ordynaūces and rites: as dyd Dauid his father.

How be it I wyll take none of the kyngdome oute of his hande, but wyll make hym chefe all his lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruauntes sake, whiche I chose, because he kept my commaundementes and ordinaūces. But I wyl take the kyngdome forth of his sonnes hande, and wyll gyue vnto the ten tribes of it, and wyll gyue his sonne one, that Dauid my seruaunte maye haue a lyghte alwaye before me in Jerusalem the cite which I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I wyll take the, and thou shalte raygne vpon all that thy soule desyreth, & shalt be king ouer Israel. And yf thou shalt harken vnto al that I commaunde the, and shalte walke in my wayes, and do that is righte in my syghte, that thou kepe myne ordinaūces and commaundmentes, as Dauid my seruaūt dyd: then will I be with the, and buylde the an house that shall continue, as I buylte for my seruaunte Dauid, and I wyll gyue Israell vnto the. And therwith wyll I vexe the seed of Dauid, but not for euer. And Salomon sought to kyl Jeroboam, wherfore Jeroboam arose, and fledde in to Egypte, vnto Sesak kynge of Egypte, and continued there tyll the deathe of Salomon. The reste of the actes of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wysdome, are wrytten in the boke of the actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israell, was fourtye yeres. And then he layde hym to rest with his fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

Ophir, and let from thence gold to the summe of foure hundred and.xxii. talentes, & brought it to Salomon.

¶ The Quene of Saba commeth from the furthest partes of the lande to heare and se the wysdome of Salomon. The yerely reuenues and rentes of Salomon. His throne, vesselles of golde, Charettes, horsmen, and toplon of syuer.

CAPI. X.

A Nd the quene of Saba herd of the wisdome of Salomon concernyng ℔ name of the Lorde, and came to proue him with ryddles. And she came to Ierusalem with a mighty greate multitude of Camelles ℔ bare swete odours and golde exceding moche, and precyous stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she talked with him of al that was in her herte. And Salomon expowned her all her questions, that there was not one thynge hyd from the kynge, whiche he expowned her not. And when the quene of Saba had sene al Salomons wysdome, & the house that he had buylte, and the meat of his table, and the lodgynges of his seruauntes, and the fassion of his courte, and their apparell, and his butlers, & his sacrifice that he offered in the house of the Lorde, she was astonied. Then she sayd to the kynge: the worde I herde in myne owne land of thy dedes and wysdome, is true. How be it I beleued it not, tyll I came and sawe it with myne eyes. And lo, the one half was not told me, so: thy wisdom and goodnesse passeth the fame whiche I herde. Happye are thy men, and happye are these thy seruauntes, whiche stande euer before the and heare thy wysdom. And blessed be the Lorde thy god whiche had a lust to the, to set the on the seate of Israell, because the Lorde loued Israel for euer, and therfore made the kynge, to doo equitie and rygh tousnes.

Then she gaue the kyng an hundred and.xx. talentes of golde, and of swete odoures exceadyng moche, and precious stones. There came neuer after suche abundance of swete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomō. And thereto ℔ shyppes of Hiram that brought golde from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plentye of ✣almuge tree, and precious stones. And kyng Salomō made of the Almuge trees pyllers in the house of the Lorde, and in the kynges palace, and made harpes and psalteries for syngers. There came no more Almuge tree so, nor was any more sene vnto this daye. And kynge Salomon gaue vnto ℔ quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked of hym, beside that he gaue her with his own hand. And so she returned vnto her owne country with her seruauntes.

The weight of golde that came to Salomō euery yere, was.vi. hundred thre score and.vi. talentes of golde, besides that he had of chapmen, and of marchantes, of potecaries, and of all the kinges of Arabie, and of the lordes of ℔ countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten gold, fyue hundred sicles of golde went to a buckler. And he made three hundred shyldes of beaten golde, three pounde of golde goynge to a pece, and put them in the house of the wodde of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of Ivorye and couered it with precyous golde. And the seate had sixe steppes. And the top of the seate was rounde behynde his backe, with pomels on either syde on the place where he sate, and two lyons standynge besyde the pomelles. And there stode twelue lyons on the steppes, sixe on a syde. There was none lyke sewe in a nye kingdome. And all kyng Salomons drinkynge cuppes were of golde, and all the garnyshement of the house of the wod of Libanon, were of pure golde. And as for syluer, it was nothynge worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the see shyppes whiche the kyng had in the see, with the shyppes of Hiram, came euery thyrd yere laden with golde, syluer, Ivorye, apes, and perockes. ✣ And so kynge Salomon passed all the kynges of the erth in riches and wysdome. And all the worlde resorted to Salomon, to heare his wysdome whiche God had put in his herte. And broughte him euery man his present, vessels of syluer and of gold, and of rayment, harnesse, swete odoures, horses, and mules, yere by yere. And Salomō gathered togyther charettes and horsemen, so that he had a thousand and foure hundred charettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, which he bestowed in the charet cityes, and with the kynge at Ierusalem.

✣ And the kynge made syluer in Ierusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar as plenteous as the mulbery trees that grow in the valeyes. And Salomons horsses came out of Egypt frome Kcua. The marchauntes let them from Kcua at a price. A charet came out of Egypt for.vi. hundred sicles of syluer, & an horse for an hundred & fifty. And euen so by the handes of the sayde marchauntes, horsses were brought out for al the kinges of the Hethites, and for the kynges of Syria.

¶ Salomon hath seuen hundred Quenes and three hundred Concubynes, whiche kynge him to Idolatrye. His aduersaryes rebell against hym. He dyeth, and Ieroboam his sonne raygneth in his stede.

CAPI. XI.

BVt kyng Salomon loued many outlandyshe women: the doughter of Pharao, and of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonites, and Hethites, euen of nacōs of which the Lorde sayd vnto the children of Israel, ye come not at them, nor let them come to you, for surely they will turne your hertes after their goddes. Neuertheles to suche Salomon claue, and fell in loue with them. ✣ And he had seuen hundred verye quenes, and three hundred concubynes, whiche turned away his hert. For when Salomon was olde, his wiues turned his hert after other goddes, so that his hert was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

And Salomon folowed Astaroth the God of

of the Zidons, and Milcom the abhominacion of the Ammonites. So Salomō wrought wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, and continued not after the Lorde as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon buylte an aulter for Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites in the hyll that standeth before Jerusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon. And semblably dyd he for all his outlandyshe wiues which burnt incense and offered vnto theyr Goddes. Then was the Lorde angry with Salomon, because his hert turned from the Lorde God of Israel whiche appeared vnto hym twyse, and gaue him a charge of this thinge that he shulde not folowe other Goddes. But he kepte not that whiche the Lorde commaunded hym: wherupon the Lord sayd to Salomō: for as moch as this is done of the, and thou hast not kept myne appoyntement & myne ordinaūces which I haue commaunded the, therfore I wyll rent the kingdome from the, and wil giue it to thy seruaunt. Notwithstanding in thy dayes I wil not do it, because of Dauid thy father: but wil take it frō thy sonne. Howbeit I wil not take away al: but wil giue one tribe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruaunt, and because of Jerusalem, whiche I haue chosen.

Then the Lord stered vp an aduersary vnto Salomon, one Hadad an Edomite, and of the kynges linage of Edom. For whē Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the capitayne of the hoste was gone vp to burye them that were slayn, & had slayne all the men chyldren in Edom. For sixe monethes dyd Joab remayne there, and al Israel, vntil he had destroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And this Hadad fled, & certeyn other Edomites of his fathers seruaunces with him, to go to Egypt. Hadad beinge yet a little lad. And they arose out of Madian, and went to Pharan, and toke men with them out of Pharan, & came to Egypt vnto Pharao kyng therof, which gaue him an houle, and appointed him victayles, and gaue him landes. And Hadad gat great fauour in the sight of Pharao, so that he gaue him to wyfe the sister of his owne wyfe, the sister of Thahaphnes the quene. And the sister of Thahaphnes bare him Henubath his sonne. And Thahaphnes weaned him in Pharaos houle. And he was I Pharaos houle among the sonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad herde saye in Egypte that Dauid was layde to slepe with his fathers, and that Joab the capitayne of the hoste was ded also, he sayd to Pharao: let me departe, that I maye go to myne owne countrey. Then sayde Pharao vnto hym: what lacketh thou heare with me, that thou woldest go to thyne owne countreye? And he sayd, nothynge: how be it let me go. And God stered vp an other aduersarye, one Rason the sonne of Eliada, whiche fled from Hadadezer kyng of Zobah his master. This Rason gathered men vnto him, and became capitayne ouer an armye, when Dauid slewe them. And they went to Damasco, & dwelte therin, and raygned in Damasco. And he was an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomon, with the euill that Hadad dyd, which abhorred Israel, and raygned in Syria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephrathite of Zaredah (whose mother was called Zeruah, and was a widowe, and he Salomons seruaunt) lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kyng: and therof cause it, that he lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kynge. Salomon buylt Millo, and mended broken places in the cite of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was an actiue man. And when Salomō sawe the yong man that he wrought so iuftely in the worke, he made him ruler ouer all the charges of the houle of Joseph. And it chaūced at that season, as Jeroboam was gone out of Jerusalem, that the Prophete Ahiah the Silonite met him by the waye, hauyng a new mantell on him, & they two alone in the fielde. And Ahiah caught the newe mantel that was on him, and rent it in twelue peces, and sayd to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For this sayth the Lorde God of Israel: beholde I wil rent the kingdome out of the handes of Salomon, and wil giue ten tribes to the: & he shall haue one, for my seruaunt Dauids sake, and for Jerusalem, the cite whiche I haue chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, because they haue forsaken me, and haue bowed them selues vnto Astaroth the God of the Zidons: and to Chamos the God of the Moabites: and to Milcom, the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to do that pleaseth me: and myne ordynaunces and ryghtes: as dyd Dauid his father.

Howbeit I wyll take none of the kyngdome out of his handes: but wyll make him chefe all his lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruauntes sake, whiche I chose, because he kept my commaundementes and ordinaunces. But I wyl take the kyngdome forth of his sonnes handes, and wyll giue vnto the ten tribes of it: and wyll giue his sonne one, that Dauid my seruaunte maye haue a lyghte alwaye before me in Jerusalem the cite which I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I wyll take the, and thou shalte raygne vpon all that thy soule desyreth, & shalt be king ouer Israel. And yf thou shalt harken vnto al that I commaunde the, and shalte walke in my wayes: and do that is righte in my syghte, that thou kepe myne ordinaunces and commaundementes: as Dauid my seruaūt dyd: then will I be with the, and buylde the an houle that shall continue: as I buylte for my seruaunte Dauid: and I wyll giue Israell vnto the. And therwith wyll I vexe the seed of Dauid, but not for euer. And Salomon sought to kyl Jeroboam: wherfore Jeroboam arose, and fledde in to Egypte, vnto Sesak kynge of Egypte, and continued there vntil the deathe of Salomon. The reste of the actes of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wysdome, are wrytten in the boke of the actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israell, was fourtye yeres. And then he slepte with his fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ The kyngdome is deuyded: Rehoboam raygneth ouer .xii. tribes, and Ieroboam ouer .x. Aduram is stoned. Ieroboam maketh golden calues.

CAPI. XII.

1 AND Rehoboam wente to Sichem: for al Israel were come to Sichem to make him kynge. And when Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat herd of it, being yet in Egypt: for he had fledde to Egypte, for feare of Salomon, and dwelte there. And they sent and called him: and so Ieroboam and all the assemble of Israel came and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayinge: thy father made oure yoke greuous, but now make thou the greuous seruice of thy father, and his sore yoke whiche he put vpon vs, lyghter, and so we wyll serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and sayde: what counsel gyue ye to answere this people with? 7 And they sayde vnto hym. If thou shalte be a seruaunt vnto this people this day, and serue them, and answere them, and spoke kynde wordes to them, they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he lefte the counsell that the olde men had gyuen hym, and counselled with the yonge men that were nouysshed vp with him and had wayted on him.

The rude of the people is despised.

And he sayd vnto them: what counsel gyue ye, to answere this people, whiche haue commaned with me sayinge: make the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs, lyghter? And the yong men that were brought vp with him answered him, sayinge: this people that haue sayd vnto the: thy father made our yoke heuy make thou it vs lyghter: thus answere them. Exo.xxiii.b My lytle fynger shall be waygbtyer then my 10 fathers loynes. And nowe where my father put a greuous yoke vpon you, I wyll make it heuyer. For where my father corrected you with scourges, I wyll chastyse you with scorpyons. And when Ieroboam, and all the people were come to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kynge appoynted them, sayinge: come to me agayne this daye thre dayes: the kynge answered the people churlyshely, and lefte the aduyse that the olde men gaue hym: and spake to them after the counsell of the yonge men, sayinge. My father made youre yoke greuous, but I wyll make it greuouser. For where my father chastyled you with D wbyppes, I wyll chastyse you with scorpyons. And so the kynge hadnerd not vnto the people: for the turnynge awaye was of the Lord, 3.iii.Reg.xi.f * to perfourme his sayinge, whiche the Lorde sayde by Ahiah the Silonite vnto Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat.

And when all Israel sawe that the kynge gaue them not the people answered the kynge agayne, sayinge: we haue no parte in Dauid, 16 nor inheritaunce in the sonne of Isai. * Hasten to youre tentes therfore Israel, and now se to thyne owne house Dauid. And so Israel wpat 2.Paral.x.d. ted vnto theyr tentes. Now be it ouer the chyldren of Israel whiche dwelte in the cyty of Iuda, did Rehoboam raygne styl. Then kynge Rehoboam sent Aduram the receyuer of the tribute. And al Israel stoned him to deth with stones. But kynge Rehoboam made spede and gat him vp to his charet, & fled to Ierusalem. And 19 so Israel wparted from the house of Dauid vnto this daye. And when al Israel herd that Ieroboam was come agayn, they sent and called hym vnto the congregacyon, and made hym kynge ouer Israell: so folowed the house of Dauid, but the tribe of Iuda only. * And whē 21 Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda, and all the tryde of Ben Iamin an hundred and foure score thousandes of chosen men & good warriours, to fight agaynst the house of Israel, and to bringe the kyngdome agayne vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon. Then came the worde of the Lorde 22 vnto Semeiah the man of God, sayinge, spoke vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Iuda, and vnto all the house of Iuda and Ben Iamin, and the remnaunt of the people, and saye, Thus sayth the Lorde: goo not nor fight agaynst youre brethren the chyldren of Israel, but returne euery man to his house, for this doynge is of the Lorde. And they obeyed the worde of the Lorde, and returned and departed accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. Then Ieroboam buylte Sichem in mount Ephraim, and dwelte therin. And wente frome thence and buylt Phanuel.

And Ieroboam thought in his herte: nowe might the kingdome returne to the house of Dauid agayne. For yf this people shall go vp and do sacrifyce in the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem: then shall they; hertes turne agayn vnto theyr Lorde Rehoboam kynge of Iuda: and so shall they kyll me, and go agayne to Rehoboam kynge of Iuda. * Wherupon the kynge 28 toke counsell and made two calues of golde, and sayd vnto the people: ye shall not nede to goo anye more to Ierusalem. Beholde, youre Gods (Israel) whiche brought you oute of the lande of Egypt. And he put the one in Bethel G and the other in Dan. And that boynge was a cause of synne. And the people wente to worshyp the calfe, as farre as Dan. And he made temples in the hylles, and made of the lowest of the people preestes, whiche were not of the sonnes of Leui. And Ieroboam made a feaste the fyftene daye of the eyght moneth, lyke vnto the feast that was in Iuda, and offered on the aulter. And so dyd he in Bethel, to offer vnto the calues & he had made. And he put in Bethel the preestes of the hyllaulters, whiche he had made. And he offered vpon the aulter whiche he had made in Bethel, the fyftene daye of the eyght moneth, whiche he had ymagined of his owne herte, and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldren of Israel, and wente vp to the aulter to burne sacrifyce.

¶ Ieroboam sacrifyenge vnto Calues, is reproued of the Prophete. His hande dryeth vp whyle he putteth it out agaynst the Prophete. The Prophete buryed and buryed.

CAPI. XIII.

A Lo beholde, there came a man of God out of Juda with the worde of God, to Bethel, as Jeroboam stode by the aultar to offer, and cryed agaynst the aultare at the cõmaundement of the Lorde and sayd: aultare, aultare, thus sayth the Lorde. Beholde, a chylde shall be borne of the house of Dauid, Josiah by name, whiche vpon the shall offer the preistes of the hyllaultares that sacrifyce vpon the, and shall burne mennes bones vpon the. And he gaue them the same tyme a signe sayenge: this is the signe of that the Lorde hath promysed. Beholde the aulter shall rent and the asshes that are in it shal fal out. And when the kynge herde the sayeng of the man of God whiche he cryed agaynste the aulter in Bethel, he stretched oute his hande fro̅me the aultare sayeng: holde him. And his hande which he put forth towarde him, dryed vp, that he coulde not pull it in agayn to him and the aulter clefte and the asshes ran out of the aulter accordinge to the token which the man of God had gyuen at the cõmaundment of the Lorde. And the kynge answered and sayde vnto the man of God: Oh praye vnto the Lorde thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hand may be restored me againe. And the man of God besought the Lord, and his hande came to him agayne as well as before.

Then sayd the kynge vnto the man of God Come home with me and refreshe thy selfe, & I will gyue the rewarde. But the man of God answered the king, if thou wouldest gyue me halfe thyne house, I wolde not goo with the neither wolde I eate meate or drynke water in this place. For so was it charged me, thorowe the worde of God and sayde to me: eate no bred, nor drynche water, nor turne agayne by the same waye thou wentest. And so he went an other waye and returned not by the waye he came to Bethel. And there dwelt an olde Prophete in Bethel, whose sonnes came and colde him all the workes that the man of God had done that day in Bethel, and the wordes which he spake vnto ỹ kynge they colde them father also. And them father sayde to them: what waye went he? for his sonnes had sene what waye the man of God went which came fro̅me Juda. Then sayd he to his sonnes: sadle myne asse. And they sadled him an asse. And he gat him vp theron and went after the man of God, and found him sitting vnder an Oke, and sayde vnto him: Art thou the man of God that camest from Juda? And he sayde, yea.

Then he sayd to him: come home with me and eate bred. And the other sayde agayne, I maye not returne with the, to go with ỹ, ney ther maye I eate bred or drynke water with ỹ in this place. For it was sayde to me by the cõmaundement of the Lorde, eate no bred nor drynke water in this place, nor turne agayne by the waye thou wentest. And the olde Prophet sayde vnto him: I am a Prophet as wel as thou, and an Angel spake vnto me with ỹ worde of the Lorde, sayenge: Bringe him agayne with the to thyne house, ỹ let him eate bred and drynk water, and yet lyed vnto him. And so the other went agayne with him ỹ ate bred in his house and dranke water.

And as they sate at the table, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete ỹ brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto ỹ man of God that came from Juda, sayenge: Thus sayth the Lorde: because thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, and hast not kept ỹ commaundement which the Lorde thy God commaunded the, but camest backe agayne & hast eaten bread and dronke water in the place in which he bad that thou shuldest eate no bred nor drynke water: therfore thy carkaile shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And when he had eaten bred and dronke, he sadled an asse for the Prophete which he had brought agayne. And as he journeyed, a lyon met him by the waye, and slew him, and his carkaile laye alonge in the waye, and the asse stode therby, and the lyon stode by the corpse also. And men that passed by, saw the carkaile cast alonge in the way and the lyon standing therby, & went & colde it in the towne where the olde Prophete dwelt. And when the Prophete that brought him backe agayne from ỹ waye, herde therof, he sayde: It is the mã of God which disobeyed the mouth of the Lord. And therfore the Lorde hathe deliuered him vnto the Lyon which hath rent him and slayne him, according to the worde of ỹ Lorde, which he sayde to him. And he sayd to his sonnes sadle me an asse: and so they dyd. And he went and founde the body cast alonge in the waye, and the asse and the Lyon standinge therby. And the Lyon had not eaten the carkaile nor hurt the asse. And he toke vp the body of the manne of God, and put it vpon the asse, and brought it agayne, and came to the cytie of ỹ olde Prophete to lament him, & to bury him. And he layde his body in his owne graue, and lamented over him, Oh my brother. And whe he had buryed him, he spake to his sonnes sayenge: When I am dead, se ye bury me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buryed, and lay my bones by his. For the sayeng which he cryed at the bydding of the Lorde against the aultare in Bethel, and against all the houses of hyllaultares whiche are in the cyties of Samarie, shall come to passe.

How be it for all that, Jeroboam turned not from his wicked waye: but turned awaye and made of the lowest of the people preistes of the hyllaultares. Who so euer wolde, he fylled their handes, and they became preistes of the hyllaultares. And this thynge was synne vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroy it and to put it awaye from of the face of the earthe.

¶ Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsell of Ahiah, who the prophesyeth the death of her childe and the destruction of the Realme. Jeroboam dyeth. Sesak kyng of Egypt robbeth the house of the Lorde. Roboam dyeth. Abiam succeedeth hym.

CAP. XIIII.

At that tyme Abiah the sonne of Jeroboam fell sicke. And Jeroboam sayd vnto his wyfe: aryse and chaunge thyne apparell, that thou be not knowen to be the wyfe of Jeroboam, and get the to Silo. For there is Ahiah the Prophete, which told me * that I should be kynge ouer this people.

* iii. Reg. xi. f. iiii. Reg. viii. f.

* And take with the ten loues and crackenelles and a cruse of hony, and goo to him: for he will tell the what shall come of the childe. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so: she arose and went to Silo, and came to the house of Abiah. But Ahiah could not se, for his eyes were waxen dymme for age.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Ahiah: Behold, the wyfe of Jeroboam commeth, to question with the about her sonne which is sicke. This wyfe and this wyfe shalt thou answere her. And when she came, she feyned her self to be an other woman. But when Ahiah herde the sounde of her fete as she came to the dore, he sayde: Come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, why feynest thou thy selfe to be an other? I am sent to the an heuy messenger. Go and tell Jeroboam, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell: for as moch as I auaunced the aboue the comen people, & made the prince ouer my people Israell, and rypt p̄ kyngdome away from ꝑ house of Dauid and gaue it the: and thou hast not bene as was my seruaunt Dauid, who kepte my commaundmentes and folowed me with al his hert, to do ꝑ only which semeth right in myne eyes: but hast done euyl aboue all that were before the, and hast gone and made the other goddes and ymages, of metall to prouoke me, and hast cast me behynde thy backe: therfore behold I wyll brynge euyll vpon ꝑ house of Jeroboam, and will stryke from Jeroboam all that pisseth against the wall, and what so euer is in pryson & forsaken in Israel, and will take away the remnaunt of the house of Jeroboam, as men take away a wag dyll, tyll it be consumed. * And who so euer of Jeroboams house dye in the towne, hym shall the wegges eate, and him that dyeth in the felde, shall the foules of the ayre eate: for the Lorde hathe sayde it, aryse and get the to thyne house, and as soone as thy fote entereth the cyte, the childe shall dye. How be it al Israell shall mourne him and bury him, for this only of all Jeroboam shall come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is founde goodnesse towarde the Lorde God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam. Moreouer the Lorde shal stere him vp a kynge ouer Israel who shall destroy the house of Jeroboam in that day. And what is that that is now in hande? And the Lorde shall smyte Israell, as a rede that groweth in the water is shaken, and will wede Israel out of this good lande which he gaue to their fathers, and wyll scatter theym beyonde Euphrates, because they haue made theym grooues to anger the Lorde. And he wyl gyue Israell vp, because of the synne of Jeroboam, wherwith he dyd synne, & made Israell synne also.

* iii. Reg. xvi. & xxi.

And Jeroboams wyfe arose and departed, and wente to Thersah, and by that she was come to the thresholde of the dore, the lodde was dede. And all Israel buryed him and lamented him, accordinge to the worde of the Lorde which he spake by the hande of his seruaunte Ahiah the Prophete. The rest of the dedes of Jeroboam, how he warred and how he raygned, are wrytten in the booke of the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And the dayes which Jeroboam raygned, were two & twenty yere. And then he rested with his fathers, and Nadab his sonne raygned in his stede.

And Rehoboam the son of Salomon raygned in Juda, and was. xli. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned. xvii. yere in Jerusalem the cyte which the Lord had chosen out of all ꝑ tribes of Israel, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Juda wrought wickednesse in the sight of the Lord and angred him aboue all that their fathers dyd, with their synne which they synned. For they also made them hill autters and Images and groues on euery hygh hyll, and vnder euery grene tree. And there ther was a sines of male childe in the lande, and they dyd accordinge to all the abhominacions of the Heythen, whiche the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel.

And the fyft yere of kynge Rehoboā came the sack kynge of Egypt vp to Jerusalem, & toke awaye the treasure of the house of the Lorde and the treasure of the kynges house, and all that was to be had. And he toke away ꝑ shildes of golde which Salomō made. In whose stede kynge Rehoboam made hī ten shildes, and put them in the keping of the captaynes of the garde, which wayted at the dore of the kynges house. And as often as the kynge went into the house of the Lorde, they of his garde bare them, and euer brought them ageyne into the garde chambre.

The rest of the Actes of kynge Rehoboam and all he dyd, are written in the boke of the Actes of the kynges of Juda. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam al their dayes. And Rehoboam layde him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in ꝑ cyte of Dauid. And his mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Abiah his sonne raygned in his place.

CAPI. XV.

In the. xviii. yere of kynge Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, raygned kynge Abiam ouer Juda, and ruled thre yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Maacah the doughter of Abesalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father whiche he had done before hym, and his herte was not holy with the Lorde his God, as the herte of Dauid his father. Neuertheles for Dauids sake, the Lord his God gaue him a lyght in Ierusalem, that he set vp his sonne after him, to continue Ierusalem: Because that Dauid dyd that which pleased the Lord, and tourned frome nothinge that he comaunded him all the dayes of his lyfe, * saue only in the matter of Urias the Hethite. And there was warre betweene Roboboam and Ieroboam as longe as he lyued. The rest of the actes of Abiam and all that he dyd, are written in the boke of the Chronicles that were wrote in the dayes of the kynges of Iuda. And there was warre betweene Abiā and Ieroboam. And Abiam rested with his fathers, and they buryed him in the cytie of Dauid. And Asa his sonne raygned in his stede.

The .xx. yere of Ieroboam kynge of Israel began Asa to raygne ouer Iuda, and ruled in Ierusalem .xli. yere. Whose mothers name was Maacah the daughter of Abesalom. And Asa dyd that semed ryght in the eyen of the Lord, lyke Dauid his father. And he made the sines of males departe the lande, and put awaye all the Idolles that his fathers had made. And there he put downe Maacah his mother frome beyng rule, because she had made an Idole in a groue. And Asa destroyed her Idoll and burnt it by the broke Cedron. But he put not downe the hyllauters. Neuertheles Asas herte was hole with the Lorde all his dayes. And he brought in, that his father had dedicat, and the thinges halowed vnto the house of the Lorde, syluer, gold and Iewelles. And there was warre betweene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel al their dayes.

And Baasa kyng of Israel went vp against Iuda, and buylt Ramah, because he wolde let none of Asas people kynge of Iuda, go in or out. Then Asa toke all the syluer and gold that was left in the treasure of the house of the Lorde, & all the treasure of the kynges house, and deliuered it vnto his seruauntes, & sente them to Benhadab the sonne of Tabiemon the sonne of Hesion kynge of Syria that dwelte at Damasco, sayeng: there is a bonde betweene the and me, as was betweene thy father and myne. Therfore I sende the both golde & syluer for a gyfte, that thou goo and breake the bonde betweene the and Baasa kynge of Israel, that he maye departe frome me. And Benhadab herkened vnto kynge Asa, and sent the capitaines of the hoste which he had against the cyties of Israel, and smote Ahion, Dan, Abelcalled Beth Maacah and all Cenereth with all the lande of Nephthali. And when Baasa herde that, he left buyldyng of Ramah and dwelt in Thersah. Then kynge Asa made proclamation throwoute all Iuda, that none shulde be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah and the tymber wherwith Baasa had buylt, and kyng Asa buylt therwith Gabaah in Ben Iamin and Maspha. The rest of all the actes of Asa, and of all his myght, and of all his procedinges, and the cyties whiche he buylt, are written in the Chronicles of the actes wrote in the dayes of the kynges of Iuda. Neuertheles in his olde age he was diseased in his fete. And Asa layde him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of Dauid his father. And Iosaphat his sonne raygned in his rowme. And Nadab the sonne of Ieroboam began to raygne vpō Israel the seconde yere of Asa kynge of Iuda, and raygned vpō Israel two yere. And he did euyll in the sight of the Lorde, and walked in the waye of his father and in his synne wherwith he made Israel synne. But Baasa the son of Ahiah of the house of Iachar conspired against him, and slew him at Gebethon a cytie of the Philistines, for Nadab and all Israell laye at seage before Gebethon. And it was the thirde yere of Asa kynge of Iuda, when Baasa slew him, and raygned in his stede. And as sone as he was kynge, he slew all the house of Ieroboam and left him naught that brethed, but vtterly destroyed him, agreinge vnto the sayenge of the Lorde which he spake by his seruaunte Ahiah the Silonite, for the synne of Ieroboam wherwith he synned and made Israel synne, and for his angreyng that he angred the Lorde God of Israel. The rest of the dedes of Nadab, and all his procedinges, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And there was warre betweene Asa and Baasa, kynge of Israell, all their dayes.

In the thirde yere of Asa kynge of Iuda, Baasa the sonne of Ahiah began to raygne ouer all Israell in Thersah, and continued .xxiiij. yeere. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, for he walked in the waye of Ieroboam and in his synne, wherwith he made Israel synne.

¶ Iehu prophesieth against Baasa, of whome he is slayne. Elah succedeth Baasa. Zameri killeth his master Elah, and destroyeth the house of Baasa. He reigneth .vii. dayes in Thersah. Zameri burneth himself and his house. Phyled Absi succedeth Zameri, and taketh to wife wycked Iezabel.

CAPL XVI.

Then came the worde of the Lorde to Iehu the sonne of Hanani against Baasa, sayeng: for as moche as I exalted the out of the dust and made the captayne ouer my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the waye of Ieroboam and hast made my people Israel synne, to angreye me with their synne: I wyl make cleane riddance of Baasa and of all his house, and wyll make his house lyke the house of Ieroboam, the sonne of Nabat. * And he that dyeth of Baasa in the cytie, him shall wegges eate: and him that dyeth in the felde, shall the fowles of the ayre eate.

The rest of the dedes of Baasa, and what he dyd, and his warres, are wrytten in the boke of the Histories of the kynges of Israel. And Baasa fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buryed in Thersah. And Elah his sonne raigned in his stede. And by the hande of the prophet Iehu the sonne of Hanani, the worde of the Lorde came against Baasa, & against his house because of all the wyckednesse that he dyd in the the syght of the Loyde, in angeryng hym wᵗ the workes of his handes, ꝑ he shuld be lyke the house of Jeroboam, becaus he had kylled Nabat.

The xxvi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda began Elah the sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israel in Thersah, and conteynued two yere. And his seruaunte Zamri capitayne of halfe his charettes, conspired agaynst him, as he was in Thersah drynckynge of stronge dryncke, in the house of Arsa stewarde of his house in Thersah. And Zamri came and smot hym and kylled hym the .xxvii. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned in his stede. And as sone as he was kynge and sate on his state he slue all the house of Baasa and left not a pysser agaynst the wall.

And therto he slue all his kynne and frendes, and so Zamri destroyed all the house of Baasa, accordynge to the worde of the Loyde wᵗh he spake to Baasa thorow Jehu ꝑphete, for all the synnes of Baasa and synnes of Elah his sonne, wherwith they synned and made Israell synne, to anger the Loyde of Israel wᵗh their vanities. The rest of the actes of Elah and all he dyd, are wᵗten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The .xxvii. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, Zamri raygned .vii. dayes in Thersah, the people beseygynge Gebethon a cytie of the Philistines. And when the people that lay in ꝑ stage herde saye how Zamri had conspired, & how he had slayne the kynge also: then all Israel made Amri the capitayn of the men of warre kynge, that same daye ouer Israel euen in the host. And Amri departed frome Gebethon, & all Israel wᵗh him, and besieged Thersah. And when Zamri sawe that the cytie must nedes be taken, he went into the palace of ꝑ kynges house, & set the kynges house a fyre vpon him selfe, and there dyed, for his synnes wᵗche he synned in doynge wyckednesse in ꝑ syght of the Loyde, and for walkynge in the waye of Jeroboam and in his synnes which he dyd and made Israel synne. The rest of the actes of Zamri and the treason that he wrought, are wᵗten in the boke of Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. Moreouer that same season was Israel dyuyded in twayne, for halfe the people folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineth, to make him kynge, and thother halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preuayled agaynst the that folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineth. And so Thebni dyed and Amri raygned.

The .xxxi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, began Amri to raygne ouer Israel. xii. yere and ruled fyue yere in Thersah. And he boughte the hyll of Samaria of one Semer for two hundred talentes of syluer, and buylt in the hill, & called the name of the cytie whyche he had buylt Samaria, after the name of Semer the Lord of the hill. And this Amri wrought wyckednesse in the eyes of the Loyde worse then all that were before him, and walked in all the wayes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in his synne wherwith he made Israel synne, to anger the Loyde God of Israell wᵗh their vanities. The rest of the actes of Amri which he dyd, and his battels that he foughte, are wᵗten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Amri layde him to rest wᵗh his fathers, and was buryed in Samaria, & Achab his sonne raygned in his stede.

The .xxxviii. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, began Achab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned in Samaria .xxii. yere. And he displeased the Loyde above all ꝑ were before him. For it semed him a lyght thynge to walke in the synne of Jeroboam. But toke Jesabel the doughter of Ethbaal kynge of the Sidonites to wyfe, and went and serued Baal and bowed vnto him. And he erected an aultar to Baal in the house of Baal wᵗh he had made in Samaria. And Achab made a groue, and proceded further in angeryng the Loyde God of Israel, then all the kynges of Israel that were before him.

In his dayes Hiel of Bethel buylt Jericho And it cost him Abiram his eldest sonne when he layde the foundacion, and his youngest sonne when he set vp the gates, agreynge vnto the worde of the Loyde wᵗch he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

¶ Elah is nourished and fedde of Rauens, and after is sent to the woman of Sarephtha whose thinge he restore to lyfe.

CAPI. XVII.

AND Elah the Thesbite wᵗch was of the enhabitaunces of Galaad, saye vnto Achab: As truly as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, before whome I stand, there shalbe neyther dew nor rayne these yeres, saue as I appoint it. And the worde of God came to him, sayenge: get the hence and turne the eastwarde, and hyde thy selfe in the broke Arith, that lyeth before Jordan: drinke of the ryuer, for I haue commaunded the rauens to fede the there. And he went and dyd accordyng vnto the worde of the Loyde: he went & dwelt by the broke Arith that lyeth before Jordan. And the rauens brought him breed and fleshe euery morninge and euery euenynge, and he dranke of the broke. And it chaunced after a whyle, that the broke dryed vp, because there fell no rayne vpon the earthe. Then came the worde of the Loyde vnto him sayenge: arise, and get the to Sarephtha a cytie of Sidon, & dwell there. Beholde I haue commaunded a wyfwe there to susteyne the. And he arose & went to Sarephtha. And when he came to ꝑ gate of the cytie, there was a wyfwe there gatherynge stickes. And he called to her & sayd + fet me I praye the, a lytle water in a dysshe that I maye drinke. And as she went to fetch, he cryed to her and sayde: Bringe me I praye the, a morsell of breed in thyne hande. And she answered: As surely as the Loyde thy God lyueth, I haue no breed, but euen an handful of Meele in a pytcher, and a lytle Oyle in a cruse. And lo, I haue gathered a fewe stickes for to go and bake it for me and my sonne, that we may eate it and then dye. And Elah sayd vnto her to her: feare not, but go and do as thou haste sayde: and make me therof a lytle cake first of all, and bringe it out to me: and afterwarde make for the and thy sonne. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell: the pytcher of Meele shall not be wasted, neyther shall thy oyle cruse be without oyle, tyll the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the earthe. And she went and did as Eliah bad. And she and he and her house dyd eat a good space, & the pytcher of Meele was not wasted, neyther was the oyle cruse without oyle accordyng to the worde of the Lorde whiche he spake thorowe Eliah. And after these thinges, it happened that the son of the wyfe of the house fell sicke. And his sickenesse was so sore, that there was no breth left in him.

Then sayde she vnto Eliah, What haue I to do with the, O thou man of God? art thou come vnto me, that my synne should be thought on, and my sonne slayne? And Eliah sayd vnto her: gyue me thy sonne. And he tooke him out of her lappe and caryed him vp into a lofte where he laye, and layde him vpon his owne bed, and called vnto the Lorde and sayde: O Lorde my God, hast thou bene so cruell vnto
the wyfe we with whome I soiourne, that thou hast slayne her sonne? And he stretched him self vpon the childe thre tymes, and called vnto the Lorde and sayde: O Lorde my God, let the childes soule come into him agayne. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Eliah, and the soule of the childe came into him agayne and he reuyued. And Eliah toke & brought him wyne out of the chambre into the house and deliuered him vnto his mother and sayde:
se, thy sonne lyueth. Then the wyfe sayde to Eliah: Now I know thou art Gods man, & that the worde of the Lorde in thy mouthe, is truthe.

Eliah is sent to Achab. Abdiah hydeth an hundred Prophetes and saueth them. Baal cannot heare although the people crye very loude. Eliah killeth all Baals Prophets: and after obtayneth rayne.

CAPI. XVIII.

And at last the worde of the Lorde came to Eliah the third yere sayeng: go shew thy selfe vnto Achab, that I may send rayne vpon the earthe. And Eliah went to shewe him selfe vnto Achab, for there was a great famyshment in Samaria. Wherfore Achab called Abdiah & gouernour of his house which feared God greatly: in so moche that when Iezabel destroyed the Lordes prophetes he toke an hundred of the Prophetes and hid them, fyfty in one caue, and fyfty in an other and prouyded bred and water for them. And Achab sayde vnto Abdiah: walke thorowe the lande, vnto all fountaynes of water, and vnto all brokes, to se whether any grasse maye be founde, that we maye saue the horses and the mules, that we destroy not & beastes. So they deuyded the land betwene the to walke thorow it. Achab went one waye by him self, and Abdiah went an other by him selfe. And it chaunced as Abdiah went in the waye, that Eliah met him. And Abdiah knewe him, and fell on his face, and sayde: Arte not thou my Lorde Eliah? And he sayde vnto him: I am he. Go and tell Achab that Eliah is here. And the other answered: What haue I synned, that thou wouldest deliuer me into the handes of Achab, to slay me? As surely as the Lorde thy God lyueth, there is no nacion ne kyngdome whether my Lorde hath not sent to seke
the. And when they sayde thou wast not there he toke an othe of the kyngdome and nacyon, because he founde the not. And now thou sa-yest: Go tell thy Lorde, Eliah is here. And as sone as I am gone fro me the, the spirite of the Lorde wyll cary the away whether I shall not knowe: and then when I haue gone and tolde Achab, and he can not fynde the, he shal slay me. And yet I thy seruaunt haue feared the Lorde from my youth. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Iezabel slewe the Prophetes of the Lorde, how I hyd an hundred of the Lordes Prophetes, fyfty in one caue and as many in an other, and prouyded them bred & water? And yet now thou sayest, go shew thy Lorde, that Eliah is here to the intent he myght slay me. Then Eliah sayde: as truely as the Lorde of hostes lyueth, before whome I stande: I will shewe my selfe vnto him this daye. And therupon Abdiah went to Achab and told him. And Achab went against Eliah. And when Achab saw Eliah, he sayde vnto him: Art thou he that troubleth Israel?
And he sayde: It is not I that trouble Israel,
but thou & thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lord and haue folowed Baal. But now sende and gather me all Israel vnto mount Carmell, & the Prophetes of Baal foure hundred & fyfty and the Prophetes of the groues foure hundred, which eat of Iezabels table. And Achab sent for all the children of Israel, and gathered the Prophetes vnto mount Carmel.

And Eliah came vnto all the people & sayde:
Why halt ye betwene two opinions? If the Lorde be very God: folow him: or if Baal be he, then folow him. And the people answered him not one worde. Then sayde Eliah vnto the people: I only remayne of the Lordes prophetes, and Baals Prophetes are foure hundred and fyfty. Let two oxen be gyuen vs, and let them chose the one, and cut him in pe-ces and laye him on wood, and put no fyre vnder. And I will dresse the other and put him on wood, and will put no fyre vnder. And cal ye on the name of your God, and I will call on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that answereth by fyre, he is the very God.
And all the people sayde: It is well spoken. Then sayd Eliah vnto the Prophetes of Baal, chose you an ox and dresse him first (for ye are many) and call on the name of your God, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke the ox that was gyuen them and dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning to none, sayenge: O Baal heare vs. But there was no voyce nor answere. And they lept about the aultare that they had made. And at none Eliah mocked them & sayde: Cal lowde (for he is a God: but he is talkynge or pur-

AND Achab tolde Jezabell all that Eliah had done, and all togyther, howe he had slayne the Prophetes with the swerde. Then Jezabell sente a messenger vnto Eliah, sayinge: ✱ so wo God to me, and so ✱ xxi. Reg. xx.

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Juniper tree: beholde there came an aungell and touched hym, and sayde vnto him: aryse and eate. And he loked about hym: and loo there was an Imbercake, and a cruse of water at his heed. And he ate and dranke, and layde him downe agayne to slepe. And the aungell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayde: aryse and eate, for thou haste a longe iourneye to goo. And he arose and dyd eate and drynche, and wente in the strengthe of that meate fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes vnto Horeb the mounte of God, and entred there in to a caue, and lodged there all nyght.

And then the worde of the Lorde came to him and sayde: what doest thou heare Eliah? And he answered: I haue ben thorow angrye for the Lord God of hostes sake. For ✱ children ✱ Rom. xi.

And after the wynde, came an erthquake / but the Lord was not in the erthquake. And after the erthquake came fyre / but the Lorde was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a small styll voyce. And when Eliah herde it, he couered his face with his mantell / and wente oute and stode in the mouthe of the caue. And loo, there came a voyce vnto him, and sayde: what doest thou here Eliah? And he answered: I haue ben exceadyng angry for the Lord God of hostes sake: because the children of Israell haue forsaken thyne appoyntment and haue cast downe thyne aulters, and slayne thy Prophetes with the swerde / and I onely am left, and they seke my soule to haue it. But when mydday was passed, and they had ydle played the Prophetes tyll it was tyme to offre / and yet was neither voyce, ne answere, ne anye that regarded them. Eliah sayd to all the folke / come to me. And all the people came to him. And he mended the aulter of the Lorde that was broken, ✱ and toke xii. stones, accordyng to the nombre of the twelue tybes of the sonnes of Jacob, vnto whom the worde of the Lorde came, sayeng: Israel shal be thy name. And with the stones he made an aulter in the name of the Lorde. And he made a gutter rounde about the aulter, able to receyue two pecks of corne / and he put the wod in order, and hewed the ox in peces, and put him on the wodde, and sayde / fyll foure pytchers with water, and poure it on the sacrifice and on the wodde. And he sayd / do so agayne. And they dyd so agayne. Then he sayd: do it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd so the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne rounde about the aulter, and the gutter was full of water also. ☞ So when offeryng tyme was come, Eliah the Prophete went to and sayd: Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel / let it be knowen this daye, that thou arte the God of Israell, and that I am thy seruaunte / and that I do all these thynges at thy commaundement. Heare me, O Lorde, heare me / that this people maye knowe that thou arte the God / and that thou hast tourned their hertes backwarde. And there fell fyre from the Lorde and consumed the sacrifice, and the wodde, and the stones, and the dust / and lycked vp the water that was in the gutter. Which when all the people sawe, they fell on their faces and sayd, the Lorde he is God, the Lorde he is God. Then sayde Eliah vnto them, laye handes on the Prophetes of Baal, lett not one of them escape. And when they had taken them Eliah brought them downe vnto the brooke Kison, and slue them there.

Then Eliah sayde vnto Achab, get the vp and eate and drynche, for there is a sounde of moche rayne. And whe Achab went vp to eate and to drynche / Eliah went vnto the toppe of mount Carmel, ✱ and bowed him selfe to the earthe, and put his face betwene his knees / and sayd to his seruaunt: go vp and loke towarde the see. And he went vp and loked, and sayd: there is nothynge. And he sayd go agayn seuen tymes. And the fourneth tyme he sayde: beholde, there ariseth a lytle cloude out of the see, lyke the paume of a mannes hand. Then he sayde: goo and saye to Achab, putte the hosses in the charett, and get the downe / the rayne stoppe the not. And within a lytle whyle heuen was blacke with cloudes and wynde, and there was a greate rayne. And Achab rode and went to Jezrahel. And the hand of the Lorde was on Eliah, and he gyrded vp his loynes and ranne before Achab, tyll they came to Jezrahel.

And he departed thence and founde Eliseus the sonne of Saphat plowynge with twelue yoke of oxen before him, & he with the twelfe. And Elias went to him and cast his mantell vpon him. And he left the oxen and ran after Elias and sayde: let me I praye the, kysse my father and mother, and then I will folowe the. And he sayde to him: go backe agayn, for what haue I wrought to the? ¶ The fyrste and seconde tyme that Samaria was besieged of Benhadad kynge of Syria.

CAPI. XX.

ANd Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all his hoste together, and. xxxij. kynges with him, with horse and charet: and went vp and besieged Samaria and warred against it. And he sent messengers to Achab kynge of Israel vnto the cytie, and sayde vnto him: thus saith Benhadad, Thy syluer & thy golde is myne, and the best of thy wyues, and the best of thy children be myne. And the king of Israel answered and sayde: my Lorde king according vnto thy sayeng, I am thyne with al I haue.

And the messengers came agayne to Achab and sayde: thus sayth Benhadad. I haue ther fore sent vnto the sayeng: Ye shuet me them thy syluer and thy golde, and thy wyues, and thy children. Or els I will sende my seruauntes vnto the by to morow this tyme: & they shal serche thyne house, and the houses of thy seruauntes, which shal take all that is glorious in thyne eyes, and bringe it awaye with them. Then the kynge of Israell sent for the elders of the lande and sayde: take hede I praye you, & se how this felowe goeth about mischefe. For he sente vnto me, for my wyues and my children, and my syluer and my golde: and I denyed him nothinge of it. And all the elders of Israel and all the people sayde: hearken not to him nor consent. Wherupon he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lorde the kynge, all that he sent for the first tyme, I will do: but this request I maye not do. And the messengers departed & brought him worde. Then Benhadad sent vnto him and sayde thus: the godes do to me and so therto, yf the dust of Samaria be ynoughe for all the people that folowe me, that euery man may haue an handful. And the kynge of Israell answered and sayde: Tell him, let not him that putteth on his harnesse boste him selfe, as he that putteth it of. And when Benhadad herde that answere as he and the kynges were drynkinge in the pauylions, he sayde vnto his seruauntes: put youre selues in aray. And they put them selues in aray against the cytie. And beholde there came a Prophete vnto Achab kynge of Israel and sayde to him: Thus sayth the Lorde, Seest thou al this great multitude? Beholde, I will deliuer them into thyne hande this daye, that thou mayst knowe that I am the Lorde. And Achab sayde, by whome? And he sayde, thus sayth the Lorde: euen by the gouernours ouer of the shires. And Achab sayde: who shal stert sayne batayle? And he sayde, thou. Then he nombred the men of the gouernours of the shires: and they were two hundred. xxxij. And after them he nombred all the people, and all the children of Israel were seuen thousande. And they marched forwarde at none when Benhadad was a dronkynge stronge drinke in the pauylyons with the. xxxij. kynges that holp him. And the men of the rulers of the shires went out first. And Benhadad sent forthe, & they shewed him sayenge: There come men from Samaria. And he sayde: yf they come to make a peace, take them a lyue. And also yf they come for warre, take them yet a lyue. And when those men of the shyres of the shires were come out of the cytie and the hoste after them, they slewe euery one of them his enemye that stode in his waye. And the Syrians fled, and Israel folowed after them. And Benhadad the kynge of Syria escaped on a horse with his horsemen. And the kynge of Israell went out and smote horse and charet, & slewe a great slaughter of the Syrians.

Then there come a Prophete to the kynge of Israell, and sayde to him: Go forthe and playe the man, be wyse and take hede what thou wilt: for when the yere is gone about, the kynge of Syria will come against the agayn. Then sayde the seruauntes of the kynges of Syria to him / The godes of the hylles are their godes, and therfore they had the better of vs. But let vs fight with them in the playne and vndoubtedly we shall haue the better of them. And this do / take the kynges away euery man out of his place, & put Dukes in their rowmes. And furnysh the a newe hoste, lyke the hoste that thou hast lost, and horse for horse, & charet for charet, and let vs fight with them in the playne, and for a wager, we get the better of the. And the kynge herkened vnto their counsell and dyd euen so.

And as sone as the yere was gone aboute, Benhadad nombred the Syrians and went vp to Aphek to warre with Israel. And the children of Israel were nombred and prouyded of vytayle, and went against them, and pytched before them lyke two lytle flockes of kydes but the Syrians fylled the countreye. Then there came a man of God and sayde vnto the kynge of Israell, thus sayth the Lorde. Because the Syrians saye, that the Lorde is but a God of the hilles, & not God of the valeys to, therfore will I deliuer all this great multitude vnto thyne hande & ye may knowe that I am the Lorde. And they pytched one ouer against the other. vii. dayes, and the seuenth day they ioyned battayle. And the children of Israel slue of the Syrians an hundred thousande fote men in one daye. And the rest fled to Aphek into the cytie. And there fell a wall vpon. xxvii. thousande of them that were left. And Benhadad fled and went into the cytie, from chambre to chambre.

Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: Beholde, we haue herde saye, that the kynges of the house of Israel are mercyfull kynges. Let vs put sacke cloth about our loynes, and ropes about our heades, and go out to the kyng of Israel: happely he will saue thy lyfe. So they girded sacke cloth about their loynes, & put ropes about their heades, and went out to the kynge of Israel and sayde: thy seruaunt Benhadad sayth, I pray the let me liue. And he sayde: Is he yet a liue? what he is my brother. And they toke that wordē for good lucke and hastely caught it out of his mouth & sayd Yea thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayd: go and bringe him. And Benhadad came out to him, and the other toke him vp into the charet. And Benhadad sayd: the cyties which my father toke fro me thy father, I will restore agayn. And thou shalt make streates for the in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I will make a league with the & send the awaye. And so made a league with him and sent him awaye.

Then a certeyn man of the children of the prophetes sayd vnto his fellow with the worde of the Lorde, smyte me I praye the. And the man wolde not smyte him. And he sayde, because thou hast not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: beholde, as sone as thou arte departed from me a Lyon shall slay the. And as sone as he was departed from him, a Lyon founde him & slew him. Then he founde an other man and sayd to him: smyte me I praye the. And the man gaue him a good stroke and wounded him. And the Prophete went forth and wayted for the kynge by the waye and tyed a kercheif ouer his eyes, and put him selfe oute of knowledge. And when the kynge came by, he cryed vnto him and sayde: thy seruaunt went out in the myddes of the battel. And lo, there was one began to flee. And there came a man to me and sayde: kepe thou this man. And yf he be myssed, thy lyfe shall goo for his, or els thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as thy seruaunt had bene a there to & there to, he was gone. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto him: euen so shal thy iudgement be as thou hast vttered it thy selfe.

And he hasted and vnfolded the kercheif awaye from his eyes: and the kynge of Israel knewe him, that he was of the Prophetes. And he sayd vnto the kyng, thus sayth the Lorde because thou hast let go a mā out of thy hande ought to haue dyed. thy lyfe shal go for his lyfe, & thy people for his. And the kynge of Israel went to his house al sad & hevy, & came into Samaria ¶ Iezabel ye wife of Achab procureth to kyll Naboth, for the vyneyard that he refused to sell Achab. Helias reproueth Achab, and he repenteth.

CAPI. XXI

A Fter these thinges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the Iezrahelite had a vyneyarde in Iezrahel hard by the palace of Achab kynge of Samaria. And Achab spake vnto Naboth sayenge: let me haue thy vyneyarde, to make me a garden of herbes therof, because it lyeth so nyghe my house: & I will geue the a better vyneyarde for it: or yf it plaise the I will geue the the worthe of it in syluer. But Naboth sayde to Achab: the Lorde forbyd that I shoulde geue the enheritaunce of my fathers vnto the. Then went Achab vnto his house exceadynge angrye and euyll apayde, because of the wordes which Naboth the Iezrahelite had spoken to him sayenge: I will not geue to the the enheritaunce of my fathers. And he layde him downe vpō his bed, and turned away his face and wolde eate no meat.

Then Iezabel his wyfe came to him, and sayde vnto him: Why art thou so frowarde, that thou eatest no meat? And he sayde vnto her, I spake vnto Naboth the Iezrahelyte, & sayde vnto him: Geue me thy vyneyarde for syluer, or els yf thou wilt, I will geue the an other vyneyarde for it. And he sayde: I will not geue the my vyneyarde.

Then sayde Iezabell his wyfe vnto him: What a goodly kyngdome were thou able to make in Israel? vp and eat meat, and let thyne hert be merye, for I will geue the the vyneyard of Naboth the Iezrahelite. Thē she wrote a letter in Achabs name & sealed it with his seale, and sent it vnto the elders and chefe men of his cytie that dwelt where Naboth dwelt. And she wrote in the letter sayeng: proclayme fastinge and set Naboth on hyghe among the people, and set two naughty felowes before him, and let them testify against him sayenge: thou hast blasphemed both God & the king And vpon that cary him out and stone him to death.

And the elders and nobles of his cytie, whiche dwelt in his cytie, dyd as Iezabel had sent vnto them, and as it was written in the letter which she had sent vnto them. They proclaymed fasting, and set Naboth an hyghe amonge the people. and there came in two vnthrifty persons and sate before him. And the two vnthrifty persons witnessed against Naboth before the people sayenge. Naboth dyd curse God and the kynge. And vpon that they caryed him out of the cytie and stoned him with stones to deth. And then they sent to Iezabel sayenge: Naboth is stoned to deth. And when Iezabel herde that Naboth was stoned to death: she sayde to Achab: aryse and take possession of the vyneyarde of Naboth the Iezrahelite, which he denyed to geue the for syluer, for Naboth is not a liue, but deed. And when Achab herde that Naboth was deed. he arose to go downe to the vyneyarde of Naboth the Iezrahelite, to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Elias the Thesbite sayeng: aryse and go downe to mete Achab kyng of Israel which is in Samaria maria. Beholde, he is in the vyneyarde of Naboth: for he is gone downe thyther, to take possession of it. And say vnto him: thus saith the Lorde, thou hast kylled & moreouer gotten possession. And saye after that vnto him, thus sayth the Lorde: in the place where dogges lapped the bloude of Naboth, shall dogges lappe euen thy bloude also. And Achab sayde to Elias: hast thou found me thyne enemy at any tyme? And he sayde yee, because thou art vtterly appointed to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lord. Behold, I will bringe euyll vpon the, and will make cleane ryddaunce of thyne posse, and will destroy of Achab all that pisseth against the wall, and euen the inclose and furthest in Israel: & wyl make thyne house, lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahiah, because thou hast prouoked me to angre, & made Israel synne.

And also against Jezabel came the worde of the Lorde, sayenge: dogges shall eat Jezabel vnder the walles of Jezrahel. And he þ dyeth of Achab in the towne, him shall dogges eate: and he that dyeth in the fielde, him shall the foules of the ayre eate. For there was none at all lyke Achab, that was so vtterly appointed to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lord, and that because Jezabel his wyfe pricked him forwarde. And therfore he dyd exceadynge abhominably, in folowinge Ydoles, in all thinges lyke as dyd the Amorites whiche the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel.

When Achab herde those wordes, + he rent his clothes and put sackecloth about his flesh and fasted, and lay in sacke and went comfortlesse. And þ worde of the Lord came to Elias the Thesbite sayenge: seyst thou how Achab humbleth him selfe before me? because he so humbleth him selfe before me, I will not bring the euyll in his dayes: but in his sonnes dayes I will bringe euyll vpon his house.

¶ Foure hundred false Prophetes do counsell Achab and Josaphat to warre agaynst Ramoth: only Michaeh prophesyeth the truth, for whiche he is smytten and put in prysen.

CAP. XXII

AND they continued thre yere without warre betwene Syria and Israel. + And the third yere Josaphat kynge of Juda came to the kynge of Israell. Then sayde the kynge of Israel vnto his seruantes, knowe ye not that Ramoth in Galaad is ours, and we lie still and take it not out of the handes of þ kynge of Syria? And he sayd vnto Josaphat: wilt thou go with me to batayle, to Ramoth in Galaad? And Josaphat sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: + I will be as thou art, & my people shalbe as thyne, and my horses as thyne.

And Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: aske counsell I praye the of the Lord to daye. And then the kynge of Israel gathered of the Prophetes together, vpon a foure hundred men, and sayde vnto them: shall I go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, or be still? And they sayde, go / for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And Josaphat sayde: is there not one Prophet of the Lordes here more, that we might enquire of him? And the kynge of Israel sayde to Josaphat: there is yet one, by whom we may aske counsel of the Lorde, one Michaeh the sonne of Jemlah But I hate him: for he neuer prophesyeth good vnto me, but euyll. And Josaphat sayd: let not the kynge say so. Then the kynge of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlayns and sayd: fet Michaeh the sonne of Jemlah hyther anones. And the kynge of Israel and Josaphat the kynge of Juda sat eyther in his seat and their apparell on them, in a voyde place beside the entrynge of the gate of Samaria, and all the Prophetes prophesyenge before them. And Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of yron and sayd, thus sayth the Lord: with these hornes thou shalt wynowe the Syrians vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. And all the Prophetes prophesyed euen so, sayenge: goo to Ramoth in Galaad and prosper, for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And the messenger that was gone to call Michaeh, sayde vnto him / se, the wordes of the Prophetes speake good vnto the kynge with one mouth / let thy wordes I pray the, be lyke the wordes of one of them, and speake that is good. And Michaeh sayde / as surely as the Lorde lyueth, what the Lorde putteth in my mouth, that will I speake. And whe he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayde to him / Michaeh shall we go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, or shall we be still? And he sayde vnto him, + go and prosper, the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And the kynge sayd vnto him, howe often shall I adiure the, that thou tell me nothinge but truthe, in the name of the Lord? Then he sayd I saw all Israel scattered vpon the hylles, as sheepe that haue no shepherdes. And the Lord sayde / these haue no master, let them returne euery man to his house in peace. Then sayd þ kynge of Israel to Josaphat / dyd I not tell the, that he wolde Prophesye no good vnto me, but euyll? And Michaeh sayd, Heare then therfore the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sit on his seate, and all the company of heauen standinge about him, on his ryghthad and on his left. And the Lorde sayd: + Who shal deceyue Achab that he may go & be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad? and one sayd on this maner & an other on that. Then came forthe a spyrite & stode before the Lorde & sayd, I will deceyue him. And the Lorde sayd, wherin? And he sayde / I will goo oute and be a false spyrite in the mouthes of all his Prophetes. And the Lorde sayd, Thou shalt deceyue him and also preuayle, go forth & do euen so. Now therfore beholde, the Lorde hath put a lying spyrite in the mouthe of all these thy Prophetes / when in very dede the Lorde hath spoke euyll towarde the.

Then Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah went to and smote Michaeh on the cheke, and sayde / Howe is the spyrite of the Lorde gone fromme me, to speake in the? And Michaeh sayde: Beholde, thou shalte se in that daye, when thou shalt go fro̅me chambre to chambre to hyde the. And the kynge of Israel sayde Take Michead and cary him backe agayn vnto Amon the gouerner of the cytie, and vnto Joas the kynges sonne, and saye: thus sayth the kynge. Put ye this felowe in prison and fede him with bred and water straytly, tyll I returne in peas. Then Michead sayde, yf thou come safe agayne, the Lorde hath not spoken in me. And he sayde, herken ye people euery one of you.

And so the kynge of Israel and Josaphat the kynge of Juda went vp to Ramoth in Galaad. And the kynge of Israel sayd to Josaphat I will chaunge myne apparell and get me to warre: but put thou on thyne owne apparel. And the kynge of Israel chaunged his raymet and went to battel also. But the kyng of Syria had commanded the Capitaynes of his chariottes of which he had. xxxij. sayenge: fyghte neyther with small nor greate, saue with the kynge of Israel only. And when the capitaynes of the chariottes sawe Josaphat, they thought he had bene the kynge of Israel, and therfore turned to him to fyght. But Josaphat cryed out. And when the capitaynes of the chariottes sawe he was not the kynge of Israell, they turned backe fro̅me him. And a certayne man drewe a bowe vnwares, and smote the kyng of Israel betwene the ribbes of his habergelle. Wherfore the kynge sayde vnto the byar of his charet, turne thy hande and cary me forth of the host, for I am hurt. And the fight encreased that daye, and the kynge continued in his charet before the Syrians, and dyed about nyght. And the bloude ranne oute of the wounde into the bottome of the charet. And there went a Proclamation thorowe out the host after the sonne was wone, sayenge: let euery man repaire to his cytie and to his own countreye. And when the kyng of Israel was ded, they came to Samaria and buryed hym there. And whyle they washed the charet in the pole of Samaria, the doggs lycked vp his bloude, and harlottes washed him accordinge vnto the worde of the Lorde whych he spake. The rest of the dedes of Achab, and all Josaphat the sonne of Asa began to raygne vpon Juda, the fourth yere of Achab kynge of Israell, and was. xxxv. yere olde when he began to raygne and raygned. xxv. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Azubah the doughter of Salahi. And he walked in all the wayes of Asa his father and bowed not therfro̅me, but dyd that was right in the eyes of the Lorde. Onely he dyd not put the hyaultres out of the waye: for the people offered & burnt their sacrifices yet, in the hyaultres. And he had peas with the kynge of Israel. 4. Paral.

The rest of the dedes of Josaphat, and the mygbt that he vsed, and how he warred, are written in the boke of Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And also the remnaut of the buggery boyes, which remayned in the dayes of his father, he put cleane oute of the lande. 3. Reg.

There was then no kynge in Edom, the kyng was but a deputie. And Josaphat made shyppes in the se, to go to Ophir for gold, but they went not: for the shyppes brake at Asion Gaber. Then sayde Ohozias the sonne of Achab vnto Josaphat: Let my seruaunts go with thyne in the shyppes. But Josaphat wolde not, and Josaphat layde him to slepe with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of David his father: & Jehozam his sonne raygned in his rowme.

¶ Ohoziah is hurt, and asketh counsell of Beelzebub howe he may come by health. The capitaynes ouer fyfty with theyr soudiars are burnt, by the prayer of Eliah. Ohoziah is reproued of Eliah, and dieth and Iehoram his brother succeedeth hym.

CAPI. I.

Hoziah the sonne of Achab began to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria, the.xvij. yere of Iosaphat kynge of Iuda, and was kynge ouer Israel twoo yeres, and dyd euyll in the sight of ỹ Lorde and walked in the waye of his father and in the waye of his mother, and in the waye of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel to synne. And he serued Baal and bowed him selfe to him, and angred the Lorde God of Israel, in all thinge, as dyd his father.

And the Moabites rebelled against Israel after the death of Achab.

And Ohoziah fell thorow a latteise wyndow out of an vpper chamber that he had in Samaria, and fell sicke. The he sent messengers, sayenge vnto them: Go and enquire of Beelzebub the God of Akaron, whether I shal recouer of this disease, or no. But the angell of the Lorde spake to Eliah the Thesbite, arise and go against the messengers of the kynge of Samaria, and saye vnto theym: Is there no God in Israel, that ye go to aske of Beelzebub the God of Akaron. Therfore thus saith the Lorde: Thou shalt not come vpwarde frome the bed wherein thou lyest, but shalt dye. And Eliah departed.

And the messengers turned backe againe vnto Ohoziah. And he sayde vnto them: why are ye thus come againe? And they sayd vnto him, there came a man against vs and sayd vnto vs: go and returne vnto the kynge that sent you, and shewe him. Thus sayeth ỹ Lord. Is there no God in Israel, that thou sendest to enquire of Beelzebub the God of Akaron? Therfore thou shalte not come vpwarde frome the bed wherein thou arte gone vp, but shalt surely dye. And he sayde to them: What maner man was that whiche met you and told you these wordes? And they sayde vnto him: it was an heary man and gyrde with a gyrdle of a chyrme aboute his loynes. And he sayde vnto them: it is Eliah the Thesbite.

Then the kynge sent vnto him a capitayne ouer fyfty with his fyfty that were vnder him. And when the capitayne was come to him, behold: he sat on the toppe of an hyll. And ỹ capitayne sayde vnto him: Man of God, the kynge byddeth the come downe. And Eliah answered and sayde to the capitayne ouer the fyfty. If I be a man of God, fyre come downe frome heauen and consume the and thy fifty. And there came fyre downe frome heauen & deuoured him and his fyftye. And the kynge wente agayne and sent to him an other capitayne ouer fyfty with his fifty men with him which answered and sayde vnto him, O man of God, thus sayth the kynge make hast and come downe. And Eliah answered and sayde vnto them, If I be a man of God, then let fyre come downe from heauen and consume ỹ and thy fyfty. And there came fyre downe from heauen and consumed him and his fyftye.

And the kynge sent agayne the thirde capitayne ouer fyftye. And when the third capitayne ouer fyfty was come vp to him, he fell on his knees before Eliah and besought hym and sayd vnto him / Oh man of God, let my lyfe and the lyfe of these fyfty thy seruantes be precious in thy sight. Behold, there came fyre downe frome heauen and burnt vp ỹ two fore capitaynes ouer fyfty with their fyftes. But let my lyfe now be precious in thy sight Then sayde the angell of the Lorde vnto Eliah / Go downe with him, and be not afrayd of him. And he arose & went with him vnto ỹ kynge.

And he sayde vnto the kynge, thus sayeth ỹ Lorde / for as moche as thou sentest messengers to aske thereof Beelzebub the God of Akaron, as thoughe there had bene no God in Israel to aske thereof his worde, therfore thou shalt not come of the bed on which thou art mounted, but shalte surely dye. And so he dyed accordinge to the worde of the Lorde which Eliah spake / and Iehoram was made kynge in his stede, the seconde yere of Iehoram sonne of Iosaphat kynge of Iuda, because he had no sonne. The rest of the dedes of Ohoziah which he dyd, are written in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

¶ Eliah diuideth the waters with his mantel. He is taken vp in to heuen. The dyuers and deuerse waters are healed by the salt that Eliseus put into them. The chyldren that mocke Eliseus are rent in peces.

CAP. II.

And it chaunced when the Lorde wold take vp Eliah to heauen in a whirlewynde, that Eliah and Eliseus were goynge frome Galgal. And Eliah sayde to Eliseus, tary here, for the Lord hath sent me to Bethel. But Eliseus sayd / as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I will not leaue the. And when they came to Bethel, the children of the Prophetes that were at Bethel, came forthe to Eliseus, and sayde to him: knowest thou not that ỹ Lorde will take awaye thy master that he be no lenger thy head this daye? And he sayd I know it to, holde your peace.

Then sayde Eliah to Eliseus / tary here I praye the, for the Lorde hathe sent me to Iericho. And he sayde / as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as surely as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not leaue the, and so they went to Jericho. And the children of the Prophetes that were at Jericho came to Eliseus and sayde vnto hym: wote thou not ware that the Lorde wil take awaye thy master frome the this day? And he answered: I know it also, holde your peace. And Eliah sayde to hym: tarye I pray the here, for the Lorde hathe sent me to Jordan. But he sayde: as surelye as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not leaue the. And so they went both of them together. And fyftye men of the sonnes of the Prophetes went and stode in sight a farre of, as they two stode by Jordan.

And then Eliah toke his mantel & wrapt it together, and smote the water, and it diuided it selfe / parte one waye, and parte an other: and they two went ouer on the dry land. And as soone as they were ouer, Eliah sayde to Eliseus: aske what I shall do for the, er I be taken awaye from the. And Eliseus sayde: let me haue thy spirite double in me. And he sayde: thou hast asked an harde thynge. Neuertheles if thou se me when I am taken away frome the, thou shalte haue it so: yf thou do not, it shall not be. And as they went walkynge and talkynge: beholde there came a charet of fire, and horses of fire, & put them a sonder. And Eliah went vp in the whirlwynde to heauen. And Eliseus sawe and cryed: O my father, O my father, the charet of Israel, and his charet man, but he sawe hym no more. And therfore toke his owne clothes, and rent them in two peaces.

And then he toke vp the mantell of Eliah that fel from him, and went backe agayn and stode by Jordans syde, and with the mantell of Eliah & fell from him, he smote the water, and sayd: where is the Lorde God of Eliah, where is he? And when he had smytten & water, it diuided parte this waye and parte that way, and Eliseus went ouer. And the children of the Prophetes of Jericho whiche sawe hym a farre, sayd: the spirite of Eliah, doth rest on Eliseus, and went agaynst him, and bowed to the erth vnto him. And they sayd vnto him: se, there be amonge thy seruauntes fyftye lusty men: let them go and seke thy master, happly the spirite of the Lorde hath taken him vp & cast him vpon some mountayne, or in some valey. And he sayd: sende not. Neuertheles yet they laye vpon him, tyll he was ashamed, and sayd: sende, and they sent fyftye men whiche sought him, three dayes and three nyghtes / but found him not. And they came agayn to him, for he tarryed at Jericho. And he sayd to them / ord I not saye vnto you that ye shold not go? Then the men of Jericho sayde to Eliseus: beholde, the citye standeth pleasantly, as my Lorde seeth / but the water is naughte, and the grounde bareyn. And he sayde: bringe me a newe cruse, and put salte therin. And they brought it to him. And he went vnto the springe of the water, and cast the salte in thether / and sayd, thus sayth the Lorde: I heale this water, there shal not come henceforth eyther death, or bareynnesse. And the water was healthsome euer after, according to the sayinge of Eliseus whiche he spake.

And he went frome thence vp to Bethell. And as he was goynge in the waye / there came lytle laddes out of the cytye, and mocked him, and sayd to him: goo vp thou balde head / goo vp thou balde head. And he tourned backe, and loked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lorde. And there came two beares out of the wodde, and tare xlij. of the boyes. And he went frome thence to mounte Carmel, and frome thence went agayne to Samaria.

¶ The kynges of Israel Juda and Edom lacke water, when they shulde fyghte agaynste Moab: wherfore they obtayne through the prayer of Eliseus. The kynge of Moab leseth the feide and after sacrifyseth his sonne.

CAPI. III.

Ichoram the sonne of Achab began to reigne vpon Israel in Samaria the eyghteene yere of Josaphat kynge of Juda, and continued twelue yere. And he wroughte euyll in the syghte of the Lorde / but not lyke his father & his mother / for he put awaye the ymage of Baal that his father had made. Neuertheles he continued in the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel synne, and departed not therfrom. And Mesa king of Moab, whiche was ryche of shepe / and was wont to render vnto the kynges of Israell an hundred thousand lambes, and as many rammes with ℔ wolle / rebelled agaynst the kyng of Israel after the death of Achab. And kyng Ichoram went out of Samaria the same tyme, and nombred all Israel. And then went and sente to Josaphat kyng of Juda, sayinge: the kyng of Moab hath rebelled agaynst me / wylt thou go with me agaynst the Moabites to battell? And he sayd I wyll go, and wyll be as thou, my people shal be as thyne, and my horses as thyne. And he sayde what waye shall we go? And the other answered: the waye thorowe the wyldernesse of Edom.

And the kynge of Israel toke his iourney with the kynge of Juda and the kynge of Edom. And when they had compassed the waye seuen dayes, there was no water for the hoste nor for the cattell that they had with them. Then sayde the kynge of Israell: Alas, the Lorde hathe called together these three kynges, to deliuer them in to handes of the Moabites. But Josaphat sayde: Is there heare no Prophete of the Lordes, that we maye enquyre of the Lorde by hym? And one of the kynge of Israels seruauntes answered and sayde: here is Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, whiche poured water on the handes of Eliah. And Josaphat sayde: the worde of the Lorde is with him. And so the kynge of Israell and Josaphat, and the kyng of Edom went vnto him.

And Eliseus sayde to the kynge of Israell: what what haue I to do with the? Get the to the Prophetes of thy father and of thy mother. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto him: Oh naye, but hathe the Lorde called these three kynges to deliuer them in to the handes of the Moabites? And Eliseus sayd: as truly as the Lorde of hoostes liueth (in whose syghte I stande) and it were not that I regarded the presence of Iosaphat the kynge of Iuda, I wolde not loke towarde the, nor yet se the. But nowe, bringe me a mynstrell. And as the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lord was vpon hym. And he sayde: thus sayeth the Lorde: make at this brokes brede, ditches and ditches agayne. For thus sayeth the Lorde: ye shall se neyther wynde nor rayne, and yet this broke shall be fylled with water that ye may drynke, and your beestes and your cattell also. And this is yet but a small thyng in the sight of the Lorde. But he will gyue the Moabites in to your handes also. And ye shall destroye all stronge townes, and all goodly cytes, and shall fell all pleasaunt trees, & stop all the welles of water, and marre all good plottes of grounde with stones. And in the morninge about offeryng tyme, there came sweete water the waye from Edom, that the countrey was fylled with water.

When all the Moabites herde the kynges were come to fyght a gaynst them, they assembled from the yongest that was able to put on harnesse, and so vpwarde, and wayted in the borders. And they beinge vp earlye in the mornyng, the sonne arose and shone vpon the water. And when the Moabites sawe the water a farre of as red as bloude, they sayde: it is bloude, the kynges haue foughte together, & one slayne an other. Now therefore ye Moabites, get you to the spoyle. And when they came to the host of Israel, the Israelites stode vp and layde on the Moabites, that they fled before them. And so they entred the lande and destroyed the Moabites. And they ouerthrew the cityes, and on euery good parcell of lande caste euerye man his stone and ouercouered it, and stopte all the welles of water, and felde all the good trees. And as longe as the stones thereof dyd remayne in the walles of bryche, the slyngers wente vpon it and bette it.

And when the kynge of Moab sawe that the battayle was to stronge for hym, he toke with him seuen hundred men that drewe the sword to haue broken vp vnto the kyng of Edom, but they could not. And then he toke his eldest sonne that sholde haue reigned in his stede, and offered him for a burnt offering vpon the walles. And there came so greate wrathe vpon Israell, that they departed from him, & returned to theyr owne lande.

¶ God graunteth a certayne poore woman oyle, and saued by Eliseus. Eliseus obtayneth of God a childe for her beestelle: which dieth and is after raysed to life through him. He maketh sweete the potage and multyplyeth the loues.

CAPI. IIII.

AND there cryed a certeyn woman of the wyues of the children of the prophetes vnto Eliseus, saying: thy seruaunt my husbande is dead, and thou knowest that thy seruaunt dyd feare the Lorde.

And the man that lende vs money is come to fet my two sonnes, to be his bondmen. And Eliseus sayd to her: What shall I do for thee? Tell me, what hast thou in thyne house? And she sayde, thyne handmayde hath nothynge at all in her house, saue a pytcher with oyle. And he sayde: Goo and borowe the in other places of all thy neyghbours, empyre vesselles and that not a fewe, and then goo and shutte the wore to the, and to thy sonnes, and poure out in to all those vessellles, and put the full alway aside. So she went from him, and shut the wore to her, and to her sonnes. And they brought to her, and she poured oute. And whe the vessellles were full, she sayde to her sonne: bringe yet a vessell. And he sayde: there is no moe. And then the oyle ceased. Then she came and tolde the man of God. And he sayd: goo and sell the oyle, and pay thy detters. And lyue thou and thy children of the rest. And it befell on a daye, that Eliseus came to Sunam where was a ryche woman that toke him in for to eate breed. And as ofte as he came that waye, he tourned in thyther to eate breed. And she sayde vnto her husbande: se, I perceyue that this is an holye man of God, and commeth oftentymes by vs, let vs make him a chambre with a lytle walle, and let vs set him there a bed, a table, a stole, & a candlestycke, that he maye tourne in thyther when he commeth to vs.

And it fortuned on a time that he came thyther, and tourned in to the chamber, and laye there. Then he sayde to Giezi his seruaunte: call this Sunamite. And he called her, and she came before him. And Eliseus sayde to hym, saye to her I praye the: se, thou hast made all this prouysion for vs, what shall we do for the? wolde st thou be spoken for to the kynge, or to the capitayne of the hoste? And she sayd, I dwell amonge myne owne people. Then he sayd: what is to be done for her? And Giezi sayd: Verily she hath no chylde, and her husbande is olde. And he sayde: call her. And he called her. And she came and stode at the doore. Then he sayde: by suche a tyme, and in suche an houre, yf thou lyuest, thou shalt embrace a sonne. And she sayd: Oh naye my Lorde, thou man of God, do not lye vnto thyne handmayde. And the wyfe conceyued and bare a sonne that same season and houre that Eliseus had sayde vnto her.

And when the chylde was well waxen, it fell on a daye, that he went forth to his father to the haruestmen. And there he complayned to his father, my head my head. And his father sayde to a seruaunte, carye him to his mother, & he tooke him and brought him to his mother. And he sat on her knees tyll noone, and then dyed. And she caryed him vp and layde him on the bed of the man of God, and shut the wore to him, and went out, and came to her husband, and sayde: sende me one of the yonge men and an

an asse, that I may runne to the man of God. And he sayd: wherfore wylte thou go to him to daye, whyle it is neither newe mone, nor Sabboth day? And she sayd: be content. Then she sadled an asse, and sayde to her seruaunte: lede aware, and make me not crafe ryding tyll I byd the. So she wente and came to the man of God to mount Carmel. And whe the man of God sawe her a farre, he sayde to Giezi his seruaunt: se where our seruaunt Sunamith. Nowe go and mete her, & aske her whether it be all well with her, and with her husbande, and with the chylde. And she sayd: all is well. Then she went to the man of God vp to the hyll, and caught him by the feete. And Giezi wente to her to thrust her awaye. But the man of God sayde: let her alone, for her soule is verey, and the Lorde hath hyd it from me, and hathe not tolde it me. Then she sayde: hyd I desyre a sonne of my Lorde? hyd I not saye, that thou shoulds not mocke me. Then he sayd to Giezi: gyrde vp thy loynes, and take my staffe in thyne hande, & get the hence. If any man mete the, salute him not. And if any salute the, answere him not. And put my staffe vpon the boyes. Then ye mother of the chylde sayde: as surely as the Lord liueth, and as thy soule liueth, I will not leaue the. And then he arose and followed her. Giezi went before them, and put the staffe vpon the face. But there was neither voyce nor hearynge. And then he went agayne agaynste his master and tolde him, sayinge: It hath not awaked the chylde.

When Eliseus was come to the house: behelde the boye was dede, and layde vpon his bed. And he went in and shut the doore to the chylde and him, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And he went vp, and laye vpon the lad, and put his mouthe on his mouthe, and his eyes on his eyes, & the palme of his handes on the palme of his handes, and spred him self vpon the lade, that the flesshe of the chylde waxed warme. And wente agayne and walked ones vp and downe in the house, and then went vp and spred him self vpon him, and then the lad neesed seuen tymes, and opened his eyes. And he called Giezi and sayde. Call for this Sunamite. And he called her. And when she was come to him, he sayd: take thy sonne. Then she wente and fell at his feete, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and toke vp her sonne, and went forthe. When Eliseus was come to Galgal agayn, there was a derth in the land, and the children of the Prophetes dwelt with him. Then he sayde to his seruaunt: put on a great pot, and make pottage for the chyldren of the Prophetes. And one went out in to the felde to gather herbes, and founde as it were a wylde vyne, and gathered therof Coloquintides his lappe full, and came and shred them in to the potte of potage, and wyste not what it was. And they powred oute for the men to eate. And when they had eaten of the pottage they cryed oute and sayde: there is death in the potte, thou man of God, and coulde not eate therof. Then he sayde: bringe meale. And he caste it in to the potte and sayde: fyll for the people, that they maye eate, and there was no harme in the pot.

There came a man fro me Baalsalisa and broughte the man of God breed of fyrste frutes, euen twentye loues of barleye, and newe corne in a clothe he hadde. And Elisaus hadde put it before the people, that they myght eate. Then his minister sayde: what shall I sette this before an hundred men? And he sayde: set it before the people, and lette them eate. For thus sayethe the Lorde: They shall eate and leaue. And he set it before them, and they ate and lefte, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

¶ Naaman the Syrien is healed of his leprye. Giezi is stryken with a leprye for because he toke money and rayment of Naaman.

CAPI. V.

NAaman capitayne of the hynges hoste of Syria was greate with his master, and well taken: for therowe him the Lorde saued Syria. And he was an actyue man & riche, but yet a leper. And there was a companye of souldyours gone out of Syria a roupnge, and had brought of the countreye of Israel a litle mayde, which was with Naamans wyfe. And the damoysell sayde vnto her ladye: I wolde my master were with a Prophete that is in Samaria, he wolde delyuer him of his leprye. And she went and tolde her husbande, sayinge: thus and thus sayethe the mayde of the lande of Israel. And the kynge of Syria sayde: goo thy waye, and I will sende a letter vnto the kynge of Israel. And he wente and toke with him ten talentes of syluer, and sixe thousande peces of gold, and ten chaunge of rayments. And he brought the letter to the kyng of Israel, conteynynge in effecte these wordes. When this letter is come vnto the: Beholde, I haue sent Naaman my seruaunt to the, that thou shuldest ryddе hym of his leprye. And when the kynge of Israel had read the letter, he rente his clothes and sayde: am I God, to slee and to make aliue, that he shulde sende to me, to delyuer a man from his leprye. But consyder I praye you and se, howe he pyketh quarelles with me. And when Elisaus the man of God, had herde how the kynge of Israel had rente his clothes, he sent to the kyng, sayinge: Wherfore hast thou rente thy clothes? let him come to me, that he maye knowe there is a Prophete in Israel.

And Naaman came with his horses and his charette, and stode at the doore of Elisaus. Then Elisaus sent a messenger, sayinge: goo and washe the in Jordan seuen tymes, and thy flesshe shall be hole, and thou shalte be clene. And Naaman was wrothe and went awaye, and sayde: Beholde, I thought in my selfe, he wolde haue come out, and stande and call on the name of the Lorde his God, and put his hande on the place of the leprye, and so take away the leprye. Are not Abanah and Pharphar ryuers of Damasco, better then all the waters of Israell? Myght I not rather washe washe in them and be clene? And so he turned and departed in anger. Then came his seruaun-D tes, and talked with him and sayd. Father, yf the prophete had byd the doone some greate thing oughtest thou not to haue wrought it? How-mocche rather then sholdest thou do it, whyle he sayth to the onely, washe and be clene? ✠

Then he went downe & washed seuen tymes in Jordan, as the man of God bad, & his flesh chaunged, lyke vnto the flesshe of a lytle boye, and he was clene.

Then he turned agayne to the man of God and all his company with him / and came and stode before him and sayd. Beholde, I knowe there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. And now I praye the take a rewarde of thy E seruaunt. But he sayd ✠ as surely as the Lord lyueth, before whome I stande, I wyll receyue none. And the other wolde haue constrayned him to receyue / but he wolde not. And Naaman sayd: yf thou wylte not, yet I praye the maye there not be gyuen to thy seruaunte the burthen of two mules of earthe. For thy seruaunt wyll henceforth offer neyther burnt sacrifyce nor offrynge vnto anye other God, then to the Lord. But herin the Lord be mercyfull to thy seruaunte / for when my master goeth in to the house of Remon to worshyp there, he leaneth on myne hande / and I made worshyp in the house of Remon, let the Lorde I praye the be mercyfull vnto thy seruaunte in this case. And he sayde to him: goo in peace.
And when he was departed from him a fue-
F longe of grounde, Giezi the seruaunt of Eliseus the man of God, sayd: se, my master is so pytyful to this Syrien Naaman, that he wold not receyue of his hande that he offered. As surely as the Lorde lyueth, I wyll runne after him & take somwhat. And so Giezi wente after Naaman. And when Naaman sawe him come runnynge after him, he came downe of the charet agaynst him, and sayd: is all well?
And he sayd yea. But my master hath sent me, sayinge: lo, there be two yonge men come to me out of Ephraim of the chyldren of the Prophetes: gyue them I praye the, one talent of syluer, and a couple of good garmentes. And
G Naaman sayd: aduenture and take two talentes of syluer / and he constrayned him & bound two talentes of syluer in two bagges, with two goodly garmentes, and deliuered them vnto two of his seruauntes to beare it before him. So when he came to the toure, he toke it of their handes, and bestowed it in the house, and let the men go, and they departed.

Then he wente and stode before his master. And Eliseus sayde to him: whence commeth Giezi? And he sayde: thy seruaunt wente no whither. And he sayd: went not myne herte with the, when the man turned and came of his charet agaynste the? Did not I knowe the tyme when thou went to receyue syluer, and to receyue garmentes, olyue trees, vynyardes, sheep, oxen, wepe, men seruauntes, and mayde seruauntes? The leprye therfore of Naaman cleaue vnto the, and vnto thy seede for euer.
Prouerb ✠ And he went out from him a leper as whyte as snowe.

¶ Eliseus maketh yron to swymme about the water. The Syrians besege Israel, so that two women agree together to eate their owne children.

CAPI. VI.

THen sayd the children of the Prophetes vnto Eliseus: se, the place where we A dwell with the, is to litle for vs. Let vs therfore take euery man a pece of tymber, and buylde vs a place there to dwell in. And he sayd: go ye. And one sayd: begyn I praye the, and go with thy seruauntes. And he sayd: I wyll, and so went with them.

And when they came to Jordan, they cut downe wodde. And as one was hewynge of a tree, the axe heed fell in to the water. And he
B cryed out and sayde: Alasse master, for it was lente me. And the man of God sayde: Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he
C cut an helue and caste it in thyther, and made the axe heed swymme. And he sayde: take it vp to the. And the other stretched to hande and caught it.

And the kynge of Syria fought agaynst Israell, and toke counsell with his seruauntes, sayinge: In suche a place and in suche, wyll I pytche. And the man of God sente vnto the kynge of Israel, sayinge: Beware thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Syrians gone downe. And the kynge of Israell sente to the place which the man of God tolde him & warned him of, and saued him till there more then ones or twyse. And the herte of the kynge of Syria was troubled therwith, that he sente for his seruauntes, and sayde to them: ✠ wyll ✠ Hey, wil ye not shewe me, who betrayeth me to the kynge of Israell? And one of his seruauntes sayde: naye my lorde kynge: Eliseus the Prophete that is in Israel, he telleth the kynge of Israell, the wordes that thou speakest in thy D priuye chamber. Then he sayde: goo and espye where he is, that I maye sende and fet hym. And one tolde the kynge, sayinge: se, he is in Dothan. And he sente thyther hosse and charettes, and a greate hoste. And they came thyther by nighte, and enuyronned the towne aboute.

And when the seruaunt of the man of God rose vp earlye and was gone oute. Beholde, there was an hoste rounde aboute the towne with hosses and charettes. Then sayd his ser-
E uauntes to him. Alas master, what shall we do? And he sayd: feare not, there are mo with vs then with them. And Eliseus prayed and F sayde. Lorde open the eyen of the yonge man / and he sawe. And beholde, the mountayne was full of horses and charettes of fyre rounde aboute Eliseus. And when the souldiours came downe to him, Eliseus prayed vnto the Lorde and sayd. Smyte this people with blyndnesse. And he smote them with blyndnesse, according to the desyre of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sayde vnto them / this is not the waye, nor this is not the towne. But folowe me and I wyll
G bringe ye to the man ye seke. And he led them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, Eliseus

seus sayd: Lorde open their eyes, and let them se, and the Lorde opened their eyes that they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And then sayd the kynge of Israel vnto Eliseus when he sawe them: ✻ shall 4 Regū viii.a I smyte them shall I smyte them father? And he sayd smyte them not. But smyte those whom thou takest with thyne owne swerde, and with thyne owne bowe, but set bread and water before them, and let them eate and drynke and goo to their master. And he made greate ordinaunce before them. And when they hadde eaten and dronke, sente them awaye, and they wente to their master. And so the sendioures of Syria came no more in to the lande of Israel.

After this, Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all the hoste, and wente and besieged Samaria. And there arose greate hearthe in Samaria. For they hadde besieged it, tyll an asses heed was worthe foure score syluer pieces of siluer, and the fourthe parte of a Cab of doues donge worthe fyue pieces. And as the kynge of Israel walked vpon the walles, there cryed a woman to him, sayinge: helpe my lorde kynge. And he sayde: Saye, the Lorde helpe the. But wherwith wolde I helpe the, with corne or wyne? Then sayde the kynge to her, what ayleth the? And she answered, this woman here sayde to me, bringe thy sonne, and let vs eate him to daye, and we wyll eate myne to morow. ✻ And so we dressed my sonne and dyd Deut. 28. Iere. 19. Ezech. 5. eate hym, And I sayde to her an other daye, bringe thy sonne, that we maye eate hym.
6 But she hath hyd her sonne. When the kynge herde the wordes of the woman, he rente his clothes euen as he was walkyng on the walles. And when the people loked vpon him, lo, he was clothed in sacke vnder. Then he sayde God do so and so to me, yf the heed of Eliseus the sonne of Saphat tarye on hym this daye. And as Eliseus sat in his house and the elders with him, the kyng sente one for hym. But er the messenger came at him, he sayde to the elders: Se you not howe the sonne of this murtherer hathe sente to take of myne heed? Be circumspecte therfore when the messenger commeth, and shut the doore, and thrust him backe therwith, for the sounde of his masters fete foloweth him. And whyle he yet talked with them, Beholde, the messenger was come vnto him. And he sayd, beholde, this euyll is of the Lorde, what more shall we loke for of the Lorde?

¶ Eliseus prophesyeth plentyousnesse of vitayles and other thynges to Samaria. The Syrians fleinge awaye no man folowynge them. The Lorde that wolde not beleue the worde of Eliseus is troden to death.

CAP. VII.

THen Eliseus sayde: heare the worde of the Lorde, for thus sayeth the Lorde, to morowe this tyme a bushell of fyne floure shall be sold for a sicle, and two bushels of barleye for an other in the gates of Samaria. Then a Duke, on whose hande the kynge leaned, answered the man of God and sayde, though the Lorde wolde make wyndowes in heuen, yet wolde not this be. And he sayde agayne: Beholde, thou shalte se it with thyne eyes, and shalt not taste therof.

And there were foure lepers set without the gate of Samaria. And they sayde eche to his companyon, what, sye we here vntyll we dye? thoughe we thoughte that we myghte come in to the citye, yet is the dearth so greate in the citye, that we shall there dye. And yf we tarye here, we are but dead also. Nowe therfore come and lette vs fle to the hoste of the Syrians: yf they saue oure lyues, we shall lyue: And yf they kyll vs, then are we dead. And so they arose in the dayspryng to go to the hoste of the Syrians. And when they were come to the fyne of the hoste of Syria, lo there was no man there. For the Lorde hadde made the hoste of the Syrians heare a noyse of charettes, and a noyse of horses, and the noyse of a greate hoste. In so moche that they sayde one to an other: lo, the kynge of Israel hath hyred against vs the kynges of the Hethites, and the kynges of Egypte to come vpon vs. Wherupon they arose and fledde in the darke, and lefte their tentes, their horses, their asses, and the felde they hadde pitched, euen as it was, and fled for their lyues. And when these lepers came to the edge of the hoste, they went in to a tente and dyd eate and drynke, and taryed thence syluer, golde, and raymente, & went and hyd it, and came agayne, and entred in to an other, and caryed thence also, and wente and hyd it. Then they sayd one to an other, it is not well that we do, for this daye hathe broughte good tydynges with it. And yf we holde our peace, and tarye tyll it be daye lyght, we shall fynde a myschefe. Nowe therfore come, lette vs goo and tell the kynges household. And so they wente and called to the porter of the citye, and tolde them, sayinge: we came to the pauylyons of the Syrians, and lo, there was no man there, neyther voyce of man, but horses and asses tyed, and the tentes euē as they were. Then the porters called and tolde the kynges house within. And the kynge arose in the nyghte, and sayde to his seruauntes, I wyll shewe you howe the Syrians haue serued vs. They know we are oppressed with hungre, and therfore are gone oute of their pauylyons to hyde themselues in the felde, sayinge: They wyll come out of the citye, and then we shall catche them alyue, and gette in to the citye. And one of his seruauntes answered and sayde: Let men take fyue of the horses that remayne and are lefte in the city. Beholde, they are as good as all the multytude that are lefte in the citye, and as good as all the multitude of the citye that are consumed, and let vs sende and se. And they toke two charettes of horses, and the kynge sente after the hoste of the Syrians, sayinge: Goo and se. And they followed after them, euen vn to Iordan: and lo, all the waye was full of clothes and vessell which the Syrians had cast from them for haste.

Then

Then the messengers returned and told the kynge and the people illued oute, and robbed the tentes of the Sirians. And so a bushell of floure was solde for a sycle, and two bushelles of barleye for a sycle, accordynge to the Lordes worde. And the kynge sette the Duke on whose hande he leaned, to kepe the gate. And the people trode him in the gate, that he dyed, according to the saying of the Gods man, whiche he sayde when the kynge came downe to him. And it came to passe accordynge to the worde of the man of God spoken to the kyng sayinge: two bushelles of barleye for a sycle, and a bushell of barleye for an other, shall be to morow this tyme in the gates of Samaria. Wherunto the Duke answered the man of God, and sayd: though the Lorde made windowes in heuen, yet wolde this not be. And the other said/ beholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, and shalt not eate therof. And so it chaunced/ for the people trode him vnder fete in the gate, that he dyed.

¶ Eliseus Prophecyeth vnto the Sunamite the birth of seuen yere. After the death of Benhadad raygneth Hazael in Syria. Iehoram the sonne of Iosaphat raygneth in Juda. Edom falleth frome Juda. Ohosiah succedeth Iehoram.

CAPI. VIII.

Then spake Eliseus vnto the woman whose sonne he had restored to life, sayinge/ aryse and go bothe thou and thyne house, and sojourne where thou thynkest beste/ for the Lorde wyll call a derthe/ whiche shall come on the landes seuen yere. And the woman arose and dyd after the sayinge of the Gods man/ and wente bothe she and her housholde and sojourned in the lande of the Philistines seuen yere. And at the seuen yeres ende, when the woman was come agayne out of the lande of the Philistines, she wente oute to speake to the kynge for her house and for her lande. And the kynge was talkynge with Giezi the seruaunt of the man of God, sayinge: tell me I praye the, all the greate dedes whiche Eliseus dyd. And it chaunsed as he was tellynge the kynge howe he restored a dead bodye to lyfe agayne, came the woman whose sonne he restored, and cryed to the kynge for her house and lande. Then sayde Giezi: My lorde kyng, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whiche Eliseus broughte to lyfe agayne. And the kynge asked the woman, and she tolde him. And so the kynge sente with her one of his chamberlaynes, sayinge/ restore all that pertaineth to her, with all the frutes of the lande, sithens the daye she lefte the lande, vnto this tyme.

After this Eliseus wente to Damasco, and Benhadad the kynge of Syria fell sycke. And one tolde the kynge, saying: The man of God is come hyther. Then sayde the kynge to Hazael: take a present with the, and go agaynst the man of God, and aske the Lorde by him whether I shall recouer of this my disease or no. And Hazael went to mete him, and toke presentes with him, euen of all the good thinges of Damasco, as moche as fourtye camels coulde beare, and came and presented him selfe before him and sayde/ thy sonne Benhadad kynge of Syria hathe sent me to the, saying/ shall I recouer of this my disease? Eliseus said to him: goo and saye to him/ thou shalte recouer/ howbeit the Lorde hath shewed me that he shall surely dye. And the man of God stode styll by him, and was taken with a sore malady, in so moche that he chaunged countenance and wepte. And Hazael said/ why wepeth my lorde? And he answered/ for I knowe what thou shalte do vnto the children of Israell/ their stronge cityes thou shalte set on fyre, and their younge men thou shalte slee with the swerde, and shalte dashe oute the braynes of their suckynge children/ and all to teare their women with childe. And Hazael sayde/ what is thy seruaunt, whiche am but a dogge, that I shulde do this great thynge? And Eliseus sayde/ for the Lorde hath shewed me, that thou shalte be kynge of Syria. And so he departed frome Eliseus, and came to his master, whiche sayd vnto him. What sayd Eliseus to the? And he sayde/ he tolde me that thou shuldest recouer. And on the morowe he toke a coughter clothe, and dypte in the water, & spred it on his face, and he dyed, and Hazael raygned in his stede.

The fyfte yere of Iehoram sonne of Achab kynge of Israel (Iosaphat yet kynge of Juda) Iehoram sonne of Iosaphat, kynge of Juda, began to raygne/ thirtye and two yere olde was he when he began to raygne, and he raygned eyght yere in Jerusalem. And he walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, as did the house of Achab/ for the doughter of Achab was his wyfe/ and he dyd that displeased the Lorde. Neuertheles the Lorde wolde not destroye Juda, because of David his seruaunte, as he promised him to geue him a light in his children alwaye. Iehoram. Iehoram by Ioram.

And in his dayes, Edom fell awaye from vnder the hande of Juda, and made them a kynge of their owne. And Iehoram wente to Sira, and all his charettes with him. And he rose by nyght, and slayde on the Edomites, whiche compassed him in/ and the capitaynes of his charet and the people fledde in to their tentes. And so the Edomites stycke awaye hytherto vnder the hande of Juda vnto this day. And then Lobnah stycke awaye to, euen that same tyme. Edom. K

The reste of the dedes of Iehoram, and all he dyd, are written in the cronycles of kynges of Juda. And Iehoram rested with his fathers and was buryed with his fathers in the cyte of David. And Ohosiah his sonne raygned in his stede. The twelfte yere of Iehoram sonne of Achab, kynge of Israel, dyd Ohosiah the sonne of Iehoram kynge of Juda begyn to raygne. Two and twentye yere olde was Ohosiah when he began to raygne, and raygned one yere in Jerusalem, his mothers name was Athalia doughter of Amri kynge of Israell. And he walked in the waye of the house of Achab/ for he was a sonne in lawe to Baal onely. And they went in to offre sacrifice and burntofferinges. But Jehu appoynted him foure score men without, and sayde: Yf anye of the men whiche I shall bringe into youre handes escape/ he that letteth him goo shall dye for him.

And as soone as he had made an ende of offeringe of burnt sacrifyce, he sayde to them of the garde, and to the capitaynes: goo in and slee them, lette none come oute. And they smote him with the edge of the swerde. And the garde and the capitaynes caste them oute, and went in to the cite of the house of Baal, and fette oute the ymage oute of the house of Baal, and burnt it. And they brake the ymage of Baal, and brake the house of Baal/ and made a Jakes of it euer after. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Jsrael. But from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Jsrael synne with the golden calues in Bethel and Dan, Jehu departed not. Then the Lorde sayde to Jehu/ bycause thou hast busyly wrought that pleaseth me/ and hast done to the house of Achab all that was in myne herte: Therfore shall * thy children in the fourthe generation, sytte on the seate of Jsrael. But Jehu toyned not to walke in the lawe of the Lorde God of Jsrael with all his herte/ for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam, whiche made Jsrael synne. In those dayes the Lorde began to cutte Jsrael shorte/ for Hazael slewe them in all the coostes of Jsrael, from Jordan Eastwarde: euen all the land of Galaad/ the Gadites, the Rubenites, and the Manassites/ from Aroer vpon the ryuer of Arnon, with Galaad and Basan. The reste of the actes of Jehu, and all he dyd, & all his power, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Jsrael. And when Jehu was layde to reste with his fathers/ they buryed him in Samaria/ and Joachaz his sonne raygned in his stede. * Deu. xxviii.

Athalia putteth to wth all the kynges sonnes, except Joas the sonne of Ochosiah: whyche is hydden and after her deth is made kynge.

CAPI. XI.

AND Athalia the mother of Ochosiah/ when she saw that her sonne was dede she aroste and slewe all the kynges bloude. But Josaba the doughter of kynge Jehoram, and sister of Ochosiah, toke Joas the sonne of Ochosiah, and stale him from amonge the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and his nource with hym oute of the nourserye, and hyd him from Athalia that he was not slayne. And he was with her, hyd in the house of the Lorde sire yeres. And Athalia dyd raigne ouer the lande.

In the seuenth yere Josaba sent and fet the capitaines & souldiours, & toke them vnto him in to the house of the Lorde/ and made a leage with them, and toke an othe of them in the house of the Lorde/ and shewed them the kinges sonne/ and commaunded them, saying: this is the thynge that ye must do: one third part of you shall come on the Sabboth daye, and kepe the watche of the kynges house: And an other thyrde parte shall be at the gate Sur/ & an other thyrde parte shall be at the gate behynde the garde chamber/ and so shall ye kepe the watche of the house of Wesa/ and two portions of you/ that is, all that goo out on the Sabboth day, shal kepe the watche of ℔ house of the Lorde about the kynge/ and shall compasse the kynge round about, euery man w his weapon in his hande. And who so euer commeth within the ranges, shall dye for it. And se ye be with the kyng as he goeth out and in.

The capitaynes did al thynges as Josaba ℔ preest commaunded, and toke euery man his men/ that is, them ℔ came in the Sabboth daye w them that went out the Sabboth daye, and wente to Josaba the Preest. And the Preest gaue to the capitaynes the speares and shyldes that were kynge Dauids, and had ben layed in the temple. And the garde stode euery man with his weapon in his hande rounde about the kyng, from the right corner of the temple to the left a long by the aulter and the temple. And he brought out the kinges sonne, and put the crowne vpon him and deliuered hym the wytnesse, and made him kyng, and anointed him and they clapt their handes and sayd: God saue the kynge.

When Athalia herde the noyse of the concourse of the people, she came to the people in to the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kynge stande by a piller (as the maner was) and the synGers and the trompetters by the kynge/ and all the people of the lande reioysyng, and the blowyng of the trompetters, she rent her clothes and cryed, treason treason. Then Josaba the Preest commaunded the capitaynes that had the rule of the hoste, and sayde to them: bere her oute without the ranges, and yf anye folowe her, lette him dye with the swerde: for the preest sayd, she maye not be slayne in the house of the Lorde. And they layde handes on her, and she went the waye that the horses of the kynges went out, and was slayne there.

And Josaba made a bond both betwene the Lorde and the kyng, and betwene the people & the Lord, that they shold be ℔ Lordes people/ and also betwene the kyng & the people. Then all the people of the land went in to the house of Baal, and destroyed his aulters, and brake wynne his ymages lustely, and slewe Mathan the preest of Baal before the aulter. And ℔ preest set watchemen in the house of the Lorde, and toke ℔ rulers ouer hundredes, & the capitains and the garde, and all the people of the lande. And they brought the kynge from the house of the Lord, and went the way of the gate of the garde vnto the kynges house. And he sat hym downe vnder the clothe of estate. And all the people of the Lorde reioysed/ and the cite was in quiet. So they slewe Athalia with ℔ swerde in the kynges house.

Ioas

¶ Ioas maketh prouision for the repayrynge of the temple. He is kylled by two of his seruaunters, and Amazias raigneth in his stede.

CAPI. XII.

IOas was seuen yeres olde when he was made kynge. And he began to raygne the seuenth yere of Iehu, and raygned fourtye yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Zebia Berlabe. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, as longe as Iozada the Priestis enformed him. But he toke not away the hyll aultres: for the people slewe, and offred hyll in the hyll aultres.

And Ioas sayd to the priestes: al the syluer that is gyuen to the vse of the temple, and broughte to the house of the Lorde by straungers, whether that it be the money that euery man is set at: or the money that any mans hert gyueth him to brynge in to the house of the Lorde: let the priestes take it to them, euery man in his course, and let them repaire the broken places of the temple, in all places where ought is founde brayen.

Neuertheles the priestes had not repayred vnto the thre and twentye yere of Ioas, the kynges dearest in the temple. Then kynge Ioas called for Iozada the priest, and for the other priestes, and sayd to them: why repayre ye not the broken places of the temple? Now therfore se ye receiue no more money accordyng to your order, but deliuer it to repayre the temple withall. And the priestes consented to receyue no more money of the people: But that it might go to the repayrynge of the temple.

Then Iozada the priest toke a cofer, and bored an hole in the lyd of it, and put it beside the aulter on the ryght syde as one cometh to the house of the Lorde. And in to that dyd the priestes that kepte the wayes, put all the money that was broughte to the Lordes house. And when they sawe there was more money in the cofer: the kynges scrybe and the hye priest came and sealed vp the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde, after they had colde it.

And they gaue the money by sommes in to the handes of the masters of the workes, that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde: and they broughte it out to the carpenters & buylders that wrought vpon the house of the Lord, and to masons and hewers of stone, to bye tymbre and stone, to repayre the brayes in the house of the Lorde: and all that neded reparacyons in the house: howbeit there was not made in the house of the Lorde bookes of syluer, knyues, basens, trompettes, or any other instrumentes of gold or syluer, of that money that was broughte for the house of the Lorde. For they gaue that to the workemen, to repayre therwith the house of the Lorde. Moreouer they reckened not with the men, in to whose handes they deliuered the money to be bestowed on workemen: But they dyd it euen of fidelitie. Nowbeit trespas money and synne money might not be broughte in to the house of the Lorde, for it was the priestes.

Then came Hazael kynge of Syria, and foughte agaynste Geth, and toke it, and appointed him selfe to go vp to Ierusalem. But Ioas kynge of Iuda toke all the dedicat thynges, that Iosaphat, Iehoram, and Ochozias his progenitours kynges of Iuda had dedicate, & that he him selfe had dedicated, and all the golde that coulde be founde in the treasure of the Lordes house, and of the kinges house, and sent it to Hazael kynge of Syria, and so he departed from Ierusalem.

The residue of the actes of Ioas and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Iuda. But his owne seruaunters arose and wrought treason, and slewe Ioas in the house Mello, in the waye downe to Sela. For Iozachar the sonne of Semaath and Iozabad the sonne of Somer his seruaunters, smote him & he dyed. And they buryed him with his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And Amazias his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Ioachas the sonne of Iehu is deliuered in to the handes of the Syrians, and dyeth. Ioas his sonne raygneth in his stede. Chelcus dyed.

CAPI. XIII.

IN the thre and twentye yere of Ioas sonne of Ochozias kynge of Iuda, Ioachas the sonne of Iehu was made kynge ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued seuentene yeres & he wrought wyckednesse in the eye of the Lorde: for he followed the synne of Ieroboam the son of Nabat, which made Israel to synne, and departed not from the same. Wherfore the Lord was angrye with Israel, and deliuered them in to the handes of Hazael kynge of Syria, and in to the handes of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all theyr dayes. A Ioachas

But Ioachas besought the Lorde, and the Lord herde him. For he had sene the affliction of Israel, how the kynge of Syria oppressed them. And therfore the Lorde gaue vnto Israel a sauyour, and they were deliuered from the handes of the Syrians. And the children of Israell dwelt in theyr tentes as before tyme. Neuertheles they departed not from the synne of the house of Ieroboam, who made Israel to synne, but walked therin. And there remayned a superstitious wod also in Samaria stil. But there were left of the people to Ioachas, but fyftye horsemen and ten charettes, and ten thousand fotemen. For the kynge of Syria had destroyed them, and made them like thresshed chaff. The rest of the actes of Ioachas, and all he did, and his power, are wrytte in the Chronicles of kynges of Israell. And Ioachas rested with his fathers, and they buryed him in Samaria: and Ioas his sonne raygned in his stede. Ioas.

In the. xxxvij. yere of Ioas kynge of Iuda, began Ioas the sonne of Ioachas to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, and contynued sixteene yeres: and dyd naughtily in the syghte of the Lorde, and departed in nothyng from the synnes of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat that made Israell synne: but walked therin. C

And when Joas was layde to reste with his fathers, Jeroboam sate vpon his state / and Joas was buryed in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel.

Eliseus dyeth.

When Eliseus was fallen sycke of the sycknesse wherof he dyed / Joas kynge of Israell came to hym and wepte to hym and sayd, O father father, chariot of Israell, and conductour of the same. Eliseus sayde vnto him / bynge bowe and arowes. And he broughte to him bowe and arowes. And he sayde to the kynge of Israell: Put thyne hande vpon the bowe. And when he hadde put his hande vpon the bowe, Eliseus put his handes vpon the kynges handes. Then he sayd: open a wyndowe Eastwarde: and he opened. And Eliseus sayde: shote / and he shotte. And he sayde: the arowe of helpe of the Lorde, and the arowe of helpe agaynste the Syrians / for thou shalte beate the Syrians in Aphek, tyll thou haue consumed them.

Then he sayde: take arowes / and he toke. Then he sayde to the kynge of Israell: smyte the grounde: and he smote thryse, and ceased. And the man of God was angery with hym, and sayde: Thou woldest haue smytten fyue or sixe tymes, & then thou haddest smytten the Syrians tyll thou haddest consumed them; where nowe thou shalte beate them but thryse.

When Eliseus was dede and buryed / an armye of the Moabytes came in to the land, the yere folowynge. And it chaunced as they were buryinge a man, they espyed the soudiours, and therfore cast the dede corpe in to the sepulchre of Eliseus. And as soone as it touched the bones of Eliseus, he reuyued & stode vp on his fete.

Eccles. 48. b

And Hazael oppressed Israel all the dayes of Joachas. But the Lorde hadde mercye on them, and tourned to them bycause of his promyse made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob / and wolde not destroye them, neyther caste them frome him as yet. And when Hazaell kyng of Syria was dede, Benhadad his sonne raygned in his stede. And then Joas the sonne of Joachas went agayne, and toke out of the hand of Benhadad sonne of Hazael, the cities whiche he had taken fro the handes of Joachas his father by law of armes. And thryse dyd Joas beate him and broughte the cities of Israel agayne.

¶ Amasias kyng of Juda putteth to death the murtherers of his father: and ouercometh Edom. Joas kyng of Israel taketh Amasias, Jhon dieth, and Jeroboam succedeth: after him raygneth Zacharias. Amasias is killed, and Azarias raygneth in his stede.

The seconde yere of Joas sonne of Joachas kyng of Israell, raygned Amasias sonne of Joas, kynge of Juda / he was fyue and twentye yeres olde when he began / and raygned nyne and twentye yeres in Jerusalem. Neyther toke they away the hyll aulters / for the people slewe and offered styll in hyll aulters. And as soone as the kyngdome was stablished in his hande / he slewe his seruauntes that killed the kynge his father. his seruaunt, and gaue him tribute. And the

kynge of Assyria founde treason in Hosea, because he had sent messyngers to Sua kynge of Egypte, and sent no tributes vnto the kynge of Assyria, as he was yerely wont to do. Therfore the kynge of Assyria besieged him & bound him and put him in prison. ✝ And then the kynge of Assyria came throwe out all the lad and came to Samaria & besieged it thre yere. And in the nynthe yere of Hosea, the kyng of Assyria toke Samaria & caryed Israel awaye vnto Assyria and put them in Hala, in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of the Medes. For the children of Israel had synned against the Lorde their God whiche hadde brought them out of the lande of Egypt, fro the hande of Pharao kynge of Egypte, and worshipped other goddes. And they walked in the ordinaunce of the heythen whiche the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel, & in the thinges whiche the kynges of Israell had made. And the children of Israel wrapte them selues in thinges that were not wel towarde the Lorde their God. And they buylt them hylaultres in all their cyties, bothe in the towres where they kept watche and also in the stronge townes. And they made theym Images and superstitious woodes on euery hyghe hyll and vnder euery grene tree. And there they sacrificed in the hylaultres, as dyd the heythen, which the Lorde caryed away at their comminge, and wrought wycked dedes to angre the Lorde with. And they serued Ymages, concerninge which thing the Lord had sayde to the: ye shall not do so. And the Lord testifyed to Israel and to Juda, by all the prophetes and by all the Sears, sayenge: Turne from your wycked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and myne ordinaunces, accordinge to all the lawes which I commaunded your fathers, and as I sent to you by my seruauntes the prophetes. But they wolde not heare, but hardened their neckes, lyke to the neckes of their fathers that dyd not beleue in Lorde their God. And they refused his ordinaunces and his couenaunt that he had made with their fathers, and the wytnesse whiche he had wytnessed to them, and folowed vanite and became vayne, lyke to the heythen, that were roundeabout them, of which the Lorde had charged theym, that they shoulde not do lyke them. But they left the commaundementes of the Lorde their God, and made them Images of metall, that is to saye two calues and made groues and bowed them selues vn to all the host of heauen, and serued Baal. And they sacrificed their sonnes & their doughters in fyre, and vsed witchecraft and enchauntementes, and had euen appointed them selues to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, for to angre him.

Wherefore the Lorde was exceadinge wroth with Israell and put them out of his sight, that there was left but the tribe of Juda only, yea and neyther Juda kept the commaundmentes of the Lorde their God, but walked in the ordinaunces of Israel whiche they had made. Therfore the Lorde caste vp all the seed of Israel and vexed them and betobe them in to the handes of spoylers, vntyll he had caste them out of his sight. And Israel diuided the selues frome the house of Dauid, and made Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat kynge. Which Jeroboam thrust Israel away from the Lorde and made them synne a great synne. And so the children of Israel walked in all the synne of Jeroboam which he had set vp, and departed not frome the same, tyll the Lorde hadde put Israel awaye out of his sight, as he sayde by all his seruauntes the prophetes. And so he translated Israel out of their lande to Assyria, euen vnto this daye. Jerem.xxv.d

And the kynge of Assyria brought people frome Babylon and frome Cutha, and frome Aua, and frome Hemath, and from Sepharuaim, and put them in the cyties of Samaria in stede of the children of Israel. And they possessed Samaria and dwelt in the cyties therof. But at the begynninge of their dwelling, they feared not the Lorde. Wherefore the Lord sent Lyons vpon them whiche slewe theym. Then men tolde the kynge of Assyria, sayenge: The nations which thou hast brought & put in the cyties of Samaria, know not the maner of the God of the lande, and therfore he hath sent Lyons vpon them, which slay them because they know not the maner of the God of the lande.

Then the kyng of Assyria commaunded sayenge: cary thyther one of the preestes whiche ye brought thence, and let him go and dwell there, and teache theym the lawe howe to serue the God of the countreye. And then one of the preestes which they had caryed thence, went and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they shulde feare the Lorde. Howbeit euery nacion made their owne Goddes & put them in the houses of the hilaultares whiche the Samaritans had made, euerye nacion in their cyties where they dwelt. The men of Babilon made Socoth Benoth. The men of Cuth made Nergel. They of Hemath made Asima. The Auites made Nebahaz, and Tharthak. And the Sepharuaites burnt their children in fire vnto Adramelech & Anamelech, the goddes of the Sepharuaites. And though they feared the Lorde, yet they made them preestes of the lowest of the people, for the hilaultares which sacrificed for them in the houses of the hilaultares. And so they feared the Lorde, and yet serued their owne goddes after the maner of the people frome whence they were brought. Socoth Benoth. Nergel. Asima. Nebahaz. Tharthak. Anamelech.

Vnto this daye they do after the olde maner: they neyther feare the Lorde, neyther do after their owne ordinaunces and customes, & after the lawe and commaundement whiche the Lorde commaunded the children of Jacob whose name he called Israel, and made an appointement with them and charged the sayenge: feare not any other gods, nor bowe your selues to them nor serue them, nor sacrifice to them: but to the Lorde which brought you out of the lande of Egypt with great power and a stretched out arme: him feare and to him bowe, and to him sacrifice. And the ordinaunces, customes, lawe and commaundment Gene.xxxv.g Jud.vi. Jere.ij.a

ment which I write to you, se ye be diligent to do, for euer more, and feare not anye other goddes. And the appoyntment that I haue made with you, se ye forget not, and that you feare none other goddes: but the Lorde your God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all your enemyes. How be it they herde not, but dyd after ꝑ olde maner. And euen so dyd these nations feare the Lorde and serue their Ymages therto: and so dyd their children and their childrens children co. Euen as dyd their fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

¶ Ezechias kynge of Juda putteth downe the brasen serpent, and destroyeth the Idolles. Salmanasar byngeth Israel to the Assyrians. The blasphemy of Sennacherib.

CAPI. XVIII.

In the thyrde yere of Hosea sonne of Ela, kyng of Israel, raygned Ezechias sonne of Achas kynge of Juda. Twentye and fyue yeres olde was he, when he begonne to raygne, and raygned .xxix. yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abi the daughter of Zacharias, and he dyd that pleased the Lord in all thynge, lyke to Dauid his father. He put awaye the hyll aultares and brake the Ymages and cut downe the grouis, and all to brake the brasen serpent that Moses made. For vnto those dayes the children of Israell dyd burne sacrifyce to it, and called it Nehustan. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israell, so that after him came none lyke him among all the kynges of Juda, nether amonge them that were afore him. He claue to the Lorde & departed not from him, but kept his commaundementes which the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the Lorde was with him, and whatsoeuer he toke in hande he dyd it wysely. And he rebelled against the kynge of Assiria and serued him not. He bet the Philistines euen vnto Gaza and the coostes therof, both in castels of garrisons and stronge cities to.

In the fourth yere of kynge Ezechias whiche was the seuenth yere of Hosea sonne of Ela kynge of Israel, came Salmanasar kyng of Assiria vpon Samaria and besieged it. And they toke it at the ende of the yere, which was the sixte of Ezechias: that is to say the nynth yere of Hosea kynge of Israel, was Samaria wonne. And the kynge of Assiria dyd carye away Israel vnto Assiria, and put them in Halah and in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of Medes: because they wolde not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde their God, But transgressed his appointment, and all that Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded, and wolde neyther heare nor do.

¶ The .xiiii. yere of kynge Ezechias came Sennacherib kynge of Assiria against all the stronge cytes of Juda and toke them. Wherupon Ezechias kynge of Juda sent to ꝑ kynge of Assiria to Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended. But depart from me, and what thou put est on me that will I beare. And the kyng of Assiria assesed vpon Ezechias kynge of Juda, thre hundred talentes of syluer and thirty talentes of golde. ✱ And Ezechias gaue him all the syluer that was fownde in the house of the Lorde and also in the treasure of the kynges house. And the sayde season Ezechias rent of the wozes of the temple of the Lorde and the pyllers, whiche the sayde Ezechias kynge of Juda couered ouer, and gaue the to the kinge of Assyria.

And the kynge of Assyria sent Thartham and Rabsaris and Rabsaketh from Lachis to kynge Ezechias with a great hoste to Jerusalem. And they went vp and came to Jerusalem, and went and stode by the coundyt of the ouermost pole whiche is in the waye to the fullers felde, and called to the kynge. And there came out to them, Eliakim the sonne of Helkiah stuarde of housholde and Sobnah the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph, the recorder. And then Rabsaketh sayd to them. Tell ye Ezechias I praye you: thus sayeth the greate kynge the kynge of Assyria. What confidence is this that thou hast? thou wylte happelye speake a lyght worde, that thou hast counsell and power to make warre. On whome then dooest thou trust, that thou rebellest against me? doest thou truste to the staffe of this brosen rede Egypt, on whiche yf a man leane, it wyll renne in to his hande and perce it. For euen so is Pharao kynge of Egypte vnto all that truste on hym. ✱ If ye saye vnto me, we trust in the Lorde our God. Is not this God he, whose hyllaultares and other aulters to, Ezechias hathe put downe, and hath sayd to Juda and Jerusalem, Bow your selues before this aulter here in Jerusalem? Now therfore ioyne thy selfe to my Lorde the kynge of Assyria, and I will deliuer the two thousande horses, yf thou be able to set ryders vpon them (and yf thou be not) how then arte thou able to resist one of the leste Dukes of my masters seruauntes? or trustest thou to Egypte for charettes and horsmen? Moreouer thinkest thou I am come without the bydding of the Lorde to this place to destroye it? Naye: the Lorde sayd to me, go vp to this lande and destroye it. Then sayd Eliakim the son of Helkiah and Sobnah and Joah, to Rabsaketh: speake, we praye the, to thy seruauntes in the Syriake language, for we vnderstande it: and talke not with vs in the Jewes tongue, in the eares of the people that are on the walles. And Rabsaketh sayd vnto them: hath my master sent me only to thy master and to the, to speake these wordes, or rather to the men that kepe the walles, that they shal eat their owne dyrt and drinke their owne pisse with you.

And so Rabsaketh stode and cryed with a lowde voyce in the Jewes language, and spake, sayenge: Heare the sayenge of the great kynge, the kynge of Assiria. Thus sayeth the kynge: Let not Ezechias beguyle you, for he is not able to deliuer you out of myne handes neyther let Ezechias make you truste to the Lorde sayenge: the Lorde shall surely rydde vs, and this cytie shall not be deliuered into the handes of the kynge of Assiria. Herken not vnto vnto Ezechias, for thus sayth the kyng of Assiria. Deale kyndely with me, and come oute to me. And then eat euerye man of his owne vyne, and of his fygge tree, and dyynke euery man of the water of his owne welle, tyll I come and fet you to as good a land as youre is, a land of corne and wyne, a lande of bred and vnyardes, a lande of oyue trees of oyle and of hony. And ye shall lyue and not dye. And herken not vnto Ezechias for he wyll beguyle you, saying: the Lorde shall delyuer vs. For haue the goddes of the nacyons delyuerd any God his lande, oute of the hande of the kyng of Assyria? where are the gods of Hemath and of Arphad? where are the goddes of Sepharuaim of Ana and Auah? did they delyuer Samaria out of myne handes? what God of any lande hath delyuerd his lande oute of myne hande, that the Lorde shulde delyuer Jerusalem out of myne hand?

But the people helde theyr peax and answerd not him a worde: for the kinge habde commaunded, sayenge: answere him not.

Then Eliakim the stuarde of houshoulde, and Sobna the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the recorder, came to Ezechias with their clothes rét and tolde him the wordes of Rabsaketh.

¶ The Aungell of the Lorde kylleth. Cxxxv. thousande men of the Assyrians. Sennacherib is kylled of his owne sonnes.

CAP. XIX.

When kynge Ezechias herde this, he rent his clothes and put on sacke, and went to the houle of the Lorde. Furthermore he sent Eliakim stuarde of houshoulde, & Sobna the scribe, & the elders of the Prestes clothed in sacke, to Isai the Prophete the sonne of Amos. And they sayde to him, thus sayethe Ezechias: This daye is a daye of tribulation of rebukynge and rayinge: Euen as when ỳ childzen are redy to be borne, and the mothers haue no power to be delyuered. Obthat the Lorde thy God wolde heare al the wordes of Rabsaketh, whome the kyng of Assiria his master hath sent to rayle on the lyuynge God, & to rebuke him with wordes, which the Lord thy God hathe herde. Wherfore lyft vp thy prayer for the remnaunt that are left. When the seruauntes of kynge Ezechias were come to Isai: Isaia sayde to them. So shall ye say to your master. Thus sayth the Lord: be not afrayde of the wordes thou herdest, wherwith the younge men of the kynge of Assiria haue rayled on me. For I will sende him a blaste that he shal heare tydinges, and so returne to his owne lande: And I will ouerthrowe hym with the swerde, euen in his owne lande.

And Rabsaketh went backe agayne & found the kynge of Assiria fighting against Lobnah: for he had herde, that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde tydinges of Tharaka kyng of the blacke Moores, that he was come out to fight against him. And therupon he departed and sent messengers vnto Ezechias, sayenge. Thus saye to Ezechias kynge of Juda, Let not thy God cary the out of the way, in whome thou so trustest, saying: Jerusalem shall not be delyuered into the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou haste hearde what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue vtterye destroyed theym. And howe then shuldest thou escape? hathe the goddes of the brethen delyuered them whiche myne auncetheuers haue destroyed: as Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the childzen of Eden which were in Thelasar? where is the kynge of Hemath, the kyng of Arphad the kynge of the cyte of Sepharuaim, & the kynge of Ana, and the kynge of Auah?

When Ezechias had receyued the letters of the hande of the messengers and hadde red them: he went into the houle of the Lorde, & layde them abrode before the Lorde. And Ezechias prayed before the Lorde & sayd: Lord God of Israell, whiche dwellest betweene the Cherubes, thou arte God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the earthe, and thou hast made both heauen and earthe. Lorde, bowe thyne eares and heare: Open Lorde thyne eyen and se: & heare the wordes of Sennacherib which hath sent to rayle on the lyuing God. Certes o Lorde, the kynges of Assiria haue destroyed nacions and their landes, and haue set fyre on their goddes. For they were no goddes, but the worke of the handes of man: euen wood and stone. And therfore they destroyed them. Now therfore (Lorde our God) saue thou vs out of his hande, that all the kyngdomes of ỳ earthe maye knowe, that thou Lord art God alone. And Isai the sonne of Amos sent to Ezechias sayenge: Thus saith the Lorde God of Israel, the thinge that thou hast prayed to me concerninge Sennacherib kyng of Assiria, I haue herde. This is the thinge that ỳ Lord sayth of him: he hath despysed the, O virgine wughter of Sion: he hath shaken his hed at the, thou wughter of Jerusalem: whome hast thou rayled on, and whom hast thou reuyled? Against whome hast thou lyfted vp thy voyce and hast eleuate thyne eyes so hyghe? Euen against the holy of Israell. By the hand of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lord and sayde, with the multitude of my chaerettes I am come vp to the heyght of the mountaynes euen alonge by the sydes of Libanon, & haue cut of the hyghe Cedar trees, and the fayre fyrre trees therof, euen to the woode of Carmel that belongeth therto. I haue dygged & dronche straunge waters, and haue dryed vp with the soles of my fete poles enclosed. But haste thou not heard howe I haue ordeyned suche a thinge a greate, whyle a go, and haue prepared it frome the beginninge? And nowe I bringe it forth, and it shalbe to destroy, and to bringe stronge cytes, into rude heapes of stones. And the enhabitaunces of them shall be of lytle power, and sayncte herted and confounded. & They shalbe lyke the grasse of the fylde, and grene herbes, and as the hey on the toppes of the houses whiche withereth or it come to any heyght. I wote where thou dwellest, and thy commynge oute, and goynge in, I know knowe I to, and how thou fettest vp thy hystelles against me. And because thou settest vp thy bustelles against me, and that thy ragynge is come vp to myne eares: therfore I wyll put a tynge in thy nose and a dyt in thy lyppes, and wyll bynge the backe agayne by same waye thou camest. And this shall be a synge vnto the: eate this yere of the fruites of the seed that fell oute, and the nexte yere, that wareth of it selfe. And the thyrde yere sowe ye and reape, plant vyneyardes and eate the frutes therof. For the house of Juda that is escaped and left, shall yet agayne take ro-tyng downewarde, and beare frute vpward.

For out of Jerusalem shall go a remnaunt, and a nombre that shall escape out of mount Sion: the zele of the Lorde of hoostes shall bynge this thynge to passe.

Therefore thus sayth the Lorde ouer the kynge of Assyria: he shall not entre into this cytye, nor shote one arowe into it, nor come before with shylde nor caste anye bancke a-gaynst it: but shall go backe agayne by waye
he came, and shall not come at his cyty, sayth the Lorde. For I wyll defende this cytye and saue it. For myne owne sake and for Dauid my seruauntes sake.

The selfe same nyght the Aungell of the Lorde went out and smote in the hoste of the Assyrians an hundred fourte score and fyue thousande. And when they were risen early in the morninge: beholde, they were all dead coarses.
And so Sennacherib kynge of Assyria auoyded and departed and went agayne, and dwelt at Ninive. And as he was in his deuotion knee-linge in the house of Nisroch his God, Adramelech and Sarasar smote him with the sworde.
And they escaped into the lande of Ararat, and Asarhadon his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Ezechias is sicke and receyueth the synge of his health by the dyall of Achas. He receyueth rewardes of Merodach, and is reproued of Isai because he shewed hym the treasure. He dyeth and Manasses his sonne raygneth in his stede.

CAPL. XX.

About that tyme Ezechias was sicke vnto the deathe. And the Prophete Isai sonne of Amoz came to him and sayde to him. Thus sayth the Lorde: put thyne housholde in an ordre, for thou shalt dye and not lyue. And Ezechias turned his face to the wall and besought the Lorde sayenge: O Lorde, remembre yet how I haue walked before the truely, and with a perfecte herte, and haue wrought that which is good in thy sight, and wept a great pace. And Isai was scarce gone out into the myddle of the cytie, but that the worde of the Lord came to him, sayeng: turne agayne and tell Ezechias the leader of my people. Thus sayth the Lord God of Dauid thy father. I haue herde thy prayer and sene thy teares. Beholde I will heale the, and this daye the dayes thou shalt go vp into the house of the Lorde. And I will lengthen thy dayes yet fyftene yeres, and will delyuer bothe the and this cytie out of the hande of the kynge of Assyria, and will defende this cytie for myne owne sake, and for Dauid my seruauntes sake.
And Isai sayde: bynge a lumpe of figges.
And they brought and put it on the sore, and he recouered.

Then sayde Ezechias to Isai: What is the signe, that the Lorde will heale me, and that I shall go vp into the house of the Lorde the thirde daye? And Isai sayde: this signe shalt thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lorde will do that he hathe spoken: shall the shadwe go forwarde ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees? And Ezechias sayde: It is a lyghte thing for the shadwe to go downe ten degrees.
Therfore I will not that: but let the shadwe go backwarde ten degrees. And Isai the Pro-phete called to the Lorde, and he brought the shadwe ten degrees backwarde by whiche it had gone downe, in the dyall of Achas.

At this same season Berodach Baladan the sonne of Baladan kynge of Babylon sent letters and presentes vnto Ezechias, for he herd that Ezechias was sicke. And Ezechias harke-ned vnto them and shewed them al that was in the spycery house, and his siluer and golde and oyntes and precioule oyntementes and his armoure and all that was founde in his treasure: there was nothinge in his house or in all his realme, that he shewed them not.

Then came Isai the Prophete vnto kynge Ezechias and sayde to him: What saye these men and frome whence come they to the? And Ezechias sayde: they be come from a farre coū-trey, euen frome Babilon. And he sayd: what haue they sene in thy house? And Ezechias sayde: all that is in my house haue they sene:
there is nothinge amonge my treasure that I haue not shewed them. And Isai sayde to E-zechias: Heare the worde of the Lorde. Be-holde the daye shall come, that all that is in thyne house and that thy fathers haue layde vp in store vnto this daye, shall be caryed to Babilon, and nothinge shall be left sayth the Lorde. And of thy sonne that proceded out of the, which thou begatest, shall there be cary-ed awaye, and shalbe made chamberlaynes in the palace of the kynge of Babilon. And Ez-echias sayde to Isai: welcome be the worde of the Lorde which thou hast spoken: so that peas and trouthe be kept in my dayes.

The reste of the dedes of Ezechias, and all his power, and how he made a pole and a conduit and brought the water into the cyty, are written in the boke of Cronicles of kynges of Juda. And Ezechias layde him to rest with his fathers, and Manasses his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Wycked Manasses reboyeth against the Prophets, and after dyeth, in whose stede Amon his sonne succeedeth, whiche is kylled of his owne seruauntes.
After him raygneth godly Josias.

CAPL. XXI.

Manasses was twelue yeres olde when he began to raygne and raygned fyfty and fyue yeres in Jerusalem: his mothers name was Haphsibah. And he dyd that dis-

displeased the Lorde, euen after the abominacions of the heythen which the Lorde threw out before the chyldren of Israel. And he went and buylt the hyllauteres agayne, whiche Ezechias his father had destroyed. And he served vp auiters to Baal and made groues, as dyd Achab kynge of Israell. And he bowed him selfe vnto all the hoste of heauen and serued them. And he buylt auiters in the very house of the Lorde, of which the Lorde had sayde: ✠ in Jerusalem I wyll put my name. And he buylt alteres vnto all the hoste of heuen, euen in two courtes of the house of the Lord. And he offered his sonne in fyre, and obserued dilmal dayes, and vsed witchcraft and mayntayned workers with spirites, and tellers of wyrches: and wrought moche wickednesse in ꝑ sight of the Lorde to anger him.

And he put an Ymage of a grene that he had made, euen in the verye temple of whiche the Lorde hadde sayde to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne, ✠ in this house and in Jerusalem whiche I haue chosen oute of all trybes of Israel, wyll I put my name for euer. Neyther wyll I make the fete of Israell moue anye more oute of the lande whiche I gaue theyr fathers: so that they wyll be dylygent to do all I haue commaunded them, and all the lawe that my seruaunte Moses commaunded them. But they herkened not: for Manasses had led them out of the waye, to do more wickedlye then dyd the Panyms whych the Lorde destroyed before the face of the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lorde spake by his seruauntes the Prophetes sayenge: because Manasses kynge of Juda hathe wrought suche abominacions, and hath wrought wickedly above all that the Amorites which were before him dyd: & hathe made Juda synne also with his Ymages: therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell.

✠ Beholde, I will bringe suche euell vpon Jerusalem and Juda, that the eares of all ꝑ heare it, shall tyngle at it. And I will stretche ouer Jerusalem the squarynge lyne of Samaria and the plomets of the house of Achab. And I will wype oute Jerusalem, as a man wolde wype a dyshe, and when he hath wyped it turneth it vpsidewne. And thoughe I leue a remnaunt of myne enheritaunce, yet I will deliuer them into the handes of theym that hate them, and they shall be robbed and spoyled of all theyr ennemyes: euen because they haue done wickedly and done angred me sythens the tyme their fathers came oute of Egypte vnto this daye. And moreouer Manasses shed innocent bloude exceding aboundantly, in so moche that he replenyshed Jerusalem in all corners, beside his synne wherwith he made Juda synne and to do euyll in the sight of the Lorde. The rest of the actes of Manasses and all he dyd and his synne that he synned, are written in the boke of Chronicles of kynges of Juda. And Manasses layde him to slepe with his fathers, and was buryed in the garden of his owne house, euen in ꝑ garden of Oza: and Amon his sonne raygned in his steade.

Amon was. xxij. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned two yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Mesalemeth the doughter of Haru of Jethdah. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde as his father Manasses did. He walked in all the way that his father walked in, and serued the Ymages that his father serued, and bowed hym selfe to theym. And he forsoke the Lorde God of his fathers, and walked not in the waye of the Lorde.

Amon

And the seruauntes of Amon conspired agaynst hym, and slue him in his owne house. But the people of the lande slue all that conspired agaynst kynge Amon, and made Josias his sonne kynge in his rowme. The rest of ꝑ actes of Amon whiche he dyd are written in the Chronicle of ꝑ kynges of Juda. And they buryed him in his sepulchre in the garden of Oza, and Josias his sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ After Josias herde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Oldah the Prophetesse for counsell.

CAP. XXII.

IOsias was. viij. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned. xxxi. yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jedida ꝑ doughter of Adaiah of Bozeath. And he dyd that semed right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the wayes of Dauid his father and bowed neyther to the righte hande nr to the lefte.

For it is a great wrathe of the Lorde that is kendled vpon vs, that oure fathers haue not harkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do in all poyntes as it is wrytten therin.

Jeremy 43.a

And Helkia the hyghe preeste and Ahikam Achobor, Saphan, Asahia wente vnto Olda the Prophetesse, wyfe of Sellum the sonne of Tekuah, the sonne of Harahams keper of the robes, which Prophetesse dwelte in Jerusalem in the seconde warde, and communed with her. Tell the man that sente you to me, thus sayth the Lorde: Beholde I wyll bringe euyll vpon this place, and on the dwellers therin: euen all the wordes of the boke whiche the kynge of Juda hathe redde, becauſe they haue forsaken me, & haue burnte offeringes vnto other Goddes, to angre me with all the workes of their handes. Therfore is my wrathe kendled agaynſt this place, and shall not be quenched. But to the kynge of Juda, whiche sente you to enquyre of the Lorde, so shall ye saye: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell, as touchynge the wordes whiche thou herdeſt. Becauſe thyne herte did melte, and thou mehedeſt thy selfe before me (the Lorde, when thou herdeſt what I spake agaynſte this place, and the inhabitauntes of the same, how that it shulde be destroyed and made a curſed: & tarenſt thy clothes and wepteſt before me: of that also I haue herde sayethe the Lorde. CAPI. XXIII.

AND when the kynge sente and gathered vnto him al the elders of Juda and of Jerusalem, and the kynge wente vp in to the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and all thinhabitaunters of Jerusalem with him, and the preeſtes and the Prophetes and all the people bothe small and great. And he redde in hearynge of them, all the wordes of the boke of the testament, whiche was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kynge stode by a pyller, and made a couenaunt before the Lorde, that they shulde walke after the Lorde, and kepe his commaundementes and his witneſſes, and his ordinaunces with al their hertes, and all their soules, and make good the wordes of the sayde appoyntment that were wrytten in the foresayd boke. And all the people consented to the appoyntment. Then the kynge commaunded Helkia the hyghe Preeſt and the lower Preeſtes and the kepers of the wore, to bringe out of the Lordes temple, all the vessellies made for Baal, and for the grouе and for all the hoste of heauen. And he burnte them without Jerusalem in the feldes of Cedron, and caryed the asshes of them in to Bethel. And he put downe the ydolatrous persones, whiche the kynge of Juda hadde sette to burne offeringes in the hyll aulters in the cyties of Juda rounde about Jerusalem, and also them that burnt sacrifices vnto Baal, to the sonne and to the moone, and to the planetes, and to all the hoste of heauen. And he broughte oute the grouе frome the temple of the Lorde without Jerusalem, vnto the brooke Cedron, and burnte it at the brooke Cedron, and stampte it to pouldre, and caſte the duſte therof vpon the graues of the people of the countreye. And he brake downe the buggerye places that were in the house of the Lord, in whiche the women wouue coueryns for the grouе.

Exod. 34.

And he brought all the preeſtes out of the cities of Juda, and defaced the hyllaulters where the preeſtes dyd burne sacrifyce frome Gabaa to Berſabe. And he brake downe the hyllaulters of the Gates, that were in the entrye of the Gate of Josua the gouernoure of the cytye, whiche were on the lefte hande of the Gate of the cytye. Neuertheleſſe the preeſtes of the hyllaulters myght not come at the aulter of the Lorde in Jerusalem, saue onely they dyd eate of the vnwrte breed among their brethren.

4. Reg. 21.

And he destroyed Topheth also whiche is in the valeye of the children of Hennom, becauſe no man shulde offer his son or his daughter in fyre to Moloch: he put downe the horſes that the kynges of Israel had gyuen to the sonne at the entryng of the house of the Lord in the chamber of Nathanmelech the chamberlayne which was of Paruarim, and burnt the charettes of the sonne with fyre. And the aulters that were on the toppe of the parlour of Achaz which the kinges of Juda had made, and the aulters which Manaſſes had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde, the kinge brake downe, and came thence and caſte the duſte of them in to the brooke Cedron.

4. Reg. 16.

And the hyllaulters that were before Jerusalem on the ryght hande of the mount Mesith, whiche Salomon kyng of Israel buylt to Astaroth the abhomination of the Zidons and to Chamos the abhommacyon of the Moabites, and to Melchom the abhomination of the chyldren of Ammon, the kynge destroyed and brake the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and fylled the places with the bones of men.

4. Reg. 11.

Moreouer the aulter that was at Bethel, the hyll aulter made by Jerobeam the sonne of Nabat,

Nabat whyche made Israell synne: both the D aultare and also the hyll he brake downe and burnt the hyll and stampte it to powder, and burnt the groue. And as Josias tourned hym selfe, he espyed the graues that were in the mounte, and sent and fet the bones oute of the graues and burnt them vpon the aultare and poluted it accordynge to the worde of the Lorde that the man of God had proclaymed, whiche openlye hadde renounced the same thynges.

Then the kynge sayde: What meaneth yonder graue stone that I se? And the men of the cyte tolde hym, it is the Sepulchre of the man of God, which came fro me Juda and openlye renounced the selfe same thynges that thou hast done to the aultare of Bethel. And he sayde let hym be: let that no man moue his bones. And so his bones escaped, with the bo nes of a Prophete, that came oute of Samaria.

And ouer all the houses of the hyeaulters of the cyties of Samaria, whiche the kynges of Israel had made, to anger the Lorde with:
Josias put out of the ways, and dyd to them in all poyntes as he dyd in Bethel. And he sa crificed all the preastes of the hyeaultares that were there euen vpon the aultares, and burnt mens bones vpon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

And the kynge commaunded all the people saying: * kepe the feast of passouer vnto the Lorde your God, as it is wrytten in the boke of this testament. For there was no passouer holden lyke that, fro the dayes of the iudges that iudged Israel, and thorowe oute all the dayes of the kynges of Israell and of Juda. And in the .xviij. yere of kynge Josias, was this passouer holden to the Lorde in Jerusalem.

Moreouer workers with spyrites, sothsayers, Images of wytchecrafte, Idols and all other abhominacions that were espyed in the lande of Juda and in Jerusalem, Josias put out of the ways, to make good the wordes of the lawe, which were wrytten in the booke Helkia the preaste founde in the house of the Lorde: Lyke vnto him was there no kynge afore tyme, that turned to the Lorde with all his herte, with all his soule, and all his might, accordinge to all the lawe of Moses, neyther after him arose there any like.

Notwithstandinge the Lorde tourned not hym selfe fro me his feruent and great wrathe, wherewith he was angrye against Juda vpon
all the prouocacions that Manasses prouoked him. But the Lorde sayde: I will put Juda in lyke maner out of my sight, as I haue done Israel, and will cast of, this cyte Jerusalem, which I haue chosen, and the house of which I haue sayde, my name shalbe there.

The rest of the dedes of Josias, and all he dyd, are written in the boke of the Chronicles of kynges of Juda.

* In his dayes Pharao Necoa, kynge of Egypte, went against the kynge of Assyria to the ryuer Euphrates. And kynge Josias went against him, and was slayne of him at Mageto when he had sene him. And his seruauntes caryed hym dead from Magedo & brought him to Jerusalem, & buryed him in his owne Sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Joachas the sonne of Josias, and annoynted hym, and made hym kynge in his fathers rowme.

And Joachas was thre and twenty yeres
olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamutal, the doughter of Jeremia of Lobnah. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, in all thinges as his fathers had done.
And Pharao Necoa put him in bondes at Re blah, in the lande of Hemath, in the tyme of his raygne in Jerusalem, and put the lande to a tribute of an hundred talentes of syluer and a talente of golde. And Pharao Necoa made Eliakim, the sonne of Josias, kynge, in the rowme of Josias his father, and tourned his name to Joakim, and toke Joachas awaye, whyche when he came to Egypte / dyed

And Joakim gaue the syluer and the golde

gyue the moneye at the commaundemente of Pharao, and as euery man was set at, so he requyred the syluer and the golde of the people of the lande, to gyue Pharao Necoa. Jo-akim was fyue and twenty yeres olde, when he begonne to raygne, and he raygned eleuen

And he dyd that was euyll in the syghte of the Lorde / lyke in all thynges as dyd his fa-

¶ Joakim dyeth, and after him succeadeth Joachin. Jerusalem is besyeged of the Babilonians. Joachin yeldeth him selfe to the kynge of Babilon. And in his rowme came Mathanah, whiche was called Zedekias.

CAPL. XXIIII.

IN his dayes came Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon, and Joakim became his seruaunte thyer yeres, and then tourned and rebelled agaynste hym. And the Lorde sent vp on him men of warre oute of Caldey, oute of Syria, oute of the Moabites, and fro me the childzen of Ammon: and sente theym in to Juda, to destroye it, accordynge to the say-enge of the Lorde whiche he spake by his seruauntes the Prophetes. Only at the bydding of the Lorde happened it so to Juda, to put theym oute of his sight, for the synne of Ma-nasses accordinge to all he dyd: and for the innocent bloude that he shed and fylled Jerusalem with innocent bloude, whiche the Lorde wolde not forgyue.

The rest of the dedes of Joakim and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Juda. And Joakim slept with his fathers, and Joachin his sonne raygned in his stede. But the kynge of Egypte, came now no more oute of his lande: for the kynge of Babylon had taken frome the ryuer Euphrates, all that pertayned to the kynge of Egypte. Joacim was eyghteene yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned in Jerusalem three monethes. His mothers name was Nehustha the doughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde in all poyntes as his father dyd.

Daniel.i.a. * In his tyme came the seruauntes of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon, to Jerusalem and the cyte was besieged. And Nabuchodonosor came to the cyte as his seruauntes were yet besiegynge of it. * And Joacim the kynge of Juda came out to the kynge of Babylon, with his mother, his seruauntes, his Lordes and his chamberlaynes. And the kynge of Babylon toke him, in the eyght yere of his raygne.

And he caryed out thence all the treasure of the house of the Lorde, and the treasure of the kynges house, and brake all the vesselles of golde which Salomon kynge of Israell had made, in the temple of the Lorde, as the Lord had sayde. And he caryed awaye all Jerusalem, and all the Lordes and all the men of myght, to the nombre of ten thousande into captiuitie and all craftes men and joyners, none remayned saue the poore people of the lande. And he caryed awaye Joacim to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, and his chamberlaynes, and the myghtye of the lande caryed he awaye frome Jerusalem to Babylon. And all the men of warre to the nombre of seuen thousande, and craftesmen & joyners a thousande, all stronge and apte for warre, dyd the kynge of Babylon bring to Babylon to dwell. * And the kynge of Babylon made Mathaniah his fathers brother, kynge in his stede, and chaunged his name and called him Zedekia.

And he dyd euyll in the sight of the Lorde, in all poyntes lyke to Joakim. For throughe the wrathe of the Lorde it so chaunced to Jerusalem and Juda, vntyll he had cast them out of his sight. And the same Zedekia rebelled against the kynge of Babylon.

¶ By the rebellynge of Zedekias the towne of Jerusalem beseaged of Nebuchodonosor. The towne and the temple are both burnte. The sonnes of Zedekie are slayne before his eyes, and after are his eyes put oute. Juba is brought to Babylon, and after is Joacim exalted.

CAP. XXV.

4. Reg. 25. a. Jerem. 52. a. Ezechiel. 24. a.

Wherfore in the nynthe yere of his raygne, the tenth daye of the tenth moneth came Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon with all his power to Jerusalem: and pitched against the towne and made engynes against it on euery syde. And the cyte continued beseged vnto the eleuenth yere of kynge Zedekias. And the nynth daye of the fourthe moneth of that yere, there was so great hunger in the cyte, that there was no sustinaunce for the people of the lande.

And the cyte was broken vp: wherfore all the men of warre fled by night, by a way the sowe a gate, betwene two walles harde on the kynges garden: the Caldeys beynge about the cyte.

Then the kynge went strayght towarde the wyldernesse. And the host of the Caldeys followed after him, and toke him in the wyldernesse of Jericho, all his armye beynge scattered awaye frome him. When they had taken him, they brought him to Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon to Rebiah, whyche impeached him of treason. And they slewe the sonnes of Zedekias before his eyen, and put out the eyen of Zedekias, and fettered him, and caryed him to Babylon.

In the seuenth daye of the fifthe moneth whych was in the nyneteenth yere of kyng Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon, came Nabuzaradan seruaunte of the kynge of Babylon, a chiefe Capitayne vnto Jerusalem: and burnt the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house and all the houses of Jerusalem, and al great houses with fyre. And the pylleres of brasse that were in the house of the Lorde and the bottomes, and the brasen see that was in the house of the Lorde, the Caldeys brake, and caryed the brasse of them to Babylon. And the lauers, shouelles, snuffynge knyues, ladelles, and the mynistring vesselles of brasse, they caryed awaye. And the fyrepannes, and basens that were eyther of golde or siluer, toke the chiefe Marshall awaye with the two pylleres & the see of brasse, and the bottomes which Salomon had made in the house of the Lorde. The brasse of all these vesselles was without wayght. The heyght of the one pyller, was .xviij. cubytes, and the heed theron was brasse, and the cubytes longe with a wreethe and pommegraunetes roundabout vpon the heed, all of brasse. And of the same fashion was the seconde pyller & a wreth.

And the chiefe Capitayne toke Saraiah the chiefe preaste, and Zephaniah the hyghest preast saue one, and three keepers of the dore. And out of the cyte he toke a certayne chamberlayne that had the ouersyght of the men of warre, and fyue men that were euer in the kynges presence, which were founde in the cyte, and Hopher the Capitayne of the host & taught the people of the lande & feates of warre and three score men of the people of the lande that of the Arcke. And Hacaniah, Iosaphat, Nathanael, Amasai, Zacharias, Banaiah, and Eliezer Prestes, were blowers with trompettes before the arcke of God. And Obed-Edom and Iahiah were keepers of the wooze of the arcke. ✠ And Dauid and the elders of Israell, and the Capitaynes ouer thousandes went to fet the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of the house of Obed Edom with gladnesse. And when God had holpe the Leuites that bare the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, they offered seuen oxen and seuen rammes. And Dauid had on hym an albe of silke, and so had the Leuites that bare the arcke, and so had the syngers, and Conaniah the ruler of the songe and of the syngers. And Dauid had ouer hym an Ephod of lynnen. And all Israell brought the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt with shoutyng and with blowynge of hornes, and with trompettes and symbales that sounded, and with psalteries and harpes.

And Godolias swate to them, and to their men, and sayde to them: feare not ye the seruauntes of the Caldeyes. But dwel in the lande and serue the kynge of Babylon and ye shalbe in good state.

And as the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came in to the cite of Dauid, Michol the doughter of Saul looked oute at a wyndowe: and when she sawe kynge Dauid daunsynge and playnge, she despised hym in her herte.

¶ After the Arche was brought, Dauid ordeyneth Asaph and his brethren to minister before the Lord, and he praiseth the Lorde God of Israel.

CAPI. XVI.

When they had brought in ꝑ arcke of God, they set it in the midst, that Dauid had pitched for it. And they brought burnt sacrifice and peaceofferynges before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offeryng of burntofferinges and of peaceofferynges, he blessed the people with the name of the Lord. And he dealte to all Israel bothe man and woman a cracknell of breed, a pece of beffe, & a messe of koppes.

And he appointed certayne of the Leuites to minister before the Lorde, and to repete, and to thanke and praise the Lorde God of Israell: that is to wete: Asaph the chefe, and next to him Zacharias, then Iehiel. Semiramoth, Iehiel, Mathathias, Eliab, Banaiah, Obed Edom, and Iehiel with psalteryes and harpes. But Asaph with soundynge symbales and Banaiah & Iahaziel Prestes with trompettes contynually before the arcke of the couenaunt of God. In that tyme Dauid dyd appoynte chefely to thanke the Lorde, Asaph and his brethren. ✠ Thanke the Lorde, call on his name, make his actes be knowen amonge the people.

Synge vnto him and play vnto him, and reherse all his wonderfull workes. Prayse his holy name, and let the hertes of them that seke the Lord reioyce. Seke the Lord and his strength: seke his presence alwaye.

Remembre his meruayles whiche he dyd, and his wonders, and the iudgementes of his mouth: The seed of Israel are his seruauntes: the children of Iacob are his chosen. He is the Lorde our God: & in all landes are his iudgementes. Thynke on his appoyntement euer, & on the worde whych he commaunded to a thousande generations. Of his couenaunt to Abraham, and of his othe to Isaac: whiche he set before Iacob for a decree, and to Israel for an euerlastyng couenaunt, sayinge: to the I wyll gyue the lande of Canaan, to be the portion of your enheritaunce. When you were a smalle company in nombre, euen but a few, and therto straungers therin. And they went from people to people, and from one kyngdome to another nation. He suffred no man to do them wronge: but rebuked kynges for their sakes. Touche not myne anoynted, nor do my Prophetes anye harme. ✠ Synge vnto the Lorde all the erth, and shewe from daye to daye his healthe. psal. 96.

Tell amonge the heathen of his glorye and amonge all nacyons of his wonderfull dedes.

For greate is the Lorde, and to be praysed excedingly: and terrible is he about all goddes.

For all the goddes of the heathen are vayne: but the Lorde made heuen.

Prayse & honour are in his presence: strength and gladnes are in his place.

Ascribe to the Lorde, o ye kynredes of people: ascribe to the Lorde glory and strength.

Gyue honour vnto the Lordes name: bring presentes and come before him, and bowe to the Lorde in holy apparell.

All the earthe feare hym, be stablysshed the earthe that it can not moue. The heauen reioyce, and the earthe be glad: and let men tell amonge the nations, that the Lorde is a kynge.

Let the see sounde and his fulnesse, and let the feldes reioyce and all that are therin.

Let the trees of the wod syng at the presence of the Lord: for he commeth to iudge the erth.

Thanke the Lorde for he is good, & his mercye lasteth euer. And saye: saue vs (o God our sauiour) and gather vs together, and deliuer vs from the heathen, that we may thanke thy holy name, and prayse the with prayse that becommeth the. Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel for euer euer, and all nations shall saye Amen, & prayse the Lorde.

And he lefte there before the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt, Asaph and his brethren, to ministre before the arcke euermore daye by daye. And Obed Edom with his brethren thre score and eyght: and Obed Edom the sonne of Iduthum and Osah to be porters. And Zadock the preste with his brethren the prestes dyd he set before the tabernacle of the Lorde at the hyll aulter of Gabaon, to offre burntofferynges vnto the Lorde vpon the brasse offeryng aulter perpetually at morninge and euenynge: accordynge to all that is written in the lawe of the Lorde which he commaunded Israell. And with them Heman and Iduthum, and other that were chosen and nomed by name, to thanke the Lorde that his mercye lasteth euer. And with the sayde Heman and Exod. xxix. & Nu. xxviii.

Idithum were trompettes and sounding cymbales, and instrumentes of the melodye of God. And the sonnes of Idithum were porters. And then all the people departed euerye man to his house, and Dauid returned to loke to his household.

¶ Dauid is forbidden to buylde an house vnto the Lorde. Christ is promysed vnder the tytuer of Salomon.

CAPI. XVII.

1 2 Reg. 7. And as Dauid dwelte in his house, he sayde to Nathan the prophete: loo, I dwell in an house of Cheare tree: and the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt dwelleth vnder skynnes. And Nathan sayd to Dauid: do all that is in thyne herte, for God is with the. But the same nyght the worde of God came to Nathan, sayenge: goo and tell Dauid thy seruaunt, thus sayethe the Lorde: thou shalte not buylde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house sythens I brought out the children of Israell vnto this daye: but I haue gone from tent to tent, and from one tabernacle to an other. Neyther in anye place where so euer I haue walked thoroweout all Israel, spake I euer one worde to anye of the Iudges of Israel which I commaunded to fede my people, sayenge: why buylde ye not me an house of Cheare tree? Now therfore thus saye vnto my seruaunt Dauid: thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: I toke the out of the pasture where thou kepeste shepe, that thou shuldest be cappayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue ben with the in all that thou tokest in hande, and haue voyded out all thyne enemyes out of thy sight, & haue made the a name lyke the name of the greatest men of the earthe. And I wolde ordeyne a place for my people Israel, and wyl make it faste, and they shall dwelle vnder it, and shall moue no more. Neyther shall the children of wickednesse vexe them anye more, as at the beggynnynge, and sythens the tyme I commaunded Iudges to be ouer my people Israell: and wyll brynge vnder all thyne enemyes, (for I telde the that the Lorde wyll buylde the an house.) But when thy dayes be eclypsed that thou muste go after thy fathers, I wyll set vp thy seed after the, whiche shall be of thy sonnes, and wyl stable his kyngdome. He shal buylde me an house, & I wyll stablisshe his throne for euer. I wyll be his father, and he shall be my sonne, and I wyl not put my mercye awaye from him, as I dyd frome him that was before the. But I wyll set him in myne house, and in my kyngdome for euer, & his seat shall be sure for euer.

When Nathan had tolde Dauid according to all these wordes, and to al this vision, king Dauid went and sate him before the Lord, and sayd: what am I, O Lorde God, and what is myne household, that thou hast promoted me thus farre. And yet this semed lyght in thyne eyes, O God. But that thou shuldest speake of thy seruantes house for a great while to come: and hast loked vpon me as vpon a man of high degree, O Lorde God. What can Dauid speke more of the, wherin thou woldest make thy seruaunt more glorious? Thou knowest thy seruaunte: and Lorde for thy seruauntes sake, euen according vnto thyne owne herte, thou haste wone all this magnificence, to shewe all bountefulnesse Lorde, there is none lyke the, nor anye God saue thou: according to all that we haue herde with oure eares. Where ouer what nacion on the earthe is lyke thy people Israell? whiche God wente and redemed to be his owne people, and to make the a name of excellencye and terrible nesse, with castynge oute nations before thy people for euer, and thou Lorde, arte become their God.

And now (Lorde) the thynge that thou hast spoken concerning thy seruaunt and his house, be it true for euer, and do as thou hast sayd. And thy name continue and waxe greate for euer, that it be sayd: the Lord of hostes, the God of Israel is God in Israel, and the house of Dauid thy seruaunt be stable before the. For thou Lorde hast tolde thy seruaunt that thou wylt buylde him an house. And therfore thy seruaunt hath founde in his herte to praye before the. And now Lorde, thou arte the very God, and haste promysed this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Now therfore goo to, and bielle the house of thy seruaunt, that it maye continue before the for euer. For what thou biellest, O Lorde, that is bielled for euer.

¶ The battayles of Dauid against the Philistines.

CAPI. XVIII.

1 2 Reg. 8. After this, Dauid beat the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke Geth and the townes therunto perteynynge, out of the handes of the Philistines. And he beate the Moabytes, and the Moabytes became Dauids seruauntes, and payde him tribute. And Dauid beate Hadadezer kynge of Zobah vnto Hemath, as he wente to bringe his dominion vnto the riuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke from him a thousande charettes, and seuen thousande horsemen, and twentye thousande fotemen, and brake all the charettes, saue that he reserued of them an hundred. Then came the Assians of Damasco to helpe Hadadezer kyng of Zobah. And Dauid slew of the Assians, two and twentye thousande, and put garrisons in Syria Damasco: and the Assians became Dauids seruauntes, and broughte him tribute. Farther Lorde helpe Dauid in all that he wente about. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that were on the the seruauntes of Hadadezer and broughte them to Jerusalem. And frome Thebahath & Chun, cytyes of Hadadezer, broughte Dauid exceadinge moche brasse, wherwith Salomon afterwarde made the brasen se and the pylles and the vessellis of brasse.

And when Thou kynge of Hemath herde how Dauid had beaten all the hoste of Hadadezer kyng of Zobah, he sent Hadoram his sonne to kyng Dauid, to aske his peax, and to praise him,

hym, bycause he had fought with Hadadezer and beaten hym, (for Thou had warre w Hadadezer) and sent all maner of iewels of golde syluer and brasse with him. And kynge Dauid dedicated them also vnto the Lorde with the syluer and golde that he brought from all nacions, from the Edomites, from the Moabites, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, and from the Amalekites. And Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah slewe of the Edomites in the salt valeye xviij. thousand, and put a garrison in Edom, and all Edom became Dauids seruauntes, for the Lorde kept Dauid in all that he toke in hande. And Dauid raygned ouer all Israell, and dyd iustice and equite vnto all his people. And Joab the sonne of Zeruiah was ouer the hoste, and Josaphat the son of Ahilud recorder, and Zadoch the son of Achitob, and Abimelech the son of Abiathar were the priestes, and Susa was scribe, and Banaiah the sonne Joiada was ouer the Cerethites and the Pherethites, and the eldest sonnes of Dauid were ordeyned at the kynges hande.

¶ Hanon kyng of the sonnes of Ammon doth great iniury to the seruauntes of Dauid.

CAPI. XIX.

After this, it chaunced that Nahas king of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, & his son made kynge in his stede. Then sayd Dauid: I will shewe kyndnes vnto Hanon the sonne of Nahas, bycause his father dealt kyndly with me. And therupon Dauid sent messengers to comforte hym ouer the dethe of his father. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come in to the land of the childre of Ammon to Hanon to comforte hym, the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayd to Hanon: thinkest thou that Dauid dothe honoure thy father in thy sight, that he hath sent comforters vnto the? Naye, but it is to serche and ouerthrow and to espye out the land, that his seruauntes be come vnto the.

Wherupon Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes and shaued them, & cut of their cotes harde by their buttockes, and sent them awaye. Then they departed, and sent Dauid worde how they were serued, and the kynge sent to mete them (for the men were exceedyngly ashamed) and sayd: tarye at Jericho vntyll your berdes be growen, and then returne. And when the chyldren of Ammon perceyued they had done iniurye vnto Dauid: Hanon and the chyldren of Ammon sente a thousande talentes of syluer to hyre them charettes and horsemen oute of Mesopotamia and oute of Syria Maacah and oute of Zobah. And they hyred two and thirtye thousande charettes, and the kynge of Maacah and his people, which came & pytched before Medba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered them selues togither from their cityes, and marched oute to battayle. And as soone as Dauid herde of it, he sent Joab with all the hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out and put them in araye to battayle before the gate of the citye. And the kynges that were come, kepte them by them selues in the felde.

When Joab sawe that the front of the battayle was before hym and after, he chose out of all the youthe of Israell, and put them in araye agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of the people he deliuered vnto Abisai his brother, that they shoulde put them selues in araye agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and sayde: If the Syrians be to stronge for me, succoure me, and yf the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wyll helpe the. Plucke vp thyne herte, and let vs playe the men for our peoples sake, and for the cityes of our God, and the Lorde do what semeth hym beste. And Joab and the people that were with hym drewe nye to the Syrians to fyght, and they fledde before hym. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Syrians were fledde, they ranne awaye lykewyse from Abisai his brother, and gat them in to the citye. And Joab came to Jerusalem. Also when the Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse of Israell, they sente messengers, and let oute the Syrians that are beyonde the ryuer with Sophach the captayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them. Whiche when it was tolde Dauid, he assembled all Israel, and went ouer Jordan, and set vpon them. And Dauid put him selfe in araye agaynst the Syrians, and they fought with him. But the Syrians fledde before Israel, and Dauid destroyed of the Syrians seuen thousande charettes, and slewe fourtye thousande fotemen, and slewe Sophach capitayne of the hoste. When the seruauntes of Hadadezer sawe that they were put to the worse of Israel, they made peace with Dauid, and serued hym. Neither wolde the Syrians helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

¶ The thre most victorious battayles of Dauid.

CAPI. XX.

In the yere folowynge about the tyme that kynges go out a warrefare, Joab caryed out the armye of the hoste and destroyed the countreye of the children of Ammon, and went and beleged Rabah and destroyed it: But Dauid bode at Jerusalem whyle Joab smote Rabah and destroyed it: And Dauid toke their kynges crowne from his hed, and founde therin the waight of a talent of golde, & there were precyous stones in it. And it was set on Dauids hed. He brought out also the spoyle of the cite, whiche was exceedyng moche. And he brought forthe the people that were in it, and tamed them with sawes and harowes of yron and with axes, and so dyd Dauid with all the cityes of the children of Ammon. And then Dauid and all the people came agayn to Jerusalem. After that, there arose warre at Gazer with the Philistines, at whiche tyme Sobocai the Husathite slew Saphai that was of the chyldren of Raphaim, and they were subdued. And there was battayle agayn with the Philistines, and Elhanan the sonne of Jair slewe Lahemi the brother of Goliath the Gethite.

there, whose spere was lyke a beame of a weuer. And there chaunced yet agayne warre at Geth, where was a man of a very long stature, with xxiiij. fyngers & toes, sixe on euery hande, and sixe on euery foote, and was the sonne of Raraphah & deried Israel. And Jonathan the sonne of Samaa Dauids brother, slewe hym. These were borne of Raraphah at Geth, and were ouerthrowen by the hand of David, and of his seruauntes.

¶ The people are punyshed with pestilence, because David caused them to be nombred: so that there dyed thre score and ten thousande men.

CAPI. XXI.

AND Satan stode vp agaynst Israel, and perswaded David to nombre Israell. And David sayd to Joab and the rulers of the people: go ye and nombre Israell from Berlabe to Dan, & bringe it to me, that I may knowe the nombre of them. And Joab answered: the Lorde make thy people an hundred tymes so many moo as they be. But my lorde kynge, are they not all my lordes seruauntes? why then bothe my lorde requyre this thynge? why shoulde my lorde be a cause of trespace to Israel?

Neuertheles the kynges wordes preuayled agaynst Joab. And Joab toke his waye & went thorow out all Israel, and came to Jerusalem and gaue the nombre of the count of ỹ people vnto David. And all Israell were in nombre a thousand thousandes, & an hundred thousande men that drewe swerde: and Juda was foure hundred and thre score and ten thousande men that drewe swerde. But the Leuites and Ben Jamin he counted not amonge them. For the kynges dede semed abhominable to Joab. And the Lord was displeased with this thyng, and smote Israell. Then sayde David to God: I haue synned exceedyngly in doynge this thyng. Neuertheles yet doo awaye the wyckednesse of thy seruaunt, for I haue wone about measure foolyshly.

And the Lorde spake vnto Gad Dauids sear of vysyons, sayinge: goo and tell David sayinge: Thus sayth the Lorde: I gyue the thyse of thre thynges: chose the one of them, that I may do vnto the. And Gad came to David, and sayde vnto hym: Thus sayth the Lorde: Chose the, either thre yeres famyshment, or thre monethes to be consumed of thyne aduersaries, the swerde of thyne ennemies ouertakynge the: or els the swerde of the Lorde thre dayes and pestilence in the lande, the aungell of the Lord destroying throw out all the coostes of Israel. And nowe aduyse thy selfe what worde I shal bryng agayn to hym that sent me. And David sayd to Gad, I am in exceadynge strayghtes. But let me fall in to the handes of the Lorde, for plentye greate is his mercye, and let me not fall in to the handes of men.

And the Lorde sente pestilence vpon all Israel, so that there were ouerthrowen of Israel thre score and ten thousande men. And God sente the aungell to Jerusalem to destroye it. And as he was aboute to destroye, the Lorde beheld, and had compassion on the wretchednesse, and sayde to the aungell that destroyed, it is ynoughe, nowe cease thyne hande. And the aungell of the Lorde stode by the threshynge floore of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid lyft vp his eyes, and sawe the aungell of the Lord stand betwene the erth and heuen with a drawen swerd in his hand, stretched out towarde Jerusalem. Then fell Dauid and the elders of Israel clothed in sacke vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded to nombre the people? And I am he that haue synned and wont cupll in dede. But what haue these shepe wone? let thyne hande therfore, O Lorde God, be on me and on my fathers house, and not on thy people to destroy them.

And the aungell commaunded Gad to saye to David, that David shoulde goo and rere vp an aulter vnto the Lorde in the threshynge floore of Ornan the Jebusite. And David wente at the sayinge of Gad, whiche spake in the name of the Lorde. And Ornan tourned aboute, and sawe the aungell, and his foure sonnes with him, and hyd them selues: for Ornan was threshynge wheate. And David came to Ornan. And when Ornan loked and sawe David, he wente out of the threshynge floore and bowed him self to David, with his face to the grounde.

And David sayde to Ornan: gyue me the place of the threshynge floore, that I maye buylde an aulter therin vnto the Lorde. Let me haue it for as moche money as it is worth, that the plage maye cease frome the people. And Ornan sayde to David: take it to the/ and let my Lorde kyng do what semeth good in his eyes. Se, I gyue the oxen for a burnt sacrifice, and the threshynge sleades for wodde, and whete for meatoffrynge: I gyue it all. But kynge David sayde to Ornan: not so/ but I wyll bye it for as moche money as it is worthe. I wyll not take that whiche is thyne for the Lorde, and offre burntoffrynges without coste.

And so David gaue to Ornan for the place syxtes of golde sixe hundred by wayghte. And David buylte there an aulter vnto the Lorde, and offered burntoffrynges and peaceoffrynges/ and called vnto the Lorde, and he herde hym frome heauen in fyre vpon the aulter of burntoffrynge. And the Lorde commaunded the aungell to put vp his swerde agayne in to the sheathe of it. At that tyme whē David sawe that the Lorde had herd him in the threshing floore of Ornan the Jebusite, he vsed to offre there. For the tabernacle of the Lorde whiche Moses made in the wylderneſſe, and the aulter of burntoffrynge, were at that season in the hyll at Gabaon. And David could not goo before it to seke God, because he was afrede of the swerde of the aungel of the Lord. And David sayde: This is the house of the Lorde God, and this is the burntoffrynge aulter for Israel.

¶ David

¶ Dauid wylleth his sonne Salomon to buylde the temple of the Lorde: whiche thynge he hym selfe was forbydden to do.

CAPI. XXII.

AND Dauid commaunded to gather the straungers that were in the lande of Israell, and set hewers to hewe stone, to buylde the house of God. And Dauid prepared plentye of yron for nayles to the wyes of the gates, and to ioyne with all, and abouundaunce of brasse without wayght, and of Cedar trees without nombre. For the Zidons & they of Tire brought moche Cedar woode to Dauid. For Dauid thus thought, Salomon my sonne is young and tender, and the house that is to be buylte for the Lorde, muste excede in greatnesse, that it maye be spoken of and prayed in al landes. I wil therfore make ordinaunce for it. And so Dauid made greate prouision before his death.

And he called Salomon his sonne and charged him to buylde an house for the Lorde God of Israel: And Dauid sayde to Salomon: my sonne, I hadde in myne hert to buylde an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God. But the worde of the Lorde came to me sayinge: thou hast shed moche bloude, and hast made many batteiles. Thou shalt not buylde an house for my name, for as moche as thou hast shed so moche bloude to the earthe in my sight. Beholde a sonne shalde borne the, whiche shalbe a man of reste, for I will gyue him rest fro̅ all his enemyes roundabout. And his name shalbe Salomon: for I wil send rest and peax vpon Israell in his dayes. He shall buylde an house for my name, & he shalbe my sonne, and I will be his father, and will stablysshe the seate of his kyngdome vpon Israell for euer. Nowe my sonne, the Lorde be with the, that thou mayst prosperе & buylde the house of the Lorde thy God, as he hathe sayde of the. And the Lorde gyue the wysdom and vnderstandynge, and make the gouerner of Israel, and to kepe the lawe of the Lorde thy God. For then shalte thou prosperе: If thou shalt be diligent to do the ordinaunces and lawes whiche the Lorde charged Moyses with, to delyuer to Israell. Plucke vp thyne hert and be stronge, drede not nor be discouraged. Beholde in myne aduersite I haue prepared for the house of the Lord an hundred thousande talentes of gold, and a thousand thousand talentes of syluer, and as for brasse & yron it can not be numbred, it is so moche. And I haue prepared tymbre and stone, & thou shalt prouyde more therto. Moreouer thou hast workemen ynoughe and masons and carpenters to worke in stone and tymbre, and al maner of wyse men for whatsoeuer worke it be. And of golde syluer, brasse and yron there is no numbre. Aryse therfore and set vpon it, & the Lorde shalde with the.

And Dauid commaunded al the Lordes of Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne sayeng, Is not the Lorde youre God with you? and hath he not gyuen you rest on euery syde? for he hath gyuen thinhabitauntes of the lande into myne handes, and the land is subdued before the Lorde and before his people. Nowe therfore set youre hertes and youre soules, to seke the Lorde your God. And aryse & buylde ye the temple of the Lord God, to bringe the arche of the couenaunt of the Lorde, and the holy vessellis of God into the house buylt for the name of the Lorde.

¶ Dauid beinge olde ordeyneth Salomon kynge. He nombreth the Leuites to be nombred, and assigneth them to their offices.

CAP. XXIII.

AND when Dauid was olde and stryken in yeres, he made Salomon his sonne kynge ouer Israel. And then he gathered togither al the Lordes of Israel with the preastes and the Leuites. And the Leuites were nombred fro̅me. xxx. yere and aboue, and the tale of them in men polle by polle was, xxxviii. thousand. Of which. xxiiii. thousande were set to further the worke of the house of the Lorde. And sixe thousande were officers & iudges. Foure thousand were porters & foure thousand prayed the Lorde with suche instrumentes as Dauid had made to prayse with. And Dauid put an ordre amonge the children of Leui: Gerson, Cahath and Merari: Of the Gersonites was Laadan & Semei. The sonnes of Laadan: the chief was Jehiel, & then Zetham and Joel, thre. The sonnes of Semei Salomith, Haziel, and Haran, three. These were the auncient heddes of Laadan. And the sonnes of Semei were also Jahath, Zinah, Jaus and Bariah: these foure were the sonnes of Semei. And Jahath was the chief, Zinah the seconde. But Jaus and Bariah hadde not many sonnes, and therfore they were reckened for one auncient household.

The sonnes of Cahath: Amram, Jsehar, Hebron and Vziel, foure. The sonnes of Amram: Aaron and Moyses. And Aaron was appointed to consecrate in the place most holy with his sonnes for euer: and to burne the offringes before the Lorde, and to ministre, and to blesse in his name for euer. And the children of Moyses the man of God, were named with the tribe of Leui. The sonnes of Moyses: Gerson and Eliezer. And of the sonnes of Gerson: Sabuel was the chiefe. The sonnes of Eliezer: Rohabiah the chiefe. And Eliezer hadde none other sonnes: But the sonnes of Rohabiah were verye many. And of the sonnes of Jsehar: Salomi, the chiefe. The sonnes of Hebron: Jeriah the first, Amariah the seconde Jahaziel the third and Jecmaam the fourth. The sonnes of Vziel: Mah the first and Jesiah the second. The sonnes of Merari: Mahali: and Musi. The sonnes of Mahali: Eleazar and Cis. And Eleazar dyed and had no sonnes, but doughters onely, and their brethren the sonnes of Cis tooke them. The sonnes of Musi: Mahali, Eder, and Jeremuth, thre. These are the children of Leui in the housholdes of their fathers the auncient heddes, brewed and nombred by name & polle by polle from

frome .xx. yere and aboue, to worke in the seruice of the house of the Lorde. For Dauid sayd the Lorde God of Israel hath geuen rest vnto his people, and they shall dwell in Jerusalem for euer.

Moreouer the Leuites shall now no more beare the tabernacle and all the vesselles that pertayned to the seruice therof. Wherfore gyue me wysdome and knowledge howe to behaue my selfe vnto this people: for who is able to iudge this people that is so great?

Then God sayde to Salomō because thou habdest this in thine hert, and bydest not aske treasure and ryches, honoure and the lyues of thyne enemyes, neyther yet longe lyfe: but hast asked wysdome and knowledge, to iudge my people, ouer which I have made the kynge: wysdome and knowledge shalbe gyuen the, & I will gyue the treasure, ryches, and glorye also, that amonge the kynges before the ys ar ben the, none was ys shalbe lyke the. And so Salomon came frome the hyllaulter that was at Gabaon to Jerusalem frome the tabernacle of wytnesse and raygned at Jerusalē. And Salomon gathered charettes & horsemen: so that he had a thousande and foure hundzed charettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, whiche he bestowed in the charet cytees and about the kynge at Jerusalem. And the kynge made siluer and golde at Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plenteye as the mulberye trees that growe in the valleys. And the horses which Salomon hadde, were brought him out of Egypte frome Kewe. The kynges marchantes fet them out at Kewe at a pryce. They came and brought out of Egypte a charet for sixe hundzed sycles, and an horse for an hundzed and fyfty. And so brought they to all the kynges of the Hetytes and to the kynges of Syria thorow the handes of the sayd marchauntes.

¶ Salomon sendeth to Hiram the kynge of Tyre for wood and workemen.

CAP. II.

AND Salomon determined to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde, & an house for his kyngdome: and tolde out thre skore and ten thousand men to beare burdens and foure skore thousand to hewe in the mountayns, and thre thousande and sixe hundzed to ouersee them.

And Salomon sente to Hiram kynge of Tire sayenge: as thou dydest deale with Dauid my father and sydest sende him Cedar woode, to buylde him an house to dwell in, euen so deale with me nowe: that I may buylde an house for the name of the Lorde my God, to consecrate it to him to burne swete odoures and to set shewbred before him perpetually, & for burntsacrifice morninge and euenynge, & on the Sabeth dayes, and the fest dayes of the new moone, and in the solemne festes of the Lorde our God, so to continewe euer in Israel. And the house which I buylde is greate: for great is our God about all goddes: So that who can be able to buylde him an house: whē that heauen, neyther heauen about all heauens is able to receyue him, what am I then that I should buylde him an house: saue to burne sacrifice before him: sende me nowe therfore a connynge man to worke in golde, siluer, brasse, yron, scarlet, crewelyn, and Jacinct colour, and that can skyll to graue, to be with the connynge men that are with me in Juda and Jerusalem, whiche Dauid my father dyd prepare. And sende me also Cedar trees, fyre trees and * Algume trees out of Libanon. For I wote well thy seruauntes can skyll to hewe tymbre in Libanon. And loo, my men shalbe with thyne, that they may prepare me tymbre ynough. For the house which I buylde is great and wonderfull. And beholde, I gyue for thy seruauntes the cutters and hewers of tymbre twenty thousande quarters of wheate, and twentye thousande quarters of barleye, and twentye thousande bathes of wyne, and twenty thousand bathes of oyle.

And Hiram kynge of Tire answered in wry-

tynge and sent to Salomon: because the Lorde loueth his people, he hathe made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreouer blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, whiche hath made both heuen and erth, that he hath geuen Dauid the kynge a wyse sonne, ✠ hath discretion and vnderstandynge, to buylde an house for the Lorde, and an other for his kingdome. And nowe I haue sent a wyse man and D a man of vnderstandynge called Hiram Abi, ✠ is the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan, how be it his father was a Tirian) and he can skylfully worke in golde, syluer, braſſe, yron, stone, tymbre, scarlet, Jacinct, byse, and crymosin: and graue all maner of grauynges, and to fynde all maner sotle worke that shalbe set before hym, with thy cunnynge men, ✠ with the cunnynge men of my Lorde Dauid thy father. And nowe the wheat, barley, oyle and wyne whiche my Lorde hath sayde, sende hym vnder his seruauntes. And we wyll cutte wood out of Lybane, as moche as thou shalt nede and wyll brynge it to the in flyppes, by see to ioppe Jado: and thence thou mayste cause them to Jerusalem. And Salomon nombred all the straungers that were in the lande of Israel, after the tyme his father Dauid had nombred them. And they were founde an hundred and. lxx. thousande and fyue hundred.
And he set. lxx. thousande of them to beare burthens, and. lxxx. thousande to hewe in the mountayne, and thre thousande and fyue hundred to encourage and to set the people a worke.

¶ The temple of the Lorde and the porche are buylded with other thinges therto belongynge.

CAPI. III.

A Then Salomon began to buylde ✠ house
a1. Reg. vi. a of the Lorde, at Jerusalem, in mounte Moriah, which was shewed Dauid his father, where he prepared a place in the threshinge flower of Ornan the Jebusite. And he began to buylde the seconde daye of the seconde moneth, the fourthe yere of his raygne. And this is the foundacion of Salomon in buylduge the house of God. The length was the thre cubites after the old cubyte, ✠ the breede xx. And the porche at the ende was as large as the house breede twenty cubytes: the height was an hundred and twenty cubytes. And he
B ouerlayd it on the inner syde with pure gold.
And the great house he syled with fyrre tre, and ouerlayde it thrughout with good golde, ✠ graued therto palmetrees ✠ cheynes folduge in with lynckes. And he pauet the house with precious marbell goodly. And it was gold of Phetuaim. And he ouerlayde the house: both beames, postes, walles and wies with golde, and graued Cherubes vpon the walles.
And he made the house moste holye, whose length was twenty cubytes lyke to the breede of the house, and the breede thereof was also twenty cubytes. And he ouerlayde it with the best golde, that drue to the summe of fyre hundred talentes, he made also nayles of golde, ✠ the weyght of euery nayle of golde weyed fyfty sycles. And he ouerlayde the vpper chabres with golde.
And he made in the house moste holy two ✠ Cherubes of Image worke, and gylded them * Graue
C with golde. And the wynges of the Cherubes were twenty cubytes longe. The one wynge was fyue cubytes and touched the wal of the house, and the other wynge was lykewyse. v. cubytes and touched the wynge of the other Cherub. And the one wynge of the other Cherub was fyue cubytes, and touched the wall of the house, and the other wynge was fyue cubytes also, and reached to the wynge of the other Cherub. So that ✠ wynges of the fayre Cherubes raught twenty cubites. And they stode on their fete and loked inwarders. And he made a fayre hangynge of Jacynct colour, of D scarlet, crymosyne and byssi: and caused Cherubes to be bourdered theron. And he made before the house two pyllers of. xxxv. cubytes longe. And the hed that was aboue on the top of one of them was. v. cubytes. And he made suche chaynes as was in the quere, ✠ put them on the heedes of the pyllers, and made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on ✠ cheynes. And he reered vp the pyllers before the temple: one on the right hande and an other on ✠ lefte, and called the right Jachin and the lefte Boaz.

¶ The aulter of braſſe, the see, the vessell to washe with, the candelsticks &c.

CAPI. IIII.

A And he made an aulter of braſſe. xx. cubytes longe and. xx. cubytes brode and ten a cubytes hyghe. And he cast a brasen see
a1. Reg. vii. a. of ten cubytes from brym to brym, and round in compase and fyue cubytes hygh: and a lyne of thirty cubytes might haue copased it roundabout. And the lykenes of oxen dyd compase it roundabout vnder it: that is to wete, two rowes of oxen cast whiche when it was cast dyd compase that see which was ten cubytes wyde, roundeabout. And it stode also vpo. xii. oxen: of which three loked North, three West, three South, and three East, and the see vpon
B them about an hyghe, and the hynder partes of them inward. And the thicknes of it was an handebreede, and the brym lyke the brym of a cup, with flowres of lylyes. And it receyued ✠ bode thousand barthes.
And he made ten lauers: and put fyue on ✠ right hande and fyue on the left, to washe in. And in them they thrust the flesh of the burnt offeryuges. But the see was for the preastes, to washe in. And he made ten candelsticks of golde in their facyons, and put them in the temple: fyue on the right hande and fyue on the left. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the right hande and fyue on the left. And he made an hundred ba-C sens of golde. And he made the courte of the preastes, and the greate courte and doores to it: and ouerlayde the doores of them, with brasse

bralle. And he set the see in the ryghtsyde of ꝑ eaſt ende, towarde the ſouth. And Hiram made pottes, ſhouelles and baſens.

And Hiram fynyſhed the worke he made for kynge Salomon vnto the temple of God:
The two pyllers with theyr knoppes of ꝑ two bowles that were on the toppes of the pyllers and the two wreathes to couer the two knop-pes of the bowles that were on the toppes of the pyllers: and fourr hundred pomegranates for the two wreathes, two rowes of pomegranates for euery wreathe, to couer the two knop-pes of the bowles that were on the pyllers.
Also he made bottomes, and lauers vpon the bottomes: and the see with twelue oxen vnder
it. And theyr pottes, ſhouelles, fleſhe hokes, and all theyr veſſels dyd Hiram abi make for kyng Salomon for the houſe of the Lorde, of bryght braſſe. In the playne of Jordan dyd ꝑ kynge caſt them, in the thycke earthe, betweene Soccoth and Zaredatha. And made of all theſe veſſels in myghty great aboundance, that the weyght of braſſe could not be reckened.

And Salomon made all the veſſelles that pertayned to the houſe of God: the goldẽ aulter and the tables with the ſhewbred vpõ the the candleſtickes with theyr lampes to burne after the maner before the quere, and that of pure golde, and the flowres and the lampes, ꝑ
the inſtrs were golde, and that perfect golde:
and the braſſynge knyues, baſens, ſpones and cenſers of pure golde. And the ynner wyes of the place moſt holy, and the wyes of the temple, were golde. And thus was all the worke ꝑ Salomon made for the houſe of the Lorde fy-nyſhed.

And when the worcke that Salomon made in the houſe of the Lorde was fynyſhed: then Salomon broughte in the gyftes dedycate by David his father, the ſiluer and the golde and all the veſſels, and put them amonge the trea-ſure of the houſe of God.

¶ After the ſame houſes and the Arche were put in the temple, the glorye of the Lord fylled the temple.

CAPI. V.

THen Salomon gathered the elders of Iſrael together and al the heades of the tribes and auncient Lordes amonge the children of Iſrael, vnto Jeruſalem to brynge
the Arche of the couenaũt of the Lorde fourth of the cyte of David which is Sion. And all the men of Iſrael reſorted vnto the kynge in the feaſt of the ſeuenth moneth. And when al the elders of Iſrael were come, the Leuites toke vp the Arche, and the preeſtes and the Le-uites broughte awaye the Arche and the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and all the holye veſſelles that were in the tabernacle. And kynge Salomon and all the congregation of Iſrael that were aſſembled vnto him before the Arche, of ſtrẽ Oxen and ſheepe, ſo many that they couldẽ not be told or numbred for multitude. And the preeſtes broughte the Arche of the couenaũt of the Lorde vnto his place in the quere of the temple and place moſt holye: euen vnder the wynges of the Cherubes, that the Cherubes ſtretched oute theyr wynges ouer the place of the Arche and couered the arche and her ſtaues aboue on hyghe. And the ſtaues of the Arche, were ſo longe, that they were ſeene a lytle before the quere, but not ſeene without. And there it remayneth vnto this daye. Ther was there was nothynge in the Arche ſaue the two tables whiche Moyſes put therein at Horeb, which the Lorde had wrytten to the children of Iſrael, after theyr commynge forth fro̅me Egypte. And when the preeſtes were come oute of the holy place (for all the preeſtes that were founde there ſanctified theym ſelues and dyd not as yet at that tyme wayte by courſe) But the Leuites euery one of them that were vnder Aſaph, Heman and Jdithum, and amonge them children & brethren, were arayed in byſſe and ſange with Cymbales, pſalteries & har-pes ſtandynge eaſt fro̅me the aulter, and with them an hundred & twenty preeſtes blowynge trompettes. And the trumpet blowers and the ſingers ſo agreed, that it ſemed but one voyce in prayſynge and thankynge the Lorde. And as the voyce of the trompettes, ſymbales and in ſtrumentes of melody arose, ⁊ as they prayſſed the Lorde, that he was good and that his mercy laſteth euer, the houſe of the Lorde was fylled with a cloude: ſo that the preeſtes could not endure to miniſter by reaſon of the cloud.
For the glorye of the Lorde had fylled the houſe of God.

¶ The wordes of Salomon to the people, and the prayer he made to God.

CAPI. VI.

THen Salomon ſayde: The Lorde hathe
ſpoken, that he wyll dwell in darcknes.
And I haue buylt an habitacion for the
and a place to dwell in for euer. And the kyng turned his face and bleſſed the hole congrega-cion of Iſrael, and all the congregation of Iſ-rael ſtode. And he ſayde: bleſſed be the Lorde God of Iſrael whiche hathe wyth his mouthe to my father Dauid ꝑ hathe fulfylled it with his handes, for God ſayde: ſythens the tyme
I broughte my people oute of the lande of Egypte, I chooſe no cyte amonge all the tribes of Iſrael to buylde an houſe in, that my name myght be there, neyther chooſe I any man to be a ruler ouer my people Iſrael. But nowe
I haue choſen Jeruſalem to haue my name there, and haue choſen Dauid to be ouer my people Iſrael.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an houſe for the name of the Lorde God of Iſrael: But the Lorde ſayd to Dauid my father: for as muche as it was in thyne herte, to buylde an houſe for my name, thou dyddeſt well that thou hadeſt it in thyne herte. Howbeit notwithſtandynge thou ſhalt not buylde the houſe, but thy ſonne which ſhall come out of thy loynes, he ſhall buylde an houſe for my name. And the Lorde hathe made good his sayenge that he hathe spoken. For I arose in the rowme of David my father, and sate on the seate of Israell, as the Lord promysed, & have buylt an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And therin I have put ✠ arcke wherin the covenaunt of the Lord made with the children of Israel, is. And he stode before the aulter of the Lorde in the presence of all the congregation of Israell, and stretched out his handes, for Salomon had made a brasen pulpyt of fyve cubytes longe and. v. cubytes broade, and three of heyght, and had sette in the myddes of the great court, upon ✠ he stode and kneled downe upon his knees before all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out his handes to heaue and sayde: Lord God of Israel there is no God lyke the ether in heauen, or in earthe, which kepest covenaute and shewest mercy vnto thy servaunts, that walke before the with all their hertes. Which thou hast kept with David my father that thou promysedest him: thou spakest it w thy mouth and hast fulfilled it with thyne hand, as it is to se this daye.

Now Lorde God of Israel kepe with thy servaunt David my father, that thou promysedest him sayenge: ✠ thou shalt not be without one of other in my sight that shall sit vpō the seate of Israel, vpon this condicion yet, if thy children will take hede to their wayes to walke in my law, as thou hast walked before me. Now Lorde God of Israel let thy sayenge be true, whiche thou spakest vnto thy servaūt David. Howbeit in very dede, ✠ God dwell with man on earthe? Beholde, neyther heauen or heauen above all heauens is able to conteyne the: how shuld the house then whiche I have buylt for the be it? But turne to ✠ prayer of thy servaunt and to his supplicatiō (O Lorde my God) to hearken vnto the voyce and prayer which thy servaunte maketh before the. That thyne eyes be open ouer this house bothe day and night, and ouer the place of whiche thou hast sayde, that thou woldest put thy name there: to hearken vnto the prayer which thy servaunt prayeth at this place: herke ther fore vnto the prayers of thy servaunte and of thy people Israell, whiche they praye in this place. But heare thou it out of thy dwellinge place heauen: and when thou hearest it be mercyfull. ✠ If a man synne against his neyghbour, & an abiuracion be layde to his charge, to abiure him with all, and the abiuracion come before thyne aulter in this house: then heare thou from heauen, and worke & iudge thy servaūtes, that thou rewarde the cruell, and bringe his waye vpon his head, and iustifye the righteous, and gyue him according to his right mynded.

Lykewyse yf thy people Israel be put to ✠ worse before their enemyes, because they have synned against the: Yet yf they turne & confesse thy name, and make intercession and praye before the in this house: the heare thou from heauen and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bringe them agayne into the lande which thou gauest to them and to their fathers.

Yf heauen be shut vp, ✠ there be no rayne, because they have synned against the: yet yf they praye at this place and confesse thy name and turne from their synnes at thy scourging: then heare thou from heauen and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy servaūtes and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe the a good waye to walke in, and sende rayne vpon thy lande which thou hast gyuen vnto thy people for an enheritaunce.

Yf there chaunce darthe in the lande, pestilence, drought, or mylderwe, grashoppers or caterpillers, or that their ennemyes beseege them in the cytie of their owne land, or what so ever plage or sickenesse it be. Then all the supplications and prayers that shall be made of all men amonge all thy people Israel, which shall know euery men his owne sore and his owne grefe, and shall stretche out their handes towarde this house: thou shalt heare from heauen thy dwellynge place, and shalt be mercyfull, and gyue euery man accordinge vnto all his waye, euen as thou shalt knowe euery mans herte: for thou onely knowest the hertes of the childre of Adam: that they may feare the and walke in thy wayes as longe as they lyue vpon the earthe, which thou gauest to our fathers.

Moreouer a straunger which is not of thy people Israell, yf he come frome a farre lande for thy great names sake & thy myghty hande and stretched out arme, and to come and praye at this house: thou shalt heare him from heauen thy dwellynge place, and shalt do accordinge to all that the straunger calleth to the for: that all the nacyons of the erth may know thy name, and feare the, as doth thy people Israell: and that it maye be knowen that this house which I have buylt, is called after thy name.

When thy people shall go out to warre against their enemyes ✠ way ✠ thou shalt sende them: Yf they praye to the the waye towarde this cytie which thou hast chosen, and house which I have buylte for thy name: then heare frome heauen, their supplication and prayer, and helpe them in their right.

Yf they shall synne against the (as there is no man but that he shall synne) and thou be angrye with them and deliuer them to their enemyes, and they leade them awaye captyue vnto a lande farre or neare, yet yf their hertes come to them againe in the lande, where they be in captiuite, and turne and praye vnto the in the lande where they be in captiuite, sayeng we have synned and done euyll and wickedly, and turne againe to the, with all their hertes, & all their soules, in the lande of their captiuite where they be kept in bondage, and so praye towarde their lande which thou gauest vnto their fathers, and cytie whiche thou hast chosen, and to this house whiche I have buylt for thy name: Then heare frome heauen thy dwellinge place, their supplication & prayers, and iudge their cause, and be mercyfull vnto thy people, thoughe they have synned against the.

Now now my God let thyne eyes be open and and thyne eares attent vnto the prayers made in this place. And nowe therfore aryse Lorde God in thy restinge place: bothe thou and the Arche of thy strength, and let thy preastes put on victory and thy sayntes reioyse in goodnes And Lorde God turne not awaye the face of thyne annoynted: But remembre the mercyes promysed to Dauid thy seruaunt.

¶ The fyre consumeth the sacrifyce. The Lorde appeareth to Salomon the seconde tyme.

CAPI. VII.

1 When Salomõ had made an ende of prayenge, there came downe fyre frome heauen and consumed the burntoffring and the sacrifices. And the glory of the Lorde fylled the house: that the preastes coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glory of the Lorde had fylled the house of ℔ Lord.

☞ And all the children of Israel sawe howe the fyre came downe, and the glorye of the Lorde vpon the house, and stouped with their faces to the earthe vpon the pauement and bowed theym selues, and confessed vnto the Lorde, that he was good, and that his mercye lasted euer.

2 And the kynge and all the people offred offringes before the Lorde. So that kynge Salomon offred. xxii. thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousande shepe. And so the kynge and al the people halowed the house of God. And the preastes wayted on their offices and the Leuites with instrumentes of mulyke of the Lorde whiche kynge Dauid made to confesse vnto the Lorde that his mercy lasteth euer, when Dauid gaue prayse thorow their handes. And the preastes blewe trompettes fast by them: and all Israel stode. Moreouer Salomon halowed the myddle of the courte that was before the Lorde: for there he offred burntoffringes and the fat of the peaceoffringes, because the brasen aulter which Salomõ had made, was not able to receyue ℔ burntoffringes and the meatoffringes and the fat.

3 And Salomon kept a feast the same season of seuen dayes, and all Israell with him, an exceadinge great congregacion, euen frome the mouth vnto the ryuer of Egypte. And ℔ eyght daye they made a gatheringe. For they kepte the halowynge of the aulter seuen dayes and the feast seuen dayes. And the. xxiii. daye of ℔ seuenth moneth, he let the people departe into their tentes, glad and merye in hert for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid, to Salomon and to Israel his people.

Deut. 6. 2 Reg. 8. 4 And so Salomon fynyshed the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house, and all that came in his herte, to make in the house of the Lorde and in his owne house, and that prosperously.

☞ And the Lorde appeared to Salomon by nyght and sayde to him: I haue herde thy petition and haue chosen this place for my selfe, to be an house of sacrifice. Moreouer yf I shut vp heauen that there be no rayne, or yf I commaunde the grashoppers to deuoure the lande or yf I sende pestilence amonge my people: yet yf my people that are named after my name, shall humble them selues and make intercession and seke my presence, and turne from their wycked wayes, then will I heare frome heauen and be mercyfull to their synnes, and will heale their lãde. Furthermore myne eyes shal be open and myne eares attent vnto the prayers made in this place. And fynally I haue chosen & sanctified this house, that my name be there for euer, and myne eyes & myne herte shalbe there perpetually.

D And yf thou shalt walke before me as Dauid thy father walked, to do accordinge to al that I haue commaunded, and shalte kepe myne ordinaunces and my lawes: then I will stablysshe the seat of thy kyngdome, according to the couenaunt I made with Dauid thy father sayenge: * Thou shalt haue euer one of other that shall rule in Israel. But yf ye turne awaye and forsake myne ordinaunces and my commaundementes whiche I haue set before you, and shall go and serue other goddes and bowe your selues to them: then will I plucke them vp by the rootes out of my lande which I haue gyuen theym, and will cast this house which I haue sanctified for my name out of my sight, and will make a prouerbe and a tale of it amonge all nations. And this house that is so hyghe, shall be a wonder to all that passeth therby, that they shall saye: Why hathe the Lorde dealt on this fashion with this land and with this house? And it shall be answered them, because they forsoke the Lord God of their fathers whiche brought them out of the lande of Egypte, and claue to other goddes, and bowed to them and serued them: ful therfore brought he on them all this euyll. iii. Reg. 11. a. and. 12. b ii. Paral. 6. g

¶ The tyme that Salomon buylded after the house of God was fynyshed.

CAPI. VIII.

A Fter twenty yeres when Salomõ had buylte the house of the Lorde, and his owne house: he buylte the cytes that Hiram gaue him, and put certayne of the children of Israel in them. And Salomon went to Hemath Zobah and strengthed it. And he buylte Thadmor in the wylderneste and all ℔ store cytes which he buylt in Hemath. And he buylt Bethhoron the vpper and Bethhoron the nether, and made them stronge cytes with walles, gates and barres. And Baalath and all the store cytes that Salomon had, and all the charet cytes and the cytes of horsmen, & all that Salomon had lust to buylde in Jerusalem and Libanon, and thorowoute all the lande of his dominion. A iii. Reg. 9. d.

B And all the people that were left of the Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites and Iebusites, whiche were not of the children of Israel: euen the children of them, whiche were leste after them in the lande, and were not consumed of the children of Israel, vpo Salomõ make tributaries vnto this daye. But of the children of Israel dyd Salomō make no bōd-men in his worke: but they were men of war and rulers and greate Lordes with him, and capitaynes ouer his charettes and horsemen.

And kynge Salomons officers that ouerlawe and ruled the people, were two hundred and fyftye.

And Salomō brought the doughter of Pharao out of the cyte of Dauid vnto the house he had made for her. For he sayde: my wyfe shall not dwell in the house of Dauid kynge of Israell, for ires holy, because the Arche of the Lorde came vnto it.

And frome thenceforthe Salomon offered burntesacrifices vnto the Lorde on the aultare of the Lorde whiche he had buylt before the porche to offer daye by daye accordinge to the commaundment of Moses, and in the sabbo-thes and newmones, and the three solemne festes of the yere, the feast of swete bred, the feast of weekes and the feast of boothes.

And Salomon assigned the preastes euery man to his office as Dauid his father had ordered them, and the Leuites vnto their office, for to praise and minister before the preastes daye by daye, and the porters by courte at eu-ery gate. For so hadde Dauid the man of God commaunded. And the commaundmente of the kynge vnto the preastes and the Leuites concernynge what to euer cause it was, and concernyng the treasures, was not disobeyed.

And all the worke of Salomon went well forwarde euen frome the daye of the foundacion of the house of the Lorde was layde: tyll
he had fynyshed it, that the house of the Lord was perfect. And then went kynge Salomon to Asion Gaber, and to Eloth and to the sea syde in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sent him by the handes of his seruauntes, shippes & sernauntes that couthe skill of the see: Whiche went with the seruantes of Salomon to Ophir, and brought thence foure hundred and fyftye talentes of golde, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

¶ The communication of Salomon with the quene of Saba, and the giftes that the one gaue the other. The death of Salomon: after whome succeedeth Roboam.

CAPI. IX.

A And the quene of Saba herde of the fame of Salomon and came to proue him with rydelles at Jerusalem, with a very great companye, and with camelles that bare swete odoures and plenteye of golde and precious stone. And when she was come to Salomon, she communed with him of al that was in her herte. And Salomon solued her al her questions, that there was nothynge hyd frome Salomon, which he tolde her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene the wysdome of Salomon and the house that he had buylt, and the meat of his table and the sitynge of his seruauntes, and the standynge of his wayters, and their apparell, and his butlers and their apparel, and his passage out of whiche he went into the house of the Lorde, she was so astonyed that there was no more hert in her.

And then she sayde to the kynge: the sayinge whiche I herde in myne owne lande, of thyne B actes and of thy wysdome, is truthe. But I beleued not the wordes of theym, vntyll I came and myne eyes hadde sene it. And lo, the one halfe of thy wysdome was not tolde me:
thou exceedst the fame that I herde, happy are thy men, and happy are these thy seruauntes which stande before the alwaye and heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lorde thy God whiche had lust to the, to make the, kynge on his state, vnto the Lorde thy God. Because thy God loued Israel, to make them continewe euer, therfore made he the kynge ouer them to do right and equite.

And she gaue the kynge an hundred and xx. C talentes of golde, and of swete odoures excedynge great aboundaunce with precious stones, that there was no such swete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue kynge Salomon.
And moreouer the seruauntes of Hiram and the seruauntes of Salomon whiche brought golde frome Ophir, brought also * Algume wood and precyous stones. And the kynge made of the Algume wood steyres in the house of the Lorde and in the kynges palace, & har-pes and psalteries for singers. And there was D no suche wood sene before in the lande of Juda. And kynge Salomon gaue to the quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked aboue that she brought vnto the kyng. And so she turned and went awaye to her owne lande with her seruauntes.

* Or Almug of whō ye .iij. Reg. x.

The somme of golde that came to Salomon yere by yere, was sixe hundred. lxvi. ta-lentes of golde, besydes that which chapmen and marchauntes brought, and all the kynges of Arabia, and Dukes of countreyes brought golde and syluer to Salomon. And kynge Salomō made two hundred bokelers of golde. iij. hundred sycles of beten golde to a bokelar: and three hundred shyldes of beaten golde, three hundred sycles of golde to a shylde, and he put them in the house of the forest of Libanon.

And the kynge made a great state of Iuory E and ouerlayde it with pure golde. And there were sixe steppes to the seate with a footestole of golde fastened to the seate: and pomelles on eche syde of the sittinge place, and two lyons standinge by the pomelles. And. xii. Lyons stoode on the one syde and on the other, vpon sixe steppes, that there was no suche in any kyngdome.

And all the drynkynge vessels of kyng Salomon were golde, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Libanō, were pure gold, & as for syluer, it was counted nothynge worth in the dayes of Salomō. For the kynges ship-pes went * to Tharsis with the seruantes of Hiram euery thre yere ones. And the shippes of Tharsis brought golde, syluer, the tethe of Elephantes, apes and peacockes.

* Or ouer the see vnto Tharsis kynde.

And kynge Salomon passed al the kynges
of the

of the earthe in rychesse and wysdome. And all the kynges of the earthe soughte the presence of Salomon, to heare the wysdome that God hadde put in his herte. And they brought euerye man his presente in vessellres of syluer, and vesselles of golde, and raymente, harnesse, swete odoures, horses and mules, yere by yere.

And Salomon had foure thousande maungers of horses and charettes for them, and.xii. thousande horsemen. And he bestowed them in the charet cityes, and with the kynge at Jerusalem. And he raygned ouer al the kinges from Euphrates, vnto the lande of the Philistines, and so to the borders of Egypt. ✠ And the kinge made syluer in Jerusalem as plentrous as stones, and Cedar trees as plentrous as the mulberye trees that grow in the valeyes. And Salomon had horses brought him out of Egypt, and out of all landes.

✠ The rest of the actes of kynge Salomon bothe fyrste and laste, are wrytten in the boke of Nathan the Prophete, and in the prophesye of Ahiah the Silonite, and in the vysyons of Jadi the sear of vysyons agaynste Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when Salomon had raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israell fourtye yeres, he layde hym to reste with his fathers, and was buryed in the citye of David his father, and Roboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ The foolishnesse of Roboam, and the deuysion of his realme.

CAPI. X.

AND Roboam wente to Sichem: for to Sichem were all Israel come to make him kynge. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat beynge in Egypt herde it (for he was fled for feare of Salomon the kynge) he returned out of Egypte. And they sent and called him. And so Jeroboam and all Israell came and communed with Roboam and sayd. Thy father made vs a greuous yoke: but make thou nowe somwhat of the greuous seruyce of thy father, and of his heuye yoke that he put vpon vs, and we wyll serue the. And he sayde to them: come agayne after thre dayes to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Roboam counselled with the elders that stode before Salomon his father, whyle he lyued, and sayde: What counsell geue ye me, to answere this people agayne? And they tolde him sayinge: yf thou wylte be kynde to this people and please them, and wylte speake louynge wordes to them, they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he lefte the counsell whiche the elders gaue him, and toke counsell with the younge men that were nourisshed vp with hym, and dayly stande in his presence, and sayde to them: What aduyse geue ye, that I may answere this people whiche haue communed with me, sayinge: Abate somwhat of the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the younge men that were nourished vp with him, talked with him, sayinge: thus answere the people that spake to the, sayinge. Thy father made our yoke heuye: But make thou ours yoke somwhat lighter. Thus wyse answere them: My lytle fynger shall be heuyer then my fathers loynes. ✠ For where my father put a heuye yoke vpon you, I wyll put more therto / & where my father chastised you with whippes, I wyl chastise you with Scorpyons. Nowe when Jeroboam and all Israel were come the thyrde daye, as the kynge bad, sayinge: come agayne to me the thyrde daye: The kynge answered them cruelly: for kyng Roboam lefte the counsell of the aged men, & answered them after the aduyse of the yonge men, sayinge: Yf my father haue made yours yoke greuous, I wyll adde therto / and where my father chastised you with whippes, I will chastise you with scorpions. And so the kynge harkened not vnto the people / for the turnyng awaye was of God, that the Lorde myghte make good his sayinge whiche he spake by the hande of Ahiah the Silonite to Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when all Israel saw that the kynge wolde not heare them, the people answered the kynge sayinge: what part haue we with David, or enheritaunce with the son of Jai? let euery mā of Israel go to his tent. ✠ And nowe David se to thyne owne house. And therupon all Israell gatte them to theyr tentes / so that Roboam raygned ouer no mo of the children of Israel then dwelte in the cityes of Juda. Then kyng Roboam sent to the Hadoram that was ouer the trybute, and the children of Israel stoned him with stones that he dyed. But kynge Roboam made spede and gat him vp to his charet to fle to Jerusalem. And so Israel departed from the house of David vnto this daye.

¶ Roboam is forbydden to fyghte agaynste Jeroboam. He hathe eyghteene wyues and thre score concubines: and by them eyght and twentye sonnes and three score daughters.

CAPI. XI.

AND when Roboam was come to Jerusalē, he gathered of the house of Dauid and Benjamin to the nombre of nyne score thousande chosyn men of warre to fyghte with Israell / for to brynge the kyngdome agayn to Roboam. But the worde of the Lord came to Semeiah the man of God, sayinge: speake vnto Roboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Juda, and to all Israell that are in Juda, and to Benjamin, and saye: thus sayth the Lorde. Go not nor fyght with your brethre: but returne euerye man to his house / for this thing is done of me. And they obeyed the wordes of the Lorde, and returned from goynge agaynst Jeroboam.

And Roboam dwelte in Jerusalem & buylt stronge cityes in Juda: as Bethlehem, Etam, and Thekua: Bethsur, Socho, and Odullam: Geth, Maresah and Ziph: Aduraim, Lachis and Azecah: Zorah, Aialon, & Hebron. Which were the stronge cityes of Juda, & Benjamin.

And

And when he hadde repayred suche stronge cities, he put capitaynes in them, and store of victayle, and of oyle, and of wyne. And he ordeyned in all cities shyldes and speres, and made them exceadyng stronge. And so Juda and Benjamin were vnder him.

And the preestes and the Leuites that were in all Israell resorted to him oute of all theyr coostes. In so moche that the Leuites lefte theyr suburbes and possessions and came to Juda and Jerusalem: for Jeroboam and his sonnes had cast them oute from ministrynge vnto the Lorde. * And he ordeyned him preestes of hyllauntces, bothe to sylue deuylles, and also to the calues whiche he hadde made. And after them there came of all the tribes of Israel (such as theyr hertes moued them to) to the Lorde God of Israell) to Jerusalem to offre vnto the Lord God of theyr fathers. So they strengthed the kyngdom of Juda, and made Roboam the sonne of Salomon mygthy thre yere long: for thre yere they walked in the waye of Dauid and Salomon.

And Roboam toke him Mahalath daughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wife: and Abihail the doughter of Eliab the sonne of Jsai, whiche bare him children: Jeus, Samariah and Zaham. And after her, he toke Maacah the doughter of Absalom, whiche bare him Abiah, Ethai, Ziza and Salumith. But Roboam loued Maacah the doughter of Absalom aboue all his other wyues and concubynes: for he toke eyghtene his wiues, and thre score concubynes, and begate thre score doughters, and eyght and twenty sonnes. And Roboam made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the chyefe ruler amonge his brethren, for to make him kynge. And he played a wyse parte, and scattered of all his children throw out all the countreyes of Juda and Benjamin in euery stronge city. And he gaue them aboundaunce of victayle, and asked many wyues.

¶ Sesac kynge of Egypt robbeth the temple of the Lorde. Roboam dyeth, and Abiah his sonne succedeth him.

CAPI. XII.

AND when Roboam had stablysshed the kyngdome and made it stronge he forsoke the lawe of the Lorde, and all Jsrael with him. * Wherfore the fyfte yere of kynge Roboam, Sesac the kynge of Egypte came vp agaynste Jerusalem (because they had trespassed agaynste the Lorde) with twelue hundred charetes, and thre score thousande horsemen. And the people were without nombre that came with hym forth of Egypte, with them of Libia, and the Sochites, and the blackemoores. And they toke the stronge cytyes that were in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

Then came Semeiah the prophete to Roboam, and to the lordes of Juda that were gathered to Jerusalem for feare of Sesac, and sayd to them: thus sayeth the Lorde: Ye haue lefte me, and therfore will I leaue you also in the handes of Sesac. Wherupon the lordes of Jsrael and the kyng humbled them selues and sayd: the Lorde is rygh teous. And when the Lorde sawe that they submitted them selues, the worde of the Lorde came to Semeiah, sayenge: they meke them selues, and therfore I wyll not destroye them. But I will deliuer them somwhat, and my wrath shall not fall vpon Jerusalem. Neuertheles they shall be his seruauntes, to knowe what difference is betwene me and the seruice of the kyngdomes of other landes. So Sesac kynge of Egypte came to Jerusalem, and toke away the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kynges house, and shortly he toke all. And he toke also the shyldes of golde whiche Salomon made. In stede of whiche kyng Roboam made shyldes of braste, and put them in the keppynge of the capitaynes of his garde, whiche watched in the gate of the kynges house. And as often as the kynge went to the house of the Lorde, the garde went and fet them, and brought them agayne vnto the garde chambre. And so because he humbled him selfe, the wrathe of the Lorde turned from him, and destroyed not all together. And moreouer there were many good thynges yet in Juda.

So kynge Roboam waxed mygthye in Jerusalem and raigned. And Roboam was one and fourty yere old when he was made king, and he raigned seuentene yere in Jerusalem the citye whyche the Lorde had chosen oute of all the tribes of Jsrael, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah, an Ammonite. * And he dyd euyll, for he prepared not his herte to seke the Lorde. The actes of Roboam first and last, are written in the sayinges of Semeiah the prophete, and of Ido the sear of vysyons, so moche as they recorde his genealogye, and the perpetuall warre that was betwene Roboam and Jeroboam duryng theyr lyfe. And Roboam layd him to slepe with his fathers, and was buryed in the cyte of Dauid, and Abia his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ The vyctorye of Abia agaynste Jeroboam.

CAPI. XIII.

THe eyghteenth yere of kynge Jeroboam began Abia to raygne ouer Juda, and he raigned thre yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Michaiah, the doughter of Uriel of Gabaad. And there was warre betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia made a battayle with an hoste of fyghtynge men, of foure hundred thousande chosen men. And Jeroboam put in araye to fyghte agaynste hym, with eyght hundred thousande pyked men and stronge.

And Abia stode vp vpon Zemaraim an hyll in mount Ephraim, and sayd: Heare me thou Jeroboam and all Jsrael. Becommeth it not you to knowe that the Lorde God of Jsrael gaue the kyngdome of Jsrael to Dauid for euer: euen to hym and to his sonnes, with a stablished couenaunt? But Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat

Nabat, the seruaunt of Salomon, the sonne of Dauid rebelled agaynste the Lorde. And there gathered to hym lewde men and vnthryftes, and preuayled agaynst Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was yonge and tender hertes, and not stronge ynoughe for them.

And nowe ye thynke to preuayle agaynste the kyngdome of the Lorde in the hande of the sonnes of Dauid, bicause ye be a greate multitude, and haue with you the golden calues whiche Jeroboam made you for goddes. And haue ye not caste oute the preestes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the Leuites, and haue made you preestes lyke the nacions of other landes: euen who so euer commeth and consecrateth his hande with an ore, and seuen rammes, the same is made preest to them that are no goddes.

But with vs is the Lorde our God whom we haue not forsaken, and the preestes of the sonnes of Aaron ministrynge vnto the Lorde, and the Leuites in ofyce busynesse vnto the Lorde euery mornyge and euery euen burnt offrynges, & swete incense: and the shewbreed put in ordre vpon a pure table: and the candlestyche of golde, with the lampes of the same, to be lyght euery euen. For we kepe the watch of the Lorde our God: But ye haue forsaken him. Wherefore, beholde, God is with vs in the forewarde, and his preestes and the resynge trompettes to rere alarum agaynste you. O children of Israel fyght not with the Lorde God of youre fathers: for it wyll not prospere with you. But for al that, Jeroboam sent men priuily about to come behynde vpon them: and so they were before Juda, and the layers in wayte were behynde them. And whe Juda tourned and sawe the battayle behynde and before, they cryed vnto the Lorde, and the preestes blewe the trompettes, and the men of Juda gaue a shoute. And as the men of Juda shouted, God smote Jeroboam and all Israel before Abia and Juda. And the children of Israel fledde before Juda, and the Lorde deliuered them in to the handes of Juda. And Abia and his people slewe a greate slaughter of them: so that there were stryken downe of Israell, fyue hundred thousande chosen men. And so the children of Israell were brought vnder at that tyme, and the children of Juda preuayled, bycause they leaned vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And Abia folowed after Jeroboam, and wanne certayne cityes from him: Bethel, with townes belongynge thereto, and Jesanah with the townes that longed thereto, and Ephron with her townes. And Jeroboam recouered not strengthe agayne in the dayes of Abia. At laste the Lorde plaged hym that he dyed.

And Abia waxed myghtye, and toke hym fourtene wyues, and begat two and twentye sonnes, and sixtene doughters. The reste of the actes of Abia, and his wayes and doynges, are wrytten in the hystorye of the prophete Ido. And when Abia was layde to slepe with his fathers, they buryed hym in the cyte of Dauid. And Asa his sonne raygned in his stede. In whose dayes the lande was quyet tenne yeres.

¶ Abia dyeth, after whom succeedeth Asa.

CAPI. XIIII.

ASa dyd that was good and ryghte in the eyes of the Lorde his God, and toke awaye the aulters of straungers, & the hyllaulters, and brake the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of their fathers, and to be actyue vnto the lawe and commaundement. And he put awaye out of all the cityes of Juda, the hyllaulters and the floles: for ỹ kyngdome was quiet before him. And he built stronge cityes in Juda, bicause the land was in rest, & he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had gyuen him rest. A 2. Reg. 15. 2. Asa.

And therfore he sayd to Juda: let vs builde these cityes, and compasse them with walles and towres, gates and barres, whyle we haue the lande quiet. For we haue sought the Lord our God: and bicause we haue sought him, he hathe gyuen vs rest on euery syde. And so they builte and prospered. And Asa had an armye that bare shylde and spere, oute of Juda thre hundred thousande, and oute of Benjamin that bare shilde and bewe bowes, two hundred and foure score thousande, and were all stronge men. B

And there came oute agaynste them Zarah the Mozian, with an host of ten hundred thousande, and thre hundred charettes, and came as ferre as Maresa. And Asa wente oute to him, and they put in araye to battayle in the valeye of Zephatah beside Maresa. And Asa cryed vnto the Lord his God, and sayd: Lorde it is all one with the, to helpe them that haue no power, with fewe or with manye: helpe vs O Lorde our God for we trust to the, and in thyne name we be come agaynste this multytude. Thou arte the Lorde our God, let not man preuayle against the. And the Lord smote the blacke Moxes before Asa and Juda, that they fled. And Asa and the people that was with him, pursued them as farre as Gerar. And the blacke Moxes were ouerthrowen, that there remayned none alyue of them, but were destroyed of the Lorde, and of his hoste: they toke also a mighty great pray. And they smote all the cityes rounde about Gerar. For the feare of the Lorde came vpon them. And they robbed all the cityes, for there was exceadynge moche to be robbed in them. Furthermore they smote the tentes of the cattel, and caried away plenty of sheepe, and camelles, and so returned to Jerusalem. C D ¶ Hyrye Asa by the meanes of the Prophet Azaria after he had put away the Idolles, exhorteth to the Lorde. He deposeth his mother of her dignitie.

CAPI. XV.

And

A And the spirite of God came on Jaaziel the sonne of Obed. And he went out against Asa, and sayde to hym: heare me Asa and all Juda and Ben Jamin. The Lorde is with you whyle ye be with him / and yf ye shall seke him, he will be founde of you: but yf ye shall forsake him, he will forsake you.

Ther will come manye dayes in Israell, in whiche there shall be no true God nor preeste that teacheth, nor anye lawe. And in their tribulacion they shall tourne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and shall seke him, and he shall be founde of them. And in those dayes there shall be no peax to them that goo oute and in. But great veracion on euery syde vpon the inhabitoures of all landes. For one nacion shall destroye an other, and one citye an other: for God will vexe them with all aduersitie. But plucke you vp youre hertes, and let not youre handes faynte, for youre workes shall be rewarded.

B When Asa herde those wordes and the Prophetye of Jaaziel the sonne of Obed the Prophete, he toke courage & put awaye the abhominacions oute of all the lande of Juda and Ben Jamin, and oute of the cityes whiche he wanne in mounte Ephraim, and renued the auter of the Lorde that was before the porche of the Lorde. And he gathered all Juda and Ben Jamin, and the straungers with them out of Ephraim, Manasses, and Simeon. For there fell manye to him oute of Israell, when they sawe that God was with him. And they C assembled at Jerusalem the thyrde moneth of the fyftene yere of the raygne of Asa. And they offered vnto the Lorde the same tyme of the spuyle whiche they had brought hre, seuen hundred oxen, and seuen thousande shepe. Then they made a couenaunt to seke the Lord God of their fathers, with all their hertes, and all their soules: so that all that soughte not the Lord God of Israel, shold dye for it whether he were small or greate, man or woman. And they sware vnto the Lord with a loude voyce and showtyng, and with trompettes and hornes. And al Juda reioyced in the othe, for they D had sworne with all their hertes, and soughte him with all their luste, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde about. Furthermore kynge Asa put Maacah his mother oute of auctorite, bycause she had made an ydoll in a groue: and brake downe her ydoll, and stampte it and burnte it by the brooke Cedron. But they put not the hyllaulters out of Israel: neuertheles the herte of Asa was pure all his lyfe. And he broughte in to the house of God the dedicate gyftes whiche he and his father hadde dedicate, in golde, syluer, and other iewelles. And there was no more warre vnto the fyue and thyrtye yere of the raygne of Asa.

¶ Asa, forfeare of Baasa kynge of Israel, maketh a bondemente with Benhadad kynge of Syria.

CAPI. XVI.

IN the fyue and thyrtye yere of the raygne of Asa, came Baasa kynge of Israell agaynste Juda, and buylte Ramah, to the entent he wolde let none that pertayned to Asa kynge of Juda haue passage in and out. Wherupon Asa let syluer and golde forth of the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and of the kynges houle, and sent it to Benhadad kyng of Syria that dwelt at Damasco, and sayd. There is a leage betwene me and the, and so was betwen my father and thyne, wherfore I haue sent the sylucr and golde, that thou goo and breake thyne appoyntment with Baasa kynge of Israel, that he may depart from me. And Ben hadad graunted vnto kynge Asa, and sent the capitaynes of his armye agaynst the citycs of Israel. And they beat Ijon, Dan, Abelmaim, and all the fayre citycs of Nephthali. But whe Baasa herde this, he lefte buylynge of Ramah, and lette his worke ceasse. And then Asa the kyng toke al Juda, and caryed away stones and tymbre of Ramah, wherwith Baasa was a buylynge: and he buylte therwith Gabaa and Maspha.

E At that same tyme Hanani the sear, came to Asa kynge of Juda, and sayde to hym: bycause thou trustest in the kynge of Syria, and trustest not in the Lorde thy God, therfore is the hoste of the kynge of Syria escaped oute of thyne handc. Were not the blacke Moores and they of Libia a greate hoste, with exceadynge manye charettes and horsemen? And yet bycause thou trustedest in the Lorde, he delyuered them in to thyne handc. For the eyes of the Lorde beholde all the earthe, to strengthe the hertes of them that are hole with hym. Herein thou hast wone folyshely / and therfore frome hencefoorthe thou shalte haue warre.

Wherupon Asa was wroothe with the Sear, and put him in prysone, for he was displeased with hym bycause of that. Moreouer Asa oppressed certayne of the people the same season.

D The dedes of Asa bothe first and laste, are written in the boke of the kinges of Juda and Israell. And the nyne and thyrtye yere of his raygne, Asa fell sycke of his feete, and that his disease exceded. And besyde this in his sickenesse he asked no counsell of the Lorde, but of physicions. And at the laste Asa fell on slepe with his fathers, and dyed when he hadde raygned one and fourtye yere. And they buryed hym in his owne sepulchre whiche he had made in the citye of Dauid, and layd him in the bed which he hadde filled with swete odoures of dyuers kyndes, made by the craft of the potecaryes. And they dyd exceadynge great coste aboute buryinge of him.

¶ Josaphat succeedeth after Asa, whiche ruleth the feare of the Lorde to be renued among the people.

CAPI. XVII.

A And Josaphat his sonne raygned in his stede, and mightyer then Israell. And he put soudyoures in all the stronge cytes tyes of Juda, & set rulers bothe in the lande of Juda, and also in the citys of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wonne. And the Lord was with Josaphat, bycause he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, and sought not Baals: But sought the Lorde God of his father, and walked in his commaundements, and not after the doynges of Israell. Therfore the Lorde stablysshed the kingdome in his hande, and all Juda brought him presentes, that he became excedynge ryche and glorious. And his herte was courageous in the wayes of the Lorde, and he put downe yet more of the hyllaulteres and groues out of Juda.

In the thyrde yere of his raygne he sente of his Lordes: Benhail, Abdias, Zacharias, Nathanael, and Michaas to teache in the cytyes of Juda: and with them Semeias, Nathamah, Zabadiah, Asahel, Semiramoth, Jonathan, Adonias, Thobias, and Thobadonias Leuites: and with them Elisama and Joram preestes. And they taughte in Juda, and had the boke of the law with them, and went about thorow out all the cytyes of Juda and taught the people.

And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all the kyngdomes of the landes that were rounde about Juda, that they durst not warre with Josaphat. And the Philistines brought Josaphat giftes and tribute sluer. And therto the Arabians broughte him of hepe, seuen thousande and seuen hundred rammes, and seuen thousande and seuen hundred he gotes. And so Josaphat prospered and grewe vp on hygh, and he buylte in Juda castelles and store cytyes, and had great substaunce in the cytyes of Juda, and stoute men and men of myghte in Jerusalem.

And this is the order in the houses of their fathers of the capitaynes ouer thousandes in Juda: Adnah the capitayne, and with him of stoute men, thre hundred thousande. And next to him Johanan a capitayne, and with him two hundred and foure score thousande. And by his syde Amasias the sonne of Zechri wyllynge vnto the Lorde, and with him two hundred thousande myghtye men. And of the children of Benjamin, Eliada was a man of myght, and had with him armed with bowes and shyldes, two hundred thousande. And by his syde Jozabad, with whom were an hundred and foure score thousande furnysshed for warre. These waited on the king, besydes those which the king had put in stronge cytyes thorow out all Juda.

¶ After Achab had asked counsell of the foure hundred Prophetes, he putteth Michees in prison. He dyeth with the shott of an arowe.

CAPI. XVIII.

1 Reyms. 22

AND Josaphat became hepe ryche & glorious/and toyned alyaunce with Achab. And after certayne yeres he went downe to Achab to Samaria. And Achab slewe hepe and oxen plenteously for him, and for the people that came with him, and intreated him to go vp vnto Ramoth in Galaad. And Achab kyng of Israel sayd to Josaphat kyng of Juda: wilt thou go with me to Ramoth in Galaad? And he answered him, I wyll be as thou, & my people shall be as thyne, and we wyll be with the in the warres.

And Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: aske I praye the, the worde of the Lord. And the kynge of Israel gathered togyther of the prophetes foure hundred men, and sayd vnto them: shall we goo to Ramoth in Galaad to fyght, or shall I cease? And they sayde, goo: the Lorde shal deliuer it in to the kinges hand. And Josaphat sayd: Is there yet here neuer a prophete more of the Lorde, that we myghte aske of him? And the kynge of Israell sayd to Josaphat: there is yet one, to aske the Lorde by him: But I hate him, for he neuer prophesyeth me good, but alwaye euyll, one Michees the sonne of Jemla. And Josaphat sayde: let not the kynge saye so. Then the kynge of Israell called one of his chamberlaynes, and sayde: fetche hyther quyckly Michees the son of Jemla. And the kynge of Israell, and Josaphat kyng of Juda, late eyther of them on his state in their apparell, in a threshynge floore beyde the gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophesyinge before them. And one Sedechias the sonne of Chanaana made him hornes of yron, and sayde, thus sayth the Lorde: with these thou shalte pushe Syria, vntyll thou hede broughte them to nought. And all the prophetes prophesied euen so, sayinge: goo vp to Ramoth in Galaad and prospere, for the Lorde shall deliuer it in to the hande of the kynge. And the messenger that went to call Michees, spake to him, sayinge: behold the wordes of the prophetes are pleasaunt to the kynge with one assent, lette thy wordes I praye the, be lyke one of theirs, and speake that whiche is pleasaunt. And Michees sayde: as truly as the Lord lyueth, euen what my God sayth, that wyll I speake. And when he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayd to him: Michees, shall we goo to Ramoth in Galaad to fyght, or shall I be in rest? And he answered: go ye and prospere, for the Lorde shall deliuer it in to youre handes. But the kynge sayde to him: how often tymes shall I adiure the that thou saye nothyng but truthe to me in the name of the Lorde.

Then he sayd: I se al Israel scattered in the mountaynes, as shepe that haue no shepeherd. And the Lorde sayd: these haue no master, let them returne euery man to his house in peace. Then sayde the kynge of Israell to Josaphat: dyd I not tell the that he wolde not prophesye good vnto me, but euyll? And he answered: therfore heare ye the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sytte vpon his state, and all the company of heuen standynge on his right hande and on his lefte. And the Lorde sayde: who shal deceyue Achab kynge of Israel, that he may go and be ouerthrowen at Ramoth in Galaad. And whyle one sayd thus, & an other that, there came out a spirite and stode before the the Lorde and sayd: I wyll deceyue him. And the Lord sayd to him, how? And he sayd I wyl go out, and wyll be a lyenge spirite in ꝑ mouthes of all the Prophetes. And the Lorde sayd thou shalte deceyue him, and shalte preuayle, go out and do euen so. And nowe beholde the Lorde hath put a lying spirite in the mouthes of all these thy Prophetes, and yet the Lorde hath spoken euyll agaynste the. And Sedechias the sonne of Canana went and smote Michees vpon the cheke, and sayd: by what way wente the spirite of the Lorde fromme me, to speake in the? And Michees sayde: thou shalt se the daye when thou shalte runne from chamber to chambre for to hyde the selfe. Then sayd the kynge of Israel: take ye Michees, and bringe him to Amon the gouernour of the citye, and to Joas the kynges sonne, and saye, thus sayth the kynge: put this felawe in prison, & fede him with breed of sorowe, and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. And Michees sayd: yf thou come agayne in peace, then hath not the Lorde spoken in me. And Michees sayd moreouer: harken ye people euery one of you. And so the kynge of Israell and Josaphat the kynge of Juda wente vp to Ramoth in Galaad. Then sayd the kynge of Israel to Josaphat: I wyl chaunge my clothes and get me to battayle, but se thou haue thyne owne apparel vpon the. And the kyng of Israel chaūged him selfe, and they went to battayle. But the kynge of Syria commaunded the capitaynes of his charettes, sayinge: se ye fyghte not agaynst small ne great, saue agaynst the kynge of Israel onely.

And when the capitaynes of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they had thoughte he had ben the kynge of Israell, and therfore compassed him, to fyghte. But Josaphat cryed oute, and the Lorde holpe him, and God tourned them awaye from him. For when the capitaynes of the charettes perceyued that it was not the kynge of Israell, they tourned backe agayne from him. And a certayne man drewe his bowe at auenture, and smote the kynge of Israel betwene the ioyntes of his habergyne. And he sayde to the charet man, tourne thyne hande and carye me oute of the hoste, for I am hurte. And the battayle was sore that daye. Now be it the kyng of Israel contynued standynge in his charet agaynste the Syrians vntyll euen. And about the sonne goynge downe, he dyed.

¶ After Josaphat was rebuked by the Prophete Jehu, he called agayne the people to the honouryng of the Lorde God.

CAPI. XIX.

Then Josaphat kynge of Juda retourned to his house safe and sound to Jerusalē. And Jehu the sonne of Hanani the sear, went out agaynst him, and sayd to kynge Josaphat: oughtest thou to helpe the wycked, and to loue theym that hate the Lorde? For this cause is the wrath of the Lorde vpon the. Neuertheles there are good thynges founde in the, in that thou haste put awaye the consecrate groues oute of the lande, and haste prepared thyne herte to seke God. And as Josaphat dwelte at Jerusalem, he wente agayne amonge the people fromme Berlabe to mounte Ephraim, and broughte them agayne vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And he set Judges in the lande, throwe oute all the stronge cityes of Juda, citye by citye, and sayde to the Judges: take hede what ye do, for ye be not Judges in the lawe of man, but of God, which is with you in the woordes of the lawe. Wherfore let the feare of the Lorde be with you, and take hede and do it. For there is no vnrighteousnesse in the Lorde our God, nor regardynge of personnes, nor takynge of rewardes.

Moreouer in Jerusalem dyd Josaphat appoynt certayne of the Leuites & the preestes, and of the auncient heades of Israell, ouer the customes of the Lorde, and causes of ryght. Whiche wente, they retourned to Jerusalem. And he charged them, sayinge: do euen so in the feare of the Lorde, with trueth and pure herte. And what so euer come to you of your brethren that dwelle in their cytyes, betwene bloude and bloude, lawe, commaundemente, ordinaunces and customes: se ye warne them that they trespace not agaynst the Lorde, leest wrathe come vpon you, and on your brethren. Thus do, and ye shall not offende. And se here Amariah the preeste, whiche is heade ouer you in all matters of the Lorde, and Zabadiah the sonne of Ismael, a ruler in the house of Juda, he is ouer all causes concernynge the kynge, with officers of the Leuites before you. Take courage to you, and goo vpon it, and the Lorde shall be with the good.

¶ The meruaylous victory that the Lorde gaue Josaphat kynge of Juda agaynst the Moabites, and the chyldren of Ammon, and them of Seir.

CAPI. XX.

After this came the chyldren of Moab, & the chyldren of Ammon, and with them a companye of the Ammonites agaynst Josaphat to battayle. And there came ꝑ tolde Josaphat, sayinge: there commeth a great multitude agaynst the from the other syde the se out of Syria. And se, they be in Hasason Thamar, whiche is Engadi. Then Josaphat feared and set him selfe to seke the Lorde, and proclaymed fastynge throwe out all Juda. And Juda gathered them selues togyther to aske counsell of the Lorde. Furthermore there came oute of all ꝑ cityes of Juda to seke the Lord. And Josaphat stode in the assemble of Juda and Jerusalem in the house of the Lorde before the newe courte, and sayd: Lorde God of our fathers, arte not thou God in heuen, and raygnest not thou ouer all the kyngdomes of the Paynims? And in thyne hande is power and mygthe, so that no man can stande before the? Art not thou our God, whiche dyddest cast out thinhabitantes of this lande before thy people Israel, and gauest gaueſt it to the ſeed of Abraham thy frend for ever? And they dwelte therin, and haue buylt for the a temple therin vnto thy name, & ſayd:

2.Par.20.a when ſuch euyll commeth vpon vs, as the wordes of iudgement, peſtilence, or hunger: then yt we ſtande before this houſe and before the (for thy name is in this houſe) and ſhall crye vnto the in our tribulation, then ſhalt heare and helpe. And nowe beholde, the children of Ammon and Moab, and mount Seir, by whiche thou woldeſt not let Iſraell paſſe, what tyme
they came forthe of Egypte: but they depar-E ted from them, & deſtroyed them not. And nowe marke howe they rewarde vs: they came to caſt vs out of thy poſſeſſion whyche thou haſt gyuen vs. O oure God, wylte thou not auenge them? for we haue not ſo great puyſſaunce that we can make reſiſtence againſt this great com paune that commeth againſt vs. Neyther wot we what to do, but our eyes be vnto the. And all Iuda ſtode before the Lorde with their 17 Iahaziel. yongelynges, their wyues and their chyldren:
the ſpirite of the Lord came vpon Iahaziel the ſonne of Zecharias, the ſonne of Banaia, the ſonne of Jeiel, the ſonne of Mathaniah a Leuite of the ſonnes of Aſaph, euen as he was in the myddes of the company. And he ſaid: harken all Iuda, and the inhabitoures of Jeruſalem, and alſo kyng Joſaphat. Thus ſayth the Lorde vnto you, be not afrayde or fayntе hereof bycauſe of this greate multitude. For the warre is not yours, but Gods. And to morow ye ſhall goo downe to them: ſe, they came vp at Ziz, and ye ſhall mete them in the toppe of the brooke of the wyldernelle of Jeruel. For D 17 it ſhall not be you that ſhall fyghte in this quarell: but ſtande forth onely, and beholde the helpe of the Lorde, whiche is with you: feare not, nor let your hertes faile, O ye of Juda and of Jeruſalem. To morow marche forwarde to them: for the Lorde is with you.

And Joſaphat bowed him ſelf with his face to the erthe, and all Juda and the inhabitoures of Jeruſalem fell before the Lorde, and worſhypped hym. And the Leuites and the chyldr of the Cahathites and of the Coraites ſtode E vp to prayſe the Lorde God of Iſraell with a loude voyce on hyghe. And ſo they aroſe early in the morninge and gat them out vnto & wil-dernelle of Thekua. And when they went out Joſaphat ſtode and ſayd: heare me Juda, and 17 ye inhabitoures of Jeruſalem. Beleue in & Lord your God, and ſo ſhal ye continue: and beleue his Prophetes, and ſo ſhal ye proſpere. And he gaue the people counſell, and ſet the ſingers of the Lorde, and them that prayſed in holy appa rell, to goo oute before the armye, and to ſaye praiſe the Lord, for his mercy laſteth ever. And what time they began to laud and prayſe, then the Lorde ſet their ambuſhmens vpon their owne ſelues as many as were come to fyght againſt Juda, euen the chyldren of Ammon and Moab o mount Seir, for the chyldren of Ammon and Moab aroſe againſt the inhabitoures of mount Seir, to deſtroye them vtterlye, and to wype them away. And when they had made an ende of the inhabitoures of Seir, then they holpe to deſtroye eche other.

And when Juda came to & wyldernelle, they loked to the multitude. And be-holde, there were but caſtelles fallen to & erth, and none eſcaped. And Joſaphat and his peo-pil went to ſpoyle and ſpoyle the lyke, & found amonge them abundaunce of goodes and ray-ment and of pleaſaunt iewelles, and conſpyde from them more then they couthe cary away:
ſo that they were thre dayes in gatherynge of ſpoyle, it was ſo muche. And & fourth day they aſſembled in & valey of bleſſyng, for there they bleſſed the Lorde. And therfore they called the name of the ſame place the valey of bleſſing vnto this daye. And ſo al the men of Juda and Je ruſalem returned, & Joſaphat among the thiderſt of them, for to go agayne to Jeruſalem in gladneſſe, for the Lord had made the to reioyſe of their enemyes. And they came to Jeruſalem with pleſaunte & harpes and trompettes, euen vnto the houſe of the Lorde, & feare of God fell in the kyngdomes of all landes, when they had herde that the Lorde fought againſt the enemyes of Iſrael. And ſo the realme of Joſaphat was in tranquilite: for his God had gyuen him reſt on euery ſyde.

So Joſaphat raygned vpon Juda, and was G xxxv. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and raigned xxv. yere in Jeruſalē. And his mothers name was Azuba the doughter of Silhi. And he walked in the waye of Aſa his father, and bowed not therfro, but did that was pleaſaunt in the ſyghte of the Lorde. Howbeit they put not downe the hylauntes, neither did the peo ple yet prepare their hertes vnto the God of their fathers. The reſt of the actes of Joſaphat firſt and laſt are written in the wordes of Jehu the ſonne of Hanani, which noted them in the boke of the kynges of Iſrael.

After this Joſaphat kynge of Juda ioyned him ſelfe with Ochoziah kynge of Iſraell, whiche was a wycked doar. And he couplid him ſelfe with him to make Shippes to goo to Tharſis. And they made the Shippes in Aſion Gaber. And Eliezer the ſonne of Dodauah of Mareſa prophecied againſt Joſaphat, ſaying:
bycauſe thou haſt ioyned thy ſelfe with Ochoziah, the Lorde hath broken thy workes. And the Shippes were broke that they were not ha ble to go in Tharſis.

¶ Joſaphat dyeth & Joram ſucceedeth him, which putteth to death his brethren, and is oppreſſed of the Philiſtines, and dyeth of the ſyke.

CAPI. XXI.

IOſaphat layde him to reſt with his fathers, A and was buryed with his fathers in the citye of Dauid, and Joram his ſonne raygned in his rowme, which Joram had other brethr ſonnes of Joſaphat: Azariah, Jehiel, Zacharias, Azariah, Michael, and Sephatiah. All theſe were the ſonnes of Joſaphat kynge of Juda.
And their father gaue them many great gyftes in ſyluer, golde, and other pretious thinges, & ſtronge cityes in Juda: but the kyngdome he gaue to Joram bicauſe he was the eldeſt. Whē Joram was promoted vpon the kyngdome of his father and slewe all, he slew all his other brethren with the swerde, and diuers of the lordes of Israel also. * Iosam was two and thirtye yere olde when he began to raygne, & raigned eyghte yeres in Ierusalem. And he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, lyke as did the house of Achab (for a doughter of Achab was his wife) and he wrought euil in the eyes of the Lorde. Howbeit the Lorde wolde not destroye the house of Dauid, bicause of the couenaunt he hadde made with Dauid, and as he promised to geue a lyght to him and to his sonnes for euer.

In his dayes the Edomites rebelled bicause they wolde not be vnder the hande of Iuda, & made them a kynge. And Iosam went forthe with his lordes and all his charettes with him and rose by nyghte and sayde on the Edomp-tes. Whiche compassed hym in, and the Capi-taynes of his charettes. And so Edom departed from the subiection of Iuda vnto this day.
That same tyme also did Lobnah departe fro beynge vnder his power, bycause he lefte the Lorde God of his fathers. Moreouer he made hyllaulters in the mountaynes of Iuda, and caused thinhabitaunces of Ierusalem to com-myt aduultery, and he thrust Iuda oute of the waye.

The letters of Elias

And there came a wryting to him from Elias the Prophete of this tenoure. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Dauid thy father: bycause thou walkedest not in the wayes of Iosaphat thy father, and in the wayes of Asa kynge of Iuda, but walkedest in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and hast made Iuda & the dwellers of Ierusalem go a whoryng, lyke to the hauing of the house of Achab, & hast slayne thy brethren that were thy fathers house, whiche were better then thou: Beholde, the Lorde wyll smyte the with a mygheye plage in thy folke, in thy chyldren, in thy wyues, and in thy goodes. And thou shalt haue moche disease thorowe infirmitie in the bowelles, tyll thy bowelles fall oute by reason of thy syche-nesse daye by daye.

D And the Lorde stered vp against Iosam the spyrite of the Philistines and the Arabias that border on the blacke Moore: Whiche came a-gaynst Iuda and all to tare the lande, and ca-ryed awaye all the substaunce that was found in the kynges house, and moreouer his sonnes and his wyues, so that there was not one son lefte him, saue Ioachaz his yongest sonne. And after all this, the Lorde smote him in his bo-welles with an incurable disease. And in proces of tyme, euen about the ende of two yeres his guttes fell oute by reason of his sychenesse:
and so he dyed of euyll diseases. But they made him no bonefyre lyke the bonefyres of his fathers. When he began to raigne, he was xxxii.
yere olde, and raygned in Ierusalē eyghte yere.
And he walked not pleasauntly, and they buryed him in the cite of Dauid: but not in the sepulchre of the kynges.

¶ Ochozias raygneth I the rowme of Iosam/ Iehu kyng of Israel slayeth Ochozias. Athaliah poisoneth all the kynges kynges ouely Ioas escapeth.

CAPI. XXII.

AND the inhabitaunces of Ierusalem made Ochozias his yongest sonne kyng in his stede. For the men of warre that came with the Arabians in the hoste, had slayne all his elder sonnes. And so Ochozias the son of Iosam kynge of Iuda was made kynge. Two and fourtye yere olde was he, when he began to raygne, and raygned one yere in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Athaliah the doughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Achab / for his mother was his counsellour for to do euyll. Wherfore he did that displeased the Lorde, lyke to the house of Achab, for they were his counsellours
after the deth of his father, to his destruction, and he also walked after their counsell. And Iosam sonne of Achab kyng of Israel went to fyght with Hazael kynge of Syria at Ramoth in Galaad / and they of Ramoth wounded him.
Wherfore he returned to be healed in Iezrael of the woundes which were gyuen him at Ra-moth, when he fought with Hazael kynge of Syria. And Ochozias the son of Iosam king of Iuda, went downe to se Iosam the son of Achab at Iezrael, bycause he was diseased. For it was thwille in to Ochozias of God to go to Iosam, and that when he was come, he shulde go out with Iosam, against Iehu the sonne of Namsi, whom the Lorde hadde annoynted to destroye the house of Achab.

And as Iehu was executynge iudgement vpon
the house of Achab: he founde the lordes of Iuda, and the sonnes of the brethren of Ochozias, that wayted on Ochozias, and he slewe them. And he sought Ochozias, & they caught him where he was hid in Samaria, & brought him to Iehu. And when they hadde slayne him, they buryed him; bicause (sayde they) he was the son of Iosaphat whiche sought the Lorde with all his herte. And there was none of the house of Ochozias that coulde obtayne to be kynge.

* For Athaliah the mother of Ochozias, when she sawe her sonne was dead, arose and slewe all the seed of the kyngdom of the house of Iuda. But Iosabeth the doughter of the kynge toke Ioas the sonne of Ochozias, and stale him from among the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and put him and his nource in a sleppynge chambre. And so Iosabeth the dough-ter of kynge Iosam and wyfe of Ioiada the Preeste (bycause she was the sister of Ochozias) hyd him from Athaliah that she slewe him not. And he was with them hydde in the house of God, sixe yere. And Athaliah raygned ouer the lande.

¶ Ioas the sonne of Ochozias is made kynge:
Athaliah is put to death.

CAPI. XXIII.

IN the seuenth yere Ioiada toke herte, and made a bonde with the capitaynes of hun-dredes, Azarias the sonne of Ieroham, Ismael the sonne of Iohanan, Azarias the sonne of Obed, Maasiah the sonne of Adaias, and Elisa-

Elisaphat the sonne of Zechri. And they wente about in Juda and gathered the Le-uites oute of all the cityes of Juda, and the auncyente heddes of Israell, and came to Jerusalem. And all the congregacyon made a bonde with the kynge in the house of God.
And Joiada sayd to them: Beholde, the kinges sonne muste raygne ouer the chyldren of Dauid, as the Lorde hathe sayde. This is it therfore that ye shall do. The thyrde parte of you Preestes and Leuites whiche come in the Sabothy daye, shall kepe the wardes, and an other thyrde parte shal be in the kynges house, and an other thyrde parte shall be in the gate of the foundacion, and all the people shall be in the courtes of the house of the Lorde. And there shall none come in to the house of the Lorde, saue the preestes and the Leuites that ministre. They shall goo in, for they are holye.
and all the people shal kepe the watche of the Lorde. And the Leuites shall compasse the kyng rounde about, euerye man his weapon in his hand: and what so euer other man come in to the house of the Lorde, he shall dye for it, and they shal be with the kyng, as he commeth in,
as as he goeth out.

And the Leuites and all Juda dyd in all thynges as Joiada the preeste commaundred, and toke euery man his men: both them that came in, and them that went out the Sabothy daye: for Joiada the preest dyd let none of the companyes departe. And Joiada the preest de-liuered to the captaynes of hundredes speres and shyldes, and boukelers that pertayned to kynge Dauid, and were in the house of God.
And he sette all the people and euery man his weapon in his hande, from the ryghte corner of the house to the lefte corner of the house, along by the aulter, and the house rounde about the kynge. And they broughte out the kynges sonne, and put on him the crowne and the testi-monie, and made him kyng. And Joiada and his sonnes annoynted him and sayd: God saue the kynge.

When Athaliah herde the noyse of the people runnynge and praysynge the kynge, she went amonge the people into the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kynge standе at his pyller in the entrynge, and the lordes and trompetters aboute the kynge, and all the people of the lande reioysynge and blowynge with trompetters, and the syngers with instrumentes of musyche teachynge to prayse: she rente her clothes and cryed: treason treason.
And Joiada the preeste wente oute with the captaynes of hundredes that were appoynted to gouerne the hoste, and sayde to them: haue her oute without the arraye, and who so euer followeth her, lette hym be slayne with the swerde. For the Preeste sayde: slee her not in the house of the Lorde. And they layde han-des on her, and when she was come out to the entering of the horsegate in the kynges house, they slew her there. And Joiada made a bonde betweene him and all the people and the kyng to be the Lordes people. And all the people went to the house of Baal and destroyed it, & brake the aulters and ymages, and slewe Ma-than the Preeste of Baal afore the aulters.
And Joiada put the offices of the house of the Lorde in the handes of the Preestes, the Le-uites whiche Dauid had diuided in companyes for the house of the Lorde, to offer burnt offeringes vnto the Lord, as is wrytten in the lawe of Moses, with reioysyng and singing, as it was ordeyned by Dauid. And he set por-teres vnto the gates of the house of the Lord, & no vncleane person in anye poynte should entre in.

And he toke the captaynes of hundredes,
and the nobles and the gouernours of the people and all the folke of the lande, and brought the kyng downe out of the house of the Lord, and they went thorowe the hyghe gate in the kynges house, and set the kynge vpon the seat of the kyngdome. And all the people of ỳ lande reioysed, and the cyte was in tranquillitie, but they slewe Athalia with the swerde.

¶ Joas burynge the ydle of Joiada keepeth the lawe, but after his deathe he regardeth it not. He killeth Zacharias the Prophete. Joas is killed of his owne seruauntes, after whome raygneth Ama-sias.

CAPI. XXIIII.

IOas was seuen yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned fourtye yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zebia of Berlabe. And Joas dyd that pleased the Lorde all the dayes of Joiada the preeste. And Joiada gaue him two wyues, and he begate sonnes and doughters. A 4. Reg. 11. 3

It chaunced after that, that Joas was minded to mende the house of the Lorde. Where- B vpon he gathered togyther the Preestes & the Leuites, and sayd to them: go out thorowe the cities of Juda, and gather of all Israell siluer to strengthe the house of your God, yere by yere, and se ye haste the thynge: how be it the Leuites were slacke. Then the kynge called Joiada that was the chyefest, and sayd to him:
Why requyred thou not of the Leuytes to bringe in, oute of Juda and Jerusalem, the summe appoynted by Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde, and by the congregacion of Israel, for the tabernacle of wytnesse. For wycked Athaliah and her chyldren hadde broken the house of God, and hadde bestowed all the bedicat gyftes of the house of the Lorde, aboute Baals.

Wherfore at the kynges commaundement they made a cofer, and sette it at the gate of the house of the Lorde: and made proclamacyon thorowe Juda and Jerusalem to bringe in to the Lorde the ✠ taxacion of Moses the Exod. xxx. b. seruaunt of God, whiche he set vpon Israel in the wyldernesse. And the Lordes and all the peo ple reioysed, and broughte in and caste in to the cofer, vntyll it was full. And when the tyme came that the cheste shulde be broughte in by the handes of the Leuites at commaundement of the kynge, when they sawe that there was mo the money: then came the kynges scribe,

D.ij. and

and one appoynted by the chiefe preeste, and powred out that was in the coffer, and toke it and caryed it to his place agayne, and so they dyd daye by daye, and gathered of the money.

D And the kyng and Iotada gaue it to the men that wrought vpon the houle of the Lorde, and hyred masons and carpenters to repayre the houle of the Lorde, and artificers in yron and braſſe, to repayre the Lordes houſe. And the workemen wrought, and the worke proſpered thorowe their handes: and they made the houſe of God as it ought to be, and ſtrengthed it. And when they had finiſhed it, they brought the reſt of the money to the kyng and Iotada, and therwith were made veſſels for the houſe of the Lorde: that is to ſaye veſſels to miniſtre withall, and to ſerue for burntofferynges, as ladels and veſſels of golde and ſyluer. And they offred burntofferynges in the houſe of the Lorde continually all the dayes of Iotada. And Iotada waxed olde and full of yeres, and dyed. An hundred and thirtye yere olde was he

E when he dyed. And they buryed him in the cite of David amonge the kynges, becauſe he had done good in Iſrael, and on God, and on his houſe. After the deth of Iotada came the lordes of Juda and made obeyſaunce to the king. And then he harkened vnto them. And ſo they left the houſe of the Lorde God of their fathers, and ſerued groues and ymages. And then came there wrath vpon Juda and Jeruſalem for this their treſpace. Howbeit ſtandynge God ſente Prophetes to them, to bringe them agayne vnto the Lorde. And they teſtifyed vnto them. But they wolde not heare.

Zacharias. And the ſpirite of God came vpon Zacharias the ſonne of Iotada the preeſte, and he ſtepte vp aboue the people, and ſayde to them. Thus ſayth God: why breake ye the commaundementes of the Lorde? ye ſhall therfore not

F proſpere, but as ye haue forſaken him, ſo ſhall he forſake you. * Wherupon they conſpyred

2. Reg. xxiii. b. againſte him, and ſtoned him with ſtones, at commaundement of the king, euen in the court of the houſe of the Lorde. And Ioas the kynge remembred not the kyndnes which Iotada his father had done to him, but ſlewe his ſon. And when he dyed, he ſayd: the Lorde ſe it requyre it.

And when the yere was oute, the hoſte of the Syrians came againſte him: and they came to Juda and Jeruſalem, and deſtroyed all the lordes of the people, and ſente all the ſpoyle of them vnto the kynge to Damaſco. And thoughe the armye of Syria came with a

G ſmall companye of men, yet the Lorde deliuered a verye great hoſte in to their handes, becauſe they had forſaken the Lorde God of their fathers, and therto they ſerued Ioas according to his deſertes.

And as ſoone as they were departed from him, thoughe they lefte him in greate diſeaſes, yet his owne ſeruauntes conſpyred againſte him for the bloude of the children of Iotada the Preeſte, and ſlewe him on his bedde. And when he was deed, they buryed him in the cyte of David, but not in the ſepulchres of the kynges. And theſe are they that conſpyred againſt him: Zabad the ſonne of Semaath an Ammonite, and Joſabad the ſonne of Himeth a Moabite, and his ſonnes. And the ſumme of the tare that came to him, and the foundacion of the houſe of God, are wrytten in the boke of kynges. And Amazias his ſonne raygned in his ſtede.

¶ Amazias ouercometh the Edomites. And Ioas kynge of Iſrael ouercometh and kylleth Amazias.

CAPI. XXV.

AMazias was fiue and twenty yere olde A when he began to raygne, and raygned 4. Reg. xiv.
nyne and twentye yere in Jeruſalem. His mothers name was Joadan of Jeruſalem. And he dyd that pleaſed the Lord, but not with the hole herte. And as ſoone as he was ſtabliſhed in the kyngdome, he ſlewe them that killed the kyng his father. But he ſlewe not their children, accordynge to that is wrytten in the lawe in the boke of Moſes, to whom the Lorde commaunded, ſayinge: * the fathers ſhall not Deuteron. xxiv. a.
dye for the childrens cauſes, nor the children for the fathers, but euery man ſhal dye for his owne B ſynne. And Amazias aſſembled Juda togither and made capitaynes ouer thouſandes, & ouer hundreds in the houſes of their fathers thorowout all Juda and Ben Jamin. And he nombred them from twenty yere and aboue, and founde them thre hundred thouſande yonge luſty men habile to go to battayle, and that could handle ſpere and ſhild. And he hyred therto an hundred thouſande fyghtynge men out of Iſrael, for an hundred talentes of ſyluer.

But there came a man of God to him and ſayde: Kynge, lette not the armye of Iſrael goo with the, for the Lorde is not with Iſrael neyther with anye of the houſe of Ephraim. C Or elles yf thou nedes wylte, then go and do it, and make thy ſelfe ſtronge to battayle: and thou ſhalte ſe, that God ſhall make the falle before thyne enemyes. For God hath power to helpe or to caſte downe. And Amazias ſayd agayne to the man of God, what ſhall we do then for the hundred talentes whiche I haue gyuen vnto the hoſte of Iſrael? And the man of God ſayde: the Lorde is habile to gyue the moche more then that.

Then Amazias ſeuered the armye that was come to him oute of Ephraim, to goo home agayne. Wherfore they were exceadynge wroth with Juda, and returned home in great angre.

And Amazias toke herte, and caryed oute his hoſte, and wente to Saltdale. * Where he 4. Reg. xiv. b.
ſlewe of the children of Seir ten thouſande. And other ten thouſande the children of Juda toke alyue, and caryed them vnto the top of a rocke, and caſt them downe from the top of the rocke, that they all to burſt: but the men of the armye whiche Amazias had turned backe and D wolde not let go with his people to battayle, ran vpon the cities of Juda from Samaria vnto Bethhoron, and ſlewe thre thouſande of the and wan moche ſpoyle.

And

And it chaunced, after that Amasias was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, and had brought the goddes of the children of Seir, he set them up to be his goddes, and bowed him selfe before them, & burned incense vnto them. Wherefore the Lorde was wroth with Amasias, and sent to him a Prophete, & said to him: why seekest thou the goddes of the people which were not able to deliuer their owne people out of thyne handes? And as the Prophet spake to him, he said to ℣ Prophete: haue men made the of ℣ kynges counsel? cease, lest thou be beaten. And the Prophete ceased and sayd: I am sure that God hath taken counsel to destroy the, because thou hast done this, and obeyest not my counsell.

Then Amasias kyng of Juda toke aduyse, and sent to Joas the sonne of Joachas the son of Jehu kynge of Israell, and sayd: come and let vs se eyther other. And Joas kynge of Israell, sente agayne to Amasias kynge of Juda sayinge: a thystell in Libanon sente to a Cedar tree of Libanon, saying: ✠ giue thy wyfe to my sonne to wyfe. But there came the wylde beastes of Libanon, and trode downe ℣ thystel. Thou thynkest: lo, I haue beaten the Edomites, therfore thyne herte aspireth to gloryfye thy selfe. Now abyde at home: what nedeth the to prouoke to cupl, that thou perishe and Juda with the?

But Amasias rested not: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them in to the handes of their enemyes, and that because they hadde soughte the goddes of the Edomites. And Joas kyng of Israel came vp: and they sawe eyther other, bothe he and Amasias kynge of Juda at Bethshames in Juda. And Juda was put to the worsse before Israel, and fledde euery man to his tente. And Joas kynge of Israel toke Amasias kynge of Juda the sonne of Joas, the sonne of Ochosiah at Bethshames: and brought him to Jerusalem, and tare the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim, vnto the corner gate, foure hundred cubytes longe. And he toke all the golde and siluer and all the iewelles that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and the treasure of the kynges house and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

And Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda lyued after the deathe of Joas sonne of Joachas kynge of Israell fyftene yeres. The rest of the actes of Amasias fyrst and laste, are written in the boke of kynges of Juda and Israel. And after the tyme that Amasias did turne awaye from the Lorde, they conspyred treason agaynste hym in Jerusalem: and he fledde to Lachis, whyther they sente after him and slew him there, and brought him vp with hosses, and buried him with his fathers in the citye of Juda.

¶ Here the deathe of Amasias sayngueth Oziah whiche is fayrhen vnder the type, and Joatham sayngueth in his rowme.

CAPI. XXVI.

Then all the people of Juda toke Oziah whiche was sixtene yere olde, and made him kynge in the rowme of his father Amasias. And he buylte Eloth and brought it agayne to Juda, after the kynge was layde to reste with his fathers. Sixtene yere olde was Oziah when he began to raygne, and he raygned two and fifty yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jecaliah of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Lord in all poynctes, as dyd his father Amasias. And he sought God whyle Zacharyah the teacher to fe God lyued: and as long as he sought the Lord, God made him prosperr.

And he went to battayle agaynste the Philistines, and brake downe the walles of Geth and the walles of Jabneh, and the walles of Asdod / and buylte cityes about Asdod, and amonge the Philistines. And God holpe hym agaynste the Philistines, and agaynste the Arabiens that dwelte in Gurbaal, and agaynst the Meunites. And the Ammonites gaue tribute to Oziah, and his name spred abrode euen to Egypt: for he played the man, and exceded. Moreouer Oziah buylte towres in Jerusalem ouer the corner gate, and ouer the valeye gate, and ouer other corners, and made them strange. And he buylte towres in the wyldernesse, and dygged manye welles. For he hadde moche cattell, bothe in the valeye, and also in the playne, and plowmen and vyne dressers in the mountaynes and in Charmel, for he loued husbandrye.

Also Oziah hadde an hoste of fyghtynge men that went oute to warre in the armye, and were tolde and nombred by Jeiel the scribe, & Maaliah an officer, vnder the hande of Hananiah one of the kynges lordes. And the hole nombre of the auncient heades of the men of myght, were two thousande and fyue hundred, and vnder the handes of them was the armye of the hoste, thre hundred and seuen thousande, and fyue hundred that made warre in myghte and strengthe, to helpe the kynge agaynste his enemyes. And Oziah prouyded them throwout all the hoste, shyldes, speres, helmetes, habergynnes, bowes, and slynges for stones. And he made engynes in Jerusalem by the craftes of artificers, to be on the towres and corners, to shoote arowes and greate stones with. And his name spred farre abrode / for he was wonderfully holpe, vntyll he was become myghtye.

And in his greatnesse his herte arose, that he was marred, and transgressed agaynste the Lorde his God, For he went in to the temple of the Lorde to burne incense vpon the aulter of incense. But Azarias the preest went in after him with fowre score preestes of ℣ Lorde that were holye men. And they stode to Oziah the kynge, and sayde to him: it pertayneth not to the Oziah to burne incense vnto the Lorde, but to the preestes the children of Aaron that are consecrate for to burne incense. Come out of the sanctuarye, for thou hast trespaced, and it shall be no worshyp to the before the Lorde God.

And Oziah was wrothe and had incense in his hande to offre, and in his endignacion agaynste xxvi. Vrz. 5. b. a. the Pzeest, & the leppye spzange in his fozehed before the Pzeestes in the house of the Lozde, euen before the incense auter. And Azarias the chyefe Pzeeste with all the other Pzeestes loked vpon hym: and beholde, he was a lepre in his forehed, and they thaue him thence. And therto he was fayne to go oute, because the Lozde hadde plaged him. And Oziah the kynge continued a lepre vnto the daye of his deathe, and dwelt in an house at libertie: how be it he was cast oute of the house of the Lozde. And Joatham his son had the gouernaunce of the kynges house, & iudged the people of the lande.

The reste of the actes of Oziah bothe fyrste and laste, dyd Isaias the Prophete, the sonne of Amos wryte. And when Oziah was layde to rest with his fathers, they buryed him with his fathers in the felde of the buriall of the kynges. For they sayd: he is a lepre. And Joatham his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ Joatham raygneth and ouercommeth the Ammonites. Achaz his sonne raygneth after him.

CAPI. XXVII.

A Joatham was fyue and twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jerusah the doughter of Sadoc. And he dyd that pleased the Lozde in all poynctes as dyd his father Oziah: saue, that he came not to the temple of the Lozde, and that the people dyd yet corrupte theym selues. He buylte the vpper gate of the temple of the Lozde, and on the waule Ophel he buylte moche. Moreouer he buylte cytyes in the mountaynes of Juda, and in the woode countrey he buylte castels and towres.

And he foughte with the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, and preuayled agaynst them. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue hym the same yere an hundred talentes of syluer, and tenne thousande quarters of whete, and as moche barley. So moche also did the children of Ammon gyue hym the seconde yere, and the thirde yere. And Joatham became myghtye, because he dyrected his waye before the Lozde his God.

The reste of the actes of Joatham and all his warres and his wayes are wrytten in the boke of kynges of Israell and Juda. He was fyue and twentye yere olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. And when Joatham was layde to reste with his fathers, they buryed him in the cyty of David: and Achaz his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ The wyckednesse of Achaz kynge of Juda. After that raygneth Ezechias.

CAPI. XXVIII.

A Chaz was twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd not that pleased the Lozde, as dyd his father Dauid: but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and made therto Baals of metall. And he offred incense in the valeye of the chyldren of Hennon, and burnte his chyldren in fyre after the abhominacion of the nacyons whiche the Lozde dzewe oute before the chyldren of Israel. And he offred burnt incense in hyaultes, and on mountaynes, and vnder euerye grene tree.

Wherfore the Lozde his God delyuered him in to the hande of the kynge of the Syrians: whiche beat hym, and caryed awaye a greate multitude of his captiue in to Damascon. And further, he was delyuered in to the hande of the kyng of Israel, which slewe of his a mighty slaughter. For Phaceh the sonne Romelias slewe in Juda an hundred and twentye thousande in one daye, and all fyghtyng men and that because they had forsaken the Lozde God of their fathers. And Zechri a mighty man in mount Ephraim slewe Maasiah the kynges sonne, and Azricam the lozde ouerthe house, and Elcanah that was next to the kyng. And the chyldren of Israell toke prysoners of their brethren two hundred thousande wiues, sonnes and doughters, and therto caryed awaye moche spoyle of them, and brought it to Samaria.

But there was a Prophet of the Lozdes named Obed, whiche wente oute to the hoste that came to Samaria, and sayd to them: lo, because the Lozde God of youre fathers was wroth with Juda, he delyuered theym into youre handes. And ye haue slayne them with cruelte that reacheth vp to heauen. And now ye purpose to kepe vnder the chyldren of Juda and Jerusalem, and to make them bondemen and bondewomen. What other thynge woll ye (ye vnhappye) then offende the Lozde youre God? But nowe heare me, and deliuer the prisoners agayne whiche ye haue taken of youre brethren, for the great wzathe of the Lozde is vpon you.

And certayne of the heades of the chyldren of Ephraim: as Azarias the sonne of Johanan, Barachiah the sonne of Mesimeloth, Ezechiah the sonne of Sellum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadalai stode vp agaynste them that came from warre, and sayd vnto them: ye shal not bzynge in the captyues hyther. For wherwe haue offended the Lozde alredye, ye entende to adde more to oure synnes and trespasse. For oure trespace is greate alredye, and there is feerce wzathe vpon Israel. Wherupon the men of armes lefte the captyues and the spoyle before the lozdes and all the congregacion.

And there arose certayne appointed theym by name, and toke the prysoners and clothed all that were naked amonge theym, of the spoyle, and arayed them and shod them, and gaue them to eate and to dzynke, & annoynted them, & caried all that were feble of them vpon asses, and brought them to Jericho the cyty of palme phalme trees fall by theyr brethren: and the returned to Samaria agayne.

And at that same tyme kynge Achaz sent vnto the kynges of Assur to haue helpe. And the Edomites came yet agayne and slue of Juda and caryed awaye some captyues. And the Philistines inuaded the cyties in the lowe countrey and the south of Juda: And toke Bethsames, Aialon, Gaderoth, and Soroth with the townes belongynge thereto, and Thamna with the townes of the same. And Gimso with her townes, and dwelte therin. For the Lorde brought Juda lowe, because of Achaz kynge of Juda, whiche made Juda naked and transgressed agaynst the Lorde. And Thiglath palneser kynge of Assur came vpon him and besieged him, but preuayled not agaynst him. For Achaz toke awaye out of the house of the Lorde and oute of the kynges house and out of the Lordes houses and gaue vnto the kynge of Assur, thought to helpe him not. And therto in the very tyme of his tribulacion dyd kynge Achaz trespace yet more against the Lorde. For he offred vnto the Gods of them of Damasco which vse him and sayde because the goddes of the Assyrens helpe them therfore will I offer to them, that they maye helpe me also. But they were his confusion & the destruction of all Israel. And Achaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God & brake them, & shut vp the wyes of the house of the Lorde, and made him aulters in all corners of Jerusalem. And in all the cyties of Juda cyte by cyte he made hyghaulters to burne incense vnto other goddes, and angred the Lord God of his fathers. The rest of his actes and all his wayes both first and last are writte in the boke of kynges of Juda and Israell. And whe Achaz was layde to rest with his fathers they buryed him in the cyte of Jerusalem: but brought him not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Juda. And Ezechias his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ Ezechias restoreth vnto the temple of the Lorde all the vessels that had not been regarded of his predecessours.

CAPI. XXIX.

EZechias began to raygne when he was. xxv. yere olde, and raygned .xxix. yere in Jerusalē. And his mothers name was Abia the daughter of Zachary. And he dyd that was right in the sight of the Lorde in all poynctes, as dyd Dauid his father. He opened the wies of the house of the Lorde in the first yere and first moneth of his raigne, and repaired them. And he brought in the preastes and the Leuites and gathered them togyther into the east strete: and sayde vnto them.

Heare me ye Leuites: purifye youre selues and halow the house of the Lorde God of youre fathers, and bynge out the filthynesse out of the holy place. For our fathers haue trespassed and done wickedly in the eyen of the Lorde our God and haue forsaken him, and turned awaye their faces from the habitacion of the Lorde and turned to their backes. And brake that they haue shut vp the wyes of the porche and quenched the lampes and haue neyther burned incense nor offred burntesacrifyces in the holy place vnto the God of Israel.

Wherfore the wrathe of the Lorde fell on Juda and Jerusalem: and he scattereth them & made them so thynne that men hisse at it, euen as ye se with youre eyen. For lo, our fathers were ouerthrowen with the swerde, and oure sonnes, our doughters and our wyues were caryed away prysoners for the same. Now haue I in my herte to stryke a couenaunt with the Lorde God of Israel: that his wrathe maye cease. Now therfore my sonnes be not negligent: for the Lorde hathe chosen you to stande before him, and to minister and burne offrynges to him.

Then the Leuites arose: Mahath the son of Amasai and Joel the sonne of Azarias kynge of the children of the Cahathites: and the sonnes of Merari, Kis the sonne of Abdi, and Azarias the sonne of Jalaleel: and of the Gersonites, Joah the sonne of Zimma and Eden the sonne of Joahe: and of the sonnes of Elisaphan Semri and Jeuel: and of the sonnes of Asaph, Zacharias and Mathanias: & of the sonnes of Heman, Jehuel and Semei: & of the sonnes of Jeduthun, Semaias and Oziel. And they gathered their brethren and purified them selues, and then went at commaundement of the kynge by the wordes of the Lorde for to clense the house of the Lorde. And the preastes wente into the house of the Lorde to clense it, and brought out all the vncleanesse they founde in the temple of the Lorde, and in the courte of the house of the Lorde. And the Leuites toke it & caried it oute into the broke Cedron. They began the first daye of the first moneth to purifye, and came the eyght day to the porche of the Lorde: so that they had purged the house of the Lorde in eyght dayes and the .xvj. daye of the first moneth they made an ende.

And then they went in to Ezechias the kyng and sayde: we haue clensed all the house of the Lorde, and the aulter of burntesacrifyces, with all his vessels, and the shewbrede table with all his appareil: and therto all the vessels whi the kynge Achaz had cast a syde when he raygned and transgressed, them we haue repayred and sanctified: and se, they are before the aulter of the Lorde. Then Ezechias the kynge rose early and gathered the Lordes of the cyty and went vp to the house of the Lorde. And there were brought seuen oxen, seuen rammes, seuen lambes and seuen hydes to be a synneoffryng for the kyngdom, for the sanctuary and for Juda. And he commaunded the preastes the sonnes of Aaron to offer them on the aulter of the Lorde.

And they slewe the oxen: and the preastes receyued the bloude and sprenkled it on the aulter: and they slewe the rammes and sprenkled the bloude vpon the aulters: and they slewe the lambes and sprenkled the bloude vpon the aulters. And then they brought forth the hydes of the synneoffrynge before the kynge and the the congregacion which put their handes vpō them. And the preastes slew them and offered the bloude of them vpon the aultare, to make satisfaction for all Israel: for the kynge sayde that the burntoffringe and the synneoffringe shulde serue for all Israel. And they set the Leuites in the house of the Lorde with Symbales, psalteries and harpes accordynge to the commaundemente of Dauid and of Gad the kynges sear of visions and of Nathan the prophete. For so was the commaundement of the Lorde thorow the handes of his prophetes.

And so the Leuites stode with the instrumentes of Dauid, and the preastes with trompetters. And Ezechias commaunded to offer the burntoffringe vpon the aulter. And when the burntoffringe began, the songe of the Lorde began, and the trompetters with the instrumentes of Dauid kynge of Israel. And all the congregacion bowed theym selues, and the syngers sange, and the trompetters blew, and continued vntyll the burntoffringe was fynyshed.

And when they hadde made an ende of the burntoffringe, the kynge and all that were with hym kneled wynne, and bowed them selues, & gaue prayse and thankes. And Ezechias the kynge & the lordes bade the Leuites to prayse the Lorde with the wordes of Dauid and of Asaph the sear of visions. And the Leuites praysed that they reioyced agayne, and they bowed and bowed them selues.

And Ezechias answered and sayde: nowe that ye haue fylled your handes to the Lorde go to and bringe in the sacrifices and thankoffringes into the house of the Lorde. And the congregacion brought in the sacrifices & thankoffringes, and all that were willing brought burntoffringes. And the nombre of the burntoffringes which the congregacion brought in was seuenty oxen, and an hundred rammes & two hundred lambes: and all for burntoffringes to the Lorde. And beside that they dedicated sixe hundred oxen, and three thousande sheepe.

But the preastes were to fewe, and were not able to flaye all the burntoffringes. Wherfore their brethren the Leuites holpe them tyll the worke was ended, and vntyll the preastes were sanctified. For the Leuites were purer herted to sanctifie them selues then the preastes. And therto the burntoffringes were manye with the fat of the peaceoffringes and the drynkeoffringes that belonged to the burntoffringes. And so the seruice pertayninge to the house of the Lorde went forwarde. And Ezechias reioyced, and all the people, that God had made the folke so redye, for the thing was sodenly done.

¶ Ezechias remuneth the frait of pascoum.

CAPI. XXX.

AND Ezechias sent to all Israel and Juda and thereto wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasses, that they shulde come to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, to offer passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And the kynge helde a counsell with his lordes and all the congregacion at Jerusalē to kepe the feast of passouer in the second moneth. For they coulde not kepe it at that tyme, for there were not preastes ynough sanctified, neyther was the people gathered togither to Jerusalem. And the thynge pleased the kynge and all the congregacion. And they decreed it shulde be proclaymed thorowe out all Israell frome Berlabe to Dan, that they shuld come and holde the feast of passouer vnto the Lord God of Israell at Jerusalem: for they hadde not often boneat, as it is written howe they shuld.

And the messengers went with letters of the hande of the kynge and of his lordes thorow out all Israel and Juda, at the commaundement of the kynge which sayd: children of Israell, tourne agayne vnto the Lorde God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israell, and so will he tourne to the remnaunt of you that are escaped out of the handes of the kynge of Assur. And be ye not lyke youre fathers and your bretheren which trespased agaynste the Lorde of your fathers, which therfore gaue them vp that they are wasted as ye se. Wherfore be not nowe stiffnecked lyke vnto your fathers, but yelde your selues vnto the Lorde, and come to his holye place which he hathe sanctified for euer, and serue the Lorde youre God, that his wrathe maye turne frome you. For yf ye tourne vnto the Lorde, youre brethren and youre children shall fynde compassion in the presence of them that holde them captyue, that they may come agayne vnto this lande: for the Lorde youre God is full of mercye and compassion, & will not turne his face frome you, yf ye tourne agayne to him.

And the postes went from cytie to cytie thorow out the lande of Ephraim and Manasses and euen vnto Zabulon. But they laughed them to scorne and mocked them. Neuertheles yet diuers of Aser, Manasses and of Zabulon meekened them selues and came to Jerusalem. And therto the hand of God was in Juda, to make them of one accorde to do the commaundment of the kynge and the captayns, which was according to the worde of the Lorde. And so there assembled to Jerusalem moche people and a mychtye great congregacion, to holde the feast of swete breed in the seconde moneth.

And they arose and put awaye the aultares that were in Jerusalem. And all the incense they dyd awaye and cast them into the broke Cedron. And they slewe passouer the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth. And the preastes and Leuites sanctified them selues for shame, and broughte in the burntoffringes into the house of the Lorde. And they stode in their vsage after their maner accordynge to the lawe of Moses the man of God. And the preastes sprynkled the bloude receyuynge it of the handes of the Leuites. And because there were many in the congregacion that were not sanctified: and therfore dyd the Leuites sley passouer for all that were not cleane to sanctify them them to the Lorde.

There was very moch people out of Ephraim, Manasses, Isachar & Zabulon that were not cleane, and therfore dyd eate passouer otherwyse then wryteinge specifieth. But Ezechias prayed for them and sayd: ℣ good Lorde be mercyful to all that set their hertes to seke the God that is the Lorde God of their fathers, thoughe they be it not accordinge to the clennesse of the holy place. And the Lorde herd Ezechias and healed the people. And so ℣ children of Israel that were founde at Jerusalem helde the feast of swete breed seuen dayes with great gladnesse, and the Leuites and the preastes prayed the Lorde day by day with lowde instrumentes.

And Ezechias spake hertely vnto the Leuites that had good vnderstandinge of ℣ Lorde. And they dyd eate that feast seuen dayes long and offred peaceoffringes & thanked the Lorde God of their fathers. And the hole assemble toke counsell to kepe seuen dayes moo: & they helde thole seuen dayes with gladnesse. For Ezechias kynge of Juda gaue for heaueoffringes to the congregacion a thousand oxen and seuen thousande shepe. And the Lordes gaue to the congregacion for heaueoffringes a thousande oxen and ten thousande shepe. And the preastes sanctified them selues, that they were ynoughe.

And all the congregacion of Juda with the preastes and Leuites, and all the congregacion that came out of Israell and the straungers, both that came out of the lande of Israel and that dwelt in Juda, reioyse hiarde there was great ioye in Jerusalem. For frome the tyme of Salomon the sonne of David kynge of Israel it happened not so in Jerusalem.

And the preastes and the Leuites arose & blessed the people, and their voyce was herde, and their prayer went vp vnto his holy dwelling place heauen.

¶ After Ezechias had called agayne the people vnto the worde of the Lorde he ordreth the preastes, vnto whome he commaundeth to gyue tythes.

CAPI. XXXI.

NOw when they had fynished all this: all Israell that were founde in the cyties of Juda, went oute and brake the Images and cut downe the gromes, and all to brake the hyaultares and the other aultares throwe out all Juda and Ben Jamin, Ephraim and Manasses, tyl they had made an ende of them. And afterwarde all the children of Israel returned euery man to his possession in their owne cyties. And Ezechias set the preastes and the Leuites in their ordre to wayte by course, euerye man accordinge to his office whether preast or Leuite: for the burntoffringes and peaceoffringes, and to ministre and to thanke & to praye in the gates of the lodge of the Lorde. And the kynge gaue a portyon of his substaunce for burntoffringes at morninge and euen, and for burntoffringes on the Sabboth dayes and newe monne, and other solemne feastes, accordinge ✠ as it is wrytten in the lawe of the Lorde. And he bad the people that dwelte in Jerusalem to gyue the parte of the preastes & Leuites, that they might be mayntayned in the lawe of the Lorde. And as sone as the worde came abrode, the children of Israell brought aboundaunce of fyrste frutes of corne, wyne, oyle, and hony, and of al maner of frutes of the felde: and the tythes of al maner of thinges brought they in pleteously. And the children of Israel and Juda ℣ dwelt in the cyties of Juda, they also brought in the tythes of oxen and shepe, and tythes of dedicate thinges which were dedicate to the Lorde their God, and put them on heapes. In the thirde moneth they began to laye the heapes and fynished them the seuenth.

And when Ezechias and the lordes came & sawe the heapes, they blessed the Lorde and his people Israell. And Ezechias questioned with the preastes and the Leuites concerning the heapes. And Azarias the chiefe preest of the house of Sadoc answered him & sayde: sithens they began to bringe the heaueoffringes into the house of the Lorde, we haue eaten & had ynoughe, and yet lefte aboundaunce, for the Lorde hathe blessed his people and therof is this heape left. And Ezechias bad make vp ℣ Lorde houses about the house of the Lorde. And so they dyd, and caryed in the heaueoffringes and the tythes and the dedicat gyftes, euen of fydelitie.

Ouer which Chonanias the Leuite hadde the rule with Semei his brother next to him. And Jehiel, Azasias, Nahath, Asael, Jerimoth, Jozabad, Eliel, Ismachias, Mahath and Banaias, were ouerseers vnderneth, by Chonanias and Semei his brother, at the appoyntement of Ezechias the kynge. and Azarias the ruler of the house of God. And Chore the sonne of Jemna the Leuite porter at the East side hadde the ouerlight of the freewyllofferinges of God, to gyue heaueoffringes vnto the Lorde, and was ouer thinges moste holy. And vnder him were Eden, Miniamin, Jesua, Semeias, Amarias and Sechenias in the cyties of the preastes of their ordre, to gyue to their brethren their portions, as well to the small as to the great.

And to the males also that were reckened from thre yere & aboue amonge all that went into the house of the Lorde daye by day, to ministre & to wayte by course. And to the preastes that were reckened in the householdes of their fathers hous. xx. yere & aboue, to wayte when their courses came. And to them that were reckened throwe out al their dedes, wyues, sonnes & doughters throwe out al the congregacion. For to the fidelitie of them dyd they commit their sanctified gyftes. And thereto amonge the children of Aaro the preastes were men named by name in the fieldes of the suburbes of all their cyties, cytie by cytie, for to gyue portions to all the males of the preastes and to all that were reckened amonge the Leuites.

And on this maner dyd Ezechias throwe out all Juda, & dyd that was good, ryghte & truth, truthe, before the Lorde his God. And in all the worckes that he began in the seruice of ꝑ house of God, to seke his God after the lawe and commaundement, he dyd with al his hert and ꝓsperyd.

¶ Sennacherib which hulde haue besieged Jerusalē is stryken of the Aungell. Ezechias dyeth after whom succedeth Manasses.

CAPL. XXXII

A Fter these werks and truthe, Sennacherib kynge of Assur came and entred into Juda and pytched against the stronge cytes and thought to drawe them to him.

But when Ezechias sawe that Sennacherib was come & that he purposed to fight against Jerusalem: he toke counsel with his capitaynes and men of might, to stop the watir of ꝑ fountaynes that were without the cytie: and they were content to helpe him. And so there gathered moche people together and stopt all the welles and the broke that ran thorow the myddis of the lande, entendinge that the kynges of Assur should not fynde moche water, when they came. And he went to lustely and buylte vp the wall where it was broken, and made towres about vpon, & yet an other wal without, and repayred Mello the cyte of David, and made many darts and shilds.

And he set Capitaynes of warre ouer ꝑ people & gathered theym together into the large strete at the gate of the cyte and spake gently to them; sayenge. Plucke vp your hertes and be stronge: Be not afrayed ne in any wyse discouraged for dreed of the kynge of Assur, and of the great multitude that is with hym: for there is one greatter with vs then with him. With him is an arme of flesh: but with vs is the Lorde our God for to help vs and to fight our batayles. And the people were well comforted with the worckes of Ezechias kynge of Juda.

After that, Sennacherib kyng of Assur sent of his seruauntes to Jerusalem (he him self lyenge before Lachis and all his kyngdome with him) vnto Ezechias kynge of Juda and vnto all Juda that were at Jerusalem, sayenge.

Thus sayth Sennacherib kynge of Assur: In whom in ye trust O ye that are besieged in Jerusalem? Ezechias deceyueth you, to kyll you to death, honger, and thrust, sayeng: the Lorde oure God shall rydde vs out of the hande of the kynge of Assur. Is it not that Ezechias that put downe his hyll auitares and his other auitares, and commaunded Juda & Jerusalem sayenge: before one auiter ye shal bowe your selues and vpon that offer also?

Moreouer haue ye not herde what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes? were the gods of the people of other landes able to saue their landes oute of my hande? which of all the goddes of those nacions that my fathers destroyed was it, that could kepe his people out myne hande, that your God shulde be able to kepe you oute of myne hande? Wherfore nowe let not Ezechias deceyue you eyther perswade you on this facion, nor yet beleue him. For as no God amonge so many nacions and kyngdomes, was able to rydde his people out of myne hande & the handes of my fathers: euen so moche lesse shall your God kepe you out of myne hande. And yet more dyd his seruauntes spike against the Lorde God and against his seruaunt Ezechias. Furthermore he wrote a letter to raile on the Lorde God of Israel and spake therin sayenge: as the goddes of the nacions of other landes haue not delyuered their people out of myne hande, no more shall the God of Ezechias delyuer his people out of myne hande. And they cryed with a lowde voyce in the Iewes speache vnto the people of Jerusalem, ꝑ were on the walles, to feare them and to dismaye theym, that they might haue taken the cyte. And they spake against the God of Jerusalem, as against the goddes of the nacions of the earth, which are the worckes of the handes of men.

But Ezechias the kynge and the ꝓphete Isai sonne of Amos prayed concernynge that thinge and cryed vp to heauen. And the Lorde sent an aungell and destroyed all the men of warre and the Lordes and Capitaynes of the host of the kynge of Assur, that he turned his face with shame towarde his owne lande. And when he was come into the house of his God, he was there ouerthrowen w the sword euen by them that issued out of his bowels. And so the Lorde saued Ezechias and the inhabiters of Jerusalem oute of the handes of Sennacherib kynge of Assur and of all other, and maynteined them on all sydes. In so much that many brought presentes vnto the Lorde to Jerusalem and precious gyftes to Ezechias kynge of Juda: so that he was magnifyed in the sight of all nacions fromē thence forth.

In those dayes Ezechias was sicke vnto ꝑ death and besought the Lorde: which answered him and shewed him a wonderfull myracle: but Ezechias dyd not accordinge to the benefite shewed him, for his hert arose: therfore came there wrath vpon him and vpon Juda and Jerusalem. Notwithstandinge Ezechias meekened him self for the arrogancy of his hert both he and the inhabiters of Jerusalem. Wherfore the wrath of the Lorde fell not vpō them in the dayes of Ezechias.

And Ezechias had exceadinge moch ryches and honour. And he gathered him treasure of siluer, golde, precious stones, spices, shildes, and all maner pleasaunt iewelles: and made store houses for the frutes of corne, wyne and oyle: and stables for all maner beastes, & folds for shepe. And made him townes because he had catel of shepe & oxen great aboundaūce for God had given him substaunce exceadinge moche. And the same Ezechias stopped ꝑ vpper waterspringes of Gihon & brought them downe to the West syde of the cyte of David. And Ezechias prospered in all his workes.

But when the Ambassadours of the Lordes of Babylon were sente to him, to enquyre of the wonder ye that chaunced in the lande, God left him; to tempte him that all that was in his

bred myght be knowen.

¶ The reste of the actes of Ezechias and his good dedes are wrytte in the vision of Isaie the prophete the son of Amos in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Israel. And then Ezechias slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the highest sepulchre of the sonnes of David: and Juda and the inhabitaunts of Jerusalem dyd him worshyppe at his decease. And Manasses his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Manasses is taken prysoner, and after destroyeth the Idoles. He dyeth after him succeadeth Amon. Amon is killed of his owne people, and Josiah his sonne raygneth for him.

CAP. XXXIII.

MAnasses was .xij. yere old when he was made kynge, and raigned .lv. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd wyckedlye in the sight of the Lorde, lyke vnto the abominacions of the Paynyms which the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel. For he went and buylt agayne the hyllauters which Ezechias his father had broken downe. And he erected up auiters vnto Baals, and made groues, & bowed him selfe vnto all the host of heauen and serued thē. And he buylt auiters in the house of the Lorde: Of which the Lorde had sayde + in Jerusalem shall my name be for euer. And he made auiters vnto all the host of heauen in the two courtes of the house of ℣ Lord. And he burnt his children in fyre in the valey of the sonnes of Hennon. And he obserued diuinal dayes and occupyed wytchecraft and sorsery, and mayntened workers with spirites & feates of fortunes: and wrought moche euyll in the sight of the Lorde, to anger him with.

And he put the herued Image of an Idole which he had made, in the house of God. Of which house God sayde to David and to Salomon his sonne, in this house here in Jerusalem which I haue chosen out of all the tribes, + I wil put my name for euer, & no more remoue the feate of Israell for the of the lande which I haue ordeyned for your fathers. In case they shalbe dylygent to do all I haue commaunded by Moyses in all the lawe ordinaunces and maners. But Manasses made Juda & the inhabiters of Jerusalem to erre, and to do worse then the Heythen which the Lorde destroyed before the children of Israel. And whē the Lorde spake to Manasses and to his people, they attended not to him.

Wherfore the Lorde brought vpon them ℣ Capitaynes of the host of the kynge of Assur, which toke Manasses in an holde and bound him with chaynes and caryed him to Babilon And when he was in tribulacion he besought the Lorde his God, and humbled him self exceedyngly before the God of his fathers, and made intercession to him: and he was entreated of him and herde his prayer and brought him agayne to Jerusalem into his kyngdome. Then Manasses knewe how that the Lorde was the very God. After that, he buylt a wal without the cyte of David on the west syde of Sion in the broke and to wyth to Fysshgate and rounde about Ophel and brought it vp of a very greate heyght, and put Capitaynes of warre in all the stronge cytes of Juda. And he toke away straunge gobbes and the Idole out of the house of God, and all the auiters that he had buylt in the mount of the house of God and in Jerusalem, and cast them out of the cyte. And he made an auiter vnto ℣ Lord and sacrificed theron pr. offrynges and thanke offrynges, and charged Juda to serue ℣ Lorde God of Israel. Neuertheles the people dyd offer styll in the hyllauters, yet vnto the Lorde their God only.

The reste of the actes of Manasses and his prayer vnto his God, and the wordes of the seers of hys that spake to him in ℣ name of the Lorde God of Israell, are written amonge the dedes of the kynges of Israel. And his prayer and how that he was herde, and all his synne and trespace, and the places where he made hyllauters and set vp groues & herued Images before he was meeked, are written amonge the dedes of the seers of visions. And when Manasses was layde to rest with his fathers, they buryed him in his owne house and Amon his sonne raygned in his rowme. Amon was .xxij. yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned two yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde lyke vnto Manasses his father, for Amon sacrificed to all the herued Images which Manasses his father made, and serued them, and meeked not him selfe before the Lorde, as Manasses his father had meeked him selfe: But Amon trespassed greatly. Wherfore his owne seruaūtes conspired against him and slew him in his owne house. And the people of the lande slewe all that had conspired against kynge Amon. And then to the people of the lande made Josias his sonne kynge in his rowme.

¶ Josias destroyeth the Idoles and restoreth the temple in whiche is founde the boke of the lawe. He sendeth to Holda the prophetesse for counsell.

CAP. XXXIIII.

JOsias was made kynge when he was .viij. yere olde, and he raygned in Jerusalem .xxxj. yeres. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, & walked in the wayes of David his father, bowinge neyther to the ryght hande ne to ℣ left. In so moche that the eyght yere of his raigne, when he was yet a lad, he began to seke after the God of David his father. And in the .xij. yere he began to purge Juda and Jerusalem of hyllauters, groues, herued Images, & Images of metall: so that they brake downe ℣ auiters of Baals euen in his presence, and the Idoles that were vpon them, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, herued Images, & Images of metall he brake and made dust of them, and strawed it vpon the graues of them that had offred to them. And he burnt the bones of the prestes vpon the auiters, and clensed Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he in the

in the cytties of Manasses, Ephraim, Simeon and of Nepthali. And in the wylderneſſes of them rounde about he plucked a ſonder the aultares and the groues and dyd beate them and stampe theym to powdre, and bet wynne the ydoles thorowout all the lande of Israel: and then returned to Jerusalem.

In the.xviii. yere of his raygne when he had purged the lande and the temple, he sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia, and Maasiah the gouernoure of the cytie, and Joah the sonne of Joachaz the recorder, to repayre the house of the Lorde his God. And when they came to Helkiah the hyghe preaste, men deliuered theym the moneye that was brought into the house of God, which the Leuites that kept the entreyes had gathered of the handes of Manasses and Ephraim and of all that yet remayned in Israel and of all Juda and Ben Jamin and of the enhabiters of Jerusalem. And they put it in the handes of the workemē that had the ouerlight of the house of the Lorde, which gaue it to the labourers that wrought on the house of the Lorde, to repayre and mende it, and to maisons and carpēters to hye hewed stone and tymbre, for to make couples & beames for the houses which the kynges of Juda had destroyed: And the men wrought in the worke faithfully.

And the ouerseers of them to courage them were Jahath and Obadiah Leuites of the children of Merari: and Zecharia and Mesullam of the children of the Cahathites, and as many other of the Leuites as could skill of instrumētes of Musike. And ouer the bearers of burthens and ouer all that wrought in what so euer workmanship it were, were there scribes, officers and porters of the Leuites.

The boke of the lawe is founde.

And as they brought out the moneye that was brought into the house, Helkiah the preest founde the boke of the lawe of the Lorde geuen by Moses. And Helkiah answered and sayde to Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the house of the Lorde, & gaue the boke to Saphan. And Saphan caryed the boke to the kynge, and brought the kynge worde agayne, sayenge: all that was committed to thy seruauntes, that do they. And they haue powred out the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde and haue deliuered into the handes of the ouerseers of the workmen. And then Saphan the scribe shewed the kynge, sayenge: Helkias the preest hath geuē me a boke, and he red it before the kynge.

And when the kyng had herde the wordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes, and commaunded Helkiah and Ahikam the sonne of Saphā and Abdon the sonne of Micah and the sayd Saphan the scribe and Asaia a seruaunt of the kynges, sayenge: go and enquire of the Lorde for me and for them that are left in Israel and Juda, concernynge the wordes of the booke that is founde. For great is the wrath of the Lorde that is fallen vpō vs, because our fathers kept not the worde of the Lorde, to worke all that is written in this boke. And Helkias with the that pertayned to the kynge went to Holdah a prophetisse wyfe of Sellum the son of Thehohath the sonne of Hasarah kepar of the wardrope (which prophetisse dwelt in Jerusalem in the seconde warde) and they communed so with her. And she sayde vnto them: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, tell ye the man that sent you to me: euen thus sayth the Lorde: I will brynge euyll vpon this place and vpon the enhabiters therof, euen all the curses that are written in the boke which they haue red before the kynge of Juda, because they haue forsaken me and haue offred vnto other Gods to angre me with all maner workes of their handes, therfore is my wrathe set on fyre agaīst this place and shall not be quenched.

And as for the kynge of Juda which sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shall ye say to him: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel concernyng the wordes which thou hast herd. Because thyne hert dyd melt and thou dydest meke thy selfe before God, when thou herdest his wordes against this place and against the enhabiters therof: and humbledst thy selfe before me, and rentest thy clothes and wepest before me, that haue I herd also sayth the Lorde. Beholde I will take the to thy fathers & thou shalt be put in thy graue in peace, & thyne eyes shall not se all the myschefe that I will bryng vpon this place and vpō the inhabiters of the same. And they brought the kynge worde agayne. Then the kynge sent and gathered together all the elders of Juda and Jerusalem. And the kynge went vp into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and the inhabiters of Jerusalem and the preastes and Leuites and all the people great and small: and red al the wordes of the boke of the couenaūt that was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kynge stode at his standing and made a couenaunt before the Lorde, to folowe the Lorde and to kepe his commaundmentes, his wytnesses and his statutes with all his herte and with all his soule and to fulfill the wordes of the appoyntment written in the sayde booke.

And he made to come forthe all that were founde in Jerusalem and Ben Jamin, and the inhabiters of Jerusalem promyſed to kepe the couenaunt of God which was the God of their fathers. And Josias put away all maner abhominations out of all landes that pertayned to the children of Israel, and brought all that were founde in Israel to serue the Lorde their God. And they tourned not a syde from the Lorde God of their fathers as longe as he lyued.

¶ Josias holdeth passouer. He fyghteth against the kynge of Egypte / and dyeth. The people bewayle him.

CAPI. XXXV.

And Josias helde the feaſt of passouer vnto the Lorde in Jerusalem, and they slewe passouer in the.xiiii. daye of the first moneth. And he set the preastes in their offices and ayded the in the seruyce of the house of the Lorde. And he sayd to the Leuites that taught taught thorow out all Israel and were sanctified vnto the Lorde: put the holy arcke in the house which Salomon the son of Dauid kyng of Israell dyd buylde, ye nede not to beare it vpon your shoulders. Wherfore now serue the Lorde your God and his people Israell. And prepare your selues by your auncient housholdes and companyes, accordinge to the wrytynge of Dauid kynge of Israel, and the wrytinge of Salomon his sonne. And stande in the holy place accordynge to the deuysions of the auncyent housholdes of your brethren the chyldren of the people, and after the deuyson of the auncyent housholdes of the Leuites, & kyll passouer, sanctifye and prepare your brethren that they maye doo accordynge to the worde of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

And Josias gaue to the common people in lambes and kydes, for passe ouer offeringes onely, vnto all that were present thirty thousande by tale, and thre thousande oxen, euen of ye kynges substaunce. And his Lordes gaue willyngly vnto the people and vnto ye priestes and vnto the Leuites. Helkias, Zacharias & Iehiel rulers of the house of God, gaue vnto the priestes for passe ouer offeringes two thousande and syxe hundred lambes and kydes, and thre hundred oxen. And Conania with Semeia and Nathanael his brethren, and Hasabiah and Iaiel and Iozabad, Lordes of the Leuites, gaue vnto ye Leuites, fyue thousande passe ouer offeringes, & fyue hundred oxen.

And so the seruyce went forwarde: and ye priestes stode in theyr places, and the Leuites in theyr companyes at the kynges commaundement. And they offered passouer: and the priestes sprynkled the bloude receyuynge it of the Leuites, and the Leuites flayde the beastes, and they set awaye the burntofferinges, to gyue them vnto the comme people as they were deuyded by auncient houses, for to offer vnto the Lorde, as is written in the boke of Moses. And so dyd they with the oxen. And they dressed the passouer with fyre as the maner was. But the other halowed holocaust beastes they sod in potters, caudrons and pannes and dyed them quickely amonge all the common people. And afterwarde they made redy for them selues and for the priestes and for the children of Aaron, which were occupyed in offeringe burntoffringes and the fat vntyll nyght. And therfore the Leuites prepared for them selues and for the priestes the sonnes of Aaron. And the singers the children of Asaph stode in their standinge accordinge to the commaundement of Dauid and Asaph, Heman & Idithun the kynges seare of visions: and the porters waited at euery gate, and might not departe from their seruice: But their brethre the Leuites prepared for them. And so all the seruice of the Lorde went forwarde the same daye, in offeringe passouer of burntoffringes vpon the aultare of the Lorde, accordinge to the commaundement of kynge Josias. And so the children of Israell that coulde be founde/ offered passouer the same tyme and kepte the feast of swete bred. vij. dayes, and there was no passouer lyke to that kept in Israel frome the tyme of Samuel the prophete: neyther dyd any of the kynges of Israel holde suche a passouer feast as dyd Josias and the priestes & Leuites and all Juda, and almoste of Israel as coulde be had, and the inhabiters of Jerusalem. And this passouer was holden in the xviij. yere of the raygne of Josias.

D Exo. xxxiiij.

After all this, when Josias had tymyshed the temple, Necho kynge of Egypte came vp to fight against Carcamis vpon Euphrates, and Josias went out against him. And the other sent messengers to him, sayenge: what haue I to do with the thou kynge of Juda? I came not against the now at this tyme, but against an house with whome I haue warre, & God bad me haste. Leaue therfore and medle not with God which is with me, least he destroy the. Neuertheles Josias turned not his face frō him, but made him redy to fight with him, & perceiued not bi the wordes of Necho out of the mouthe of God. And when he was come to fight in the valeye of Mageddo, ye shotters shot against the kynge Josias. And ye kynge sayd to his seruauntes: take me away, for I am sore hurt. And his seruauntes bare him out of that charet & put him in an other, and brought him to Jerusalem where he dyed and was buryed in ye sepulchre of his fathers. And all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josias. And Jeremye lamented Josias, and all singyng men and singyng women spake of Josias to this daye, and made it an ordinaunce in Israel: and they be written in lamentacions. The rest of the actes of Josias & his good dedes in folowinge the writinge of the lawe, & his deedes first and last are written in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda.

And Sedechias was. xxj. yere old when he began to raygne, and raygned a. xj. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde his God, and humbled not him self before Jeremy the Prophete at the mouth of the Lorde. And therto he rebelled against Nabuchodonosor which had receyued an othe of him by god and was to styffnecked and to harde hearted to turne vnto the Lord God of Israel. Furthermore all the rulers of the preastes with the people trespaced a pace after all maner of abominacions of the Paynims & polluted þ house of the Lorde which he had halowed in Jerusalem.

And the Lord God of their fathers sent to them by his messingers, sendynge them by tymes: for he had compassion on his people and on his dwellynge place. But they mocked the messingers of God and skypped their wordes and myssused his Prophetes, vntyll the wrath of the Lorde so arose against his people that it was past remedy. And so he brought vpon them the kynge of Caldey & slew their yonge men with the swerde in their holy temple, and neyther sparede yonge man nor mayden, neyther old man, neyther so moche as hym that stowped for age: But gaue al into his hande.

And all the vessels of þ house of God both great and smal, and the treasures of the house of God, and the treasures of the kynge & his Lordes he caryed to Babilon euery whit. And they brent the house of God and brake wnne the walles of Jerusalem, and brent all the palaces therof with fyre, with all the goodly stuffe therof, and marred it. And he caryed away them that had escaped the swerde, to Babilon, where they were seruauntes to him and his children, vntyll the kyngdome of perfia began to rule, to fulfill the worde of the Lord by the mouthe of Jeremy, vntyl the land had her pleasure of her Sabbothes: for as longe as she laye desolate, she kept Sabboth vntyll she had fulfilled. lxx. yeres. And the first yere of Cyrus kynge of perfia to fynysh the word of the Lorde by the mouth of Jeremy, þ Lord stered vp the spirite of Cyrus kynge of perfia that he made a Proclamacion throughout all his kyngdome, and set it vp in writynge, sayenge: Thus sayth Cyrus kynge of Perfia, all the kyngdomes of the earth the Lord God of heauen hath geuen me, whiche hathe charged me to buylde him an house in Jerusalem that is in the lande of Juda. Whersore who so euer is amonge you of all his people, the Lorde his God be with him, and let him go vp.

¶ Cyrus sendeth agayne the people that was in captyuyte, and restoyed them thyr holy vessellis. And commaundeth them to buylde agayne the temple.

Then gat vp the principall fathers of Juda and Ben Jamin, and the preastes and Leuites, and all they whose spyrite God had rayſed to goo vp, and to buylde the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem. And all they that were about them, strengthed their handes with veſſels of syluer and golde, with good and catell and Jewels, besyde that wyche they gaue of their frewill. And kynge Cyrus brought forth of the vessels of the house of the Lorde, wyche Nabuchodonosor had taken out of Jerusalem, and put in the house of his God. But Cyrus the kynge of Perſia brought them forthe by Mithridates the treasurer, and numbred them vnto Sesbazar the prince of Juda.
